On the cold, windy day in Plymouth, Cohasset U-15 White shook off winter and launched a heated attack on Plymouth and took a 13-7 victory. White went up 6-1 early in the game. Erin Driscoll stepped into goal for the first time of her career and dominated the first half with seven key saves and cheddar sharp clearing passes. Shannon McGowan and Emily Robbins anchored the defense throughout the game with assists from Isabella Cannon, Catie Gilman and Cassandra Lieberman. White led 7-3 at the half.

Christine Guinee stepped up and took the goalie spot in the second half and notched two important saves and hung tough throughout. On the scoring front, Elizabeth Baker tweaked the first score of the game with a crafty change-up pitch that gave the Plymouth goalie a couple of looks at it but still snuck home. At attack, Kathryn Dunn struck four scores on coordinated feeds and tallied one assist.

From middie - Lexa Grasz hit one goal and added an assist, Isabelle Dunne scored two goals and had three assists, and Charlotte Allard tallied five goals.

White's second half play was fairly crisp with several multi-pass scoring drives, including some nice playmaking by Dunn and Dunne, who combined for 4 goals. Cailey Hart also contributed some strong play at attack.

U13 White

The U13 White team had a great start to the 2010 lacrosse season. Cohasset trounced Plymouth 12-4, with only two substitutes. Attack player Charlotte Morrison agreed to play goalie in the first half and kept the opponent scoring to a minimum. Katie McKeon took over in the second half to maintain the strong lead that the girls had created in the first half.

Many of the players shot on goal and/or scored during the opening game including Colleen McGowan, Alex Martini, Grace McMeekin, Grace Lucier, Molly Cunning, Maya Placek, Charlotte Morrison, and Bennett Tierney. The team also was able to show off talents of strong middies that were able to take the ball end to end including Nikki Federle, Olivia Arnold, and Clare Glavin. Finally, Charlotte and Katie were aided in the goal by some great defensive players including Margot Robbins and Kara Nelson. And that...was the U13 White team...only getting started! Watch out South Shore lacrosse opponents.

U13 Grey

The Girl's U13 Grey squad took to the home turf last Sunday with nerves and excitement for the season opener against Duxbury. With few preseason practices under their belts, Cohasset proudly displayed their zeal for lacrosse by playing in mid-season form. Players experience the many small victories during a game that are the reward for total effort, but the score tells part of the story too. By halftime, Cohasset was on top of Duxbury 6-0, in no small part to Jenny Wolfe's goaltending; at least three saves of which we consider to be 'stuffs' which are executed at close range. Our girls were so focused on ball movement and individual challenges in the first half that the halftime score came as a bit of a surprise to many. Cohasset held tough in the second half as Duxbury turned on the heat. Three Cohasset shots found the goal pipe in the second half, but we continued to maintain control of the game's flow and took the final victory at 7-6.

Sisters Madigan and Callahan O'Neill each had a goal, as did Paige Carrabes, Marcella Flibotte, Abby McGrath, Sophie Wolfe, and Olivia Sanderson. Abby Thomas, Abby McGrath, and Madigan O'Neill had assists. McGrath's second assist to Olivia Sanderson scored on a not often seen redirect.

We look forward to Hingham coming to visit the weekend after Easter. Great job everyone!

U11 Blue

The girls U11 Blue team hosted Duxbury on the turf for their season opener on Sunday. Despite fielding only 12 players, Cohasset handled the formidable Duxbury squad 4-1 in a defensive battle. Statistically Duxbury had the edge in the all important ground balls category. However, Cohasset dominated in passing and catching when it counted, completing several crisp exchanges that resulted in exciting scoring opportunities and brought the enthusiastic crowd to their feet. 4th grade standouts Kendall McConnaughey and Zoe Doherty controlled the midfield with the help of the speedy rookies Annie Pyne, Jane Hansen, Cora Quinlan and Maeve Humphrey. With no subs, Madison Ahern, Caroline Cooper and Laney Hixson answered the call to mark Duxbury's strongest players as they transitioned from offensive to defensive positions throughout the game. Coaches credit all the fearless 3rd grade members of the team for an exceptional performance in their very first lacrosse experience. The game could not have been won without them – Well done girls! With half the team on the PUP list, the girls will enjoy an early bye-week before they get back in the trenches with rival Scituate on April 11.

U11 White

The Cohasset U11 White Girls Lacrosse team travelled to Plymouth for their opening game on Sunday. With an early start to the season, the girls had limited practice time yet showed athleticism and skill under chilly conditions. The girls moved the ball around well using the X position and spread themselves on the field. Eighteen girls rotated throughout the 7v7 arrangement and were impressive on both offense and defense considering many girls had never played a game before. They took an early lead and didn't look back in an 8-3 win.

Everyone contributed winning ground balls, moving the ball down the field and marking up on defense. We expect to see great things from these girls this season. The White Team will suit up again on April 11 against Scituate.

Weymouth Waves hold year-end banquet

Cohasset swimmers named MVP's

Twenty-four swimmers representing age groups I and II along with juniors and seniors were recognized for their accomplishments as the Weymouth Waves held their annual end-of-the-year banquet.

The Waves, who compete out of the Weymouth Club, enjoyed their finest season ever under the tutelage of head coach Mike Riley along with Chelsea Brace and AJ Vozella who coach the seniors, juniors coach Susan Burnham, age group II coaches Joanne Gallahue and Rich Gibbons and age group I coach Jack Folcarelli.

From age group I, which includes youngsters ages 6 to 10, two Cohasset swimmers were named the MVPs. They were Dean Spicer (male) and Abby Thomas (female), while a third Cohasset swimmer, Jackson Stone was selected the male most improved performer. The female most improved was Lauren Prifti of Braintree. The team spirit award for the male went to Owen Kao of Hingham and Lauren Donovan was the female spirit winner.

From age group II (ages 10 to 13), Julia Klier (Cohasset) was the female MVP and Matt Gaffney (Braintree) was the male MVP. Samantha Veth (Hingham) and Gene Butterfield (Holbrook) were the most improved female and male, respectively. Finally, Calley Madison (Hingham) and Zach Duncan (Abington) were selected the team spirit winners.

The juniors' (ages 13 to 17) MVPs were Tim Connolly (Dorchester) and Theresa Gaffney (Braintree). Griffith Hiss (Milton) was the male's most improved, while Liz Egan (Hingham) was the female's most improved. The team spirit winners were Patrick Boyle (Braintree) and Catie Ebsary (Norwell).

The seniors (ages 13-19) were the final age group recognized, and, here two Hingham swimmers were named the MVPs—Colleen O'Neill (female) and Colin Mulcahy (male). Janelle McDonald (Middleboro) was the female most improved, while Connor Green (Cohasset) was the male most improved. Lastly, Caroline Callahan (Holbrook) and Peter McDonald (Norwell) were the team spirit winners—Callahan for the women and McDonald for the men.

These 24 swimmers, along with their teammates, had record-breaking performances highlighted by Janelle McDonald's winning the Division 2 Massachusetts State Championship in the 100 backstroke. The Middleboro High School standout broke the one-minute mark in the event for the first time in her career. She was clocked in :59.72 en route to setting a Middleboro High School record and beating two opponents with high seed times by nearly a full second.

McDonald was one of 10 Weymouth Waves who qualified for the prestigious USA Swimming Austin (Texas) Grand Prix. Nearly 1300 swimmers from around the nation competed in this event. Of the 10 Waves who qualified, nine competed and they combined to turn in their best times in 20 events. The busiest Wave swimmer was 19-year-old Colin Mulcahy (Hingham). He competed in the 50, 100 and 200 freestyle, the 100 backstroke, the 100 fly, the 100 backstroke, the 100 breaststroke and the 200 individual medley.

To see how far the Waves' program has advanced in just one year. Last year, only three qualified for this meet.

Here is how the team fared in other championships during the season.

At the Regionals, 63 swimmers qualified, nine was individual events, there were 151 top-20 finishers and there were 181 best times turned in.

At the New England 12-and-under championships, seven qualified, there were two top-10 and two top-20 finishes and 21 best tines.

At the New England 13-19 age group championships, 15 qualified and there were 145 best times.

Finally, at the Speedo Sectionals, four qualified.

"This was certainly the best season we have had since I have been here," said Riley. "I was very pleased and proud with how everyone performed and improved during the season."

For those interested in trying out for the Weymouth Waves, considered one of the top club teams on the South Shore, tryouts are scheduled for this week (March 29—April 1) from 5:00—6:00 pm.

For further information, contact Waves assistant coach Chelsea Brace at the Weymouth Club (781-337-4600 extension 135).

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Also, Junior class officers were assigned to assign their parents the task of getting a nice little food tent set up for graduation at the South Shore Music Circus.

Oh look, ducks are swimming in my neighbors YARD again because of all the rain. I can't even begin to tell you how much I hate this weather as of late. What does the sun look like?

Well if any students had questions similar to the one I just asked or any intelligent questions, Monday was the perfect place for said questions. Monday was home to the monthly teacher-student meeting/discussions. Me and the fellow seniors in my group were asking about college…you know…because we are done with high school in like 40 days. You are officially jealous. Hopefully it isn't still raining when we get out.

On Tuesday, it rained…again! If you think I am joking right now, let me assure you, this is one of the few instances where I am being serious. I haven't been this mad at something since David Tyree. If you don't know who David $#@*&^% Tyree is, then you are very lucky from my point of view. So yeah, on Tuesday in the halls of CHS, it was the unusual nothing going on in the hallways. In the principal's office, there was a presidents' meeting. Yeah, there was free pizza for the bosses of the school. This was actually a rather unproductive meeting because the freshman and junior presidents were absent. And yes, that means I ate a lot more free pizza than usual.

Wednesday was a day that was productive for the student council. At the STUCO meeting, we were given all of our supplies to run the blood drive on April 16th that you will totally go to. Also, Junior class officers were assigned to assign their parents the task of getting a nice little food tent set up for graduation at the South Shore Music Circus. Finally, the senior skip trip began being heavily planned. Look out.

Thursday was a democratic day as the GBRSAC elections were held. The votes aren't in yet, but by next week, 2 new students will have been chosen to represent the CHS at the monthly GBRSAC meetings. Hopefully, those chosen will go on to successfully represent the school and bring back insightful ideas.

That's all that went on this week. It was a dull week. It went fast though because we got Friday off because of Good Friday. Speaking of which, happy Easter! And if you don't roll that way, happy Yom Kippur! And is you don't go that way either happy Spring Solstice! And if you don't go that way, happy April Fool's Day! And if you don't go that way…you are a platypus. Farewell.

Sean MacCarthy threatened a Verizon customer service operator on Tuesday. Sorry if it was you, but you deserved it.

SCHOOL NOTES

Workshop to explore services for children

The public is welcome to a presentation titled "Finding Mental Health Services for Your Children: New Services, New State Laws and New Pathways to Services," from 7 to 9 p.m., on Tuesday, April 6, at Paul Pratt Library. This panel discussion is presented by SSEC/Pathways, a statewide initiative to promote and improve the mental health of children through collaborations between public schools, state agencies and community providers.

Presenters will discuss what services are now available for children in Massachusetts as the result of recent litigation and newly enacted laws. Presenters will discuss how to access these services through both private and public health insurance programs. The presenters represent the three major community-based mental health centers on the South Shore, as well as the child crisis team and Pathways. Questions will be answered, and a discussion between providers and parents will be featured.

All workshops and presentations are free and sponsored by the PSO/Cohasset PAC.

Pilgrim Arena scholarship applications

Applications for ten $5,000 scholarships are available at the Pilgrim Skating Arena, 75 Recreation Park Drive, Hingham.

Interested seniors must pick up and sign for the application in person at the arena pro shop. Completed applications must be returned by Thursday, April 15.

Applicants will be judged by members of the Scholarship Committee of the Board of Directors at Pilgrim Arena.

Sailing Team ready to launch

The Cohasset School Committee approved the much-anticipated high school sailing team on Wednesday, March 17. Students from Cohasset High School, Hull High School and the South Shore Charter Public School (SSCPS) will compete as a regional team this spring!

Students and parents, with the support of Sail Nantasket, a non-profit foundation dedicated to encouraging the sport of sailing, worked with our athletic director, school committee and school administrators to create this sailing opportunity for our students. The support from the community, especially our sailing clubs, was essential in establishing this team.

The Hull/Cohasset/SSCPS Sailing team will join Notre Dame, Duxbury, Hingham, Manchester-Essex, Sharon, St. John's Prep, Winchester, Brooks, Cambridge, Concord Academy, Concord-Carlisle, Lynnfield, Natick, Newman, Newton, Newton Country Day, Noble and Greenough, Pingree, Quincy, St. Sebastian's, Winsor, Winthrop, the British School of Boston, Lincoln-Sudbury, Dover-Sherborne, Boston Latin, Wellesley, Buckingham, Brown & Nobles, Swampscott and Gloucester in the Mass Bay League, an organization in Boston that governs the sport and organizes races between high school teams.

Kevin Broome, an accomplished sailor and coach, will coach the team. He has been a sailing director or instructor at Scituate Harbor, Plymouth, South Shore, and Hull Yacht Clubs. And, for the past several years has coached the Providence College Sailing Team.

High School sailing is the fastest growing segment of sailing in the United States. Sailing teaches teamwork, leadership, decision-making, self-confidence, preparation, and other life values by encouraging students to strive to be their best on and off the water.

The Cohasset community is enormously grateful that Sail Nantasket included the Cohasset Skippers in their team's roster.

Hot dogs help make event delicious!

Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Now in it's 34th year, the Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K is very much the same race that it was more than three decades ago. There are so many reasons that people come back year after year... great volunteers along the route, the scenic views, and the commemorative t-shirts are all major reasons that people love this race, but there is another reason, maybe not so mainstream, and yet still a favorite among many—the hot dogs served at the finish.

Each year Kinnealey Meats donates more than 1,000 hot dogs for the post race festivities and Gold Medal brand donate the rolls to put them in. For just as many years the Rotary volunteers have cooked and served this culinary favorite to thousands of hungry runners and their families. However, you don't have to race to get the dog...you can walk too. The Fran Coffey Memorial Fun Walk begins and ends at Sandy Beach at 10 a.m. on race day. This year, proceeds from the Fran Coffey Memorial Walk will benefit Wellspring Multi-Service Center in Hull and People in Need (P.I.N.) in Roxbury.

Long time volunteer Duncan McCormack and a close-knit group of friends and family, including Jack Pattison, have been serving hot dogs to walkers for years.

Cooking the hot dogs is the "easy" part of this task. Picture the Sandy Beach parking lot in late March, early April. It can be extremely windy. This group of volunteers spends a great deal of time securing and "shrink wrapping" their tents so that the wind (and sometimes rain) stays out while they're preparing the grill.

"I knew Fran Coffey from high school," says McCormack. "We were both part of a big group of friends who graduated from Cohasset High School at the same time. I went into the military for over 20 years and when i got back, we reconnected after the Rotary Club took over organization of the road race."

McCormick felt the walkers were getting a little short changed. The road race had food at the finish so he took it upon himself to go down to the beach, set up a table and invite friends to come down and each bring something. And each year McCormack waits for the last runner of the 1 p.m. road race to pass by the beach, which is along the course. He strongly believes that the last runner needs just as much, if not more encouragement than the first.

Runners attack the first hill on Forest Ave. during the annual Cohasset By the Sea Road Race.

"What happens at the beach today really blossomed from that first tailgate party long ago. A small boy came up to me and asked if he could have a hot dog. Of course I gave him one, then his family came over and we offered his parents one. Before we knew it, everyone was folded into our gathering of friends and its been that way ever since." People bring all kinds of things to accompany the "main dish," including chili, and desserts and Kit Coffey's "world famous chocolate chip cookies," which according to McCormick don't last very long.

In the beginning the group probably cooked 50 hot dogs, last year they cooked about 150. McCormick believes the object of any barbecue is to have nothing left at the end. He's almost always successful.

And now for the "chips," which in contrast to the traditional New England frank, are the most innovative part of this race. This year the Cohasset Road Race will be using the B-Tag timing chip from Chrono Track Systems.

"We are very excited to be able to offer "the most anticipated technology in race timing history" to the participants of the 34th Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K," says Brad Goodwin, Race Director. "This new technology will not only streamline the process for the runners, it will allow the race committee to free up some volunteers to be used elsewhere, to better provide for the safety and enjoyment of all," says Goodwin

The disposable (but recyclable) UHF RFID tag stays mounted on the runner's bib, It should simplify registration — which was already relatively simple — and cut down on congestion at the finish area. There's nothing to remove. Runners finish the race and have nothing to turn back in. They can immediately head over to the fun at the Community Center.

The chip is only one of many great amenities afforded to the runners. Verc Rentals is donating vans to shuttle runners from the parking lot of the South Shore Music Circus up to the South Shore Community Center where the race is headquartered. Runners are in for a treat with complimentary pre and post race massages by Mariposa. A local favorite, The Armstrong Brothers Band, will be playing for the crowd. And for those who have been training and reap the rewards of top finishers, there are great prizes and also gorgeous bouquets of spring flowers donated by Clifford Florist.

The list of sponsors goes on and on including local companies like ColoSpace, Goodwin Graphics, Curtis Liquors, Pilgrim Bank, Aveda Lemon Lime Lifestyle Salon, Suburban Contract Cleaning, Ross Rosano, J.F. Kehoe & Sons, Cohasset Dental, Hingham Institute, and Balance Studio. And many more local sponsors including 5 South Main, Coastal Countryside, Dean & Hamilton, Robbins Garage, Hingham Car Wash, Fallon Ambulance, Bay State Equipment and Atlantic Bagel. The race also wants to thank Atlantic Brokerage, Goodale, Philip Hugh Smith Interior Design, Vincent Nardo CPA, Lisa DiTullio-Your Project Office, Fox Associates, the Road Less Traveled to Old Colony Square Road Race, and the Good Sport. The local support of residents and businesses for the Cohasset Road Race is what has helped make it such a sought after race for runners for more than three decades.

Whether walking or running, April 11th is all about tradition and innovation. It's about fun and friendly competition. So register now at www.roadracebythesea.com while there are still a few spots left. We hope to see you all out there!

Clothing drive launched again

Spring Cleaning? Kids Growing? Please bring your gently used clothing and baby equipment to benefit needy children in Massachusetts! The O'Donnell family at 11 Beach Street is hosting a clothing drive to benefit Cradles to Crayons on Saturday May 15th from 8-2. Cradles to Crayons collects clothing, baby equipment, school supplies and crafts, shoes, books and Jackets and distributes these goods through a wide network of social service agencies benefiting children from birth to age 12. Clean out your children's closets and bring over your clean hand-me-downs to benefit a good cause! Saturday's drive will include snacks and a jump house for kids! Interested in helping? GIMME SHELTER

Tig is good-natured, gentle giant

This week the Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is looking for shelter for Tig. Tig is a two-year-old gentle giant. He was surrendered from what must have been a loving home. He's a male tiger who would do well with a family with children. He's so good-natured. If you sit down, he'll more than likely jump on to your lap to have you pet him. You simply have to meet him to realize what a great companion he'll make.

For adoption information, call Shirl at 781-925-3380. Also check out our website at www.hsar.org. The Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is located at 50 L St., Hull; the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue PO Box 787, Hull, MA 02045. Hours are Saturday from 2 to 3 p.m. and Monday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Telephone numbers are 781-925-3121 and 1-877-378-1195. If you prefer, you can email, hsar@hsar.org. Thanks to all the supporters. If you'd like to become a member, give Mary a call at 781-925-3121.

Cheap windows are the best choice
(but only if you're moving soon).

Renewal by Andersen
WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

For those who don't want to replace their replacement windows.

Cheap windows are held together with glues, screws and fasteners—and subject to expansion and contraction—cheap windows often fail. Your drafts will be back, and so too will your expensive energy bills.

All Renewal by Andersen windows are custom-crafted with our patented Fibrex® material. Forty percent reclaimed wood fibers are heat pressurized with a thermoplastic polymer to make Fibrex® material twice as rigid and stable as vinyl. A more stable window won't have to be replaced again.

- Fibrex material is twice as rigid and stable as vinyl. A more stable window saves you more money on energy costs.
- Unlike other companies' windows, every best-selling Renewal by Andersen window qualifies for the $1,500 Federal Energy Tax Credit.
- Our windows have glass that's up to 70% more energy efficient.†

Fibrex® material is 2X as rigid and stable as vinyl

- For over twenty-two years, the same Fibrex material has remained unchanged during weather exposure testing in the heat of the Arizona dessert, the sub-zero cold of Minnesota, and submerged in a Florida swamp.
- Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish window replacement subsidiary of Andersen —the most recognized name in windows.

NOT Available after 2010!

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 12, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A problem in getting a workplace project up and moving might upset the Lamb, who likes things done on time. But be patient. The delay could turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your instincts are usually on the mark, so if you feel uneasy about being asked for advice on a certain matter, it's probably a good idea that you opt not to comply with the request.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might have two minds about a proposed change (which often happens with the Twins), but once all the facts are in, you'll be able to make a definitive decision. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Crab's frugal aspect dominates, so while you might be reluctant to pay for technical repairs, the time you save in getting things back on track could be well worth the expense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you Leos and Leonas continue to concentrate on doing well in your work-related ventures this week, consider reserving the weekend for sharing good times with family and friends.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good week to take stock of the important personal, professional or familial relationships in your life and see where you might need to do some intense shoring up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice makes you the likely person to help deal with a work- or family-related grievance. But you need to have any doubts about anyone's true agenda resolved first.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The Scorpio passion for getting things done right and on time might rankle some folks. Never mind them. Others will be impressed, and they're the ones you want in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Finances could be a mite tight this week. And, while things will ease up soon enough, you savvy Sagittarians will want to keep a prudent eye on your expenses at this time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although a technical malfunction could cause a temporary delay in getting things up and running, you could use the time to recheck your operation and make changes where necessary.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might find it difficult to resist making a snap judgment about a colleague's behavior. But stick with your usual way of assessing situations and wait for the facts to come out.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Asking for help with a family situation might be the wisest course to take right now. Just be sure you turn to someone you can trust to do and say the right thing for the right reasons.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Susan De Santis

MORGANTON, N.C. – Susan De Santis, a longtime resident of Cohasset, Mass., in the late 1930s and from 1946 to 1990, passed away peacefully March 26, 2010, in Morganton after a short illness. She was the wife of Frank De Santis who had passed away in 1988.

Born April 8, 1914, Susan was the youngest and last survivor of the late Joseph and Susan McEnroe Doucette's 13 children.

She and Frank raised five children in a big yard on Forest Avenue. There were always horses, animals, gardens and a lot going on.

Her home was open and served as a gathering post for so many of her children's friends.

Susan was an avid reader a true generalist who had a view and comment on just about everything.

Susan had studied the piano at Berkely as a youth and played at home for her own enjoyment for much of her life. With her husband Frank, a son of a former Naval Academy Band Leader and an accomplished amateur musician himself, together they could light up their home with some beautiful sound.

She was a true South Shore girl having spent much of her childhood in Braintree, Mass.

Susan is survived by her daughters, Susan Rowland of Morganton, Cornelia Pratt of Orange Park, Fla., Antonia Winefield of Manchester, N.H., Celine De Santis of Salem, Mass.; and her son, Charles of Newtown, Conn.; and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren scattered everywhere.

She will be interred in the Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne, next to her husband Col. Frank C. De Santis, U.S. Marine Corps, at a private ceremony.

George E. Conn

COHASSET–George Edward (Ed) Conn of Cohasset, Massachusetts, passed away on March 26, 2010.

Ed was born on March 11, 1917 in Chester, Pa., as the only son of G. Edward Conn Sr. and his wife Florence (Faulkner). He graduated from Drexel University as an electrical engineer and served his country by working on The Manhattan Project during WW II. Ed lived for many years in Buffalo, N.Y. with his wife Sidney Hopkins, who died in 1988 and was a valued member of the church choir in an Episcopalian congregation. He worked in technical sales management for Allis-Chalmers, Houdaille and R.P. Adams and retired in 1973. He and Sidney raised three children, G. Edward III, Constance & James.

In the early 1990's he met Rosmarie Engel while visiting his son Jim in Germany. They were married in 1999 and together they enjoyed traveling to many countries of the world. In 2006 they moved to Cohasset, Massachusetts where Rosmarie's daughter Hortense and her husband Jack are long time residents. Ed enjoyed living close to the ocean and loved the beach. He made many friends in Cohasset and took part in the activities of the Elder Affairs and the Chanticleers Club. Ed was a true gentleman, relaxed and charming, and everyone fell under the spell of his blue eyes and wit.

Edward will be deeply missed by his wife Rosmarie Engel-Conn and children, Ed with wife Rebecca of Idaho Falls, daughter Connie Burks of New Orleans and son James with wife Renate of New Jersey. Edward had six grandchildren: Johanna & Amy, Ariel & Jake, Jocelyn & Alyssa and five great grandchildren. He was also a loved grandfather to John, May, Morgan and Lily, the children of Jack and Hortense McCarthy and will as well be missed by his only living cousin Jane McKinley, of Glen Mills, PA.

The viewing and funeral services was held on April 1, 2010 at the Chadds Ford Rigby Funeral Home, 232 Wilmington w Chester Pike, Chadds Ford, PA 19317. Immediately following the services he will be buried at the Mt. Hope Cemetery, 884 Concord Rd. Aston PA 19014

In lieu of flowers, donations in memory of Edward may be made to Cohasset Elder Affairs (New Building Fund for Seniors), 3 North Main Street, Cohasset, MA. 02025 for their help and support in so many ways. If you would like to share a written remembrance of Ed please e-mail it to james.fconn@gmail.com. For an online guestbook, please visit www.mcnamara-sparrell.com

James D. O'Malley

COHASSET – James Desloge O'Malley of Cohasset, died suddenly on March 26, 2010 in Newport, Rhode Island, aboard the Nantucket Lightship.

He was the brother of Owen L. of Cohasset, Cornelius of New Orleans, and Ann of Boston, and the brother-in-law of Kathleen of Cohasset and Karina of Green Bay, Wisconsin. Brother of the late Charles J. of Cohasset and Louis F. of Green Bay. He was the youngest child of the late Louis Joseph and Cornelia Leary O'Malley.

Born in Cohasset, he graduated from Boston College High School, Boston College and the University of Rhode Island. His Classics studies at Boston College were interrupted by service in the United States Army, in combat in Viet Nam in 1969 and 1970, attached to the 82nd Airborne and 11th Armored Cavalry divisions.

His love of the sea, nurtured in his youth by fishing and lobstering off the rocks of Cohasset,. developed into a mature commitment to the welfare of the oceans and those who worked on them. As a young man, he fished commercially, shipping out of Boston, New Bedford, Point Judith, RI, Alaska and Florida. He was the executive director of the East Coast Fisheries Federation, and a past member of the New England Fisheries Council.

He served on various governmental and non-governmental boards, traveling internationally on behalf of fisheries interests, to many places, including VietNam, Thailand, England, France, Spain, Russia and Canada. He lectured frequently at academic institutions, including the US Coast Guard Academy, and delivered papers at various international marine affairs conferences and published many articles related to fisheries. He was quoted in numerous books and articles and was regarded as an expert in the political and economic aspects of international fisheries matters.

Known for his generous heart and quick wit, he had a wide variety of interests and friends across the world. He stayed in contact with teachers and fellow students of the Classics. He was regarded as an expert on Rockwood Pottery and the whimsical fish-shaped jugs known as Gurgling Cods. He was an excellent host, entertaining with stories, songs and delicious meals. He loved political arguments and was a skilled debater. At the time of his death, in addition to consulting on fisheries matters, he was Port Captain of the Nantucket Lightship, now berthed at Newport. He was a poet at heart and will be missed by many people in many places.

A Funeral Mass will be celebrated on Wednesday at 10 am in St. Anthony Church, Cohasset. Visiting hours Tuesday 4-8 pm in McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. (across from St. Anthony Church), Cohasset, MA.

Nock has knack for making you laugh

'Bello is Back!' after a nine-year absence from The Big Apple Circus

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

CREDIT: JEAN-MARIE GUYAUX/BIG APPLE CIRCUS

Bello Nock, "America's Best Clown" (Time), returns after nine seasons to the Big Apple Circus in its all-new show "Bello is Back!"

The Big Apple Circus Big Top at Boston's City Hall plaza may be need to be a little taller than usual this year to make room for the gravity-defying hair of Bello Nock, the clown extraordinaire who returns to the single-ring circus, after a nine-year absence, in "Bello is Back!"

The American-born Nock – whose real name is Demetrius Alexandro Claudio Amadeus – is a seventh-generation circus performer famed for his work on the sway pole created by his father, Eugen Nock, for the family's "Nerveless Nocks" act. The younger Nock eschews traditional white-face clown make-up in favor of a distinctive foot-tall, natural red hairstyle.

A self-proclaimed comic daredevil, Nock makes people laugh while also making them gasp in awe at his athletic and acrobatic feats. Named by "Time" magazine as America's Best Clown, Nock – who just two years ago became the first clown in Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus's 137-year history to tour in a show named for him, "Bello-bration!" – is back with Big Apple for one year, after which he hopes to launch his own television series. The 41-year-old father of three discussed Big Apple Circus and more by telephone recently with Town Commons.

Town Commons: What's it like to be back with Big Apple Circus?

Bello Nock: It's a little bit like a homecoming and it's also a lot of fun. I enjoyed my years with Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey very much, so I don't think of either them or Big Apple in terms of one being better than the other. They are both great in their own right. Ringling is a big spectacle and this is very different. Big Apple is a very intimate experience. It is like going to the circus in your living room. The Big Apple concept is that everyone should feel the action as if they are in the front row. The closeness to the audience makes all of us do our very best as performers to make sure everything is perfect. I'm returning for "Bello is Back!" because Big Apple is a non-profit and I wanted to do my part to give back to them for everything they did for me early in my career. They do some amazing things outside the ring, too. Not everyone may know it, but Big Apple performers make more than 1,000 bedside visits to terminally ill young people in the cities we play each year.

Bello Nock

Town Commons: What have you got planned for this year's show?

Bello Nock: People should come expecting the unexpected. I'll be doing all-new material involving everything from trampolines to bunjee-jumping. I'll be parodying the other acts and joining them, too. People who have seen me before, either with Ringling Brothers or in my three earlier years with Big Apple, will be seeing something brand new this year.

Town Commons: Pauly D from MTV's "Jersey Shore" and others have copied your hairstyle, but no-one has ever gotten it so big. What's the secret behind your signature coif?

Bello Nock: I could say that I put Viagra in my shampoo, but it is really just a little bit of Kenra hairspray. I was waterskiing at Cypress Gardens when I was about 11 and I had a crew cut. When it grew out, I just kept the sides short and let the center grow. These days, my hair is about a foot tall and it is all mine. I am proud to say that I have not broken a single bone in my body during all my years doing stunts. I have, however, had a few bad hair days.

Town Commons: How are you and Grandma (Barry Lubin) getting along?

Bello Nock: Grandma is the icon of Big Apple Circus. Grandma and I are probably the most famous and notorious clowns working today. We love each other. Any job can be a grind at times, but that never happens when Grandma and I work together. We don't view each other as competitors, because we're good friends who have great mutual respect for one another.

Town Commons: Your late father was a daredevil circus performer for over 40 years. What did he think of your act?

Bello Nock: My father had an amazing career. He made not one but two appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show," both times when the Beatles were also on the show, which may be why no one remembers him. My dad was my coach and my mentor. He taught me all the do's and don't's of daredevil and stunt work. He rolled his eyes when I told him I wanted to blend a daredevil act with clowning, but he came around to the idea when my career started to take off.

Town Commons: Will there be a new generation of Nocks in the family business?

Bello Nock: I've been married to my high school sweetheart, Jennifer, for 23 years now. We have three children, a 21-year-old son, Alex, a 16-year-old daughter, Amariah, and another daughter, Annaliese, who is 14. I would never want my kids to feel obligated to be in the circus. If they choose the life, it will be because it is what they want. The youngest is appearing at the Big Apple with me this year as part of a round-trapeze contortion act in the grand opening of the show. In addition to what I can teach her, she is being coached by other circus professionals and also studying ballet and gymnastics. My wife home-schools our children and we've always traveled on the road as a family, which is the only way any of us would have it.

"Bello is Back!" will be under the Big Top at City Hall Plaza, Government Center, Boston, April 3 through May 16. Tickets are available at the Big Apple Box Office on City Hall Plaza, by calling 888-541-3750 or by visiting bigapplecircus.org.

South Shore students set for 'Circus of the Senses'

On Thursday, April 8, at 11a.m., hundreds of local children with sensory impairments—including students from Braintree's Saint Coletta Day School, Brockton's Downey Elementary School, Norwell's Grace F. Cole Elementary School, New England Village in Pembroke, and Pilgrim Area Collaborative in Plymouth—will gather under the Big Apple Circus's Big Top tent at Boston's City Hall Plaza for a very special performance. The 11th annual "Circus of the Senses" provides headsets to children with vision impairments to hear a lively, running description of the action in the ring narrated by Big Apple Circus founder Paul Binder and creative director Michael Christensen. Spotlighted American Sign Language interpreters narrate the show to the hearing–impaired. Large-print, Braille programs are available for the vision-impaired and scripts are sent to groups in advance of the performance to help them prepare for their Big Top experience.

Prior to the performance, volunteers bring costume fabrics and other materials and props for sight-impaired children in the audience to feel, to help them better understand the show as it is being audio-described. Following the hour-long show, a group of sight-impaired children will be invited into the Circus ring to feel the sawdust, touch the fabric of the costumes and meet some of the performers – of both the two- and the four-legged variety.

Close to 1,500 complimentary tickets have been distributed to 65 schools, groups, and families from the greater Boston area and surrounding counties, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Maine. Presented in Dallas, New York, Atlanta, and Boston each year, "Circus of the Senses" performs before more than 5,000 people annually.

Pictured: Seduction and intrigue abound in Joe Orton's dark comedy about a handsome con man (Mr. Sloane played by Jack Cutmore-Scott) who ensnares an isolated family, but soon learns his charms are no match against the primal forces of despair and loneliness of his delusional landlady Kath (Sandra Shipley). The cast is rounded out by Nigel Gore as Ed and Dafydd Rees as Kemp. Directed by Eric C. Engel, The Publick Theatre Boston's production will run Wednesdays through Sundays March 11 – April 3, at the Boston Center for the Arts Plaza Theatre, 539 Tremont St. Boston's South End.

Accentuating the positive

'Entertaining Mr. Sloane' is indeed entertaining

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

American actors can usually handle a British accent, but few manage to master the intonations. What is so wonderful about the all-British cast of the Publick Theatre's current production of Joe Orton's "Entertaining Mr. Sloane" is that they deliver Orton's words with not only the appropriate sound, but also the right rhythms.

And that isn't all that is right with director Eric Engel's excellent mounting of Orton's first stage play, which centers on the charming young Mr. Sloane (Jack Cutmore-Scott) who rents a room from a lonely, delusional landlady, Kath (Sandra Shipley), in the house she shares with her aging but not addled father, Kemp (Dafydd Rees). The good-looking, on-the-make Sloane has barely unpacked before it becomes clear that he'll have his hands literally and figuratively full with Kath, her brother Ed (Nigel Gore), who hires the young man to be his driver, and their ornery father. There is no bailout that would save this morally bankrupt bunch.

Sloane seems like the only one even interested in being bailed out, and if his past catches up with him he just may need to be. Before that can happen, however, he's kept busy fielding sexual advances from Kath, suggestive manhandling from her estranged but suddenly ever-present brother, and suspicious looks from their father. The dark, sometimes sinister dynamics are ever-shifting, and no character keeps the advantage for very long, but all keep our interest.

Onetime Walpole resident Shipley is interrupting a Broadway career which includes the recent revival of "Equus," starring Daniel Radcliffe of "Harry Potter" fame, to return to Boston, where her many earlier triumphs earned her an Elliot Norton Medal for Sustained Excellence. Shipley is sublime as the dotty but far from sexually dormant older woman interested in entertaining Mr. Sloane on her living-room floor, on the couch, and anywhere he happens to be sitting long enough for her to pounce. Donning a peignoir for one such seduction, Shipley suggests the aging Vivien Leigh in the 1961 feature "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone." As Kath's brother, who ultimately decides that he and his sister should share Mr. Sloane in six-month increments—until he gets too old to interest them, that is—Gore infuses his character with menace. Dafyyd Rees does fine work, too, as Kemp, the Dadda who knows Sloane's real story and is not persuaded by any amount of well-packaged swagger to overlook it.

Cutmore-Scott, a Harvard undergraduate making his professional theater debut, holds his own at the center of the story among this team of otherwise veteran actors, with his complex portrayal of a manipulative young man about to be out-maneuvered.

Playwright Orton – whose mid-1960s successes also included "Loot" and "What the Butler Saw" – was murdered by his longtime companion, Kenneth Halliwell, in 1967 when he was just 34, but his dark, provocative, often outrageous comedies endure. And in the hands of directors like Engel and superb casts like this one, they will continue to flourish.

The Publick Theatre will present "Entertaining Mr. Sloane" at the Boston Center for the Arts, 539 Tremont Street, Boston, through April 3. For tickets and information, call 617-933-8600 or go online at bostontheatrescene.com.

School board race tops ballot

Town Election is Saturday

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In between Saturday chores residents are expected to make their way to Town Hall to do their civic duty in casting a ballot in the 2010 Town Election.

The polls will be open tomorrow (Saturday, April 10) from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. at Town Hall.

Once the votes are tallied a whole new class of town officials, with many familiar faces, will take their seats.

Topping the ballot is the only contested race: a four-person pursuit for two School Committee seats. This is the first time in four years that a school board seat has had a balloted contest.

The four candidates – incumbent Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street, Flintlock Ridge Road resident Jeanne Astino, Beach Street resident Paul Ognibene and Linda Snowdale of Mill Lane – have been on the campaign trail for the last month and are now in the home stretch. Lawn signs became ubiquitous this week in the final flurry to earn votes.

According to the Town Clerk's office, there are currently 5,395 registered voters in town. Town Clerk Marion Douglas is expecting 25 percent of the town's voters would make their opinions known at the ballot box

Turbine bylaw discussed, changes possible

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It's been two-and-a-half months since the Planning Board denied a private developer's proposal for two wind turbines off Route 3A. While the project may be a thing of the past, the issue of the zoning bylaw that made it a possibility is not.

To that end, the Planning Board met with the members of the Alternative Energy Committee to discuss how to move forward with making changes to the wind turbine bylaw, if any need to be made.

"Right now we have a bylaw that for all intents and purposes is unworkable," Planning Board chair Al Moore said. "It's our responsibility as the keepers of the zoning bylaws is to either get rid of it or re-work it."

The Alternative Energy Committee (AEC) wanted to approach possible changes to the bylaw with a public process. With input from residents, gleaned from at least two public discussions on the issues, they would then draft a new bylaw incorporating as little or as many changes generated by input from the community.

"We have no pre-conceived notions of what changes we should make to the bylaw," Andrew Willard, chair of the AEC said. Later, another AEC member described it as a "clean slate" approach.

In the ensuing discussion, the suggested changes to the bylaw ranged from changing a single word, to addressing some ambiguity in the bylaw, to giving the planning board more latitude to evaluate the project.

No election for Little Harbor

Selectmen vote down debt-exclusion

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Little Harbor and Atlantic Avenue residents hoping to get a second chance at a 50/50 cost split were disappointed on Monday night. The effort failed to get the needed four out of five members of the Board of Selectmen to call a special election to vote on the debt-exclusion override.

The vote went against the will of Town Meeting, which voted in support of the citizens petition article two weeks ago. That vote was not binding; the Board of Selectmen has the authority to call a Special Election, which is the next step in the process.

Three out of the five selectmen voted in favor of holding a special election, however a debt-exclusion ballot requires a "super majority" — four out of five selectmen agreeing.

About a dozen residents came out to hear the discussion on the Little Harbor sewer project.

The issue before the Board of Selectmen was whether to call a special town election to vote on debt-exclusion override for the Little Harbor sewer project. The two most recent town sewer expansion projects involving homes and businesses in the central and North Cohasset districts the project cost was being paid for by a 50/50 share – half of the cost is coming from the benefiting residents and the other half from the property tax base.

According to votes taken at the 2005 Annual Town Meeting and a subsequent special election, the cost of the largest sewer expansion project, involving 487 homes in Little Harbor, is being 100 percent borne by the benefiting residents.

"We'd like to have another shot at it,"

POLICE BEAT

Thieves make off with six large-screen TVs

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

On Wednesday, April 7, at about 7:35 am, Cohasset police officers were called to 132 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, for a report of a past breaking and entering. 132 Chief Justice Cushing Highway is the location of the TOD (transit oriented district) mall, next to the MBTA's Cohasset (commuter rail) Station.

Owners of the South Shore Athletic Club met the officers upon their arrival. They reported that six, large-screen plasma televisions were stolen sometime overnight. The combined value of the televisions is more than $6,500. The TVs, which were new and still in their boxes, were stored in a locked storage garage adjacent to the new gym.

Detectives responded and processed the scene. This case remains under investigation.

Suspect charged

A Weymouth man has been charged with breaking into a Cohasset residence on Nov. 20, 2009, stealing jewelry and a credit card and using the stolen credit card to purchase $853 in merchandise at several stores in Braintree.

On Wednesday (March 24), Michael A. Subenko, age 31, of Weymouth, was charged in a criminal complaint in Quincy District Court with one count of breaking and entering in the daytime for felony, one count of forgery of document, one count of utter false writing, one count of larceny from a building, one count of credit card fraud over $250, one count of larceny over $250, one count of identity fraud and one count of larceny of a credit card.

If convicted of these charges, Subenko faces up to 10 years of imprisonment on counts one through three, 5 years of imprisonment on counts four through six, 2-1/2 years imprisonment on count seven and one year imprisonment on count eight.

The Cohasset Criminal Investigation Division investigated the case.

Assault charge

On Sunday, April 4, at about 8 pm, a 15-year-old Cohasset boy came to police headquarters with his father and reported that a man identified as Andrew T. Liberty, 19, of 541 Beechwood St., had hit him in the head with a wrench and punched him multiple times when he was on the ground. This assault occurred at the Beechwood Ball Park and stems from a disagreement over a girl, police said.

As a result of this assault, the 15 -year-old alleged victim was brought to South Shore Hospital and treated for a concussion, contusions, and abrasions. He was released from the hospital early Monday.

Andrew Liberty was arrested by Cohasset Police at the Ball Park. He was charged with Assault and Battery with a dangerous weapon (wrench). He was held overnight at the Cohasset Police Station on $500 cash bail. He was arraigned at Quincy District Court on the charges and is out on bail. A further court date has been set, police said.

OUI

A 25-year-old Humarock man is facing drunken driving charges following a traffic stop at about 2:18 a.m. on Saturday (April 3) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A). An officer clocked the 2004 black Lexus the man was driving as traveling 60-65 mph in a 50 mph zone. The officer stopped the car, which had also been weaving, by Sohier Street. The operator was unable to produce his license. He also failed all the field sobriety tests, police said.

Based in his performance on the field sobriety tests, signs of heavy intoxication and his driving he was arrested and charged with OUI (alcohol), negligent operation, marked lanes violation and speeding. He was also charged with not have a license in his possession.

Rear-end collisions

• At 6:45 a.m. on Monday (March 9) police responded to a two-car accident on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A). Police said a 1994 Toyota Camry, operated by a 38-year-old Dorchester woman, rear-ended a 2004 Freight truck, operated by a 54-year-old Bridgewater man, that had slowed down to make a left into a driveway. Both vehicles were headed south at the time of the accident. The Camry was towed; there were no apparent injuries. The driver of the Camry was cited for following too closely on a state highway, police said.

• At 12:43 p.m. on Friday (April 2), a 1998 Dodge Caravan, operated by a 25-year-old Scituate man, rear-ended a 2008 Ford pickup operated by a 38-year-old Cohasset woman, police said. The pickup was making a left into the operator's driveway when it was rear-ended by the Caravan. Police said the woman's husband and two small children were in the pickup truck. There were no apparent injuries but the Caravan was towed. The operator of the Caravan was cited for failure to use caution, police said.

Junior operator

A 16-year-old Cohasset boy was issued a junior operator violation following a traffic stop for speeding on Forest Avenue at 8:40 p.m. on Friday (April 2). The teen had two minor passengers in 2000 Mercury Sable, which is a violation when the driver is a junior operator. His passengers were given rides, police said.

Joseph's Hardware

Cohasset police are investigating an apparent break-in at Joseph's Hardware off Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) that was reported on Wednesday (March 30). A former employee reported that someone had broken into the building, police said. A window was smashed by a rock that was thrown through the glass and the place was ransacked. Police said there did not appear that anything of value had been touched. The Plymouth County Sheriff's Department is handling the inventory at the former hardware store, which was seized earlier this year. Anyone looking for items left at the store for repair should contact the Sheriff's office, police said.

Wallet returned

A citizen turned a woman's wallet into the police station on Wednesday (March 30). Nothing was missing and the wallet was returned to the owner, police said.

Purse found, money missing

A National Grid worker turned in a purse he found on the lawn at St. Stephen's around noon last Wednesday (March 30). Coincidentally within minutes, the owner of the purse called to report that her purse had been taken out of her unlocked car outside Town Hall the night before (Tuesday). As it turned out $150 in cash was missing. The woman, a Cohasset resident, told police she left her purse on the floor of the rented 2009 Toyota Corolla while she had business at Town Hall.

Larceny

A 44-year-old Beechwood Street resident reported to police last Friday (April 2) that three Hanover Mall gift cards valued at$330 had been stolen. At first, the woman thought the cards were missing but she contacted the Mall that said one of the cards had been used at the mall. Police detectives will review video surveillance tapes to determine where the cards were used and when.

Unruly workers

Police received a call about a group of unruly workers at Old Colony Square by the train station last Friday (april 2) at about 3:40 p.m.. Police investigated and the dispute was between two workers and their boss over wages. They were able to settle the dispute amongst themselves once police arrived.

Mailbox

A caller reported a thin white man in a white T-shirt and pants on a bicycle had either taken something out of or put something into a mailbox on Doane Street last Friday (April 2) at about 3:53 p.m. The officer found nothing out of order and nothing was reported missing, police said.

Register with police

An auto glass repair company was told to stop soliciting businesses along Route 3A to buy its service until it registered with the police. Cohasset requires door-to-door solicitors, unless they are working for a non-profit organization, to register with the police.

Don't overpay for copies of deeds

The Norfolk Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High Street, Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

Some Norfolk County residents are still being solicited to pay a private company $59.50 for "certified deeds" they could get directly from the Norfolk Registry of Deeds for just $2.

"It may be legal, but I still think it's outrageous," said William P. O'Donnell, Norfolk County's Register of Deeds, of a direct-mail solicitation thousands of Massachusetts homeowners recently received. "I am bringing this to the public's attention in response to a direct inquiry I received today from a Norfolk County resident who nearly fell victim to this scheme."

WBZ-TV recently visited the Norfolk Registry, spoke to Register O'Donnell and highlighted this ongoing problem. To see the full news story, log on to the Registry's website's home page at www.norfolkdeeds.org and click on the related news item.

In an official-looking letter that includes the homeowner's Norfolk Registry Book and Page deed citation, National Deed Service Inc. writes: "The U.S. Government Federal Citizens Information Center website recommends that property owners should have an official or certified copy of their deed. If you don't already have this important document, you may obtain one now." The letter offers homeowners one certified copy of their deed for $59.50, and then appears to offer a bargain by charging only $20 for a second certified copy. The firm's letters do disclose that many of these records "are available free or at a nominal cost from government agencies," and notes that it is not affiliated with any governmental agency. That doesn't sit well with O'Donnell, however.

"I just want to warn all the residents and businesses of Norfolk County that this practice preys on those who don't realize how easy and inexpensive it is to contact the Registry directly to obtain a certified copy of a deed or any recorded document," said O'Donnell. "For just $2, our customer service staff will process your request and mail you out a certified copy of your deed."

The Norfolk Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High Street, Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. The Registry land records back to the founding of Norfolk County in 1793 are available for online viewing at the Registry website, www.norfolkdeeds.org. A full service customer service staff is available over the telephone at 781-461-6101 or at the Registry's walk-in center to assist the public with certified copies or deeds, other documents or any Registry related matter.

One of the keys to the issue seemed to be where in town commercial-sized wind turbines were even reasonably feasible.

For this reason, planning board member Charles Samuelson questioned the need for a full-blown process to re-vamp the bylaw. He saw only two places in town where turbines were truly possible. Scituate Hill, where CCI-Energy recently was denied a permit for their two-turbine project, and the Recycling Transfer Facility, where the AEC and the town is actively pursuing a wind turbine siting.

"Right now we have a bylaw that for all intents and purposes is unworkable."
— Planning Board chair Al Moore

Samuelson said the town "effectively scared away" any possible turbine development on the Scituate Hill location. And a town-owned turbine at the RTF faced issues of financing, he said.

"We might just be spinning our wheels, I'm not sure it's worth the effort," Samuelson said. He thought the bylaw worked well, with the exception of the fall-down zone regulation, which mandated if the turbine fell it would not cross a residential property line. In the CCI-Energy application, it was discovered the adjacent Whitney-Thayer Woods, which is operated like open space, is actually zoned residential. The part of the bylaw became the key reason why the application was ultimately denied.

If anything, Samuelson suggested one word be changed to address that issue.

However, Samuelson more or less stood alone in his stance on looking at the bylaw being "worth the effort."

AEC member Mimi White said turbines have at least two significant benefits. First, it would save the town money on energy. Second, renewable, clean energy is the right thing to do by the environment.

"We are in an environmental crisis. Do we want to put energy into this? Of course we do. If it is good for saving money and it's good for the environment, of course we do," White said.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer said he believed there were numerous viable sites for wind turbines and the town should be prepared for the possibility.

"I still think there are places…where turbines can go. It's not spot zoning, there are reasonable spots to put commercial-sized wind turbines," Brewer said, naming the Recycling Transfer Facility, Cohasset Golf Club, and Wompatuck State Park as a few.

Planning Board member Jean Healey Dippold said the public process was essential – and she thought there were several areas of the bylaw that could benefit from a second review.

"It is the right process to get people on board – and get the people involved who might oppose you. Let them know this is your chance to resolve this," Healey Dippold said.

The AEC is getting started on the discussion of the wind turbine bylaw later this month (see sidebar). Two informal workshops will be held on the bylaw to gather input from the public. Then, the AEC will re-group and begin to determine what changes a majority of the town would like to see made to the zoning bylaw.

"Let's get back at this, come back to Town Meeting with our eyes open and see if people want it," Moore said.

The aim is to have a re-vamped wind turbine bylaw ready for a vote at the fall Special Town Meeting.

While the Planning Board has to hold a public hearing in advance of a town meeting vote, Moore encouraged the AEC to keep the board updated on the progress and discussion throughout the summer.

Participate and be heard

The Alternative Energy Committee will host two nights to gather input on changes the community would like to see in the wind turbine zoning bylaw. The first night will be held on Tuesday, April 27 at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library at 7p.m. It will include an hour presentation by a member of the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center (formerly Massachusetts Technology Collaborative), which is a public-private funded organization spearheading many green energy developments in the Commonwealth, followed by ample time for discussion from the audience.

A second night of wind bylaw discussion will be held on Thursday, May 20 at 7p.m. (location to be determined).

Lincoln assassination discussion April 16

The Cohasset Historical Society holding its annual Spring Dinner on Sunday, April 25, at the Cohasset Harbor Resort, 124 Elm St. Guest speaker, Christopher Daley will present "The Lincoln Assassination". It was in April of 1865 that an assassin's bullet ended the life of President Abraham Lincoln. One hundred and fifty-five years later, this event still evokes questions of "what if?" and "why?".

A past-president of both the Pembroke Historical Commission and the Pembroke Historical Society, Mr. Daley lectures on a number of historical events, both local and national.

The dinner will begin with a cash bar at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m.. Attendees will have an entrée choice of Chicken Parmesan with Penne Pasta or Roast Baby Cod with Seasoned Buttery Bread Crumbs and Garlic Cream Sauce. The cost to Historical Society members is $31 per person and $36 for non-members. All are welcome to attend. Please call the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 with your choice of entrée and submit your check made out to Cohasset Historical Society. Checks may be mailed to The Cohasset Historical Society, PO Box 167, Cohasset, MA 02025 prior to Friday, April 16th.

HORIZONS FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN

Saturday.

Douglas said the number of absentee requests have been relatively few, which is typically a good predictor of turnout percentage. About 54 ballots have been sent out and as of Wednesday morning 29 had been returned.

"We're always hoping for a higher turnout, but it has been very slow (with absentees)," Douglas said.

This election follows on the heels of three years of relatively low election turnout.

In 2007, what was supposed to be a "sleepy" election with no contests ended up with a last minute write-in campaign for School Committee and, in turn, boosted turnout to 24 percent.

A year later a Sewer Commission race brought out 17 percent of registered voters.

In 2009, election turnout was five percent – likely a record for the lowest voter turn out in a town election.

In addition to the four-way School Committee race, there are two Board of Selectmen posts up for election. Incumbent Paul Carlson of Old Coach Road and Leland Jenkins of Jerusalem Road are in a two-way, uncontested race for two seats. Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey is seeking another five-year term.

All but one seat has a candidate's name next to it on the ballot. A one-year term for Recreation Commission does not have a balloted candidate. However, Maria Osborne of 22 Spring St. told the Mariner she is mounting a write-in, or sticker, campaign to fill the vacancy. The current appointed member Andrew Quigley pulled papers to run for seat, but later bowed out.

Osborne grew up in Cohasset as Maria Kierce and recently moved back into town with her young family. As a child, she spent her summers at the Old Osgood School Recreation Program.

said Alex Koines of Atlantic Avenue and the citizen proponent of the town meeting article. "I think we can present our argument better…and it will be fairer for future projects that haven't happened yet."

Deep Run resident Paul Lualdi said he heard from many Little Harbor residents who did not realize there was a special election following the Town Meeting vote in 2005 and didn't cast a ballot.

"They didn't realize there was another step. This is a chance not that everyone is educated to the system," Lualdi said.

Martha Gjesteby of Old Pasture Road said she was in favor of the 50/50 cost sharing for the sewer project because she anticipated other parts of town being sewered in the future. Areas near the drinking water source (Aaron River Reservoir and Lily Pond) would likely need to be sewered in the coming years to improve the raw water quality of the water resource.

"That will be next on the agenda," Gjesteby said.

Gjesteby also raised concerns as to the validity of voting on the issue on Monday night. Because the Town Meeting warrant is tied to the election technically Town Meeting is still in session.

However, Town Manager Bill Griffin said the action of Town Meeting on this particular article was not binding and the Selectmen could vote on whether to call a special election at any time.

"It is a really difficult time to increase the tax rate."

— Selectman Fred Koed

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer made the motion to authorize a special election.

"My feeling is let the people decide – part of what we do here is process," Selectman Ted Carr said, who seconded the motion.

Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley said she would represent the people who are opposed to the 50/50 cost share of the sewer project.

"Sewering the rest of the town is not in the near future," Quigley said.

Selectman Fred Koed fell on the same side of the issue; he said he supported a cost share of a lower percentage, but not a 50/50 split.

"It is a really difficult time to increase the tax rate," Koed said.

In addition, Koed said there were parts of town that would never see a town sewer system, "that's an unresolved issue and it is a fairness issue."

With the lines seemingly drawn the votes was taken, 3-2, with Koed and Quigley opposed.

After the town election tomorrow (April 10) a new Board of Selectmen convene that could take up the issue once again. At least one of the dissenting votes would need to re-consider.

What is a debt-exclusion?

A debt-exclusion is not an "override," but it does increase the property tax levy over and above the allowed 2-1/2 percent for a certain period of time. A debt-exclusion is tied to a specific bond issue and allows the tax levy to be increased by the amount of money payable to that bond in a given year.

While an override vote requires a majority vote to be put on the ballot, a debt-exclusion requires a super-majority vote by the Board of Selectmen. Town Manager Bill Griffin said the reason is likely a debt-exclusion vote requires a two-thirds majority approval from Town Meeting. A Prop-2-1/2 override only requires a majority vote at Town Meeting.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

WARM WEATHER

Hello Cohasset! How is everyone this wonderful weather week? The next few months will have a lot of information about springtime events, graduations and school related celebrations along with photos and end-of-the-school year events. Please make sure to read your copy every week to stay on top of what is happening AROUND TOWN! Also, make sure to follow all that is happening with the town elections, every vote counts! Now, on with the news of the week.

STAY TUNED

Mark your calendars for Saturday, May 22, for the annual Cohasset Education Foundation Spring Event. Join the CEF under the tent to celebrate another year of tremendous community support for our public schools! For auction item donation please contact Ginni Froio at Ginnifro@comcast.net. Make sure to save the date and all involved hope to see you there!

CARIBBEAN CARNIVALE

OK Cohasset, who is coming to the Springtime blast being held tomorrow night? Has winter been a bit too long for you? Too much snow? Too much cold? Well, here is the answer to help you bring in the Spring! Come into the warm Saturday night, tomorrow April 10th from 7 to 11 pm at Club L, 98 Summer St. (otherwise known as the Cohasset American Legion). The steel drums and mandolins will fill the air. Bring your dancing shoes. Classic rock and roll, reggae and the lilting calypso beat will mix with the magic sound of the blender. The Cohasset Caribbean Carnivale will depart at 7 pm from the Club L and if you want to see if tickets are still available, stop by the Legion and ask for tickets at the bar. A donation of $5 is being asked. Dress casual Hawaiian/Caribbean beachwear. Limbo contest. Step up and take a swing at the pi-ata. A night of fun and frolic!

GARDENERS!

Here are a few items from the Community Garden Club that may be of interest. On March 30th, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset hosted 10 out of town Garden Club presidents and many past presidents of the club at the annual Presidents' Luncheon. The event took place in Walton Rodgers Hall, St. Stephens Church. Although the weather outside was cold and blustery, the atmosphere inside was spring like. Kaye Vosburg presented the program, Nurture Your Creative Spirit. She created 13 beautiful floral designs, many inspired by the Ikebana Free Style of the Sogetsu School.

The next meeting of the Community Garden Club will take place Tues. April 27 at Bates Hall, Second Congregational Church. The guest speaker is Henry Callan who is a teacher, world traveler and antique appraiser. The program is called Stunning Floral Arrangements in Antique Containers. For more information about this program or about the club, call Martha at 781-383-1614.

THAYER HONORS

The following Thayer Academy upper school students from Cohasset earned honors for term two of the 2009-2010 school year:

In addition, they will supply information, clean your hearing aids and answer any questions. Be sure to have your ears checked prior to the test for impacted ears with wax. Call 781-383-9112 for an appointment.

2010 Census Timeline

March 2010: Census forms are mailed or delivered to households.

April 1: Census Day. The official day of the population count.

April-July: Census Bureau workers visit households that did not return a form by mail.

Dec. 31: Census Bureau delivers population counts to the President of the U.S.

March 2011: Census Bureau completes delivery of redistricting data to states.

Why Should You Respond

Census date is used to determine U.S. Congressional apportionment as well as federal funding. For example: implement the Supplemental Social Security Income and Social Security Disability Insurance Programs; plan programs for seniors living alone; apply for grants to help seniors caring for their grandchildren; create facilities and services for people with disabilities.

Help with 2009 tax returns – A volunteer, trained by AARP in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, is available to assist Cohasset seniors with basic, simple tax returns, including filing the State income tax return to obtain a Circuit Breaker property tax credit or refund. Call 781-383-9112 for an appointment.

Circuit Breaker — The state Circuit Breaker law allows homeowners, 65 or over, who meet certain income eligibility requirements to apply for a state income tax credit of up to $960. The qualifying home value has been reduced to $788,000 for the year 2009.

The Circuit Breaker allows elderly homeowners to get a refundable state tax credit if their local property tax, sewer, and water bills exceed more than 10 percent of their income. Elderly renters can also take advantage of this law if their tax, sewer, and water bills exceed 25 percent of their annual income. To figure out how much the state may refund to you, get a copy of State Income Tax Schedule CB at the public library or call 1-800-392-6089 and press 1 to wait for an agent.

Even if you owe no state taxes, you can get back up to $960. To qualify for this credit, you must be a Massachusetts resident, age 65 or older, and own or rent residential property in Massachusetts as your primary residence. In addition, your annual income must be less than $51,000 if you are a single filer who is not the head of household, or less than $64,000 if you are the head of household, or less than $77,000 for taxpayers filing jointly.

You can claim up to three years retroactively by contacting the Department of Revenue, so you may be eligible to receive a check for up to $3,490. If you go to a professional tax preparer, make sure to ask them to calculate your Circuit Breaker property Tax credit.

POLL

Weighing in on emergency notification system

Here are preliminary results from our on-line poll about Connect-CTY, an emergency notification system used in town. To find out more about the phone-call program, visit the town's website at: www.townofcohasset.org

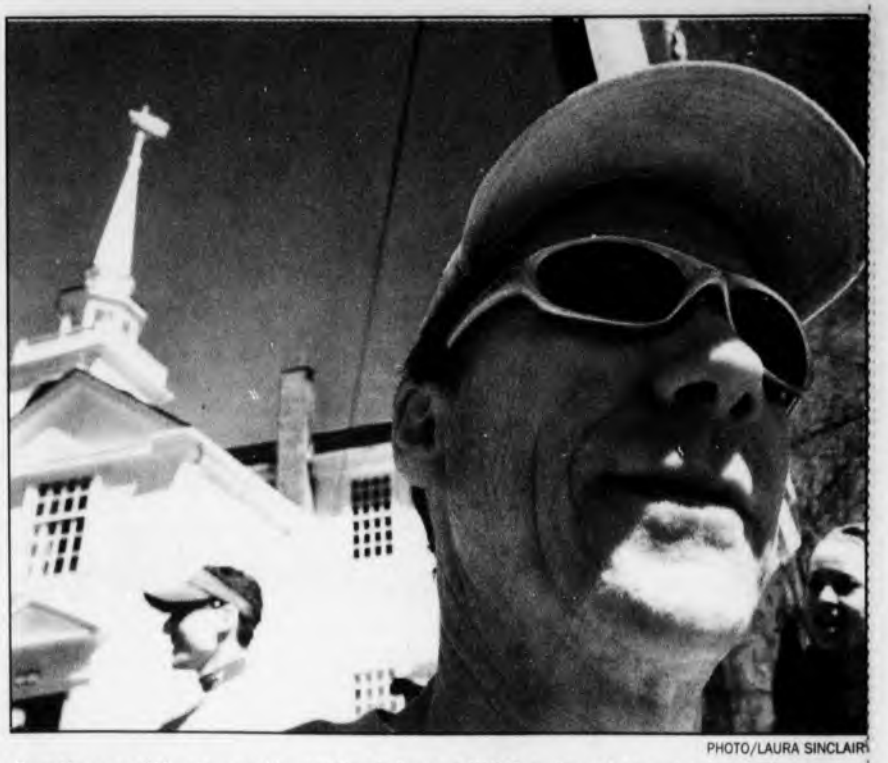
As you can see from the pie chart – 60 percent of the votes so far find the system informative. So far 38 web visitors have voted in our poll.

Here is the question posed to our Web visitors:
What is your take on the Connect-CTY, a reverse 911-like system? Do you like to be kept abreast of on-going issues or are the communications too much?

- Informative (22 votes)
- Intrusive (1 vote).
- Scary (1 vote).
- It should be used sparingly (11 votes)
- Other (3) votes.
- I have opted out of receiving the messages (0 votes).

Total votes: 38 (as of Thursday morning).

While our polls are not scientific, we think the polls can be a good vehicle to provide a quick snapshot of public opinion.



We have the ability to conduct polls as often as we want. Be sure to visit: www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset to vote in our weekly polls. We hope to more of you will participate in our polls. Voting only takes a minute.

We welcome ideas for new polls. Please email your thoughts to editor Mary Ford at mford@cnc.com

In the meantime, please vote in our weekly poll and check out our newly designed Web site.

Let us know your thoughts!

Sam Kopper of Hingham and host of Sam's Jams on WATD waits at the starting line before the beginning of the race last April.

They'll be running and walking in the streets

Cohasset Road Race by the Sea and Fran Coffey Fun Walk

This Sunday is the Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K and Fran Coffey Fun Walk. The walk starts and finishes at Sandy Beach at 10 a.m. and the race begins at the Common at 1 p.m.

The course begins in front of First Parish Church and continues down South Main with a left onto Elm Street. As the runners approach the Cohasset Resort by the Sea they will bear left on to Margin Street and continue on Atlantic Avenue to Jerusalem Road until the course turns left onto Forest. At the end of Forest the course takes one more left turn onto North Main and the 1770 field size of runners will make their way towards the finish on Highland Avenue in front of Town Hall.

Race organizers and town officials urge all residents to make necessary plans in advance should they need to be somewhere with their vehicles during the prime race time which is 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. when most runners will be out on the course.

All residents are encouraged to watch the runners and cheer them on. Every little bit encouragement helps them get to the finish line that much faster! The Cohasset Road Race by the Sea 10K is made possible through the support that the Rotary Club and Race officials receive from Cohasset Town agencies like Police, Fire, and DPW. The runners appreciate being made to feel at home here in our beautiful town because of the kind welcome they receive from residents and business owners.

On-line registration is now closed and the 10K is sold out! Check in for registered runners is at the South Shore Community Center on Saturday April 10 from 9 a.m. - 12 p.m. and on Sunday, Race Day, April 11th from 9 a.m.-12 p.m.

There is plenty of room for more walkers. All are encouraged to register on Saturday if at all possible. The Walk begins at 10 a.m. at Sandy Beach. Registration is at the Community Center.

The South Shore Community Center is at 3 North Main St. The Rotary Club is grateful for all its sponsors including the new banner sponsors: Colospace, Pilgrim Bank, Lemon Lime Aveda Lifestyle Salon, RW Rosano, Suburban Cleaning and Graham Waste.

UPDATE

Who is the next steward for Minot Light?

PAST

In August 2009, the United States General Services Administration announced the availability of Minot Light to a not-for-profit, government or local agency free of charge. If no non-profit agency is found to take control of the light, the lighthouse will be sold at public auction.

The lighthouse giveaway is part of the National Historic Lighthouse Act of 2000, which began the process of taking historic lighthouses off of the national ledger.

According to the notice of availability, the light could be used for educational, park, recreational, cultural or historic preservation purposes. The Coast Guard would continue to maintain the foghorn and actual light, which serves as a navigational aid by flashing in a 1-4-3 pattern that can be visible within 15 miles.

PRESENT

At least three local groups submitted non-binding letters of interest in becoming the caretaker of the historical lighthouse: the towns of Cohasset and Scituate and the Scituate Historical Society. At a meeting in September all the parties expressed a desire for cooperation, if care of the lighthouse was assumed. They all shared concerns over the long-term maintenance cost, but felt the lighthouse was a vital landmark to preserve.

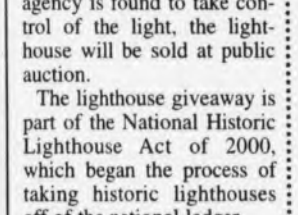
In the late fall, the parties that sent letters of interest to the General Services Administration (GSA) got an exterior tour of the lighthouse. Cohasset residents later gave GSA representatives a historical tour of all things Minot in Cohasset – a tour of Govermment Island and a look at the Minot artifacts kept by the Cohasset Historical Society.

FUTURE

The disposition of a lighthouse takes several years. The next step is to take representatives from each of the organizations that submitted letters of interest on a full interior tour of the structure. Meta Cushing of the General Services Administration said this week that an interior tour will be scheduled for the interested parties in the early summer once the wind and waves subside.

Following the interior tour, applications will be given to organizations which then would need to be submitted to the National Park Service, who will ultimately choose the next owner of Minot Light, within 90 days. Cushing said the review process takes about a year. The application must include a master plan detailing strategies for preservation and maintenance, use, financial sustainability and management.

If no suitable steward for the lighthouse is found, the structure could go up for a public auction.



ABOUT MINOT LIGHT

Minot Light, which is accessible only by boat and a 30-foot bronze ladder, sits on a 25-foot wide ledge of rock called Minot's Ledge. According to the brief description of the lighthouse provided by the General Services Administration, the ledge is very difficult to land on in moderate or heavy sea conditions.

Minot Light has special significance to both Cohasset and Scituate — the light was built in Cohasset and its lightkeepers lived in Cohasset, but the structure itself is located in Scituate waters. Minot Light is visible from both towns' coasts.

The location of Minot Light makes is fairly unique in that is has no piece of land to call its own. Many of the lighthouses given away that have been located on coastal land or an island have found new life as bed and breakfasts, tourist attractions or dining facilities. The difficulty in accessing Minot Light leaves little possibility of that type of renaissance.

GIMME SHELTER

Callie is a 'people person'

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue has a 10-month-old female Calico kitten. Her name is Calliope but we call her Callie. She can be quite sweet with humans but doesn't seem too fond of others of her species. She's quite the little beauty and will more than likely be a lap cat when she has her very own home. If you only have room for one feline in your home, please consider Calliope.

Please check out our website, www.hsar.org in order to meet our other available felines. If you're interested in sharing your home with one of them, call Shirl at 781-925-3380. You can visit the shelter during open hours on Saturday from 2-3 pm and Monday 6:30-7:30 or make an appointment. We're located at 50 L St in Hull; our mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, PO Box 787, Hull, MA., 02045. Our telephone numbers are 781 925 3121 and 1 877 378 1195.

We're proud to be a "no kill" shelter. If you're interested in helping to support us by becoming a member, please call Mary at 781-925-3121 and she'll send you information and a newsletter.

Grownups can learn to sail

COHASSET SAILING CLUB

ELIZABETH MURRY

The King sits in Dunfermline town, / drinking the blood-red wine: / 'Oh where will I get a good sailor / To sail this ship of mine?' / Up and spoke an elder knight / Sat at the king's right knee: / 'Sir Patrick Spens is the best sailor / That sails upon the sea.'

Though rendered in modern English, a few readers may recognize these lines as the first two stanzas from one of the oldest Scottish ballads, "Sir Patrick Spens," based on historic events in the late 13th century. Subsequent centuries are characterized by impulses more democratic and self-reliant than monarchic, so if you are a Cohasset adult who has entertained thoughts of sailing, learn to do it yourself this summer at the Cohasset Sailing Club (CSC). 2010 marks our 50th anniversary — more details to follow in subsequent articles.

We don't have kings, but we do have commodores, and Bob Deutsch, one of our emeritus commodores and an able stand-in for Sir Patrick, heads up the adult program. Geared for beginning and intermediate students ranging in age from 17 years to 75+ years (the average student is probably in their late 40s), the course is geared to helping novice first-year sailors pass their helmsman's test as soon as possible, and helping slightly more experienced students refine (or recapture) their skills and become acquainted with elementary racing techniques. Held on eight consecutive Saturday mornings beginning on July 3, each three-hour class combines shore and water activities, with a distinct emphasis on the latter. To promote a high-quality learning experience, classes are kept small; two to three adults per boat plus an instructor to maximize the sailing time. Students benefit from a well-organized and thorough curriculum geared to the adult beginner that has been honed over the years. If you need to miss a class, you can catch up the following week or take a private lesson with one of the experienced instructors to accelerate your learning curve.

Two unique features separate the CSC's adult classes from those offered elsewhere: affordability and a session dedicated to off-shore cruising. Because of its low overhead and nonprofit status, the fee for each adult student is $200, in addition to the club's low seasonal membership fee. As a special bonus, adult students will have an opportunity to learn to steer a large sloop in an ocean setting. This will give you a sense of the type of sailing you might want to pursue in the future.

To give you a sense of the actual experience, an adult from the 2009 sailing class wrote that:

"Sailing in Cohasset Harbor as an adult brought to life another dimension of the town which I had never experienced. For years my wife and I would look out at the harbor and comment on its beauty. From day one of the CSC adult sailing lessons, I saw the harbor in a different light. There is a different beauty to being on the water rather than sitting on the shore looking out at the water.

"For me there was an attraction of being part of the harbor activity and I found grace in the actual handling of the sailboat. The experience was up close and personal. I could not get enough of it. For someone who had never had any sailing lessons there was a certain amount of apprehension; however, it became clear with the first class that learning how to sail in Cohasset Harbor could be a reality. I say this because it became apparent that the course, which in large part is conducted by Cohasset High School and college students working at the CSC, was taught in a meaningful manner.

"Seeing the young adult instructors interact and take an interest in teaching their elders how to sail had its own beauty. The experience was refreshing and reassuring. The adult lessons, presented in a cohesive way, allowed all of the students to receive their helmsman's certification. That in hand authorizes one to pilot a sailboat and take guests out during free sailing periods."

If you are interested in signing up for either the beginner- or intermediate-level adult class, you are urged to contact Bob Deutsch as soon as possible, as classes are filled on a first-come basis. Bob can be reached at 383-3574 or by e-mail at <deutsch01@comcast.net>. The CSC's web site, www.cohassetsailingclub.org, has more information posted, including membership forms. Membership applications and program registrations must be turned in on Registration Weekend, May 15 from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. and May 16 from noon to 2:00 p.m. at the clubhouse on Government Island.

Minot Light subject of lecture series

On Wednesday, April 21st, the Cohasset Historical Society will continue its Wednesday Night Lecture Series with the first of two presentations on Minot's Ledge Lighthouses and Government Island presented by Paul Fiori and Rebecca Bates-McArthur.

After years of petitioning congress for the funds to build a lighthouse on the treacherous Cohasset Rocks, the project was finally approved and Minot's Ledge Lighthouse was lit on Jan. 1, 1850. It was a spidery structure with legs imbedded into the rocks below. The theory behind this design was that the vicious waves would pass through the legs with out harming the structure. On the night of April 16, 1851, a note was placed in a bottle and cast into the sea. It was to foretell of impending disaster. Paul Fiori will talk about this first Minot's Ledge Lighthouse. Rebecca Bates-McArthur will tell of Government Island, its role in the building of the second lighthouse and its use today.

The second part of the story and the tale of the second Minot's Ledge Lighthouse is scheduled for our fall lecture series. This program will begin at 7:30. There is no charge, all are welcome to attend and light refreshment will be served at the Pratt Building on South Main Street.

Water Planning Group composition changed

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The importance of public perception of the Water Planning Group prompted the Selectmen to change the composition of the committee.

The Water Planning Group, which was created to address the pressing short-term budget issues facing the water department as well as the more long-range operation and process issues, will now only have one official member from the Water Commission.

Acting on a recommendation from the Advisory Committee, the Board of Selectmen voted Monday night to slightly change the composition of the ad-hoc group.

The Advisory Committee held the position that the Water Planning Group should not include any water or sewer commissioners, but rather that these persons participate as "resources to the group."

The initial composition included two Water Commissioners and one Sewer Commissioner, who took on the role as a citizen at large. The Water Planning Group also includes two members of the Board of Selectmen, two members of the Advisory Committee, two members of the Capital Budget Committee, and two citizens at large.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer suggested lowering the number of Water Commissioners on the Water Planning Group from two to one.

Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley supported the position, "it is very important in my mind that this committee be viewed as independent."

Quigley said she had heard from many residents who want to be sure the group and its eventual recommendations were as objective as possible.

"We're in this position because of the decision making process that [the water commissioners] had," Quigley said.

Selectman Fred Koed, who is serving on the Water Planning Group, agreed.

"It is important that this committee have credibility."
— Selectman Fred Koed

"It is important that this committee have credibility," Koed said, adding the Water Commissioners input is needed on the committee in order for the greater group to understand the background and decision-making processes.

There was some discussion about putting another citizen at large on the committee to round out the group, but it was not considered in the vote.

Town Manager Bill Griffin said this committee was off and running and meeting every week in order to come up with a solution to the expected $780,000 shortfall in this fiscal year. After that issue is addressed, then the composition of the group may be looked at again as they begin to focus more on the long-term challenges.

Selectmen chair Paul Carlson, who is the chair of the Water Planning Group, disagreed with making any changes to the committee's composition.

"It is working well the way it is," Carlson said. "I don't see how having one less voting member will make a difference; it's more important that we have a forum and enthusiastic participation."

The Board of Selectmen voted 4 to 1 in favor of reducing the number of Water Commissioners on the committee from two to one. Carlson was the opposing vote.

CYBSA annual opening day parade and ceremony

The CYBSA will hold its annual Parade and Opening Day Ceremony on Saturday, May 1. All teams will gather in the vicinity of the Town Common Pond at approximately 8 a.m. and start the parade at 8:15 a.m. The players and their coaches will proceed down North Main Street to Barnes Field where opening ceremonies will be held.

This is a time-honored tradition and special event that brings out fans young and old. Join the festivities and help kick-off another baseball and softball season.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Town Meeting

Cohasset still subscribes to "open" Town Meeting – a venerable and historic form of government that allows any registered voter to participate, stand up and be counted.

It is highly imperfect, yet very democratic – in fact, we think that open Town Meeting is one of the most democratic ways to govern that there is.

However, the downside of open Town Meeting in today's world is lack of attendance.

At Town Meeting, we collectively pat ourselves on the back when we reach or exceed a quorum – knowing full well that the vast majority of the town's 5,000 or so voters are not present.

When there is a hot issue – whether building a new school or sewering a part of town – those who feel most passionately about the matter before Town Meeting are motivated to attend.

We don't like the phrase "stacking" Town Meeting because it has, in our view, a negative connotation. But that is, in fact, what happens when a large group of residents attend for a singular purpose.

We recall town meetings here and in other towns during which a school override vote sailed through, for example, only to fail at the ballot box. The fact of the matter is that more people vote in elections than attend Town Meeting.

At the annual Town Meeting, residents in the Little Harbor sewer district area wanted to set the stage for a Proposition 2-1/2 debt exclusion vote to have all taxpayers help cover 50 percent of the cost of the sewer project.

Whether you agree with their goal is not really the issue. Proponents followed the rules and presented their case to Town Meeting, where voters gave the OK.

Prop. 2-1/2 overrides and debt exclusions involve two steps: Town Meeting approval and a ballot vote at the polls. A third – and critical step — is getting the question on the ballot.

Under Proposition 2-1/2 rules only the Board of Selectmen can put an override question – in this case a debt exclusion – on the ballot. For a debt exclusion a "super majority" is required meaning that four selectmen would have to vote "yes." That did not happen on Monday night.

Two selectmen, Fred Koed and Karen Quigley, voted "no" and unless they revote – there will be no debt exclusion ballot vote anytime soon.

The entire process should give us all pause for reflection. Should selectmen follow the wishes of Town Meeting and let the voters decide on whether they want to share the sewer cost through a debt exclusion vote at the ballot box? It should be pointed out that a special election, as would be required here, costs money.

Are Koed and Quigley courageous in voting their conscience or wrong in not allowing the debt exclusion process to move forward?

Perhaps the larger debate is looking into whether open Town Meeting – which in this case, Koed and Quigley, apparently believe was off the mark in terms of fairness to taxpayers – is still the best way to govern Cohasset.

Some towns have opted for representative Town Meeting where districts elect representatives to speak for them as fairer and easier to manage.

Maybe this is what they mean by leveling

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Upset with two selectmen

TO THE EDITOR:

At the Board of Selectmen's meeting this past Monday evening we witnessed a significant lack of community caring and cohesiveness on the part of two of our selectmen. The board had been requested by Town Meeting on Saturday to place the question of 50-50 (town-resident) funding of the Little Harbor sewer district project on a town election ballot. A supermajority vote by the selectmen was required to let the matter proceed. Three selectmen voted in favor; however, two were opposed. Their negative votes were sufficient to deny the request of Town Meeting.

By so doing they showed their contempt for the wishes of the voters of Town Meeting and the Little Harbor sewer district residents. By requiring the Little Harbor residents to fund 100 percent of their district, unlike the other town districts which enjoy cost sharing, they were providing savings to the other town residents in addition to the payments Little Harbor residents are already making for residents in the other districts. These same selectmen are enjoying the 50-50 funding of their own sewers yet hypocritically voted to deny the same benefits to Little Harbor residents. Their vote was a shameful example of moral compasses gone awry. Do we want to be governed by the motto "discriminating against the minority to benefit the majority"? I hope not.

Democratic process did not prevail

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to express my disappointment in the decision of the Board of Selectmen to not bring the Article 23 to a town-wide vote. The article was approved at the last Town Meeting and asked that an election be held to align the 50-50 sharing of the Little Harbor sewer project costs with the 50-50 cost sharing in the North Cohasset and the Central Sewer districts.

I am not concerned about which choice the voters would elect. I can argue both sides of the issue. But I am very bothered by some selectmen voting against the decision of Town Meeting. While the majority of the selectmen voted for bringing the issue forward, two members voted against it.

This vote should have been in unanimous support of the clearly stated desires of those attending Town Meeting, and viewed as a necessary step in the democratic process. Unfortunately, it became a vote based on personal positions on the issue, not on the process.

I hope that when this issue comes up again, there will be total support of the decision of Town Meeting and the democratic process will prevail.

Equity, fairness are heart of the issue

COMMENTARY

GEORGE CHAMILLARD

The question of how the Little Harbor sewer project should be paid for has been a major divisive issue in our town and I think it is important for us as citizens to put the discussion in the proper perspective. There are three lenses through which we might look at the issue: a financial lens, a tax principle lens, and a fairness-equitability lens.

On one level, the finances for the project are pretty simple: the total cost is about $13 million. If you spread that over only the 485 dwelling units involved, the cost is about $27,000, paid over 20 years, or a $1,400 per year betterment charge.

Just as a point of interest, if we were to put the entire cost into the tax base and spread it over the approximately 3,300 dwelling units in town, the cost would be $3,940 over the 20 years, or about $200 annually for each of us.

If we continue with our 50-50 sharing from previous sewer projects, $6.5 million would be directly paid by the 485 service users over 20 years as a betterment charge (about $670 a year), and $6.5 million would be put into the tax base, also paid over 20 years by the 3,300 dwelling units, (or about $100 annually). Obviously the dwellers paying the betterment charge also pay their fair share of the 50 percent that is in the tax base through property taxes, so the real sharing is much less than 50-50. The typical user in the Little Harbor district could pay $300 on the town side of the 50/50, whereas the typical payer in another part of town might only pay $60. This applies to the other 50/50 sewer districts as well!

Between the betterment charge and the property tax increase, the total cost to the 485 dwelling units will be about $1000, or $400 less than paying the full $13 million directly. I recognize that saving $400 or $100 on taxes is real money. However, my conclusion is that when viewed through the financial lens, whether we assess 100 percent of the cost or share 50-50, the impact is pretty small to all parties and should not be the major criteria for making the decision.

When viewed through the "tax principle" lens one might conclude that the entire cost of sewer projects should either be totally paid by the users of the service, or by including the costs in the tax base and shared by all.

The case that the service cost should totally be paid by those using the service is appealing in its simplicity, but unrealistic in implementation and precedent. Should only those who need response and help from police and fire departments bear the total costs for those services? Should the school budget be allocated on a per student fee to the users of the service? Should the users of the library bear the costs individually?

Of course not.

Our tax structure pools these and many other costs and allocates these costs based on property values. The result is that as individ-

Never-ending rains of late March

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Rain, Rain, Go Away, Come Again Another Day — Like a lot of you, we suffered through the never-ending rains of late March. Water in basements and severe puddling in yards were de rigueur. The included photo shows the high water mark at the Cohasset Post Office as marked by a line of debris in the grass at the edge of the parking lot. One evening, the meadow just beyond the Post Office parking lot was a veritable lake complete with ducks paddling around. By the next morning, the meadow had almost no standing water. So, essentially, the water was carried away in James Brook and out to the harbor in just one tide cycle. Those of you who were around during the rains of 1996 may remember that it took three days to clear this area. Boats were used to access the Post Office. In 1996 water even covered the first floor of the flat iron building across from the Post Office.

Last week the Mariner mentioned that the Cohasset Sewer plant was challenged with a super abundance of inflow during the storm. The increased inflow to the sewer plant is called "INI" (inflow and infiltration). INI is caused by ground water entering the sewer lines and increasing the flow into the sewer plant for processing. INI can be the result of several things. One possibility is residents may have connected storm drainage from their property (such as sump pumps) into the sanitary sewer system. Not only is this illegal, but the additional water compromises and overloads the processing capability of the sewer plant. INI can also be caused by ground water entering the sewer lines if the pipes are cracked or broken and the ground water level rises above the broken pipe.

Following the rapid increase of INI at our plant during the storm, the Sewer Commission, through their engineer, Coughlin Environmental Services (CES), undertook an audit of the sewer manholes that surround Jacobs Meadow. This portion of the sewer collection system, if it is compromised, could allow significant ground water to commingle with the sewage and enter the plant. The photo shows Veolia Water and Coughlin Environmental Services personnel inspecting a sewer manhole behind the Legion building on Summer Street. It is interesting to note that the manholes in this area, which may be under water from time to time, have covers that have rubber gaskets and are bolted tightly shut. Since this manhole is designed to be watertight this construction will prevent high storm water from entering the sewer system through that manhole.

National Grid is currently replacing several hundred feet of gas lines in the road just east of Highland Avenue.

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project — The detailed engineering is continuing for the new channel at the Legion and the new sluice gate in the harbor. It is interesting how unexpected small issues crop up that need to be addressed during the design phase. For example, we knew that there was a sewer line that crosses under the outfall channel behind the Legion. Close examination revealed that the sewer line may be very close to the channel and that it is constructed of clay pipe, but is encased in concrete. We and our engineers as well as the Sewer Commission's engineers feel that it would be prudent to carefully examine this pipe. We are in the process of deciding whether this pipe needs to be replaced before the culvert is rebuilt.

The manhole in the photo of Veolia and CES personnel working is at one end of the sewer line that passes under the culvert. The arrow in the upper portion of the photo points to another manhole located in the parking lot which is at the other end of the sewer line which passes under the Jacobs Meadow outfall channel.

By way of construction-related trivia, we'd like to mention that when any underground pipe (sewer, water, storm drain, etc) changes direction a manhole is inserted at the change of direction point. Thus, all of the places where there is a direction change; the line can be examined and easily accessed for maintenance.

National Grid Work Around Town — We have mentioned that Beach Street will be one of the first roads to be repaved during this paving season. National Grid is currently replacing several hundred feet of gas lines in the road just east of Highland Avenue.

Paving — We have spoken before about our paving plans for this season. However, as we mentioned all of the roads that we will be paving will either be cold-planed or reclaimed to prepare the base for the new paving. As we go to press, the South Shore Consortium is currently re-bidding these two road construction commodities. So, until the bids are returned and evaluated, we don't even know who the will be reclaiming or cold-planing our roads. As soon as we know, we can work with those contractors to get our work scheduled. We are hoping that we will have this resolved by the end of April.

HEALTH NOTES

Elements of a healthy existence

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The ancients considered that all matter was made up of only four elements: air, water, earth and fire.

Particle size is crucial in one substance most important for sustaining life: air. But, first, lets assume we're not stupid and take to heart all the safeguards being bruited about moderation and alcohol, etc. The example used last week in Health Notes for air was that particle size is important in the diagnosis and cure of lung cancer. Generally small airborne particles are the culprits from inhaled air. In World War I, chlorine released over allied trenches caused decades of long-lasting health conditions for many returning soldiers, not to mention those killed outright. As indicated, smell is the best defense against airborne contamination.

For water and other potable liquids, taste is nature's best defense and reading the labels on the bottle. For Cohasset, in the midst of plenty of water, the problem is not small particles.

First, chlorination was begun around 1940. Fluoride was applied in the Town in 1954. Then, in 1978, the existing distribution system was enlarged with relatively little attention to anything but supply. Later, septic systems were prohibited for new construction within 1000 feet of a named body of water. From 1979 until last year, water quality assessment was accomplished by sampling at the end of the longest arms of the distribution system such as Jerusalem Road and Cedar Street. Now a system of continuous automatic sampling is used. Because the present treatment system has little ability to inhibit the creation of a layer of manganese on our pipes, the Water Dept. adds Poly-aluminum chloride to the water.

Another water problem is flooding. The Town currently has a sophisticated multi-town emergency management program covering ground water and drinking water which includes keeping food and water safe after a disaster or power outage, disinfecting wells, inspection of septic tanks when necessary, etc. The plan also includes what to do after the flood, basic information about e-coli in drinking water, advisories, etc.

Other Factors: Of course each of us must be cognizant have our particular concerns: available medications, familiarity with diagnostic procedures, current information on the latest care methods and facilities.

Reading and Words: Word use can be as important as particle size in influencing an outcome from taking medicine. It's well to be conversant with modern word usage. Now with relaxed standards for advertising medications, it's doubly necessary to be discerning about publicly advertised drugs. Most pharmacy products are advertised responsibly, but some sound like they were being sold out of the back of a truck. Casual observation of a few words in modern usage reveals an entirely different dictionary context for many words now so familiar few would consider the need to check. Consider the more visible, but less used words like 'take' which requires a full page, two columns of 120 lines.

All of the above elements are tools to be used against current health issues in Cohasset but no one alone is a sure defense from harmful results. Aside from using the usual safeguards, common sense is necessary.

Avatar [1]: an old word with a modern ring to it. Definition: Different personification of a familiar idea. "The embodiment of hope"; "the incarnation of evil"; "the very avatar of cunning." The avatar for air is lung cancer; the avatar for water is obesity.

For the elements of Earth and Fire: Wash your hands and be careful with matches.

LIBRARY CORNER

Family wellness day is Saturday

The following events will take place at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road. For more information, call 781-383-1348 or visit cohassetlibrary.org.

Annual Family Wellness Day – Meet with health and fitness experts at this open house event on Saturday, April 10, from 1 to 4 p.m. Chiropractic, homeopathy, massage therapy, natural cleaning products, nutrition, personal training, and skin care. There will be refreshments, demonstrations, and raffles. Sponsored by Bella Aestheics, Healthy Living Magazine, and Scituate Harbor Chiropractic. All are welcome. Free.

Holiday Closing – The library will be closed Monday, April 19 for Patriot's Day.

Library Book Group – Join in for coffee and discussion of Per Petterson's book "Out Stealing Horses" on Wednesday, April 28, at 10 a.m. All are welcome.

Going Green in the Garden – On Thursday, April 29, at 7 p.m., Amy Martin, a South Shore Landscape Designer, will be giving a presentation on easy steps to make your property more sustainable for the environment and for your lifestyle and pocketbook, including information on organic gardening and lawn care, planting with native plants for healthy ecosystems, and managing rain water with rain gardens. Free. All are welcome.

Art Exhibit – South Shore Art Center will present an art exhibition at the library featuring the works of Dianne Panarelli Miller through April 30. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesdays and Fridays; and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturdays.

Movie Matinee – April's Movie Matinee has been cancelled. Be sure to join us for our next movie on May 7, at 11 a.m.

Independent Film Night – The library will show the independent film "Mine" on Thursday, April 15, at 6 p.m. Free admission and free refreshments courtesy of the Friends of the Cohasset Library. For more details call the library at 383-1348 or visit our website www.cohassetlibrary.org.

Great Decisions Discussion Group – Become a participant in the Great Decisions Discussion Group at the library. Great Decision is a nation-wide discussion group, which focuses on current foreign policy decisions being made in this country. The group meets every Tuesday morning at 10:30 a.m. beginning April 27, through June 15. Space is limited. Register online through the website or call for further information.

Ongoing at the Library – Brain Fitness, a computer program designed to exercise auditory and memory skills; Knitting Group, 10 a.m., on Wednesdays. Edna Finnegan from the Senior Center will be on hand to help people learn how to knit or help with a knitting project.

FOR CHILDREN

MamaSteph – Music, movement and more for young children in the Meeting Room at 10:30 a.m., on Mondays, April 12 and 26 and may 3, 10, and 17. Sponsored by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Story Time – In the Children's Story Room at 10:30 a.m., on Tuesdays, April 13, 20 and 27 and May 4 and 11. All ages and communities welcome. Drop in and enjoy the fun.

Register Now for Story & Craft – Story & Craft is a four-week commitment for Cohasset residents ages 3 to 6. Story & Craft will take place in the Story Room on Thursday mornings from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. or Thursday afternoons 1 to 1:45 beginning April 22 and ending May 13. To register log on to www.cohassetlibrary.org. Then click on April 22 and complete the online registration form.

Selectman Dormitzer bids adieu to board

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer attended his last session of Board of Selectmen meeting as a sitting town official on Monday night. His colleagues thanked him for his work and wished him well in his "retirement."

Chairman Paul Carlson thanked Dormitzer for his "wit and wisdom" dispersed over the years.

"I hope you find something else to fill your Monday nights," Carlson said. Dormitzer laughed and said he didn't think he would have any trouble. Carlson told him he could also watch the meetings on local cable, to which Dormitzer kidded that he would and he would be calling in to give his opinion.

Vice chair Karen Quigley said, "we haven't always agreed, but we agreed on more than we disagreed."

Selectman Fred Koed, who has served alongside Dormitzer for his entire term, said he always enjoyed hearing Ralph's perspective.

Selectman Ted Carr thanked Dormitzer for his advice and knowledge.

Town Manager Bill Griffin recalled how Dormitzer made him feel welcome as he got used to his new post in Cohasset and appreciated the "guidance" he offered along the way.

Dormitzer said the last six years on the board have been "productive" and a lot had transpired from changes in personnel, notably he helped to hire Town Manager Bill Griffin.

"I'm pleased to have been here…(and) generally happy to be retired. Who knows what committee I'll end up on?" Dormitzer said.

TREAT'S POND

A second opinion?

Grant may be available for Treat's Pond review

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It might be the answer everyone has been looking for, or it could be the latest step in a seemingly endless debate on Treat's Pond.

Selectman Ted Carr said following the March 22 discussion (see related story) of the Army Corps of Engineer's proposed project for a wetlands restoration of Treat's Pond he did some research. He found that as a federal earmark a party to the contract could request an independent peer review of the proposed project. And the peer review could be paid out of the earmark grant.

"It looks at every part of the project," Carr said. "It is something we might want to think about. It could give us significant information about the harbor and the effects on the harbor."

Carr said the peer review could look at the possibility of a solution involving the existing pipe on Sandy Cove.

Although the town has yet to enter into a contract with the Army Corps on the project they may still be able to get the grant for the review, Carr said.

"It is something we might want to think about. It could give us significant information about the harbor and the effects on the harbor."

— Selectman Ted Carr

The results of the study are binding, meaning both parties have to abide by what the independent review concludes, Carr said. However, he did not believe requesting the peer review made moving forward with the project a requirement.

"We'd have to make sure it doesn't bind the town," Carr said.

Typically, he said, the peer review is used as a means of conflict-resolution for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Selectmen chair Paul Carlson said he liked the idea.

In a related matter, Town Manager Bill Griffin sent a letter to the Army Corps informing them of the board's split vote on pursuing a study on the expected effects on the harbor if an interchange between Treat's Pond and on the harbor was created, which is what is proposal by the Army Corps. None of the Selectmen seemed willing to support the project without knowing its effect on the harbor.

The letter also indicates the board voted to request more time, until the fall. In a letter from the Army Corps in February they gave an April 15 deadline to say yea or nay to the project. However, in a later review of the audio recording of the meeting, Griffin said such an extension request was discussed, but not voted on. The issue will be placed on Monday's Board of Selectmen agenda to bring some clarity to the position of the board.

Carlson said on Monday night that it was his understanding the board would re-visit the issue after the election when the board would have five voting members. Selectman Ralph Dormitzer, who is stepping down from his post, has recused himself from the discussion and votes on Treat's Pond because of his proximity to the wetland.

Selectmen split on harbor study for project

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The line has been drawn.

And it could mean the end of the road for the Army Corps' proposal to restore the Treat's Pond wetland.

Following a nearly two-hour discussion on Monday night (March 22), the Board of Selectmen were split two and two on a vote to support a study of the expected effects on the harbor if an interchange between Treat's Pond and on the harbor, which is what is proposal by the Army Corps.

The study would have answered the question that has haunted this project proposal since day one — would the additional freshwater/stormwater brought to the harbor through this project have an adverse impact on the harbor's health and, relatedly, its commercial lobstering fleet.

Selectmen Paul Carlson and Ted Carr voted in favor of the study, while selectmen Karen Quigley and Fred Koed voted against it. Selectmen Ralph Dormitzer has recused himself from all discussion on Treat's Pond as he lives in close proximity to the affected area.

Without a definitive and scientific answer on this central question it seemed none of the selectmen were in favor of moving forward with the Army Corps project. In February, the Army Corps asked for a definitive answer from the town on the project by April 15.

The Army Corps of Engineer's aquatic habitat restoration project at Treat's Pond has been on the Selectmen's docket since it was presented to the board and a crowded room in June 2007. Army Corps recommended installing a pipe from the failing pond plagued by phragmites to the harbor to enable a saltwater exchange. From there, the project and its many associated issue took many twists and turns and was one of the most controversial topics in town throughout 2008.

The overriding issue for the Treat's Pond and surrounding Atlantic Avenue area is and always has been that severe rainstorms have caused serious flooding for several residents in the past.

The overriding issue for the Treat's Pond and surrounding Atlantic Avenue area is and always has been that severe rainstorms have caused serious flooding for several residents in the past. Although the Army Corps stated primary goal was creating a healthier wetland, a side effect could be improvement of the flooding situation.

Further, the Army Corps would contribute about $1 million toward the cost of the project, with the remaining funding, which was estimated to be about $600,000, coming from a non-federal source (likely the town or the state).

On March 22, Priscilla Houghton of 91 Atlantic Ave., the most severely affected property of the area, said in heavy rains her driveway can best be described as an extension of Treat's Pond.

She said she has been trying to get help from the town on the flooding issue since 1993, "it's a dangerous and continual problem."

During the rainstorms of two weeks ago she said her property was uninhabitable.

Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley said there were two distinct issues that have gotten wrapped up together too often – saltmarsh restoration and stormwater flooding.

"It muddies the water to talk about saltmarsh restoration" while the real problem is stormwater, Quigley said. "The Army Corps project continues to be a distraction. A saltmarsh restoration takes the focus and efforts away from the real problem facing these homeowners and residents – flooding."

At Annual Town Meeting in 2008, the same Town Meeting at which the Army Corps' Treat's Pond project was discussed, voters authorized funding for a town-wide flood control master plan. The plan is complete, and includes a section on Treat's Pond and Atlantic Ave., but has yet to be fully vetted by the Board of Selectmen or any board.

"I'd like to see the town think differently than the old way of dealing with stormwater management which is getting the water from point A to point B, usually a large embayment," said Quigley, explaining she's like to see the town look at retention upstream.

Sohier Street resident Chris Evans said the Army Corps Treat's Pond project has been on "life support" since its beginnings, "it is really something that needs to be allowed to die a natural death."

However, residents of Atlantic Avenue pushed for a study to examine, scientifically, how the project would impact the harbor.

Selectmen chair Paul Carlson said the town did not have the money to pay for the study, but would seek outside funding for it. He did not identify those possible funding sources in specific.

"In the absence of a study, you are rejecting $1- million out of hand and this is a problem that needs to be solved," Ralph Dormitzer of 111 Atlantic Ave. said, speaking as a private citizen.

Rob Willms of 123 Atlantic Ave. said an opinion on the project's potential impact on the harbor would help the town make an informed decision.

Selectman Ted Carr agreed with the residents that a third party study on the harbor was a necessity, "whatever result it is, it would help us get our arms around it and then we can live with it."

Later in the meeting, Carr said, "at the end of the day it would be great to figure out a solution to the flooding problem and Treat's Pond is not healthy and is dying."

However, Selectman Fred Koed saw little use in pursuing a study on the harbor when he felt the Army Corps project was not politically viable. Koed was adamant he would not support any additional waters being routed to the harbor.

He supported the town looking into an extension of the current drainage pipe on Sandy Cove to see if that would further alleviate the flooding. Currently the DPW goes out periodically and during every rain event to clear out the end of the pipe because it gets blocked with sand in every tide cycle.

"Have we done everything we can to look at the existing pipe? We might be able to solve the problem for pretty short money," Koed said. "We'd do it in any other neighborhood, in any other neighborhood we wouldn't even question it."

The Board of Selectmen voted 2-2, which essentially is a vote against, pursuing a study on the Army's Corps' proposal for Treat's Pond. The vote was directed to be communicated to the Army Corps.

It was unclear whether the topic will be discussed again once a new Board of Selectmen takes office following the April 10 town election. Dormitzer is not seeking re-election and a fifth vote could change the board's decision. Paul Carlson and Leland Jenkins are the balloted candidates for the two open seats on the board.

• June: Members of the Army Corps come before the Selectmen to propose efforts to revitalize Treat's Pond (off Atlantic Avenue) as a saltwater estuary.

• March: Letters to the editor pour in and discussions at Selectmen meetings drag on as controversy heats up on the Treat's Pond saltmarsh restoration project is on the warrant for Annual Town Meeting. Town Meeting supports a "resolution" to continue exploring the Army Corps plan and other stormwater solutions.

• April: Board of Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr promises residents an open and transparent process when it came to the town's involvement with the Army Corps' proposed Treat's Pond saltmarsh restoration project or other alternatives for the ailing wetland.

• June: The town's easement issue first comes into focus when the Sandy Cove property owners and the town could not come to a consensus on what rights were granted in a 1964 easement given to the town by Elizabeth Bigelow. The Board of Selectmen tries to find an amicable solution with Sandy Cove residents. Also this month, a well-attended workshop is held to discuss the problems and potential solutions to the flooding near Treat's Pond and Atlantic Avenue in relation to the stormwater master plan.

• September: Treat's Pond makes another appearance on the Selectmen's agenda as the board grapples with how to best (and legally) access the drainage pipe on Sandy Cove beach.

• October: The Selectmen place three articles outlining various options for Treat's Pond on the Special Town Meeting warrant. They are later removed from the warrant so the Selectmen can gather more information.

• January: The Board of Selectmen was split — two and two — on one of the two Army Corps project options on the Treats Pond outfall and, without a preferred route, they could not get majority vote on supporting the project.

• March: Town Meeting votes to give the Board of Selectmen the authority to accept an easement agreement from the six families whose property the easement to the Treat's Pond drainage pipe would cross.

• April: The Board of Selectmen revisits the Treat's Pond drainage pipe/Sandy Cove easement issue with local residents. The issue once again goes unresolved.

• September: Selectmen inch closer to an agreement with property owners over access the Treat's Pond drainage outfall at Sandy Cove, but still no easement or license is signed.

• October: Selectmen ink a license agreement with a group of Sandy Cove residents so they can legally access the end of the Treat's Pond drainage pipe to clear it out to ensure flow and diminish severe flooding situations in the area.

• February: The Board of Selectmen receives a letter from the Army Corps of Engineers asking for a final answer from the town on the Treat's Pond wetland restoration project. An answer is requested by April 15.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on two roll calls and local senators' votes on three roll calls from the week of March 29 - April 2.

BARS MUST HAVE LIABILITY INSURANCE (H 947)

House 145-4, approved and sent to the Senate a bill requiring restaurants and bars to purchase a liquor legal liability insurance policy to cover bodily injury or death. The policy would be required to contain minimum coverage of $250,000 for injury to or death of one person, and $500,000 for more than one person.

Supporters said that this would ensure that these establishments are financially responsible if someone is killed or injured as a result of a customer being served liquor and becoming intoxicated. They noted that drunken customers cause many assaults, injuries and deaths. Some noted that without this coverage, the bartenders and waitstaff could be held personally responsible and easily sued.

Opponents offered no arguments.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against the bill).

Y

ASSAULT ON HEALTH CARE WORKERS (H 1696)

House 155-0, approved and sent to the Senate a measure that would make it a specific crime to commit assault and battery on doctors, dentists, nurses, social workers, chiropractors and psychologists. The bill adds those medical personnel to the list of health care workers that are already covered under current law including emergency medical technicians, ambulance operators and ambulance attendants.

Supporters said that this would help protect these dedicated workers and ensure that anyone who attacks them is adequately punished. They noted that assault on health care personnel has climbed dramatically over the past few years.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill).

Y

LOBBYISTS (S 2345)

Senate 1-35, rejected an amendment that would allow state agencies and authorities to continue the practice of hiring outside lobbyists rather than using a full-time employee to lobby.

The lone amendment supporter said that the amendment is aimed at allowing some quasi-public authorities to hire an outside lobbyist. They explained that some authorities like the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Company (MMWEC) does not receive state funding and should be allowed to hire an outside lobbyist to compete with private utility companies instead of paying to hire a full-time employee to lobby. MMWEC is a non-profit, public corporation that provides wholesale power supply, financial and other services to 28 municipal utilities in the state.

Amendment opponents said that state agencies and authorities should not be allowed to hire lobbyists to lobby the state government. They noted that a state agency would be misusing taxpayer dollars when it hires an outside lobbyist to lobby the very state government of which the agency is a part.

(A "Yes" vote is for allowing state agencies and authorities to continue the practice of hiring outside lobbyists. A "No" vote is against allowing it).

N

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS (S 2345)

Senate 5-31, rejected an amendment that would repeal a 2004 law which changed the definition of independent contractors.

Amendment supporters said that the Legislature in 2004 changed the definition in an attempt to reduce the number of independent contractors and increase tax revenues. They argued that many small businesses are now being forced to pay additional payroll taxes as well as unemployment and worker's compensation costs as a result of hiring as regular employees people who should be allowed to work as independent contractors. They noted that the 2004 law classifies couriers as regular employees when they should clearly be independent contactors.

Some amendment opponents said that the 2004 law has worked well and was designed to discourage companies from illegally classifying someone as an independent contactor to avoid paying payroll and unemployment taxes, worker's compensation and other costs of regular employees. Others acknowledged that the 2004 law has some flaws that should be addressed by filing a separate bill and going through the regular committee process including public hearings. They noted that this particular proposal being debated is an amendment to a larger bill which is not the appropriate vehicle in which to make this change.

(A "Yes" vote is for repealing the 2004 law and favors the older broader definition. A "No" vote is against repeal and favors the newer restrictive definition).

Y

WAGE VIOLATIONS (S 2345)

Senate 4-32, rejected an amendment that would repeal a 2008 law which requires employers who are convicted of not paying wages to an employee in a timely fashion to pay him or her triple the amount of money owed. The 2008 law was passed in response to a 2005 court ruling that left the amount of the award to the discretion of the judge.

Amendment supporters said that the 2008 law goes too far and takes away all discretion from judges despite the circumstances of the case. They argued that the law should be flexible because employers who make an honest error should not be required to pay triple damages - especially during this recession.

Amendment opponents defended the 2008 law and argued that triple damages should automatically be awarded in order to discourage employers from holding back wages.

(A "Yes" vote is for repealing the law and is against mandating triple damages. A "No" vote is against repeal and favors mandating triple damages).

School Committee Candidates

Vote for two

Linda Herzog Snowdale

Linda Herzog Snowdale, 58, lives at 48 Mill Lane, with her husband Alan. They have two sons, Michael and David. Linda holds a BS in Special Education and Elementary Education K-8 from Boston University and an MS in School Counseling from Boston State College: Orton-Gillingham and Wilson Certified.

Occupation: Special Education Teacher (35 years).

Committee experience: Gridiron 7+ years; Diamond Club; 2 Pastoral Search Committees, Diaconate Member, Sunday School Superintendent and Teacher; Trustee, Flower, Publicity, Mission Committees at Beechwood Congregational Church

Quality you most admire in others: Unselfish service from those who protect us!

Favorite quote: Philippians 4:8 "Focus on whatever is true, noble, right, pure, lovely, admirable-if anything is excellent or praiseworthy-think of such things."

"Watch your thoughts, they become words.

Watch your words, for they become actions.

Watch your actions, for they become habits.

Watch your habits, for they become character.

Watch your character, for it becomes your destiny."

What you can laugh at most about yourself: Loving sailing despite getting seasick!

Fun fact about yourself: While serving on the Gridiron Club, our football team was champions three times. While on the Diamond Club, our baseball team won its first championship in 49 years!

What have voters told you is their biggest concern? NO DELEVELING! Voters want to trust their elected representatives on the school committee again. Concerns include a faulty relationship between the school committee and the superintendent, poor and disrespectful communication, a disregard for input, ignored concerns and processes/timetables, low parent/faculty morale, disproportionate amount of unemployment, outdated/underused technology, discriminating fees, lack of a transparent budget, exorbitant legal costs, wage disputes, disagreements regarding the program of studies, block scheduling, deleveling, student/teacher ratios, course offerings, hiring/firing and Department Supervisors. As your representative, I would strive to turn these dissatisfactions into new visions and work to implement what our school community values through teamwork!

Biggest challenge facing the School Committee: Improving communication is the biggest challenge facing the school committee. I will make this my top priority. We have coaches who have inspired our athletes to achieve great feats. School leadership needs to communicate this positive spirit of teamwork that supports and values those working directly with our children. An exemplary school culture boasts a vibrant community of learners! In addition, our community deserves a budget that is detailed and transparent clearly communicating how our tax dollars are spent. Negotiating win/win situations will reduce the need for outrageous legal expenses. Respectful conversations will promote what we value for successful students!

Reason for seeking office: Giving back to our town has been my inspiration for wanting to serve Cohasset residents on the school committee. An advocate for students, I hope to support those working directly with them, especially bus drivers, cafeteria workers, custodians, nurses, paraprofessionals, secretaries, and teachers. My strong leadership is needed to restore a right relationship with our community as we work towards goals collaboratively. I've heard the voters! They want CHANGE starting AT THE TOP. NO DELEVELING! I have a heart for the students, an ear for school staff and a voice for the community, so please allow me to represent you.

Occupation: Domestic Engineer and Volunteer.

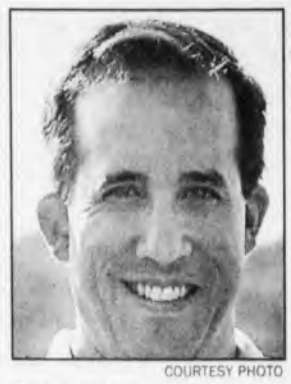
Civic/municipal experience: 6 years School Building/Facilities Committee, 6 years School Committee, Organizer/fundraiser for the Friends of Cohasset Public School Playgrounds which built both the Osgood/Deer Hill Playgrounds, Deer Hill Representative to the PSO, and past PSO President.

Quality you most admire in others: Those who seek to understand; rather than to be understood.

Favorite quote: "What we've got here is a failure to communicate!"—Cool Hand Luke.

What you can laugh at most about yourself: I actually enjoy serving on the School Committee!

Fun fact about yourself: I watch Criminal Minds to unwind!



What have voters told you is their biggest concern: Currently, voter's biggest concerns seem to be with the perception that the Superintendent and the School Committee have been functioning with a lack of accountability and oversight. Obviously, "what we've got here is a failure to communicate"! This is one area that has plagued us and needs to be addressed. The School Committee set quantitative and multiple measurable goals for student achievement back in 2005, we have been steadily attaining these goals. I would love the opportunity to continue this commitment towards equity and excellence and better communicate to the Town the results we have attained to date.

Biggest challenge facing the School Committee: Currently, one of the biggest challenges is the continued need for adequate yearly funding or 5-6 percent to meet contractual obligations and fixed costs. At this point, each year we do without the additional revenue to our operating budget (example: 2.7 percent increase for 2010—2.1 percent for 2011) we slip further and further into a greater need to cut services or raise fees. We have forecasted our long-range needs since 2006 and have been working with the new Budget Planning Group. Together, we will need to implement a plan which addresses the needs of both the Town and School operating budgets.

Reason for seeking office: I believe in the new programs, consolidations and accomplishments the schools have made in the past six years; i.e. our Primary Learning center, Integrated Preschool, Full Day K, STEM Labs (with financial support from to the CEF and PSO,—Thanks!) 6th Grade Foreign Language, Revived/Enhanced Debate Team (2010 Champs!), Increased courses/participation Advance Placement (2004: 125 students, in 2009: 224 students), creation of a transparent budget with monthly reviews, a completely reviewed/renewed Policy manual, etc.. There has been accountability and oversight; I would like the opportunity to continue "to hold high expectations for ALL students and Staff and provide resources to support those expectations."

Occupation: Real estate.

Civic/municipal experience:

American Cancer Society 2010 Relay for Life team co-captain

Alumni / student mentor program (Boston College)

Guest speaker; class fund raising agent (Harvard University)

Eucharistic Minister, St. Joseph's Chapel

Deputy Chief of Staff to Massachusetts Secretary of Environment.

Head negotiator to attract US Open and other golf tournaments to state-owned Don Rees course

Led relocation of 100-person state staff, including building renovations

Renegotiated state office leases resulting in $10 million of reduced expenses

Qualities you most admire in others: Integrity, tenacity; reliability; enthusiasm

Favorite quote: "Genius is 1 percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration." – Thomas Edison.

What you can laugh at most about yourself: I was on the Wrestling Team and Chess Club at the same time.

Fun fact about yourself: I can do the Russian dance (but only at weddings)

What have voters told you is their biggest concern? While campaigning for School Committee, I've connected with voters from all over town. The overarching concern I've heard is that people want the Administration to be in sync with the community so that Cohasset's children get the best possible education.

Voters would like: clear, honest communications; the same information that's available to decision-makers; results-oriented curriculum changes, not budget-based maneuvers; and negotiated agreements instead of costly conflicts and legal battles.

Cohasset residents want and deserve excellence, accountability, and results. I will work to achieve these goals.

Biggest challenge facing the School Committee: To me, the strength of any school system depends on motivated students, involved parents, dedicated teachers, and sufficient facilities. Cohasset is blessed with these assets. But to achieve top-tier results, the greatest challenge will be to strengthen the partnership between parents, teachers, and the administration.

The School Committee makes decisions that can dramatically influence the quality of education for Cohasset. The decision-making process needs to be well-informed and interactive with parents. The School Committee must provide oversight of the Administration such that there is open communication, shared information, a results-based curriculum, and a win-win approach to negotiations.

Reason for seeking office: I'm running with a single purpose in mind: to make sure that Cohasset's schools are the best schools in Massachusetts and recognized as such.

With young children just getting started in the school system, I have a long-term vested interest in our success. I also bring a fresh, objective perspective to address immediate issues. As a business owner and entrepreneur, I'm familiar with managing large budgets and negotiating union and other labor-related contracts. I look forward to contributing my management and leadership skills to the schools, which represent about two-thirds of Cohasset's annual budget.

Civic/municipal experience: Cohasset school volunteer; Former Member, Board of Directors - United First Parish Church, Quincy; Former Vice President, Board of Directors - DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended).

Quality you most admire in others: Honesty and integrity.

Favorite quote: "A woman is like a teabag – you don't know how strong she is until she gets in hot water." — Eleanor Roosevelt .

What you can laugh at most about yourself: Dashing up or down the stairs with a great sense of purpose only to find my mind has moved on to the next task and I have no idea why I am there!

Fun fact about yourself: I sang at Symphony Hall when I was in high school (and I can wiggle my ears without moving my face).

What have voters told you is their biggest concern? Voters have lost faith in the administration of our schools and feel that we are "watering down" the education of our children. Also, teacher morale is at an all time low which is a huge problem for retention purposes and also in attracting new teachers to our system.

Biggest challenge facing the School Committee: A HUGE challenge facing the School Committee will be establishing constructive and open communication between the schools and the public. The School Committee should encourage an engaged public, in order to gain public support, but this is very broken. The School Committee also needs to ensure that the budget process is truly transparent – in spite of arguments to the contrary on the part of Administration and the Committee, there is still work to be done in this area.

Reason for seeking office: Because of my own concerns related to my answers above I felt I could no longer stand by and watch as the school situation continued to disintegrate. As a member of the School Committee I will work hard to answer the community's concerns and restore faith in our public school system. I promise I will not continue "rubber stamping" everything that comes before me. I will not allow the process to move forward without a thorough understanding of all the issues. With all of this said, my first and foremost concern is for the children of Cohasset and the quality of the education our students get in our schools.

Many of my reasons for seeking office are outlined on my website at www.astino.info. As citizens of this community we must all make our voices heard - please don't forget to vote on Saturday, April 10th!

STUDENTS STUDY HARBOR

Drifting away

CSCR tackles harbor tidal flow

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

There's no denying Cohasset Harbor is one of the greatest assets in this seaside town.

But, underneath the bobbing lobster boats and the wind ripples the lies a host of unanswered questions – and potential problems.

Slowly, but surely, students at the Center for Student Coastal Research are chipping away at those outstanding questions.

In their latest project the students have teamed up with NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) oceanographers to get a better understanding of the tidal flushing in and out of the harbor.

This past Friday, about 15 students spent the better part of a day off school (it was Good Friday), in a workshop learning to build the tool to help them in the effort. The end result was six "drifters."

"One of the big concerns in town is whether there is adequate flushing in the harbor, especially in the Cohasset Cove," said Jack Buckley, Cohasset High social studies teacher and president of CSCR.

Drifters will be the means to discover how the surface water flows in and out of Cohasset Harbor. Although not sophisticated in construction or materials, drifters have been used in collaboration between NOAA, students, and lobstermen all over the New England coast to collect data on current.

The design is simple and so are the materials: PVC, cloth, fiberglass rods and hose clamp and buoys.

The tracker is the essential component. The current model is a nondescript gray and about the size of a 3x5 index card and it transmits its location to a satellite, which in turn transmits the information to the computers at NOAA.

"Within minutes we have information at the lab," said Jim Manning, NOAA oceanographer and one of the leads on the drifter project. Manning has been working on the drifter project since 2004. Every two hours the corresponding website is updated with the latest information on where the drifters are.

"One of the big concerns in town is whether there is adequate flushing in the harbor, especially in the Cohasset Cove."
— Jack Buckley, CSCR

"The ocean is so complicated we can't put out enough drifters to understand it all," Manning told the students at Friday's workshop.

Like much in the science world, everything is an experiment.

"Thanks to all the students who have eyes on them, the design of the drifters change every year," Manning said.

Out of water the drifters look like mini-satellites. Four "sails," about four feet in length, are arranged at 90-degree angles to each other. In the water, the drifters are a little like icebergs, most of it floats below the water line. A main stanchion holds the tracking device and two fiberglass rods criss-cross through the center rod. At the end of the rods are buoys, which keep the entire structure afloat.

The drifters can last anywhere between two hours and eight months at sea, "lots of factors contribute to a drifter's life span – wind, phase of the tide," Manning said.

Many of them wash up on the shoreline or end up lost at sea. Others are re-used and re-floated to gather more data. A lot of the drifters eventually make their way to the Race Point in Provincetown.

"Every drifter has a story, usually it ends up in the hands of somebody," Manning told the students.

Although the drifters the students assembled last Friday will be deployed somewhere else, the students will make their own set of about a dozen drifters to be deployed in Cohasset Harbor sometime in late April, early May.

"From the local perspective, the goal is to collect data that gives a more clear understanding of how Cohasset Harbor exchanges water with Massachusetts Bay," said Buckley.

With the project, they will try to answer the question of whether there is adequate tidal flushing in the harbor. One of the key issues uncovered at the CSCR State of the Harbor Forum was the harbor is changing because of a greater influx of freshwater. Is the freshwater (stormwater runoff and freshwater discharge from the wastewater treatment plant) mixing and exchanging enough with the greater tidal flows?

Buckley said the project, like most in science, is really experimental, "we don't know if the data we collect will get us the answers we're looking for."

But, the chance to work alongside ocean experts, like the NOAA oceanographers, is invaluable for the students, Buckley said.

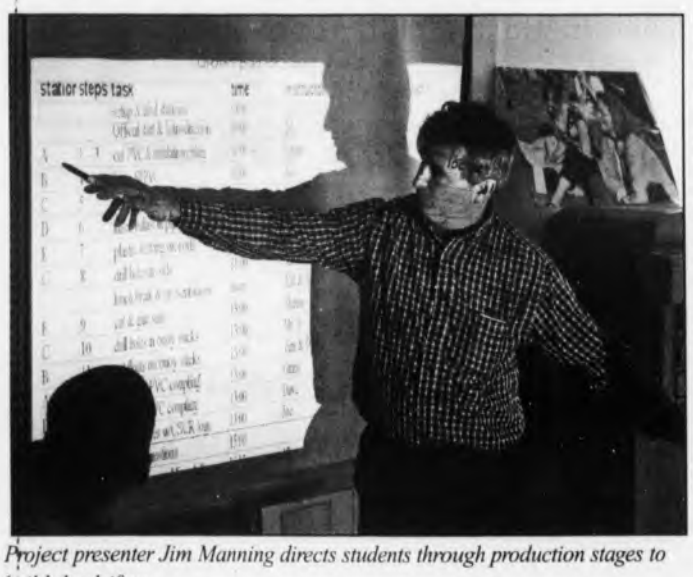
"They are psyched to do work with people of this caliber," Buckley said. During the one-day workshop the students put together the drifters, but also began to learn the principles of ocean dynamics from experts.

The information the drifters will gather will also expand NOAA's database, which is lacking in data on the South Shore to Provincetown.

CSCR has applied for a grant that would provide the group with funding to continue the drifter project for three additional years. The grant application, which requests about $289,000, was submitted this week. Buckley said it is highly competitive, but he thinks the project is a good match.

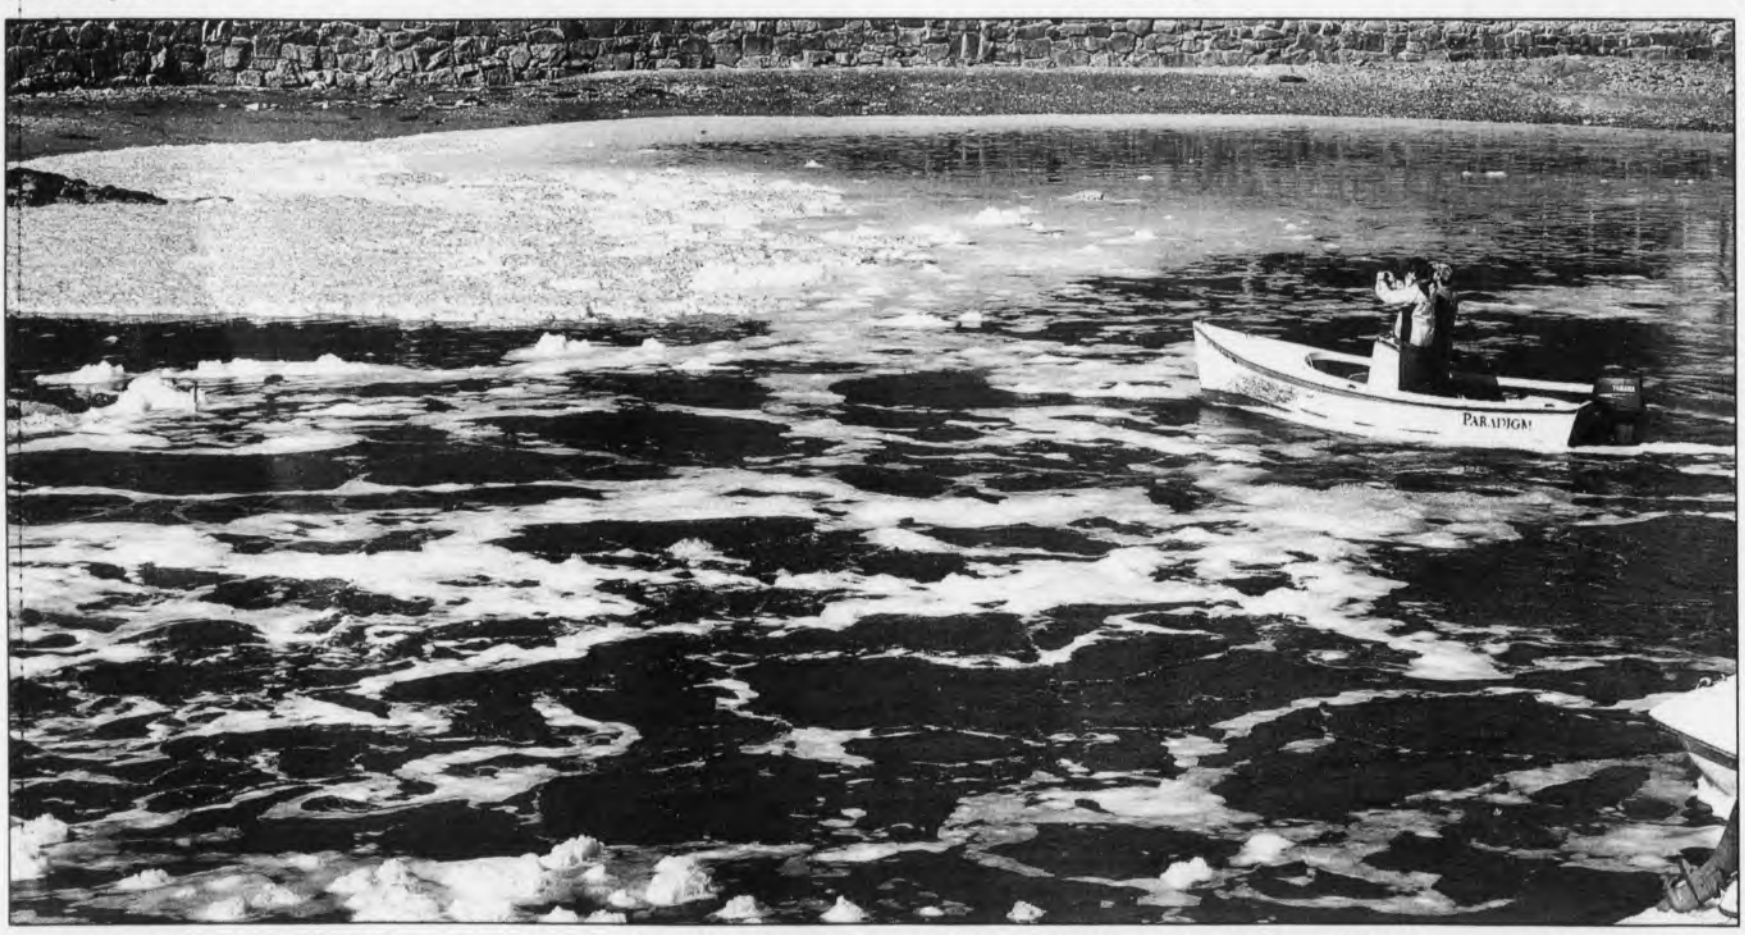
"It would be a whale of a grant," Buckley said, and the biggest grant CSCR has received so far. The project would allow coordination between CSCR, UMASS oceanography and a coastal study group in Provincetown.

Even without the grant, a group of students will work on the drifter pilot project throughout the summer and into the fall.

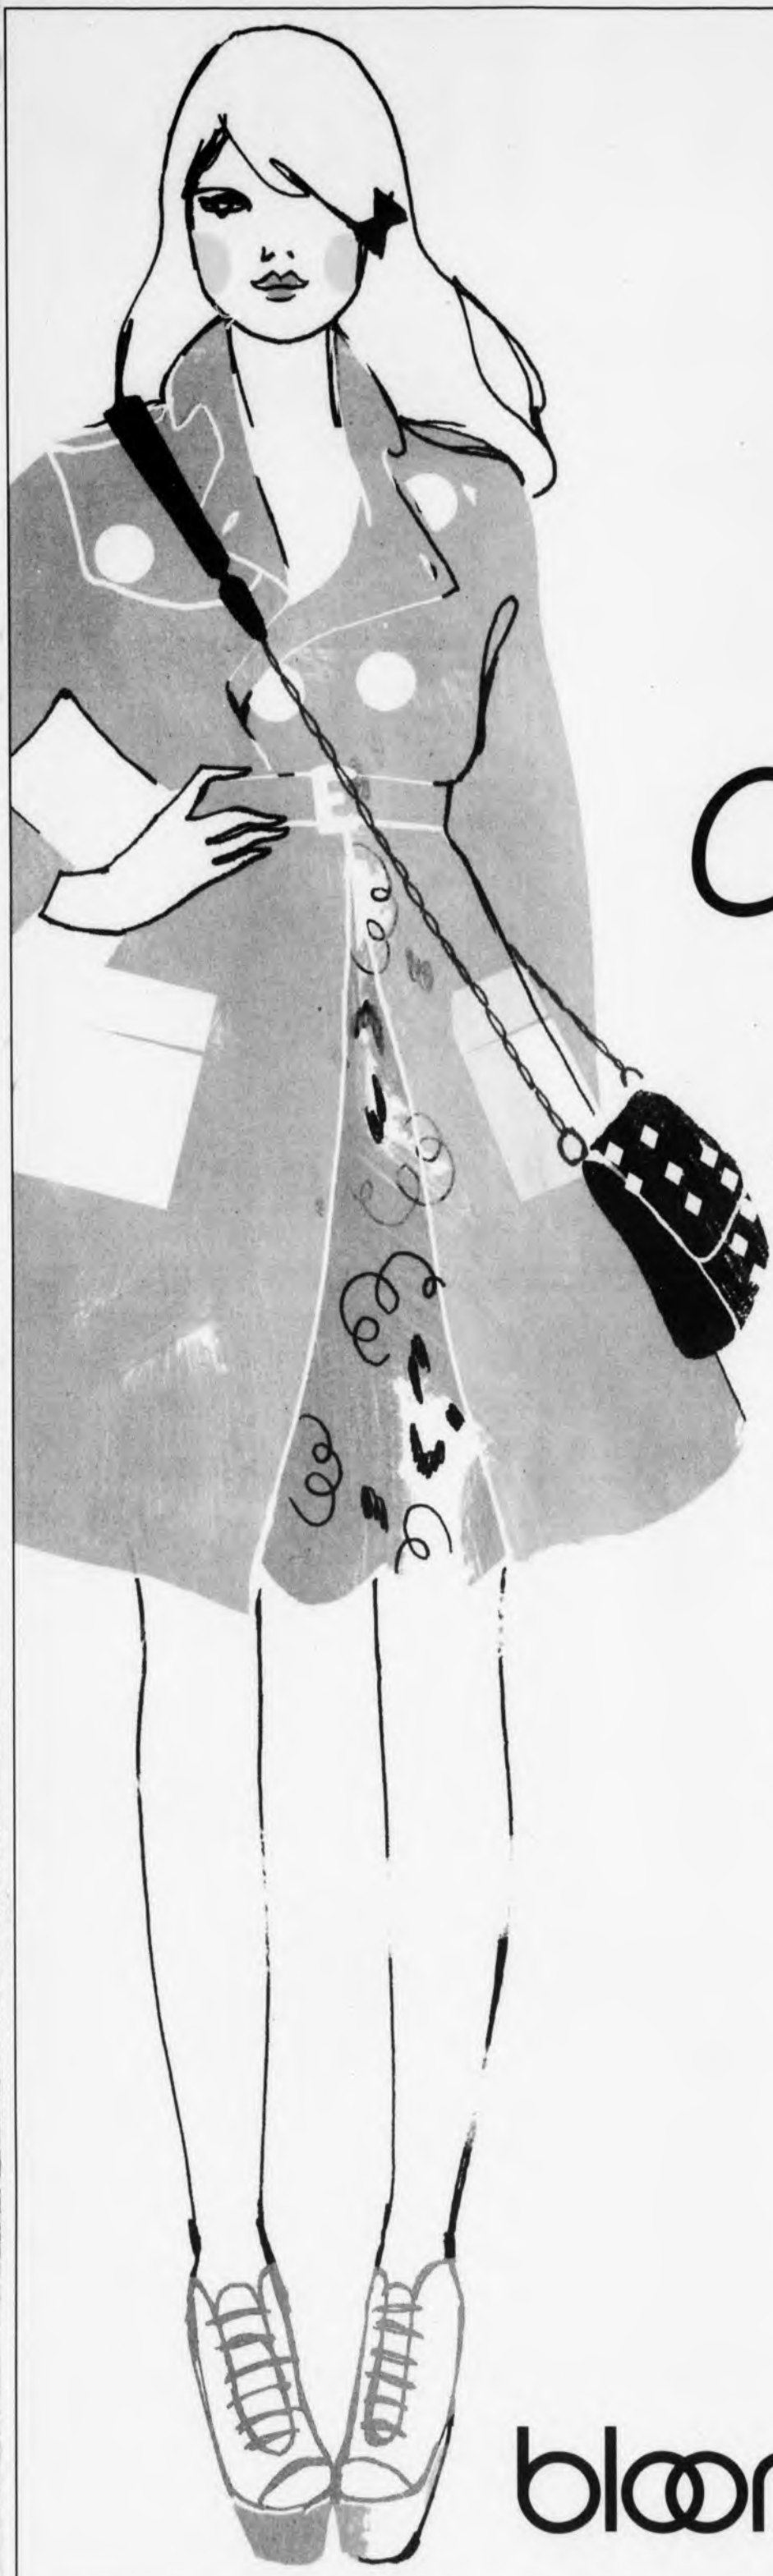


STAFF PHOTOS/CHRIS BERNSTEIN

CSCR participants Megan Richardson and Emily Bertovich do their part in the making of the drifters.



Students paired up and each took on a different part of the construction process to build the drifters. The group ended up with six drifters at the end of the day. The drifters will then be deployed and send information back to NOAA on the current patterns.



Project presenter Jim Manning directs students through production stages to build the drifters.

This is a design pattern for the drifters. NOAA oceanographer Jim Manning, who has been working with drifters for six years, told the students "every drifter has a story."

A research assistant and field technician Grant Emde of Cohasset and research scientist Vitalii Sheremet of the University of Rhode Island's Graduate School of Oceanongraphy photograph the foam that accumulates in the harbor on the outgoing tide. They also looked at the bottom current where the fresh water meets the ocean water on outgoing tides.

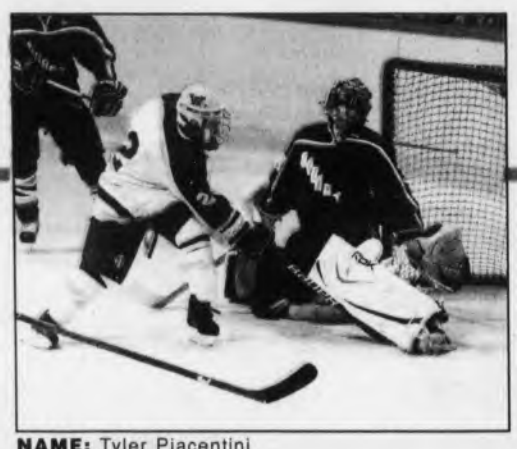
NAME: Jamie Murray
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Murray posted a 1.29 GAA during the regular season, [illegible] of the premiere goaltenders in the state. He was the team MVP, and was brilliant in the playoffs as well. In the Sailors' 2-1 championship game loss, Murray turned back 29 shots, including several of the spectacular ones. In the South Sectionals, he held three of four opponents to just one goal, and didn't allow more than two through the team's entire playoff run.

NAME: Ryan Brown
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Junior
STATS: A league all-star for the South Shore League champion Clippers, Brown was one of the top scorers on the team, eclipsing the 30-point mark and leading a fierce first line for Norwell.

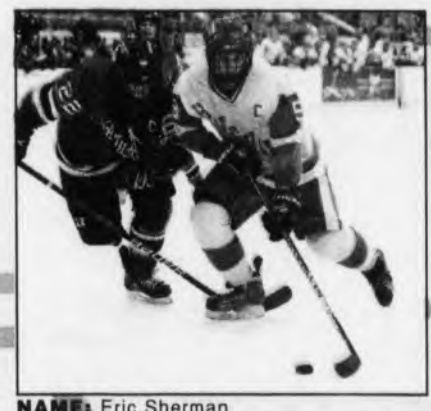


NAME: Pat Lema
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Lema, a two-time Atlantic Coast League all-star defenseman and four-year varsity player for the Rams, was a huge reason the Rams took their game deep into the postseason. A member of the South team for the first-ever MSHCA Senior All-Star game, Lema finished the season with four goals and 14 assists this year for 18 points.

NAME: Conor Coveney
SCHOOL: Hingham
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Coveney was named Hingham's Most valuable player this season. Coveney notched 33 points and was one of the most dominating defensive players in the state.

NAME: Ryan Connors
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Junior
STATS: This Atlantic Coast League all-star and three-year varsity player scored 21 goals and 16 assists for 37 points to lead the Rams in scoring. Connors led the team in scoring last year as well.

NAME: Tyler Piacentini
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Junior
STATS: A right winger, Piacentini scored 48 points (22 goals, 26 assists) for the Wildcats and was a finalists for the Hobey Baker Sportsmanship Award. Piacentini is a second-time Bay State Conference All-Star team and one of the four captains for Weymouth, and one reason why the Wildcats finished with a 15-9-1 record and advanced all the way to the Div. 1 South Sectional finals.



NAME: Brian Collins
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Collins had 15 goals and 18 assists in the regular season to lead the Sailors' attack. Both were team bests for Scituate.

NAME: Tim Driscoll
SCHOOL: Hingham
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Driscoll's game-winning goal in the Super Eight championship game (a 1-0 Hingham win) was a crowning jewel on an already spectacular season. Driscoll had 32 goals and 28 assists.

NAME: Evan Shea
SCHOOL: Hanover
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Shea, a senior, led Hanover's scoring with 13 goals and 20 assists, helping the Indians back to the Div. 2 South Sectionals.

NAME: Eric Sherman
SCHOOL: Hingham
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Sherman had more than 30 points and was a force in the Super Eight with four goals in the tournament.

NAME: Matt Shearer
SCHOOL: Hanover
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Shearer carried a 1.59 GAA into the Div. 2 South Sectional tournament, then stopped 55 shots and four more in a shootout as Hanover beat Plymouth South in the opening round. Throughout the season, Shearer's presence between the pipes was the key factor on a team that didn't score a lot of goals. He was 11-4-3 in the regular season with a .946 save percentage.

NAME: Clay Ferguson
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Ferguson was by far one of the best goalies in Division 3. The senior captain and league all-star, helped carry the Clippers to the postseason, and he finished the season with two shutouts and allowed two goals or less 11 times in a season where the Clippers won the South Shore League title for the fifth year in a row.

Baseball team wins marathon

After losing their opener to Scituate 14-3, getting a 10-0 lead against that same team was a good sign for the Skippers.

But that was just a start.

The Sailors have been hot with the bats early in the season, and that didn't change on Saturday.

The 10-0 advantage only lasted a few innings, as Scituate tied the game 12-12 in the third before Cohasset answered with a run in the fourth and four in the fifth, then held on for a wild 17-16 victory.

The game, which started at 3:30 p.m., felt like it might never finish, running more than three-and-a-half hours.

"That felt like a doubleheader," Scituate coach Kevin Greer said. "The bottom of the third felt like the bottom of the sixth. I'm dumbfounded. We were down 10-0 and I told the kids to come back one pitch at a time and we scored four runs, then a couple more, a three-run homer and it's tied up."

Baseball

The Sailors battled to the last pitch, and had a chance to win.

In the last of the seventh, trailing 17-16 with two out, Scituate put runners on second and third on a walk and a double by Jake Shillue, but Cohasset reliever Brendan Doonan snagged a hard grounded that looked like it could go through the middle to get the last out.

Matt King's second three-run shot of the game in the bottom of the fifth cut the Cohasset lead to 17-16.

"It was a marathon. What impressed me was that offensively we kept responding. We never trailed, and even after they came back, our guys stayed focused and loose. That was a good sign."

Pete Afanasiw

Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw was happy to get the win.

"That was up and down, a rollercoaster," Afanasiw said. "It was a marathon. What impressed me was that offensively we kept responding. We never trailed, and even after they came back, our guys stayed focused and loose. That was a good sign."

With the wind blowing out, Cohasset rapped four home runs. "I give Scituate credit," Afanasiw said. "They're a good hitting team. They've got a potent offense. They're a good team. They'll go deep into the Patriot League. I'd be surprised if they don't compete for the title."

"We made a couple of defen-

New faces fill Cohasset lineup

WWASSERS@CNC.COM

After losing their top three starters from last season, the Cohasset boys tennis team is looking for a new group of players to take the reigns and lead the Skippers to a successful season.

Boys Tennis

While Cohasset started the season with two losses, they were both against tough, upper division teams.

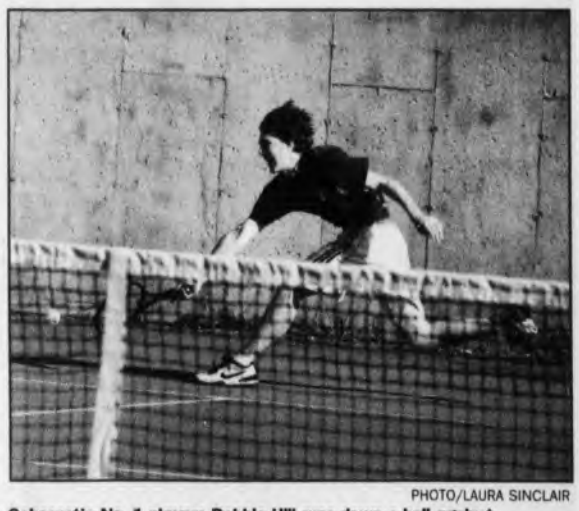
The Skippers lost to Hingham and Scituate, both solid Div. 2 squads.

Hingham went to the state final game last season.

With that in mind, coach Brian Hill is feeling good about what he's got this year.

"We have an awesome team," he said. "We have excellent leaders and captains."

Seniors Conor Queenan and Sebastian Braga, known to his teammates as C-Bass, are two captains, along with senior Mike Filbey.



Queenan and Braga are both first-year varsity tennis players.

For the moment, Robbie Hill will take the No. 1 slot, with Travers Craven at No. 2.

Will Choi is at No. 3 and Filbey and Queenan have teamed for first doubles.

Laxers roll by Mashpee, Barnstable

SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

This week, Cohasset boys lacrosse played on back to back days for the first time all season.

On Monday, Cohasset played a very young Mashpee team. The game may as well have been over before it started as Cohasset was up 22-1 at the half. Coach Stew Curran said it was "The best half of Cohasset lacrosse I have ever seen."

Boys Lacrosse

It's hard to argue with such a statement because everyone on the team was scoring, even the defensemen. With a 21 point cushion, the starters on the Skipper's squad didn't see any playing time in the second half and instead gave some opportunities for goals to come from unlikely places.

John McGoldrick and Alex Kinnealey had four goals each, and defensemen Sam Leahy had two goals of his own. Sophomore Alex Livingstone added a few of his own as well. When it was all said and done, Cohasset won 26-2.

Tuesday's game was different and a lot more competitive as the Skippers faced off against the Barnstable Raiders. Barnstable was first to score, but Thomas Flibotte answered with a goal and Dean Driscoll answered with two, making it a 3-1 game. Steve Glover recorded a hat trick for Barnstable in the first quarter, which came to a close with a score of 3-3.

Barnstable and Cohasset traded goals until Dean Driscoll capped off a hat trick of his own, tying the game 5-5. After Kinnealey set up Will Wise with a beausive mistakes early," he said. "But the whole game they battled their butts off. The kids kept hitting the ball and they kept playing hard. When we were down 10-0 we knew the wind was blowing out and that we'd hit a few in the wind. If that last ball gets through we win. He (Doonan) made a nice play."

Doonan gave the Skippers a big lift with his performance.

After suffering a broken right arm during hockey season, Afanasiw said he was going to pick and choose Doonan's spots on the mound for health reasons.

He pitched scoreless frames in the sixth and seventh innings.

"Brendan did a great job," Afanasiw said. "He took care of a potent offense.

Kevin O'Connell knocked in what turned out to be the game-winner with a two-out, two-run double in the fifth.

"That was a good piece of clutch hitting," Afanasiw said. "He had a multi-hit game. He's worked hard. He did a nice job."

Jamie Timothy also had a multi-hit game, his first.

"A lot of kids stepped up<' Afanasiw said. "It was a good game."

Cohasset youth riding high

Julia Gangemi, an eighth-grade student at The Winsor School, Boston, has qualified for the Interscholastic Equestrian Association's National Finals in Atlanta, GA, April 22-25.

A national Finals qualifier has previously qualified at the Regional and New England Zone Finals, placing among the top five riders in the Zone. Julia will compete in the Future Intermediate Equitation Division for the Patriot Team, coached by Tara Franklin.

The Interscholastic Equestrian Association was formed to introduce middle and secondary school students to team equestrian sports. The unique aspect of these competitions, both at local and national levels, is that none of the riders supply their own horse or tack; though the rider and horse have a short time to become acquainted, the horses are essentially new to the rider, with scores based on horsemanship.

Julia practices at Red Acre Farm in Stow.

Sailing team finishes first week of practice

By Andrew Burnett
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The new collaborative sailing team, the Nantasket Nor'easters, made it through the first week of practice.

Who would have thought that we would go from forties and raining to almost seventy and sunshine in under a week? Because of the dramatic weather, Monday's boat rescue was quite an event as we fought pouring rain and high winds to get the boats tied down.

Tuesday was equally rainy and miserable; although we were unable to go out due to heavy wind, we did review a lot of racing and boat-handling topics, as well as make sure the boats were ready to go for Thursday. It's a good thing we did, as Thursday brought sun and a medium breeze, perfect for our first day on the water. We worked mostly on roll tacking and roll jibing, as well as downwind sailing.

Saturday was also a beautiful, with a lighter breeze than Thursday but even warmer. On Saturday we worked more on tacking and jibing maneuvers, as well as covering, downwind sailing, sailing in light air, and accelerating using kinetics. I think everyone enjoyed getting back out on the water after a long winter, even if we were a bit rusty after the long break. Hopefully Week Two will bring equally good weather and lots more sailing, as we prepare for a fleet race and team race next weekend.

South Coastal Hockey League Roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Grizzlies and the Thunder gave possibly a preview of what might be a very interesting Masters Div. playoff game between the two teams in the South Coastal Hockey League.

Grizzlies goaltender Joe Burke came up with 27 saves, many of them dazzling, Joe McCafferty, John Jones and Jeff Ray of Hanover had a goal each in their 3-2 win over the Thunder.

Tom Maguire and Mark Bishop of Hanover scored the Thunder goals.

Mark Dorsey scored two goals and assisted on another in the Aeros, 5-0 Masters Div. win over the Vipers. Chris Devin added two goals and Kevin Marani had one and goalie Mark Dwyer of Marshfield had 21 saves for the shutout for the Aeros.

Jeff Gauthier had three goals and an assists, while Dave Evans scored two goals to go with an assist as the Maple Leafs remain undefeated in the Classics Div. with an 8-4 victory over the Black Hawks. Jim Smith of Pembroke, Marshfield's Steve Mudge and Sean Cleaves of Hanover added a goal each for the Leafs.

Abington's Jim Polito scored two goals, Hank Mosca and Dave Howe, both of Pembroke had a goal each for the Black Hawks.

Kirk Souza scored three goals and John Hernon of Marshfield added two goals and an assist in the Canadiens 7-1 Classics Div. win over the Rangers.

Mike Fahie of Pembroke and Mike Evans added a goal each for the Canadiens and Tom Smith of Marshfield scored the Rangers goal.

Tim Cruz of Marshfield scored with 7:02 left in the first period and goalie Eric Schoell stopped 18 shots as the Sharks shutout the Saints, 1-0 in a Legends Div. game.

Cohasset's Rob Dennis and Frank Famulari of Marshfield scored two goals each as the Whalers pulled out a 6-2 Legends Div. win over the Toros. Kevin Mackin of Duxbury and Paul Flagg scored the other goals for the Whalers.

Pembroke's Art Murphy and Patrick Reynolds of Norwell scored the goals for the Toros.

Dave Christensen of Pembroke scored with 6:23 left in the game as the Stingers rallied for a 6-6 Legends Div. tie with the Crusaders.

John Scag scored two goals, Paul Smyth, Norwell's Joe Murray and Hanover's Peter MacPherson added a goal each for the Stingers.

Steve O'Mara of Hanover scored two goals, Erik Jacobson of Rockland, Mike Hankes, Art Caron and Richard Buckley of Holbrook had one goal each for the Crusaders.

tiful one-timer, Wise assisted Driscoll, putting Cohasset up 7-5 going into halftime.

Cohasset never lost the lead again and were up 10-7 at the end of the third quarter. Jack Carrier put in the first goal of the fourth, giving Cohasset the four point lead that they finished with. In the end, Cohasset outhustled and outplayed Barnstable in a close game that Cohasset won 14-10.

"Overall, our defense did solid. It had some complications in the first half, but was able to pull it together," Cohasset senior captain and goalie Jack Murphy said about the Barnstable game. "Our offense, as normal, was unstoppable."

"It was a game of two halves," added Curran. "They scored first and I was unhappy with the defense in the first, but we rebounded quickly. Our man-up is pretty solid and we have very good transitional defense on both sides of the field."

As Coach Curran praised his team for their performances, he had some more to say about the team's future.

"We made some mistakes but we're happy with any win," he said. "We want to be the difference between good and great. We have a big week ahead for practice in preparation for our huge game against Dover-Sherborn this Saturday."

Cohasset goes into its toughest game of the season against Dover-Sherborn on Saturday boasting a 3-0 record. The two teams have battled for the top spot in the state for the past few years and may meet again at the end of the season.

Dover-Sherborn knocked Cohasset out of the Div. 3 Tournament last season and went all the way to the state championship game, where they were edged by Scituate 7-6 in overtime.

Andrew Barret and Evan Ackley are handling the duties.

Those positions could change with challenge matches, including a challenge for No. 1 between Craven and Hill.

Hill, so far, has won his way into the spot, beating Choi and Filbey in challenges.

Brian Hill is pleased with the way his son has been playing.

"Robbie is ripping his forehand," he said. "He's played well. Travers has been playing well too. He's the most improved player on the team. He has the ability to crush the ball. He'll do well. He's done well. He's made a concerted effort to be No. 1. Robbie has beaten a player in the top 100 and put himself there. I'm really proud of him."

In the team's opener against Hingham, Hill battled with Hingham's Chandler Semjen.

"I'm very pleased with the effort against Hingham," Hill said. "I thought Robbie could get crushed by Chandler. They hit together all winter. Robbie went ahead 5-3, but Chandler came back and did what he needed to do. Chandler beat him 7-5, 6-3. It was a very competitive match.

In the Scituate match, Craven picked up a victory over Mike Leonard.

Hill said Craven could be huge this season.

"I played Travers today," he said. "He took three games from the coach. That's almost a record. He's going to do well. We also have a few newcomers who might surprise expectations. We can do some damage."

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

FROM CAMP TO COLLEGE:
FIVE TIPS TO EASE THE TRANSITION

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

The transition to college can mean big lifestyle changes for many people, but summer camp can help ease that transition to independence.

The American Camp Association, New England has compiled a list of some of the major advantages and skills children learn that help them make a smoother transition into college life after participating in overnight camp programs.

Five life skills overnight campers learn:

1) Separation: Knowing how to survive and thrive in a residential community away from home and away from parents and family is important. Resident camp experiences boost independence simply because children get to experience life away from their families.

2) Self-awareness/empowerment: Living away from home in the residential community of summer camp enables children to learn all kinds of key lessons about themselves and the unique role they are capable of playing in a group. Many individuals who display valuable group development skills discovered them at camp

3) Social skills: Camp experiences build social skills. Living closely with strangers in a small space (cabin, bunk, tent, or yurt) provides added incentive to learn the give and take necessary for successful community living. The ability to get along with others and the chance to develop tried and true methods of making friends, make the transition to college much easier for experienced campers.

4) Independence: Camp requires children to take care of themselves and their stuff. And, when problems arise, camp living enables children to rely on themselves for solutions or to reach out to others who can assist them. A rescue from a loving family member isn't an option. It's not an option at college either.

5) Community building skills: Experienced resident campers know first-hand how to be members of the community, a tremendously important skill in making a successful transition to a new college or university environment. Whether it's tapping the expertise of others who know the ropes, discovering the most important resources, or identifying the people in the know, community building skills are essential survival skills.

OPINION

uals, sometimes we pay for services we don't use and at other time, we get much more service than we pay for. We support this system based on our belief that when our taxes exceed the cost of our individual service, it is for the greater good of our neighbors and our community.

The question, then, is whether the total costs for all of our sewers, now and in the future, should simply be included in our tax base. The approving of a 50-50 split was a compromise based on the recognition that while there would be many homes unable to initially become users of the service, it was in the greater interest of the town and consistent with our tax principles.

It is when viewed through a "fairness-equity" lens that I conclude we are obligated to support a 50-50 split unless broader changes are made to the structure for previous projects. Many projects that are brought forward are highly controversial, but ultimately get resolved. I contend that they are resolved because, as citizens, we accept the notion of a greater good, and because we have trust that fairness and equity will be a major principle in the future.

Some of those against 50-50 for the Little Harbor project argue that it is unfair to those who live where there are no plans to sewer. But that is not the issue here. Rather, the issue is one of the unfairness of treating one group of citizens having sewer service differently from another group having sewer service.

Another argument presented is that the people voted once and it should be over. But think back over the last decade and count the number of times that very contentious town issues required multiple elections by the voters to be equitably resolved. In fact, multiple votes were needed on earlier sewer projects to reach the 50-50 compromise we have today.

My concern is that by not welcoming this debate and allowing it to go on the ballot, we create another unfairness. Implicitly, we are saying that we are willing to be inequitable and unfair in the way we treat the 485 Little Harbor users financially, and in addition, we are also willing to accept this unfairness by stonewalling their attempts to get the issue back on the ballot.

This is wrong.

Thanks for giving arts a boost!

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset MHS Arts Boosters would like to gratefully acknowledge the following participants and contributors to the highly successful March Madness student/faculty basketball game held on a recent Friday evening to celebrate our State Champions and which benefited the upcoming HS Music Department trip to Philadelphia: the girls and boys varsity basketball players and HS faculty players, the CHS Chorus and Jazz Combo, Mr. Antolini, Dr. Gill, Cohasset Collision, Peter Afanaswi, Bryan Marks, Ron Ford, John DeWaal, Pat Martin, Eileen Rohrer, Nina Berkowitz, Austin Breslow, Ann Helbock, countless student volunteers, Shaws/CEF, and the Cohasset Basketball Boosters.

What was most impressive about the event was the tremendous opportunity it presented for collaboration between the Arts and Athletic Departments — madness (in the very best sense) indeed! Thanks for Giving the Arts a Boost!

Also, working closely with Arts Department Program Supervisor, Lisa Sugrue and Nina Berkowitz, the Cohasset Middle High School Arts Boosters applied for and received the exciting news that it is a 2010 Cohasset Cultural Council grant recipient. The Cohasset Cultural Council is a local agency, which is supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council. The grant will be used to construct new, and refurbish existing display boards, created by Al Lafountain's classes that are used for art exhibits and performances through out the year.

On behalf of the students, faculty, administration and parents, we thank the Cohasset Cultural Council for giving the Arts a Boost!

Appetizing art at middle-high school

THE ARTS

KATHRYN HILLMAN

In the midst of the Cohasset schools many student achievements of late – the girls winning the state basketball tournament, the high school students moving on to the state semifinals in the drama festival – an important Cohasset tradition continued: Eat Your Art. In the Cohasset Middle/High School cafeteria, on March 10th, students from kindergarten to high school (and a few adults too) brought their food-cum-art creations to be displayed and judged.

This year, the masterpieces were divided into two categories: nutritious and delicious.

This year, the masterpieces were divided into two categories: nutritious and delicious. The variety in both categories was impressive; many pieces celebrated the eventual arrival of spring, some were depictions of common household objects such as radios, board games, and iPods, and some were even food sculptures of people and animals the "Perry the Platypus," cake inspired by the popular cartoon, was a big hit. The night was rounded off by the Cohasset High School Combo Jazz Band, an almost completely student-organized jazz band, who also played at the National Honors Society induction ceremony on March 11. The entire event was sponsored by the arts boosters.

After careful deliberation, the judges reached their decision; each age group had two winners, one for best nutritious item and one for best dessert item.

In the Kindergarten – fourth-grade category, the winner of the nutritious category was "One Incredible Fish" by Mia Sable and Isabelle Russel, which featured, naturally, Swedish Fish on a bed of zucchini "seaweed."

The winner of the dessert was "Edible Animals" by Caroline Cooper and Eleanor Dunn.

In the fifth to eighth-grade age group, the winner of the nutritious category was titled "Birds Eye View" by Julian Ahern; the winner of the dessert category was "Game Night" – a board game design created with candy and cake by Mary Lengyel and Reagan Butler.

The winners of the high school category were Julia Canney and Emily Dormitzer for "Miss Lee (Our Math Teacher)" – a portrait bust in the dessert category. "Strawberry Fields Forever" by Paige Smith and Kelsey Rochleau won the nutrition category.

The People's Choice Award went to "Food" by Kathryn Dunn, Victoria Bryan, Callie Scanley, Michela Durkin. The whole event was a major success and the town looks forward to it again next year.

SCHOOL NOTES

Choral Art Society offers annual scholarship

The Choral Art Society is offering a scholarship to a graduating senior from the South Shore who plans to pursue music as a major in college.

This year, the scholarship award will be in the amount of $750. This scholarship is intended to help support a student who is applying to a bachelor of music or bachelor of arts in music degree program in any area of music concentration, including theory, history, composition, performance, music education, and music management. The opportunity to apply is being offered to graduating seniors in the South Shore communities of Cohasset, Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Kingston, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plympton, and Scituate.

The name of this year's recipient of this scholarship will be announced at the Choral Art Society's spring concert, on May 16, at St. Luke's Church in Scituate. The award will be disbursed after the successful completion of the first semester of the student's freshman year as a music major.

The Choral Art Society is well aware of the many talented young individuals on the South Shore, and they look forward to reading their applications and learning of the personal factors that have inspired them to become music majors.

Students can find an application for this scholarship at www.choralartsociety.org, or in their guidance office. The deadline for the completed application form and supporting documents is April 19.

Save the date

Mark your calendars for Saturday, May 22, for the annual Cohasset Education Foundation Spring Event. Join the CEF under the tent to celebrate another year of tremendous community support for our public schools.

Art Center announces annual art scholarships

South Shore Art Center offers five scholarships to graduating high school seniors who have been accepted to a school of fine arts or an accredited institution of higher learning. Applications and portfolios will be accepted April 24-28. Interested students should bring a portfolio of eight original works, no larger than 18-inch by 24-inch, no slides, including a self-portrait or portrait done from life and a composition drawing or painting using representational subject matter in any media. Scholarships range from $200 to $1,000. Scholarships will be awarded at the opening of the 54th annual Arts Festival, on Friday June 19. For more information, visit www.ssac.org or contact the art center at 781-383-2787.

Pilgrim Arena scholarship applications

Applications for ten $5,000 scholarships are available at the Pilgrim Skating Arena, 75 Recreation Park Drive, Hingham.

Interested seniors must pick up and sign for the application in person at the arena pro shop. Completed applications must be returned by Thursday, April 15.

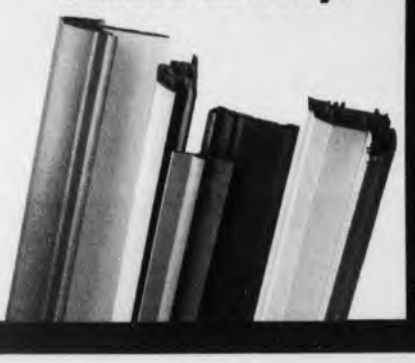
Renewal by Andersen
WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

After 22 years in a Florida swamp, our window is as good as new.

For those who don't want to replace their replacement windows.



To ensure the durability of our patented Fibrex® material window, we've kept the same window frame submerged in a Florida swamp since 1988. To this day, our testing engineers inspect it every year, and there has been absolutely no change. Our other weather-testing sites in sub-zero Minnesota and the Arizona desert have yielded the same result: after 22 years in the worst conditions, the very same Fibrex® material has remained unchanged.

Why do we perform this crazy weather-testing? To build the best replacement window, that's why. Our practically indestructible Fibrex® frame keeps our glass from shifting and our insulating seals intact, even during drastic temperature changes. This is how we maximize your home's energy-efficiency, season after season, year after year.

- With the $1,500 Federal Energy Tax Credit ending this year, don't get the tax credit "run-around" from another company whose windows don't qualify.
- Our windows have glass that's up to 70% more energy efficient, saving you substantial money on energy costs.†
- 96.2% of our installations have begun and ended on time.
- Every installation finishes with a thorough cleaning with a EPA-compliant HEPA vacuum cleaner, removing debris as small as one micron from your home.
- Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish window replacement subsidiary of Andersen—the most recognized name in windows.

Fibrex® material is 2X as rigid and stable as vinyl

"North River Marsh" an oil painting by Alix White of Cohasset, is one of 21 paintings in her exhibit titled "At the Edge of Wetlands" on display through April 25 at the South Shore Natural Science Center, Norwell.

Her works celebrate the environment and include colorful, vibrant and joyful renderings of shorelines, marshlands, and the sea. Ms. White states, "Painting is the natural outpouring of my work spent next to these environments and from my life experience as a painter, organic farmer, and past member of both the Cohasset Board of Health and Conservation Commission. Having served on the Conservation Commission, I have begun to learn the value of all these wet grasslands. As an artist, I find their shapes and their relationship to water and sky ceaselessly interesting."

Meet the artist and celebrate the environment through her paintings at the Opening Reception on Friday, April 9 from 6 to 8 p.m., Vine Hall Gallery, South Shore Natural Science Center, Norwell. The event is free and open to the public. Works are for sale. The exhibit is free to view. Hours at the Science Center are Monday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For more information, contact the South Shore Natural Science Center at 781-659-2559 or www.ssnsc.org

Post-graduate programs can help jump start a career

DAILY NEWS PHOTOS BY ART ILLMAN

By Kristine Lundblad
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

How many people do you know who can design and fabricate a bicycle? Well, West LeBlanc can.

In 2009, LeBlanc completed a post-graduate technical training program in metal fabrication at Assabet Valley Regional Technical High School in Marlborough, where he spent 10 months perfecting his welding techniques, learning new skills and being certified to perform them anywhere.

But, initially, it took him some time to figure out the career path he wanted to travel.

"Nobody was proposing any good ideas to me in high school," he said. "I'd be home working on cars, or tinkering with engines. I really didn't fit in anywhere. I never knew what I wanted to do, nobody talked about vocational schools. Basically, it wasn't until I was 19 or 20 that I heard about TIG (tungsten inert gas) welds."

This precise welding process requires a lot of training and finesse. LeBlanc learned a little about welding at a former job, but the 24-year-old Worcester native hadn't pursued any formal training. His former employer suggested the Assabet post-graduate program. He had to quit that job to attend the intensive full-time program, but LeBlanc knew it was the right career move.

"There's a serious demand for skilled workers," said Assabet metal fabrication lead teacher Neil Mansfield. "The average age of a skilled welder is 62. Now more than ever there's a need, a big void." Experienced TIG welders who become pipe fitters can earn more than $40 per hour for their work.

"They (Assabet teachers) expose you to everything you want to learn," LeBlanc said. "It's like taking another senior year but there's no books, you just spend all that time in the shop."

LeBlanc will start a new job in TIG welding next week.

The post-graduate technical training program is designed for adults to further their technical skills, learn new ones or pursue career options. Assabet's program features 14 areas of study, from automotive technology and a culinary program, to business technology and plumbing. Students complete 1,000 hours of technical training over a 10-month period.

It's a full-time, Monday-to-Friday program running 7:50 a.m. to 2:40 p.m. Post-grads work alongside high school students but they stay in the shop – or kitchen or computer lab – all day, as opposed to the high schoolers who take other classes like English and math and spend only every other week in their technical discipline.

According to Cindy Zomar, public relations coordinator at Assabet, few local technical schools offer similar comprehensive post-graduate programs for adult learners.

Brian Matthews is a post-graduate student in Assabet's precision machining and automated manufacturing program to improve and expand his job skills.

After losing his job when his former employer closed the business, Matthews spent some time on unemployment before deciding to return to school. He started his program in September and is scheduled to complete it in June.

"I was in precision sheet metal work," the 47-year-old Hudson resident said. "Most of the machining is done by computer control now. Things have changed. I wanted to learn (computer programming)." Matthews said Assabet machining students are taught the latest computer-aided design/computer-aided manufacturing (CAD/CAM) program, Mastercam.

Matthews said his skills have been broadened by the Assabet program, allowing him to work in a machine shop or a sheetmetal shop.

"I find there's a big demand (for these skills) because there aren't that many kids going into (the trade)," he said.

Even while attending school full time, Matthews chose to find a co-op job. "I went around town to different machine shops in Hudson with my resume and cover letter," he said. "I told them about my past experience and that I'm going to school." He works two days, about 15 hours a week, on the job and spends three days at the Assabet program.

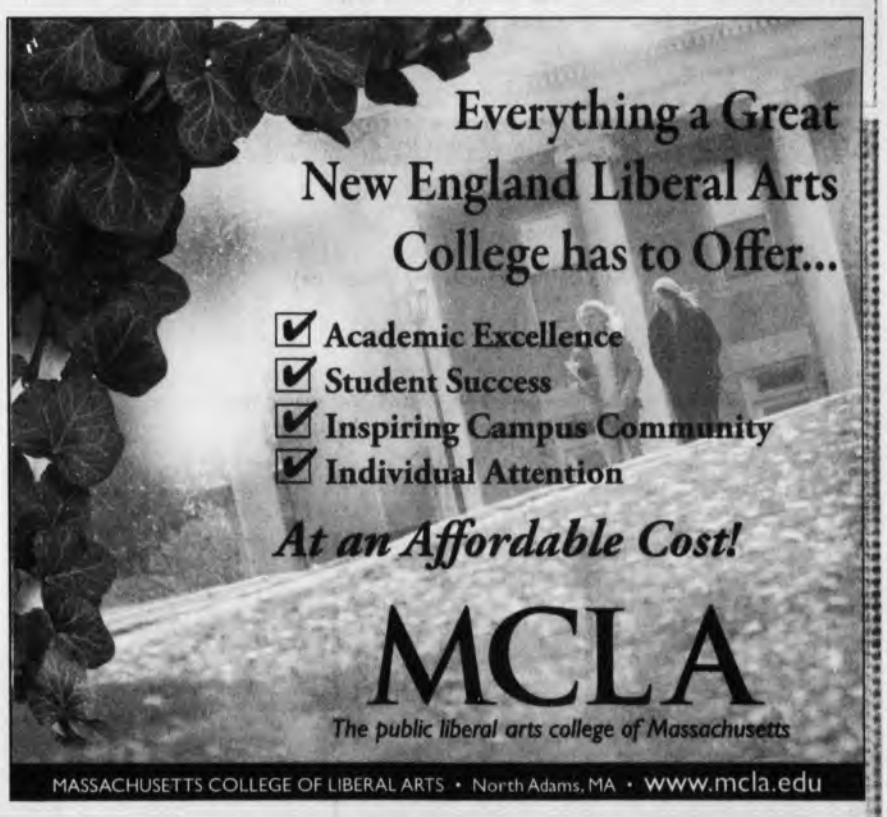
Both LeBlanc and Matthews said the Assabet teachers worked with them individually and tailored the training to their skills, needs and schedules.

Leonardo DeSouza is another student hoping to take his interests and turn them into a career. The 22-year-old Marlborough resident is training in computer programming and Web development, attending with a friend, Davi Silva.

"I've always been interested in computers, especially computer programming," DeSouza said. "I thought this would be a good start for my future." After working with an online advertising software program, he decided to pursue more training.

"I didn't feel I had enough skills to get ahead, (especially in) Web design," he said. "Hopefully, I'll get a better job in computer programming (after the training is over). I also want to go to college for computer science. When I do go, this will help."

DeSouza said his ideal job would be Web development. "There's lots of companies now where they need people to help with their Web sites," he said.



He also said he and Silva talk every day about their future goals. "We want to start a software business (together)."

Mansfield, who has taught metal fabrication at Assabet for 10 years, said the sky's the limit for a motivated post-graduate student.

"When (LeBlanc) came here, he didn't know what he wanted. He thought he'd learn the compulsories," he said. "But West set his sights: 'Mr. Mansfield, I want to learn how to weld pipe.'

"West has, I think, 12 certifications. That's really something, that's a lot of ambition," said Mansfield. "We teach not just metal-working skills. Yes, what they're doing is industrial ... but they become craftsmen. A craftsman is a problem solver. They're using science, math and critical thinking skills. That's part of the well-rounded individual who leaves Assabet."

Post-graduate students are admitted on a space-available basis after completing an application process. Tuition varies based on where students live, with some towns considered in-district for reduced tuition. For more information, visit www.assabettech.com and choose Post-Grad Programs from the Adult Programs tab.

Su Escuela Language Center to host open house

An open house will take place from 6 to 8 p.m., on Friday, April 9, at Su Escuela's Cohasset location at 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy

Learning a second language at any age is easy and fun at the Su Escuela Language Center, a full Spanish Immersion Language Program for ages 2 through adult. Su Escuela has two locations – Cohasset and Duxbury. The program offers an approach to learning Spanish in a positive environment. The small, friendly classes emphasize the romantic Spanish culture as well as the language with native teachers from Chile.

Su Escuela offers one and two hour classes during the day as an enrichment to a child's pre-k experience and after-school and evening classes for students in grades kindergarten through 12 and adults. The Summer World Explorers Program is ideal for families interested in exposing their children to a second language while exploring geography, literature, art, culture, music and food through lessons.

An open house will take place from 6 to 8 p.m., on Friday, April 9, at Su Escuela's Cohasset location at 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Route 3A, just south of Hingham and North of Scituate. Stop in and meet career educators, review the curriculum and enjoy refreshments. Registration is not required.

For more information, visit www.suescuela.com or call 781-383-2585.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
APRIL 19, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be put off by a seemingly too-tangled situation. Sometimes a simple procedure will unsnarl all the knots and get you in the clear fast and easy, just the way the Lamb likes it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to go through your work space — wherever it is — and see what needs to be replaced and what can be tossed (or at least given away) without a second thought.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone who disagrees with your position might try to intimidate you. But continue to present a fair argument, regardless of how petty someone else might be while trying to make a point.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might find yourself exceptionally sensitive to family matters this week. An issue could come to light that you had overlooked. Ask other kinfolk to discuss it with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have more questions about a project (or perhaps someone you're dealing with on some level) than you feel comfortable with. If so, see which can be answered, which cannot, and why.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to clean up and clear out what you don't need before your tidy self is overwhelmed by "stuff." Then go celebrate the Virgo victory over clutter with someone special.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel a mite confused about why something you were sure couldn't go wrong didn't go all right either. Be patient. Things soon move into balance, exactly as you like it.

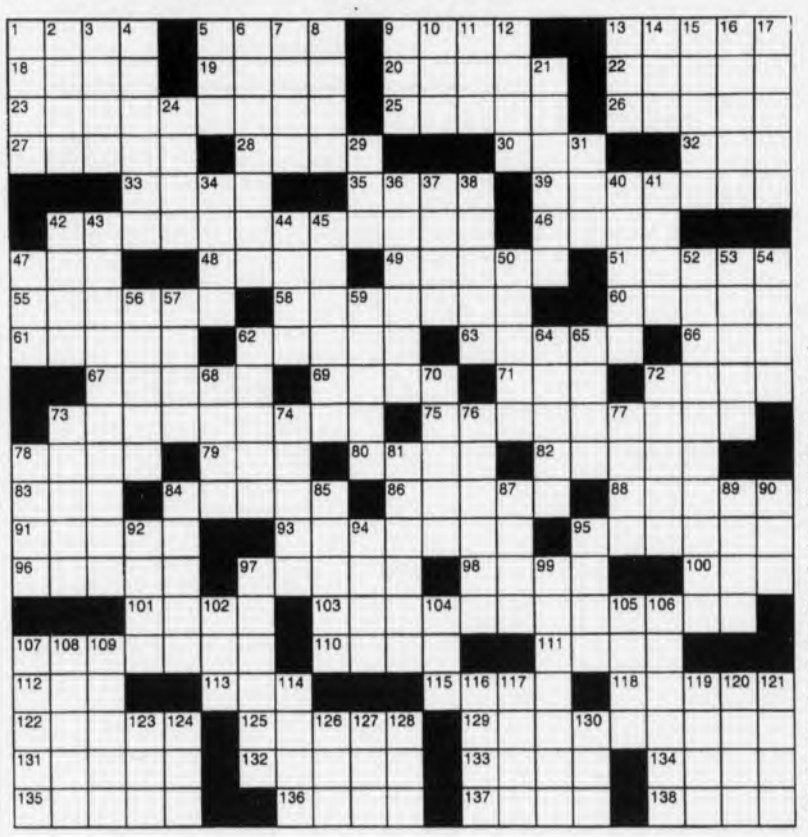
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) At this decision point, you could be moving from side to side, just to say you're in motion. Or you could be considering making a move straight up. What you choose is up to you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although your finances should be in an improved situation at this time, thrift is still the savvy Sagittarian's smart move. Advice from a spouse or partner could be worth heeding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Taking on a new challenge brings out the Goat's skills in maneuvering over and around difficult spots. Best of all, the Goat does it one careful step after another. (Got the idea, Kid?)

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your well-known patience might be wearing thin because of a disturbing (and seemingly unending) problem with someone close to you. This could be a time to ask for help. Good luck.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about a new venture that lures you into a "just-look-and-see" mode. Be sure that what you're being given to see isn't hiding what you should be seeing instead.



(c) 2010 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Aries and Taurus give you the gift of leadership and the blessings of care and concern for all creatures.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Vocal ensemble at First Parish on Sunday

Zefiro, a professional vocal ensemble based in Providence and Boston, will perform a concert of Renaissance music entitled "The Spirit & The Flesh" at First Parish Cohasset at 4 pm on Sunday, April 11. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

The program is called "The Spirit & The Flesh," and will feature selections from Palestrina's Canticum Canticorum; selections from Monteverdi's fourth book of Madrigali erotici et spirituali; and Duruflé's Quatre Motets Sur Des Themes Gregoriens, Op. 10: No. 4. The Palestrina selections are among the most beloved of this exquisite composer, who was arguably the most famous musician of his time. Listeners may also be familiar with the most famous of Duruflé's motets, his setting of "Ubi Caritas," which is beloved of choirs everywhere. Don't miss this concert of classic choral repertoire!

The octet specializes in the performance of Medieval and Renaissance a capella music by composers such as Byrd, Gesualdo, and Palestrina, performing at numerous venues in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Most of the singers are featured soloists at churches in both Providence and Boston. For more information about the ensemble and the singers, go to www.zefiroensemble.com.

For more information about the concert, please contact Allegra Martin at (617) 872-0461.

Music Circus box office opens Saturday

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

With Sunday's Red Sox home opener now a very pleasant memory, it is time for another annual rite of spring – box office opening at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset which is set for Saturday, April 10, at noon.

The venerable venue has an event-filled day planned including live music from Hull's Dave Foley Band, an appearance by State Sen. Robert L. Hedlund, R-Weymouth, a live broadcast by Marshfield's WATD 95.9, complimentary donuts and free bottled water courtesy of Rockland's Tedeschi Food Shops, and appearances by representatives from Boston's WKLB 102.5 and Boston Music Spotlight.

For the second straight year, the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce will also have its own tent on the Music Circus grounds highlighting its member businesses including Darilynn's Home Presence, Ports and Company, South Shore Art Center, Ty-Ann Acupuncture, Santi Holistic Healing, Hassan Sign Company, Tedeschi's Food Shops, and the Lemon Lime Salon.

Comedian Jeff Dunham

RAIN – A Tribute to The Beatles

"The partnership between the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Music Circus is a great thing, because it gives people exposure to everything that is available in Cohasset," explained Chamber Vice President and Bulfinch Group Financial Advisor Matthew Cunningham by telephone on Monday. "This will be our second year participating in box office opening day and we're very grateful to the Music Circus for once again providing us with our own tent. We hope that people from all over will decide to make a day of it, buying Music Circus tickets and then shopping and dining on the Gold Coast of Cohasset."

All shows billed as "An Evening With…" feature two sets by the headliner. There is no opening act.

APRIL 8-16, 2010

Getting a sniff of success in 'Cats'

Local dancer returns to Boston with national tour

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

"Cats" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston Street, Boston, April 13–18.

Kristen Quartarone has been dancing since she was just 2 years old, as a student at the Patti Eisenhauer Dance Center in Franklin and also taking tap lessons from her mother, dance teacher Kathy Quartarone, who now runs Dance Forever in Braintree. Her current role as the fun-loving feline Rumpleteazer in the national tour of "Cats," which comes to Boston's Colonial Theatre next week, calls for Quartarone to use some moves not found on the curriculum of most dance studios.

The 24 year old, a 2004 graduate of King Philip Regional High School in her hometown of Wrentham, who earned a bachelor of arts in musical theater from Rhode Island College in 2008 and has performed aboard Holland America Cruise Lines – discussed her first national tour recently by telephone from Los Angeles where the Tony Award-winning Andrew Lloyd Weber musical was playing the Pantages.

Town Commons: What's it like playing a cat?

Quartarone: It started out as a lot of work. I joined the company about six months ago and I had to go through a lot of felinity exercises to prepare for the role. I had to learn to crawl around on all fours, which was very strange and awkward at first, especially while having to sniff and paw the other performers. I got used to it pretty quickly, though, and now, even when I'm not onstage, I sometimes find myself sniffing like a cat when I smell something strange.

Kristen Quartarone

Town Commons: How would you describe your character?

Quartarone: Rumpleteazer and Mungojerrie are partners in crime. They steal things and they even sing about all the messes they make for the humans. I feel like Rumpleteazer is in it more for fun than anything else, because she has a kind of school-girl crush on Mungojerrie. She's a kitten, too, so she is very active.

Town Commons: Do you like being on the road?

Quartarone: I'm really enjoying being on tour, because I am getting to visit so many places I have never been before. We were in Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica, and Panama last fall. We sang in English and there were super-titles in Spanish. I'm seeing a lot of the U.S., too. I had been to Los Angeles before, but I'd never been to Central or South America, Canada or even the midwest before. And we're traveling between most cities by bus and train which can be interesting. Bus travel can actually sometimes be easier than flying, because there is no airport security involved.

Town Commons: What does your family think of "Cats"?

Quartarone: My mother has danced to "The Jellicle Ball" for years and really loves the show. There are definitely some crazy stage mothers in this business, but luckily my mom is not one of them. She is my biggest fan and always says nice things even when I mess up. Dance is a part of all our lives. My parents have always danced for fun and my sister Jenna is captain of the dance team at UMass Dartmouth. My little sister Keryn is five and she takes dance lessons at Patti Eisenhauer. My parents flew out to L.A. to see me in the show there and they'll be seeing it again in Boston with my sisters. In fact, as of now, I think I have friends or family coming to every show we're doing at the Colonial.

Town Commons: Before "Cats," you worked on a cruise ship. Was that different than performing on dry land?

Quartarone: Dancing in high heels on a moving ship is tough. You use so many muscles you never even knew you had, dancing on a moving vessel. I spent six months at sea with Holland America, on 9- to 15-day San Diego-to-Hawaii cruises. I loved all the singing and dancing, even when you could feel the ship moving. It was an awesome job and I would definitely do it again.

"Cats" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston Street, Boston, April 13–18. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 1-800-982-2787 or go online at broadwayacrossamerica.com.

TOWN ELECTION

Cohasset's Linda Snowdale holds her campaign signs on Highland Avenue at Saturday's annual Town Election. Snowdale was the top vote-getter in the four-way School Committee race for two seats.

New faces rule in School Committee race

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

After a whirlwind campaign for School Committee — the only contested race on this year's ballot — two fresh faces will take the positions.

The four-way race for two seats ended with Linda Snowdale and Jeanne Astino topping political newcomer Paul Ognibene and incumbent Adrienne MacCarthy, who was seeking her third term.

FOR FULL RESULTS SEE PAGE 12

Snowdale was the top vote getter among the four candidates with 763 votes. A mere 37 votes spelled the difference from being on the board to not being on the board: Ognibene received 649 votes and Jeanne Astino 686 votes. MacCarthy lost her seat by a wide margin garnering 218 votes compared to the 600-plus votes each of the other candidates received.

The election brought out a decent crowd of about 24 percent, or 1295, of registered voters.

Both Snowdale and Astino are looking forward to taking their seats at the School Committee table. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 28.

"I have a lot to learn and it's going to be interesting being on the other side of the table," Snowdale said, explaining she has been a parent and a teacher, and now she will begin to understand the committee perspective.

Astino said the contented School Committee race – the first in four years – has woken the town up.

"It's gotten the public more involved and that's where they need to stay," Astino said. "(Residents) have been

Paul Kearney to challenge Hedlund

Cohasset resident to run as independent

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Cohasset resident Paul Kearney has announced his intention to seek election to represent the eight South Shore towns in the State Senate that make up the Plymouth-Norfolk District.

Kearney of 461 Chief Justice Cushing Highway announced this week he is running as an independent to the seat currently held by Weymouth Republican, State Senator Robert Hedlund. Hedlund is seeking re-election to his seat in November.

Kearney is the president and CEO of Atlantis Sports Club and Spa, which has four Massachusetts locations including Braintree and Holbrook. Kearney said he

Indoor/outdoor turf fields

Facility to open off Crocker Lane

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Route 3A in Cohasset, an indoor/outdoor sports facility is currently under construction.

The private complex to be named the Cohasset Sports Complex will be located high on the hill behind Hingham Lumber and will boast two full-size turf fields, one inside and one outside allowing for year-round use.

The site was the former truck and vehicle storage garage for Graham Waste Services. It contained three large buildings, two of which will be torn down to make space for the outdoor turf field. The third and largest building is being converted to the indoor field complex.

"(Indoors) it's one big giant Astroturf field of un-bordered space," said Guy Reynolds of Hull, one of three partners in the project. The 22,500 square foot building will be "wall-to-wall turf," but have the ability, with curtains, to become four (or two) smaller spaces for smaller groups or practice.

> "Everyone we've talked to says they would love to have a complex like this close by."
> — Guy Reynolds, Cohasset Sports Complex

Outside a synthetic turf field is under construction that will be able to be lit (by lights on the building and portable light fixtures) during the warmer months.

The project has been somewhat under the radar because it was not required to go before the Planning Board or the Zoning Board of Appeals. Building Inspector Bob Egan issued a building permit for the complex because the sports complex is an allowable use in the technology business district.

Reynolds and his partners are all involved in the Galway Rovers soccer club, a "premier youth soccer program." The club got its start in the 1980s, but has grown tremendously since then, Reynolds said. Currently in the organization there are 19 teams, involving youth from age four to adults in their 20s, and over 350 participants in total.

"We've outgrown all the outdoor and indoor space available," Reynolds said. The desire for a central location for the soccer club, which draws primarily from Scituate, Cohasset and Hingham, was a main driver for the development. For about six years they have been looking for an appropriate site, ideally on Route 3A, Reynolds said.

The property is owned by Crocker Lane Realty and is being leased by the Movie Night tonight!

The Cohasset Democratic Town Committee is continuing its presentation of current local, national and international issues of importance on "movie night" Friday April 16 at 7 p.m. in the Meetingroom of the Paul Pratt Library.

The movie presentation is the new Michael Moore film, "Capitalism: A Love Story." The film explores capitalism's roots, the condition of the U.S. economy and the 2008's global financial meltdown and subsequent bank bailout. Moore embarks on a shocking, fact-finding mission combining stories about those who suffered most from corporate America's greed and the people most responsible for the evolution of the financial crises. Refreshments will be served.

May Veterans' Agent visiting hours

The Cohasset Director of Veterans' Services will be at Paul Pratt Library, Room 2B, as follows: Saturday, May 1. 10 a.m. to noon; Monday, May 3. 6 to 7:45 p.m.; and Wednesday, May 5, 10 a.m. to noon.

People are invited to drop in or call ahead of time. Visiting hours are not only for veterans, but also for spouses/surviving spouses and those concerned with aging parents (veterans/spouses), as well as for general advice. If the aforementioned schedule does not meet one's needs, the veterans' agent will meet people at a convenient location and time, for example, the library, his home, a person's home. The Veterans' Agent is Joe McElroy and he may be contacted at 781-383-0505 or by email @ cohjoe@aol.com.

Police Beat

Speed board cropping up around town

By Mary Ford

STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

The police radar trailer shows a car is traveling on Route 3A by Shaw's Plaza at 45 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone. Police purchased the device about four years ago with grant money.

Along with spring flowers, the Cohasset police speed board is poking its head up around town.

The device, which was purchased four years ago with grant money, records the speed a motorist is traveling and also displays the speed limit for the particular stretch of roadway.

Back in 2006, the $8,500 radar trailer was purchased through grant money from two sources, the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, which rewarded the town for participating in various traffic safety initiatives such as the "Click it or Ticket" campaigns, and through a Community Policing grant from the Executive Office of Public Safety.

The display on the trailer tells drivers how fast they are going, but if they are speeding a blue light also flashes.

"The radar board is a great tool to remind drivers of just how fast they are traveling," Chief Mark DeLuca said. "Life is so fast paced that I truly believe people don't realize just how fast they're going and the board prompts people to drive more responsibly."

If residents or businesses want the speed board posted in their location, they should contact Dispatch Supervisor Thomas Wigmore at the police department by calling 781-383-1055 ext. 1003.

Scooters

Police remind those with scooters that state law requires helmets. Police stopped a scooter on Forest Avenue near North Main Street at about 7:05 p.m. on Monday (April 5). The operator, a 30-year-old Quincy man, did not have a helmet. He got permission to park his scooter at a house on Forest Avenue; police took him to the train station where he took the train back to Quincy to get his helmet and then returned to Cohasset. He was issued a $25 fine for not wearing a helmet

On Beechwood Street at 2:45 p.m. on Saturday (April 10), police fined an 18-year-old Scituate teen $25 for operating without a helmet. The teen, who lives on Arrowwood Drive, walked his scooter home, police said.

A scooter differs from a motorcycle in that its engine is smaller.

Missing signs

Police are investigating the apparent theft of contractor signs from the Beach Street and Mohawk Way area last week. The owner of the sewer contracting company, a 28-year-old Marshfield man, reported on Monday (April 5) that three of his company signs valued at $525 were missing. The signs are black with metal frames and gold-leaf lettering.

Summonsed

• A 24-year-old Lynn man, who was driving a 2000 Honda Civic when police stopped him for weaving along Route 3A, is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation and marked lanes violation. Police said he provided the vehicle's registration but could only produce an ID from Guatemala. Police could not determine how long he has been living in the U.S. His car was towed and impounded. The traffic stop was made at 5:40 p.m. on Monday (April 5) on Route 3A near Pond Street, after an officer saw the Honda cross over the double yellow line.

• A 27-year-old Brookline man is being summonsed to court for driving on an expired, non-renewable license on Saturday (April 10). Police said the 2006 Dodge Charger was parked in the fire lane outside Curtis Liquors. Police were issuing a ticket but while the officer was checking the registration on the cruiser's mobile data terminal, the operator returned to the car and started to drive off. Police stopped the car in the parking lot at Tedeschi Plaza and ran a registry check that showed the man's license was non-renewable for either unpaid excise taxes or parking tickets. The car did not have to be towed because the passenger could take control of the vehicle, police said. The incident took place at about 10:50 a.m.

Annoying calls

A Cohasset man reported to police last week that he was concerned about a voicemail that his daughter received. Police advised him to contact the phone company that can trap the call and to return to police if the calls continue.

Mosquito magnet

Police said a woman went to the former Joseph's Hardware off Route 3A last Tuesday (April 6) to retrieve a mosquito magnet that she had left there for repairs. The sheriff's department has seized the property and inventory at the business. She is among other customers who are angry and irritated that they cannot retrieve their mosquito magnets and grilles left there for repair before the business closed.

License plate

A license plate found behind Papa Gino's at Cohasset Plaza last Friday (April 9) was returned to its owner, a 21-year-old Marshfield woman who works at the restaurant, police said. The plate, belonging to a 1995 Pontiac Bonneville, had apparently fallen off the car.

Dispute

Police are trying to mediate a dispute over a $250 saw between a business and a contractor so it does not end up in court. Police said the business is not happy with the work provided by the contractor and took his saw.

ATM card

Police filled out a police report on behalf of a 43-year-old Cohasset man last week, who lost his ATM card at an ATM machine in New York City. The card was then used to obtain more than $2,000 in cash. The man was not able to get help from the NYC police and needed a police report to document the incident so he could get restitution from his bank.

Eccentric

Police checked out an older man who was in the Stop & Shop parking lot about 7:30 p.m. on Sunday (April 11) bothering people after a concerned caller reported that the looked as though he was intoxicated. Police said the 79-year-old Westwood man was not intoxicated but was a little eccentric and was sent on his way.

All four towns sign regional dispatch agreement

Norwell selectmen OK pact

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

As of last week all four towns – Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Norwell – have now signed on to participate in the regional dispatch center.

The town of Norwell was the final town to sign the inter-municipal agreement in spite concerns expressed from their dispatchers and police department.

Norwell's concerns about overnight manning of the police station, potential loss of jobs, and diminishing of the personal touch and local knowledge the town dispatchers bring to the job were nearly identical to the ones brought up by the police union and dispatchers in Cohasset before the selectmen signed on to regional dispatch in December.

The signing of the inter-municipal agreement by all four towns is the culmination of over two years of meetings between the towns' fire and police chiefs as well as the town managers/administrators.

Police Chief Mark DeLuca, who came on board after the town signed on to the inter-municipal agreement, said the four towns have continued to meet on a regular basis to iron out the details of how it is all going to work.

"We're in the process of writing the rules and regulations, the policies and procedures so we know how it is going to operate," DeLuca said. A building committee has been formed to look at the layout of the dispatch center.

"We're in the process of writing the rules and regulations, the policies and procedures so we know how it is going to operate."
— Chief Mark DeLuca

One of the big questions with regional dispatch is if and how the Cohasset Police Station will be manned during the overnight shift. Right now, the dispatcher is typically the only person in the station during the overnight hours.

"We're still in the process of figuring out what we're going to do," DeLuca said.

The public safety leaders and town manager have said the regional dispatch center would save the towns money, find efficiency, and provide a better service to the citizens of the four towns.

State grants, which total more than $3 million, will pay for the capital costs to design and build the center. Because the state favors a regional approach more annual grants, nearly quadruple what the towns receive now, are expected as well. The cost for Cohasset are expected to be between 25 to 35 percent less than what the town is paying now for dispatch services, Town Manager Bill Griffin has said.

With the opening of the regional dispatch center, which is expected to be sometime in late 2010, fire and police dispatch will no longer come from the Cohasset Police Station. All 9-1-1 and emergency calls from all four towns will be fielded at through the regional emergency communications center (RECC).

Griffin said in an e-mail this week that a technology consultant had been hired to provide the towns with a recommendation as to the staffing needs on each shift.

In a previous meeting in late November staffing was discussed as being five dispatchers in the day and evening shifts and three dispatchers on the overnight shift.

An architect is completing the final design plans for the RECC and the aim is to have the project out to bid in about a month. The technology consultant is also working on the technology and software specifications for everything needed to operate the center.

Griffin said the four towns have developed a blended seniority list for all the dispatchers and lead dispatchers.

"It is our intent to go down that list as far as we can in selecting the dispatchers. How far we go down the list will depend on the final number of dispatchers to be hired and if any current employees do not wish to work at the new center," Griffin said.

Cohasset resident to run as independent

would bring a small business owner's perspective to the state senate and in particular the state budget.

"I know what you've got to do run a business and if I ran my business the same way as the state, I'd be out of business," Kearney said in a phone interview. "There are crazy things going on that could be solved with common sense."

The State Senate seat represents eight South Shore towns: Cohasset, Hingham, Weymouth, Norwell, Scituate, Duxbury, Hull, and Marshfield. Kearney has lived in Cohasset for the last 10 years.

With the background as a personal trainer, Kearney said he is results-oriented and is frustrated with the lack of results on the Beacon Hill.

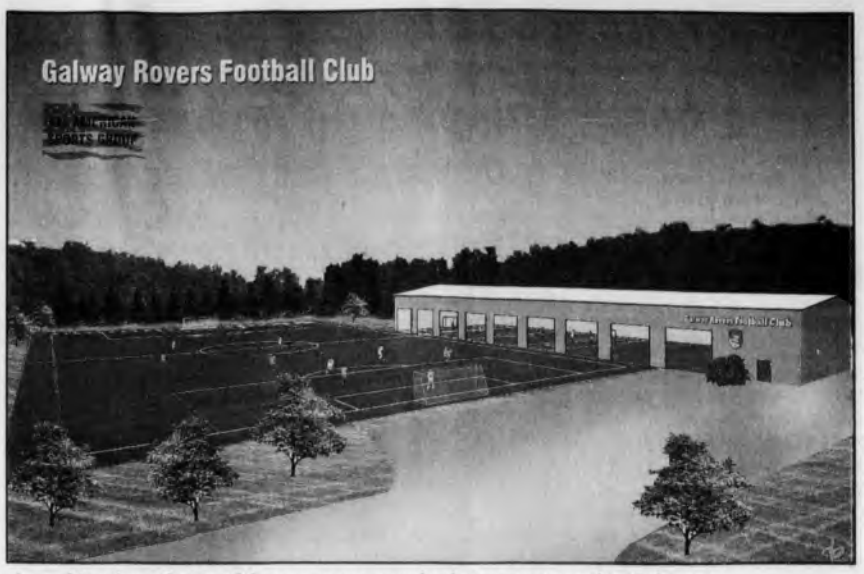
Part of his platform is to make state government more approachable. He wants to ensure his constituents have a direct line to him to share their concerns and ideas.

"It is going to be to the point where my cell phone number is on my business card," Kearney said.

Kearney said part of his focus is to be "a voice for people who don't have a voice," naming kids with autism and their families, seniors and students.

COURTESY PHOTO

Paul Kearney plans to run as an independent for the eight-town Plymouth-Norfolk state senate seat.



He also feels strongly about not running with a party association explaining there are currently 34 Democratic state senators and four Republican, "right now you're either part of a party or you don't have a voice."

Kearney said he is looking forward to meeting the 200,000 people who live in the South Shore district over the next few months.

"I'm going to be hitting every town, school district, police and fire department. I want to see what they need and see what I can do to help. I have two ears and one mouth," Kearney said.

Kearney planned to bring his nomination papers to Cohasset Town Hall today (Friday, April 16) for certification. A campaign kick-off event is planned for Thursday, May 6 from 6 to 9p.m. at Atlantica Restaurant.

Kearney names his biggest asset as his family, his wife, Tracy, and three children, twin four-year-old girls and a two-year-old boy. His wife, Tracy, is his campaign coordinator.

sports complex developers, all of who are involved in the Galway Rovers organization. One of the partners, Rob Schwandt, of Cohasset, helped to bring all the pieces together. He heads up Crocker Lane Realty.

Reynolds said the organization has been reaching out to local youth sports directors and leaders in Scituate, Norwell, Hull, Hingham and Cohasset.

"Everyone we've talked to says they would love to have a complex like this close by," Reynolds said as the crunch for field playing time is squeezed more and more on the South Shore.

Reynolds said the complex would primarily draw soccer and lacrosse organizations, as well as field hockey and baseball. Other local sports groups, like flag football leagues and cheerleaders have expressed interest in renting the complex, he said.

The indoor and outdoor field space will be rentable by teams, youth sports, club sports and birthday parties, Reynolds said.

The target date for the opening of the outdoor turf field is May 15. The entire complex will have a grand opening in July, Reynolds said.

Under the Cohasset zoning bylaws, a commercial or membership sports and recreational facility is an allowed use in the technology business district. And because no new building is being constructed the developers were not required to go before the Planning Board for a site plan review or the Zoning Board for a special permit or variance, Building Inspector Egan said.

"It's an allowed use and I don't think it will change the intensity (of use for the site)," Egan said in a phone interview. The Graham Waste business had certain intensity to it with trucks pulling in and out during the course of a business day, Egan said. Graham Waste has re-located their truck storage to another location.

Planning Board chair Al Moore confirmed the project had not been before the board for a site plan review and, unless something was new was built or expanded, it wasn't required to.

"The use is allowed by zoning," Moore said. "(The town) had to take into consideration all the possibilities when it makes it allowable."

Many changes have and will be taking place in that one-mile stretch of Route 3A. The Old Colony Square shopping plaza and apartment complex is nearing completion, the 27-home community on the Cook Estate, located just off Route 3A on Sohier Street, is under development and the Avalon Bay 200-apartment complex could begin construction in the next year.

BRIEFLY

Karen Quigley is new chairman

Karen Quigley, who is entering the third year of her three-year term as a selectman, was named chairman of the board for the next year. Selectman Ted Carr nominated Quigley for the post, Selectman Paul Carlson seconded the motion and the vote was unanimous.

After the vote was taken Carlson and Quigley swapped places.

"I like my little corner, but I think I'll take the middle seat," Quigley said with a smile, who has sat on the left side of the Selectmen's table for the last two years.

Once in the center seat, Quigley set the stage for the next year with a few comments.

"As chair I'm looking forward to setting an agenda that reflects all members of the board...I want to have an open chairmanship and I believe we are all equal selectmen," Quigley said. She asked all the members to think about some items they would like to discuss and work on in the coming year. She intends to have a 30 to 60 minute discussion period toward the end of every meeting to discuss these topics.

"At times we may disagree, but I know we all base our decisions on what we think is best for the town as a whole," Quigley said.

Selectman Carr was appointed as vice chair of the board.

New restaurant on 3A

New life will be brought to the restaurant space on Route 3A that has been several reincarnations over the past few years. Constantine's will open in the former Blackstone Tavern space later this spring.

Owner and manager Ralph Constantine came before the Board of Selectmen on Monday seeking a transfer of liquor license. The transfer was approved unanimously.

Constantine is a seasoned restaurateur. He currently owns and operates Jamie's Grill and Pub in both Braintree and Whitman, as well as Jamie's Pub/Gannett Grill in North Scituate.

"It's going to be family friendly, affordable fare," Constantine told the board. "It will be fun to get out of pub food or do something different."

The menu will be about 60 percent Italian and 40 percent Greek, with an overall Mediterranean influence. Appetizers and sandwiches will run about $7 to $10. Chicken entrées will be about $14 and entrees like lamb chops will be about $20.

Constantine said he is not concerned with the string of ill-fated restaurants openings in the past five years. After long-time restaurant KoKo Island closed, Acapulco's Mexican restaurant opened and survived about two years. Pacini's, an Italian eatery opened shortly after, but closed within a year. Blackstone Tavern opened last spring, but closed recently.

Constantine said he is making a five-year commitment to the restaurant and is doing it at the right price.

"We're going to give it (at least) five years of hard work," Constantine said.

Constantine said his aim is to be open the week before Memorial Day.

Organic farming and gardening course

The South Shore Community Center is offering Organic Farming and Gardening at Holly Hill Farm with John Belber. This is an opportunity for adults and families who wish to learn about working in a garden, while at the same time — help others in their community. This program will feature hands-on opportunities for participants to grow seeds, start seedlings, discuss soil and compost, prepare growing beds, transplant and discuss garden plans. Each participant will be able to take plants and plans home or be part of a community garden where some of the produce will go to a local food pantry. The session will end with a "salad party" in May.

This six-week course will take place at Holly Hill Farm beginning on Sunday, April 25 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. The cost is $150 per person with children ages 4 to 12 free when accompanying an adult participant. There is also a $20 materials fee payable to Holly Hill at the first class, which will cover seeds, pots and soil for the complete session. Call 781-383-0088 to register or stop by the Center at 3 North Main St.. Class size is limited.

A public, private issue

Resident raises concerns over roads

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It's an issue that no one thinks about until it becomes a problem.

For Windy Hill Road resident Joe McElroy, the issue of public versus private ways is something that needs to be addressed in some fashion by the town.

"This has been under the radar for too long," McElroy said.

Roads that many in town might think are public ways, like Fairoaks Lane and Old Pasture Road, are in fact classified as private ways according to town records.

McElroy talked to the Selectmen about this same issue back in 1991. A private ways committee was subsequently formed to deal with the issues surrounding public/private ways. The committee (apparently) disbanded in 1999, and no private ways have been accepted as public ways since that time.

One of the important differences is public ways are eligible for state maintenance funds, private ways are not. That means if significant improvements need to be made to the roads, it could fall on the residents to pay for improvements through betterment assessments.

"This has been under the radar for too long."
— Joe McElroy, Windy Hill Road

McElroy was not looking for an immediate answer, but wanted to bring the issue to the attention of the board to see if it could be looked into.

"I think we should look at the larger public ways, canvass the neighborhoods to see if the residents even want the road to become public ways," Selectman Paul Carlson said.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer said his board has had numerous discussions on this issue in the past few years.

"In general there are private ways that should be public ways. But, there is not a fire under everyone's feet on this issue," Brewer said.

One of the issues discussed was whether new roads built as part of new developments should be accepted as public ways as a matter of course.

Brewer said the sub-division regulations were in the process of being re-drafted and could include new stipulations on roadways.

Town Manager Bill Griffin said, in his experience, there tends to be issues when adoption of public/private ways is done on a regular basis. The establishment of a public way includes the taking of some land because the town needs footage on either side of the established road, as well as drainage easements.

The Selectmen requested the input of DPW superintendent Carl Sestito on the issue.

"It would be good to pick up the ball on this more frequently than ever 20 years," McElroy said.

The Selectmen agreed.

"It's certainly not a simple issue," Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley said.

Letters for Treat's Pond

Selectmen seek information on Army Corps peer review

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Army Corp of Engineers will be getting another letter from the town of Cohasset in the near future.

Two weeks ago the Board of Selectmen did not vote on asking the Army Corps of Engineers for more time to consider their Treat's Pond saltmarsh restoration project proposal, but this week they did.

On Monday night, the Selectmen voted to write to the Army Corps seeking information about a peer review program where an complete study of the Treat's Pond project could be done by a third party. Because of the desire for information on this program, the Selectmen are asking for an extension on a previously deadline of April 15 given by the Army Corps.

"(The peer review) looks at the entire facts. It would give the whole project a fresh look," said Selectman Ted Carr, who brought the project to the board's attention at last week's meeting.

The Army Corps' project comes with federally earmarked funds totaling about $1.1 million which will have to be matched with non-federal source funding (town or state funding) if the project was to move forward.

At this point, all the Selectmen were in favor of a second eye for the project if it doesn't cost the town anything.

For the restoration of the pond, the Army Corps looked at several possibilities, ultimately determining the most cost-effective and efficient solution was establishing a connection between the degraded pond (located on the ocean side of Atlantic Avenue, near White Head Road) and the inner harbor.

The addition of freshwater/stormwater into the harbor has been the most controversial debate of the project. An impact study on the harbor was sought by two of the selectmen recently, but two of the selectmen were against it — leaving the board deadlocked. Now, post-election, the position of the board could change on this issue if they were to re-vote it.

At this point, all the Selectmen were in favor of a second eye for the project if it doesn't cost the town anything. Carr said his understanding of the program was the cost could come out of federal earmark for the project.

However, a greater question remains if the Army Corps of Engineer's project is really the right project to solve the overarching stormwater and flooding issues plaguing the area. It has been a question brought up time and time again during the course of the project's over three-year history.

Under the current classification of the federal earmark, the Army Corps primary goal is to create a healthy saltmarsh environment in Treat's Pond. Army Corps representatives have said in the past that the project is designed as an aquatic wetland restoration, but may have some effect on the area's flooding.

To that end, the Selectmen are also requesting an Army Corps representative to come talk about available programs and grants for stormwater remediation and flood control.

"We're going in circles because we want a flood control project but we have an aquatic ecosystem project," said Mindy Evans of Sohier Street.

Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley said it might be beneficial for the board to start from ground zero again on this project and flooding issues facing Treat's Pond.

Mark your calendar: Wind bylaw meetings

The Alternative Energy Committee has been asked to get public input on possible changes to the Wind Zoning By-Law. There will be a formal presentation by Martha Knipe, a Senior Staff member of the Wind Energy Resource Center, headquartered at the University of Mass in Amherst. The center is recognized both nationally and internationally for its research and expertise on wind. A similar presentation was given in the town of Scituate that was successful in generating wide audience participation on both the Basics and Beyond the Basics of wind energy.

Please join the AEC for both events at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, first on Tuesday, April 27th at 7 p.m. and then also on Wednesday, May 19, also at the Paul Pratt Library.

CYBSA annual opening day parade and ceremony

The CYBSA will hold its annual Parade and Opening Day Ceremony on Saturday, May 1. All teams will gather in the vicinity of the Town Common Pond at approximately 8 a.m. and start the parade at 8:15 a.m. The players and their coaches will proceed down North Main Street to Barnes Field where opening ceremonies will be held.

This is a time-honored tradition and special event that brings out fans young and old. Join the festivities and help kick-off another baseball and softball season.

by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison
HOUSE CALLS
Medical home care offers a vital service to seniors. Home visits by healthcare professionals, coordinated through a home healthcare service, allow the senior to receive treatment in a more relaxed and comfortable environment. It facilitates those who find it difficult, or even impossible, to leave their homes. In addition to eliminating sitting in a waiting room, medical home care provides a privacy factor and avoids exposing the senior to other illnesses. Treatment programs are individualized and offer medical assistance for seniors suffering from mild ailments such as hypertension as well as care for more severe conditions such as skin cancer and early-stage dementia. Home medical care addresses the growing needs of this vulnerable population.
You know that your parents want to stay in their homes, but the burden of caring for them can be emotionally and physically exhausting. You both deserve some help. Our home health aides can take some of the burden off your shoulders. We can provide help with dressing, bathing and cooking, as well as running errands, which will let your parents stay home and let you have a life. Our services are flexible, to match your needs, which means we can offer 24-hour long-term care, or temporary respite care for overnight. Call 781-878-2994 to learn what we can do for you. Davenport Crocker III makes his debut

HAPPY VACATION

Hello Cohasset. Many of us are getting ready for April Vacation and I want to wish everyone a safe, happy and memory filled time with your families know matter where or what you are doing for the week. It is nice to have some springtime weather and now, I hope that the warmer weather keeps trickling in. A reader of Around Town sent a reminder to me to let everyone know that more and more people are out and about walking, running and playing so that everyone needs to slow down a bit while driving to keep all safe and sound.

OH BOY!

Cohasset residents, Kendra and Davenport Crocker along with their daughters Addison and Molly are ecstatic to announce the birth of their newest member, Davenport Brown Crocker III.

Davenport III was born on Tuesday March 9th at 8:36 am at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Little Davenport weighed 8.2 pounds and was 19-1/2 inches long. He has light brown hair and deep blue eyes.

Everyone is doing terrific including Grandmother, Jane Crocker, who also resides in Cohasset. Davenport III and his sisters are 7th generation Crockers living in Cohasset. Welcome to the world!

ON STAGE

This sounds like a wonderful show for all to see and enjoy one of Cohasset's own young ladies. Thomson Jaffe of Cohasset stars in Boston College High School's "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Thomson plays Sally Brown. The show runs from April 30th through May 9th and will be performed in the BC High Gregory E. Bulger PerformingArts Center . Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for students. Email hernandez@bchigh.eduto reserve your tickets today.

SEND-OFF

Come on to the Town Hall and say your good-byes and good lucks a wonderful lady as she begins a new position. Debbie Krupczak, Assistant Assessor for the Town of Cohasset, has accepted a position as Assessor with the Town of Rockland. Debbie has been employed by the Cohasset Assessors for over 17 years and will be greatly missed. Debbie's last day at Cohasset Town Hall is Friday, April 23rd. Please join the Assessors Office in bidding her a fond farewell on Wednesday, April 21from 9:30 a.m. – 12 p.m. in Conference Room 2B at the Town Hall. Coffee and pastry will be served.

RELAY FOR LIFE

The American Cancer Society is gearing up for the 26th Relay For Life here in Cohasset being held on Friday, June 11th and Saturday, June 12th beginning at 3 pm. As we all know, the dreaded "C" disease affects children, adults and families way too often and cures and treatments are being worked on day and night. Awareness, the ability to raise funds to help support the American Cancer Society in their efforts and support for the families who are affected by this disease is what is needed. As a member of the Cohasset Committee for the last several years, I am asking you to consider being part of a team, starting your own team and for businesses, think about becoming a sponsor. The Relay this year is a family theme with entertainment, a Children's tent, the very popular "Taste of the Relay", the Survivors Tent and lap and the Luminaria Lap. Also, we will have a Children's Lap to allow our youngest participants to show their support as we work to help battle this disease.

On Sunday, April 25th from 3-4 pm at the Our World Children's Museum in Cohasset will be an Ice Cream Social for teams, captains and families to come together and we would love to have you come and join us on this day. For more information, please contact Harry St. Onge at st.onge@comcast.net or by calling Harry at 781-254-3400. Hope to see you there!

BENTLEY

Robert Meikleham of Cohasset, a junior majoring in finance, was named to the dean's list for outstanding academic achievement for the 2009 fall semester.

To be named to the dean's list, a full-time student must have a grade point average of 3.3 or higher with no course grade below 2.0 during the term.

MR. SKIPPER

DVD's of the 2010 Mr. Skipper Pageant from Friday March 12 are available to purchase for $20 each. To order a copy please call Shaun Galvin at 781-424-2197(cell) or email your request to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com The request can also be mailed with a check for $20 per DVD to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043.

ART CLASSES

South Shore Art Center is accepting registrations for its Spring Term of classes. The Art Center has over 50 course offerings for students of all ages and abilities, including day and evening classes and weekend workshops. Student work will be featured as a special photography display at this year's 55th annual Arts Festival, June 18-20.

Summer Visiting Artist Workshops and the popular Summer Art Afternoons for grades 1-4 have also been announced and registration is ongoing. Classes begin April 27th. For a full description of classes and to register, visit www.ssac.org or call 781-383-2787 to request a course brochure.

That is the news for this week. Send in your news, celebration wishes and photos and other items that you may have no later than Tuesday by 5 pm.

Runners, charities love Cohasset race

Rotary already planning for next year

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

It took a village to make the 34th annual Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea a success. Last Sunday, April 11th, 1770 runners participated in the 10K race, and nearly 300 participated in the Fran Coffey Memorial Walk. The proceeds from both events benefit charities supported by Cohasset Rotary and Rotary International. Cohasset resident John Flanagan was the first Cohasset male winner and Corinna Noering was the first Cohasset female. More than 200 residents ran the race, and it seemed as though even more than that either volunteered or cheered for the runners as they went by.

The real story of the race this year was the sellout field and the more than 1200 people who have never run the race before. Runners came from all over the state in addition to: Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New Jersey, Colorado, Maine, Pennsylvania, California, Ohio, West Virginia, Arizona, Delaware, Quebec, Vermont and Virginia. One girl flew in from Buffalo, New York to run. She grew up in Hingham and couldn't think of a more beautiful place to run her first 10K. Then there were two students from Boston who selected Cohasset because of the race's name. Road Race "by the Sea" is the reason a lot of people came to the South Shore on Sunday. And these girls had such a great time they assured race officials they'd be back next year — a sentiment shared across the board.

Everyone from Cohasset Fire, Police, DPW, Recreation Department Community Center, and others, all lent a hand —several hands in fact — to ensure the race would be a success. In nearly every correspondence to the Rotary, Sunday's runners have cited the friendliness of the volunteers, the residents and business people they encountered as one of the highlights of the experience. Mother Nature also did her part. The day was picture perfect and enhanced the already spectacular views of the Atlantic Ocean.

This year's field was the largest ever and the cap will remain at 1770 at least for the foreseeable future. The objective of this event is not to be bigger. The objective is to remain a "hometown" race that is safe and fun...a grassroots event supported by the community. Even the music is local...the Armstrong Brothers Band with guest singer and Cohasset resident, Colby Smalzel, has become an annual post race party tradition.

"This race is a small race with a big race feel. It is organized by the local Rotary, supported by local business owners, we don't have a title sponsor and most of our volunteers are members of the community, or relatives!," says Brad Goodwin, Race Director. "Everyone pitches in, the boy scouts, the girl scouts...everyone. Yet we also have the latest technology to offer our runners and take great pride in the customer service and attention to detail that we provide."

Local businesses also pulled out all stops for this race. Cohasset sponsors included: Colospace, Pilgrim Bank, Lemon Lime Aveda Lifestyle Salon, Suburban Contract Cleaning ,Ross Rosano, Graham Waste, Mariposa, J.F. Kehoe & Sons, Cohasset Dental, Hingham Institution For Savings, and Balance Studio. In addition was Goodwin Graphics, 5 South Main, Coastal Countryside, Dean & Hamilton, Robbins Garage, Hingham Car Wash, Bay State Equipment, Curtis Liquors, Atlantic Bagel, Atlantic Brokerage, CohassetInsurance.Com, Philip Hugh Smith Interior Design and Vincent Nardo CPA. Your Project Office, Fox Associates, The Road less Traveled to Old Colony Square and The Good Sport also supported the race.

Congratulations to Adam Benson, who came in first, male 13 and under; Elizabeth Baker female 13 and under; and Janice Smaga, who all placed first in their age groups. Many Cohasset residents placed in their age groups, you can check out the results at www.roadracebythesea.com

The Cohasset Road Race Committee is not one to rest on its laurels. Though this year was a success, there are always improvements to be made and planning is already underway for 2011. So mark you calendars for the 35th Anniversary of the Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K on Sunday, April 3, 2011 at 1 p.m. It's going to be a town-wide celebration and you're all invited. www.roadracebythesea.com or join us on Facebook at:

Small steps, persistent progress

LiteGait machine, physical therapist keys to success

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

If you want to accomplish something, baby steps can be the way to get there.

Slow and steady, incremental yet persistent progress can be the way to do what some never thought possible.

In a Scituate physical therapy location, a Cohasset woman is literally taking baby steps again – something her family and even her physical therapists thought was a nearly unattainable proposition a year ago.

In December 2008, Barbara Bliss, 72, of Summer St., took a terrible fall on the back stairs of her house. She thought she was fine, but a few hours later she collapsed. She had suffered a brain hemorrhage that left her unable to use the right side of her body.

"It was touch and go for awhile there," Mike Bliss, Barbara's husband, said, recalling the night of the fall, the emergency surgery and the beginnings of recovery: two weeks in the intensive care unite, another six weeks in a rehab center and then 100 days in a nursing home.

"Barbara showed gradual, gradual improvement," Mike said. When she returned to her Summer Street home in May, she could sit up on her own, but was still wheelchair bound. It was uncertain if that could ever change.

Then, by a lucky referral, Barbara and Mike met Lesley Smith, a physical therapist at Bay State Physical Therapy in Scituate. Smith holds a doctorate in physical therapy and specializes in neurorehabilitative physical therapy helping those with brain injuries or diseases.

Physical therapist Dr. Lesley Smith, right, of Bay State Physical Therapy in Scituate and her intern, Catherine Schroeder, left, help Barbara Bliss, center, of Cohasset walk the "yellow brick road" which is a visual cue to help her keep her right foot from scissoring over and bumping into her other foot.

"The typical prognosis for walking at that point was pretty poor," Smith said, and although she was optimistic, she had doubts about Barbara walking again.

Smith and Mike Bliss credit the use of the LiteGait machine as one of the keys to regaining Barbara's ability to walk again.

The LiteGait machine essentially supports the body through the use of a harness system and allows the patient to learn the motion of walking again in a fall-free environment. The harness supports the patient while they walk on a treadmill.

Smith said she has tried to work with Barbara in ways to access the strength she does have in her muscles and brain. "We're trying to get neuroplasticity," Smith said.

When they first started working on the LiteGait, Smith was on the floor physically moving Barbara's right foot along the treadmill. They started in small walking increments eventually Barbara began to move her foot on her own.

"Without that machine we really couldn't have done it," Smith said. Bay State owns the only LiteGait machine from Braintree to Sandwich.

Three times a week Mike and Barbara make the trek to Bay State Physical Therapy to meet with Smith and her intern, Catherine Schroeder.

As progress was noted, the team moved to walking with the aid of a walker.

With the aid of a walker and the support of Smith and Schroeder, Barbara started to take steps with physical cues from the therapists: one of them would kick the right foot if Barbara wasn't moving it on her own.

In a momentous moment in February, which had the whole team in tears, Barbara took her first few steps on her own.

"I said 'who is moving Barbara's foot?' And it was Barbara," Smith said of the moment they realized she was beginning to walk on her own. "I never thought she would."

Although there is plenty of work still to do, the progress is undeniable, Mike said, "every week there is very gradual, very slow continued improvement."

On Monday morning, Barbara, with the walker and Smith and Schroeder, made her way across the open physical therapy room three times. Mike follows close behind with encouragement and the wheelchair in case Barbara needs a rest along the way. Right now, the walk is arduous and tiring, but Barbara is determined and tenacious, and for all it's a miracle it is even being done.

"Lesley has been a lifesaver," Mike said. Both he and Smith got emotionally talking of how far the team had come. "It's been a real team effort."

"We're very happy we found each other," Smith said.

The ultimate goal is to get Barbara to walk with minimal assistance with only Mike's aid.

"It's going to be slow, but we know she is going to be able to do it," Smith said.

Barbara Bliss does a stand and reach exercise with the help of Catherine Schroeder, left, and Dr. Lesley Smith, right, during her therapy session on Wednesday. The exercise helps stimulate aspects of the nervous system which deals with coordination. It tests the patient's ability to shift their weight from one side to the other.

Dr. Lesley Smith helps Barbara Bliss out of her car and into her wheelchair before their therapy session on Wednesday.

We Auto Know
by Gene Smith and Jay Gorman
CAN SMALLER BE BETTER?
Americans generally prefer large vehicles. The question is: Can they learn to love smaller cars? According to estimates, smaller cars comprise about 25% of today's automobile market. It is no secret that the demand for smaller, more fuel-efficient automobiles correlates directly with gas prices. The trouble is that, as soon as the cost of gasoline declines even just a bit, Americans' desire for smaller cars suffers. Many consumers are waiting for a technological breakthrough that will let them have their large vehicles and drive them, too. In the meantime, they may be missing the fact that car manufacturers are giving smaller vehicles the technology and content usually reserved for larger, more expensive vehicles. Smaller does not necessarily mean less.
Providing regular maintenance for your car has any number of benefits: it improves safety on the road, it can increase the life of your car, it can improve your gas mileage, and it can catch small issues before they become big problems. If you can't remember the last time you had a tune-up, call ATLANTIC TIRE AND ALIGNMENT for an appointment today. Our ASE Master-certified technicians will check your car from bumper to bumper, inside and out, to make sure that you're running safely and efficiently. That will save you money in the long run. Call 781-925-3200 today. We are located at 25 Atlantic House Rd.
Hint: Regardless of consumer preferences or the price of gas, future car size may be motivated by the fact that the federal government has set a corporate average fuel economy (CAFE) standard of 35.5 mpg by the middle of the coming decade.

COHASSET SAILING CLUB

ELIZABETH MURRY

A sailor's joys are as simple as a child's.
— Bernard Moitessier

Classes in the Junior program meet three times a week for two to three hours at a time over a 10-week period. They combine classroom teaching with ample time on the water.

Started in 1960, the Cohasset Sailing Club (CSC) founders were largely motivated by the premise that a kid growing up in Cohasset should have the opportunity to learn to sail without regard to economic barriers. The Junior program focuses on the 10 to 16 year-old age group and is centerpiece of the club's activities. To enroll, students must have completed the fourth grade or be 10 years old by Labor Day 2010. The program has a four-step, four-year sequential structure: first-year students start at the Sailor level, then progress to Mate level in the second year, Skipper level in the third year, and Captain level in the fourth year. Typically, there are at least two to three groups for the Sailor and Mate levels, as these tend to be the most heavily enrolled sequences. Beginning students start with seamanship basics, and progressively acquire more advanced sailing skills. By the end of their first season, many students will pass the helmsman test, which means they are good enough to take their parents out for a free sail.

Classes meet three times a week for two to three hours at a time over a 10-week period, and combine classroom teaching with ample time on the water. The CSC does its best to coordinate the sailing schedules with the town's swimming program. A unique feature of the CSC's Junior program is its dual offering of peer group on-water instruction in the 14.5 foot Capris, which typically carry three to four students plus an instructor, and the O'Pen BICs, which allow children to sail alone or with a companion. Upon completion of the Captain-level training, students are qualified to join the Racing team.

The CSC's instructors are college and high school students, many of whom went through the Junior program when they were younger. The interactions that the Junior students have with the instructors is a valuable experience in and of itself; while younger in age than most of their parents and teachers, the instructors offer more mature role models for what the students might be like in a few short years. Many of the CSC's instructors formed an ambition to teach sailing while participating in the Junior program (and the experience looks great on a college application). This year we are fortunate to have many experienced instructors returning to teach. The veteran head instructor is John DeWaal, who majored in music education in college. He, along with the other senior instructors, is American Sailing Association Level I certified, a designation granted to those who meet U.S. national standards.

One of the CSC's adult members has this to say about his daughter's experience last year as a first-year Sailor:

"It's no wonder why our daughter looks so forward to her time at the Cohasset Sailing Club. Her second year of sailing couldn't come soon enough for her — enjoying warm summer days on the water with friends, the talented CSC instructors, and experiencing the special rewards of putting lessons learned into practice. She's honing skills that will bring her pleasure for years to come and creating fond memories she will carry throughout her life. CSC offers a unique experience for Cohasset's kids by building confidence and self-reliance, and fostering a love and respect for the ocean."

The quintessential Cohasset summer experience is not complete without trying your hand at sailing. Whatever your age, you can make some lifelong memories by joining the CSC and discovering, or rediscovering, sailing. Check out our web site at www.cohassetsailingclub.org, which has more information posted, including membership forms. Applications and program registration must be turned in on Registration weekend, May 16 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and May 17 from noon to 2 p.m.

Social Service League of Cohasset offers scholarship

The Social Service League of Cohasset is accepting applications for the Margaret F. Loud, R.N. Scholarship. Applicants must be seniors in high school or residents of the towns of Cohasset, Hingham, Norwell, or Scituate who intend to begin or further studies in the fields of nursing, social work, or allied health fields. One scholarship for $1,000 will be awarded for the 2010-2011 academic year. The scholarship is merit based.

Applications are available in each high school guidance office. All applications must be submitted by mail to League of Cohasset, 790 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Cohasset, MA 02025 no later than April 30, 2010. For further information call 781-383-0771.

Community policing

"Community policing" became a "buzz phrase" back in the 1990s when grant money started to become available for police departments for bicycle patrols, citizens police academies, and other outreach efforts.

Community policing became and continues to be a good thing. It encourages police and the community to work together — whether that effort is reducing crime or helping youth understand the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

As many of you have noticed, the speed board (also called the radar trailer) has been cropping up around town. Police departments in other towns are using similar devices reminding us of the speed limit and how fast we are traveling. In Cohasset, the speed board was purchased through "community policing" grant funds. Police also accept requests from residents to place the speed board in their neighborhood if they think it would help raise awareness. Police also follow up a speed board placement with traffic patrols.

Continuing to encourage community outreach, Cohasset Police recently conducted a survey and the results are in.

Chief Mark DeLuca said 105 residents responded to the survey, the results of which are available at the station and will be posted on the CPD website.

"The survey conveys to the police department what services are important to the community, how the members of the community perceive their police department and rate our past performance," Chief DeLuca said. "These criterion are important in developing a policing strategy that is unique to Cohasset. This information will be integrated into the service we provide our residents."

In a nutshell, here are some community concerns:

- Upwards of 50 percent of the respondents think underage drinking, unsupervised house parties and drunken driving is a problem in town. They are also concerned about illegal drug use and that they could be the victim of a housebreak.
- Respondents rated the top three crimes they would like police to focus on as: burglary and housebreaks; combating illegal drug use; and theft.
- Most respondents gave the police and dispatchers good marks in terms of their contact with the department and rated positively the officer's or dispatcher's helpfulness, response, concern, courteousness, professionalism, honesty and knowledge about their problem.
- In terms of community perception of the police department, the majority of respondents regularly sees police in the community and thinks they do a good job preventing crime and providing quality service. However, only 50 percent felt the CPD did enough to prevent juvenile delinquency.
- More than 90 percent of respondents thought Cohasset is as safe or safer than other area towns. However, they do not feel safe leaving their cars or homes unlocked.
- Respondents would like to see more foot patrols in the Village.
- They also stated that police youth programs, press releases to local media, email alerting system, web site and investigative follow-up by detectives are all important services.

Take part

The Cohasset Mariner is building a Readers Advisory Network of e-mail addresses so we can more frequently involve our readers in the content of the newspaper.

Readers, who join the network, may be asked for reactions to stories, ideas for stories or follow-ups, for a digital "person on the street" interview, or for a community commentary.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the network, email Mary Ford at mford@cnc.com. She will answer any questions that you may have. The Mariner promises to remove you immediately from the Readers Advisory Network if you request that we do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Astino thanks voters, supporters

TO THE EDITOR:

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the people who played an integral part in helping me become an elected member of the Cohasset School Committee. There are too many people to name here individually, and I would not want to leave anyone off this very important list.

The list would include those who helped me in so many different and vital ways. I have a very special place in my heart for "my personal geek" – you know who you are - who helped me develop a wonderful website. The website really told people who I am and what I believe and that was vital to my success. The technology and social networking used in the campaign were new, fresh and appealing to students and adults alike, and several people were involved in this piece of my campaign. Like it or not, technology is here to stay and we need to embrace it, as our children do, as a tool that can help us every day. I also want to thank a certain someone who was always willing to re-read my writing when I needed a fresh pair of eyes.

I very much appreciate those who made contributions to my campaign fund, and those who helped strategize on running the campaign in general and kept me grounded. I also appreciated peoples' willingness to place my name on their lawns; there were some interesting interchanges in that endeavor. Last, but not least, I must thank the voters – thank you so much for placing your trust in me!

As you read this I am sure you have realized there is a lot of work that goes into getting elected, even in our small town! Over the past two months I have gone back to my roots, spoken with old friends and made many new ones. All of this work has certainly paid off and I am ready for the new challenges ahead. I look forward to serving the needs of our community through our schools.

'Campaigning was a great experience'

TO THE EDITOR:

While campaigning for School Committee during the last several months, I had the unique opportunity to meet so many of our fellow Cohasset residents.

The experience confirmed what I always knew: that Cohasset is wonderful place; its natural beauty is impressive; but it's the people of our town that make it so special.

Although the election results for School Committee didn't turn out as my supporters and I had hoped, campaigning was a great experience and I am honored to have earned the vote of so many. I was overwhelmed by people's willingness to get involved and grateful for their support. Whether residents endorsed my candidacy, sponsored or attended a campaign event, hosted a lawn sign, waved to voters outside of Town Hall, or took time out of their Saturday to vote for Paul O, everyone's efforts made a tremendous difference. And for several of my supporters, this was the first campaign they had ever chosen to participate in.

Activating a new group of voters was especially rewarding.

I congratulate Linda Snowdale and Jeanne Astino on their election victories and look forward to staying very active in Cohasset school issue and civic life in general.

Rotary appreciates road race support

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset Rotary Club would like to express our deep appreciation to all the citizens of Cohasset for their support of the 34th annual Cohasset Rotary Road Race by the Sea 10K and the Fran Coffey Fun Walk held this past Sunday. What a spectacular event we were able provide with the help of the many wonderful volunteers, generous businesses sponsors, town officials, and citizens who cheered and encouraged the runners, you all were such an important part of helping us present Cohasset as the friendly, beautiful and wonderful community we all know it to be. We would like to especially thank the Cohasset Fire and Police departments and the DPW for all their extra efforts to help us insure the safety of the runners and to help minimize the disruption to Cohasset residents during the race and walk.

The Cohasset Rotary Club thru its efforts with the Road Race as well as the Cohasset Telephone directory and business guide is able to provide support to many worthwhile local and international projects and causes as well as provide a number of scholarships to Cohasset students each year. We meet each Monday evening at the Lightkeepers Hall, and welcome anyone interested in joining us to contact any one of the Rotarians listed in the front of the Telephone directory.

We are now preparing for the 35th anniversary of the Race to be held on April 3, 2011.

Thank you again Cohasset for all your support.

Little Harbor not being treated equally

TO THE EDITOR:

Selectmen recently voted against proceeding to a town ballot with a motion that, if passed, would have shared the cost of the Little Harbor Sewer District evenly between the town and the Little Harbor residents as has been done for our other sewer districts. The two selectmen who voted against proceeding to a town ballot are saying that they did not want to raise taxes at this time. Allowing the motion to proceed would not have raised anyone's taxes. However, their vote will raise the tax bills of Little Harbor residents about $700 a year. Little Harbor taxpayers are not being treated as equals. Discrimination of this sort must stop in our town or we will all be the losers.

Democracy denied can be corrected

TO THE EDITOR:

Two selectmen voted against allowing the democratic process to proceed so that a town-wide vote by ballot could decide how to apportion the costs of the recent sewer expansion.

I doubt that their position was influenced by the fact that their own residences already have benefited from previous votes for 50/50 cost sharing. More likely, their position was based on sparing the town the cost of a secret ballot.

Surely that cost, although not insignificant, does not warrant denying the citizens access to the democratic process.

Let us see if the selectmen are capable of revisiting and adjusting their vote so as to respect the democratic process. We can live with the result, whatever it is, better than live with democracy denied.

Traffic light coming in roundabout way

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush Station Traffic Light – What an intricate web this story weaves. The saga of the traffic light at the Greenbush Commuter Rail Train Station and Route 3A has more twists and turns than you can imagine. Originally, when the Greenbush line was just a glimmer in the eye of the MBTA, the MBTA and the Board of Selectmen, on behalf of the Town, negotiated a Mitigation Agreement that spelled out the "give and take" arrangement between the Town and the MBTA. One of the Mitigation Agreement items was that the MBTA would provide a traffic light at the station and Route 3A to assist the exiting traffic. Originally, when this agreement was signed the driveway connecting the station to North Main Street was to have been one-way in to the station only. Thus, all traffic exiting the station would need to enter Route 3A to exit from the station.

However, there was a caveat in the agreement that the traffic light must be approved by the Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD). When the MBTA submitted the traffic light for consideration to MHD, MHD denied the light. Immediately thereafter, the MBTA removed the funds for the Route 3A traffic light from their construction budget. However, after reconsideration of the traffic light, MHD subsequently approved its installation. Now, what was the Town to do? The MBTA was obligated to install the light, but had no funds available.

Now, enter the Transportation Oriented Development project (TOD) of the Connell Companies adjacent to the station site. (A TOD is a mixed use residential and business development that takes advantage of its proximity to a transportation hub in order to lessen some of the zoning requirements such as parking requirements.) The TOD, since it depends on its close proximity to the rail system, wanted an easy access between the two properties. If that could be achieved, rail users could easily travel between the station and the TOD without entering Route 3A. This would make the commercial aspects of the TOD development very convenient for commuter rail users. A private driveway to connect the two sites was negotiated. As a part of the negotiations, the TOD project agreed to construct the Route 3A traffic light. So now, Connell had the responsibility to construct the traffic light as agreed by the MBTA in the 2001 Mitigation Agreement.

A week ago, the traffic light construction began at the station entrance on Route 3A. Large truck-mounted drills bored large holes for the footings that will support the traffic light poles. Lest the 3A motorists worry about the addition of another traffic light on Route 3A, this light will be a "demand" light. That is, it will not change to red on Route 3A unless cars are trying to exit from the station. Otherwise, the light will be green on Route 3A. As of this week, the foundations are in place and they await the installation of the traffic light support poles and the electronic controls.

More Work on Jerusalem Road – As you drive around Town you can still see digging in our roads. The latest work is being done by National Grid as they continue their project to upgrade and replace aging natural gas pipelines. Most recently, we spoke about the work they did on Beach Street. This is nearly finished. All that remains on Beach Street is to connect several new customers to the new gas main in the street.

Meanwhile, they have moved their main construction operation to Jerusalem Road for more gas main replacement. They started this week at the intersection of Jerusalem Road and Atlantic Avenue. All of the gas mains on Jerusalem Road between this corner and Rust Way will be replaced. The accompanying photo shows the work equipment at the starting intersection.

If you look carefully at the photo you can see a dark-colored area running down toward the lower left-hand corner the photo. This is an area that has been "softened" up in preparation for construction. The process of replacing a gas line is rather interesting. The first operation is to dig "test pits" along the construction route. Test pits are exploratory holes that are dug so the contractor can get an idea of the make-up of the material under the asphalt surface. This enables him to locate a favorable route for his pipe and to make sure he has the proper construction equipment available to be able to excavate whatever material lies under the road. For example, if there is ledge in the area he will be prepared him to deal with it by having the proper equipment at the work site. The test pits were dug several weeks ago.

The next operation is to grind out the existing hard asphalt paving over the trench area. This shallow cut only removes the asphalt road surface to make the trenching operation easier. A very specialized piece of construction equipment, called a Vermeer grinder (see photo), is used for this operation.

The Vermeer grinder is a self-propelled machine that cuts through and pulverizes the asphalt to the same width as the trench. Gas mains only require a trench about one or two feet in wide, so the Vermeer grinder only cuts a narrow swath. The Vermeer grinder has a large diameter wheel (near the top of the machine in the photo) loaded with nasty very hard cutting teeth on its perimeter. A close-up photo of the teeth is provided for your viewing pleasure. These teeth are very similar to those used to reclaim or cold plane asphalt roads prior to paving. However, in this case they only dig up a narrow portion of roadway as opposed to the wide swath required for road paving. The spoils from the grinding are then removed from the site.

During the first day of work, the National Grid contractor cut about 1000 feet of asphalt with the Vermeer cutter and patched the cut area with asphalt. You might ask why they put asphalt back if they had just removed it. That's easy! National Grid has agreed to fill in their trenches each night so that traffic will not be seriously disrupted after they leave for the day. The new asphalt is easily removed when they start digging their trench to replace the gas line, since it has not been well compressed and has not hardened over time. Plus, they will only remove the patched asphalt in small pieces as they move along relaying the gas line. Again, they will patch the trench each day before they leave. The gas main replacement on Jerusalem Road is expected to take about six weeks.

HEALTH NOTES

Tick season soon upon us

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Let's talk about protecting yourself from ticks that carry illnesses including Lyme disease. Now that the weather's getting better, we'll be spending more time outdoors. Lyme disease is transmitted to humans by the bite of infected blacklegged ticks. Typical symptoms include fever, headache, fatigue and a characteristic circular skin rash called erythema migrans. Most cases of Lyme disease can be treated successfully with a few weeks of antibiotics, but if left untreated, infection can spread to joints, the heart and the nervous system. So if you've found a tick bite, it's best to check with someone familiar with the symptoms. Other clinical symptoms and environmental conditions suggested that this was an infectious disease probably transmitted by a bug (the report called it an arthropod). Further investigation revealed that Lyme disease is caused by bacteria. These bacteria are transmitted to humans by the bite of infected deer ticks (the bug in question.) and cause more than 16,000 infections in the United States each year.

Lyme disease, if left undiagnosed and untreated, is likely to have very harmful long-term health effects such as meningitis, facial palsy, heart trouble, swelling and pain in large joints and chronic arthritis. Some forms of Lyme disease are treatment resistant. The recent explosive repopulation of whitetail deer has been linked to the spread of Lyme disease in New England. Deer serve as the maintenance hosts for deer ticks which produce larva that grow into nymphs and drop off the deer to find smaller hosts such as mice, voles, chipmunks, squirrels, etc. Deer ticks are much smaller than common dog and cattle ticks.

Ticks in larval and nymphal stages are no bigger than a pinhead. Ticks feed by inserting their mouths into the skin of a host and slowly take in blood. They are most likely to transmit infection after feeding for two or more days. It is therefore important to conduct a thorough inspection of clothes and body after visiting sites likely to be inhabited by small wild animals, rodents, etc.

Some simple steps you can take to protect yourself and your family: Avoid tick-infested areas. If you are in a tick-infested area, walk in the center of the trails to avoid contact with vegetation.

Wear light-colored clothing, which allows you to see ticks that are crawling on your clothing. Tuck your pant legs into your socks so that ticks cannot crawl up inside of your pant legs. Some ticks can crawl down into shoes and are small enough to crawl through most socks. When traveling in areas with lone star ticks (associated with the illness, ehrlichiosis), and Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Examine your feet and ankles to ensure that ticks are not attached.

Use chemical repellent with DEET (N, N-diethyl-m-toluamide) or permethrin and wear protective clothing. For several days protection, repellents containing permethrin can be sprayed on boots and clothing. Repellents containing DEET can be applied to the skin, but they protect for only a few hours before reapplication is necessary. Parents should apply this product to their children, avoiding the hands, eyes, and mouth. Contact the Board of Health concerning the use of DEET with children.

Perform daily tick checks. Check your body for ticks after being outdoors, even in your own yard. Conduct a body check upon returning from potentially tick-infested areas by searching your entire body for ticks. Use a hand-held or full-length mirror to view all parts of your body and remove any tick.

Carefully check your child's body for ticks under arms; in and around ears; inside navel; back of the knees; in and around the hair; between the legs; around the waist. Check pets for ticks.

Safely remove ticks. Use fine-tipped tweezers and protect bare hands with a tissue or gloves to avoid contact with tick fluids. Grab the tick close to the skin. Do not twist or jerk the tick, as this may cause the mouthparts to break off and remain in the skin. Gently pull straight up until all parts of the tick are removed. After removing the tick, wash hands with soap and water or waterless alcohol-based hand rubs. Clean the tick bite with an antiseptic such as iodine scrub, rubbing alcohol or water-containing detergents.

Prevent ticks on animals. Prevent family pets from bringing ticks into the home. Maintain your family pet under a veterinarian's care. Two ways to get rid of ticks on dogs and cats are putting on tick medicine or using a tick collar. Use these products according to package instructions.

For more information on animals and health, get advice from a knowledgeable person. Mary Goodwin, the Public Health nurse at Town Hall, has information about the characteristic rash from Lyme and other ticks as well as some information about areas in Cohasset found to be infested with ticks.

Steve Bobo is a long-time member of the Cohasset Board of Health.

complacent for too long and they need to step up their involvement in the town."

Ensuring the public is heard and actively involved in the business of the School Committee was one of primary concerns expressed by residents during the campaign, both new School Committee members said.

"I want to improve the schools in all areas. I want the people in this town to be very proud of the School Committee and the work that it does," Snowdale said.

Paul Ognibene, who congratulated both Snowdale and Astino immediately after the results were announced at Town Hall on Saturday night, said he was happy to have had the campaign experience.

"While running for School Committee during the last several months, I was flattered by so many people's willingness to get involved and grateful for their support," Ognibene said.

"And for several of my supporters, this was the first campaign they had ever chosen to participate in. Activating a new group of voters was especially rewarding," he said, adding he plans to stay active in Cohasset school issues and civic life.

Another face townspeople are bound to see around town is MacCarthy, who said she is not going anywhere.

"There is lots to follow and there is lots to do. My heart will always be in the schools, but I hope to participate in getting the new Senior Center up and running," MacCarthy said.

While disappointed in Saturday's results she said she is proud of all the School Committee has accomplished over the last six years. She said there were clear distinctions between her and the other candidates and "obviously the people who voted preferred the other candidates' platforms."

She said she does feel badly that communication fell short between the School Committee and the public in the past year. But, she said, if sought, the facts could speak for themselves of the good things going on in the schools.

"I have a lot to learn and it's going to be interesting being on the other side of the table."

— Linda Snowdale, School Committee

"At the end of the day I suggest that those who have been awakened to what is going on at the Cohasset Public Schools search for the evidence that either proves or disproves the (other candidate's) platforms. If they do that they are going to see what a great position the schools are in," MacCarthy said.

MacCarthy said she hoped the re-energized involvement in the schools sticks around, especially with the younger families or those newer to town because they will be the users of the schools over the next decade.

"I'm definitely going to miss being on the School Committee. I've enjoyed serving the last six years," MacCarthy said. "I'm a better person for having served on the School Committee and the schools system is in a better place because I served it."

Other election notes

• Leland Jenkins was unchallenged in his bid for the open seat on the Board of Selectmen (Ralph Dormitzer did not seek a third term); Selectmen Paul Carlson was unopposed in seeking a second term.

"My focus will be to find ways the town can be more efficient in what it does and look for cost savings," Jenkins said after taking part in his first meeting as a sitting selectman.

• Long-time Board of Health member Stephen Bobo received the most votes – 914 – out of any candidate on the ballot. Bobo begins his 13th year and fifth term on the Board of Health.

• Maria Osborne succeeded in her write-in campaign for a one-year seat on the Recreation Commission that fills an unexpired term. She received 50 votes. Abigail Alves won re-election to a five-year post on the Recreation Commission.

• James Dow claimed a spot on the Sewer Commission this time around; he previously ran for sewer commissioner two years ago, but lost.

• Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey retained his seat for another five years and William Hannon will be the town's first Planning Board associate member.

• Christopher Seebeck earned the votes of 863 citizens to gain a seat on the Water Commission.

Cohasset Town Hall was again transformed into the polling site for the annual Town Election. About 24 percent of the town's registered voters went to the polls on Saturday.

Jeanne Astino, then candidate, campaigns Saturday along Highland Avenue. Astino was elected to the School Committee along with Linda Snowdale.

Candidate Paul Ognibene campaigns with a little help from his children Quinn, 2-1/2 and Casey Belle, 4-1/2.

The Sherwoods of Cornell at the 2005 Cornell University reunion.

Keeping a cappella alive in Hingham!

CONSERVATORY NOTES

FRANK HOLDEN

My fellow Sherwoods come from a wide variety of backgrounds, careers and life experiences.

In a couple of weeks, I will get together with 22 of my Cornell University friends and, as we have done annually for the past 26 years, sing original a cappella music that that stretches our high tenor singers upward, while sending our basses down to their lowest ranges. Our group, the Sherwoods of Cornell, will present two benefit concerts for South Shore Conservatory on April 23 and 24.

I came to Cornell as a freshman in the fall of 1958. In high school I had been a music major, studied theory, composition, played the piano, sang in an octet, the choir and glee club. However, I was also pretty good at the sciences. I wanted to be a musician but was strongly advised against the idea. Shortly after arriving at Cornell, I heard the Sherwoods and thought to myself, "I'm supposed to become a theoretical physicist, don't let yourself become attracted to these 'sirens' luring you back into music."

Nonetheless, I went to their tryouts and was challenged by the Sherwood's thoroughness and candor. I felt I was not a great singer and knew that if I wanted to be invited back I'd need to show some special talent. So I prepared an arrangement of "You're Mean to Me" and handed it to the leader, Doug Lee, at the second round of tryouts. I said, "Here's an arrangement I did for the Sherwoods." He asked, "Could you teach it to us?" We learned the arrangement and I was accepted into the group. Six months later they made me director. I have been singing with the Sherwoods for 48 years now. Wow!

My fellow Sherwoods come from a wide variety of backgrounds, careers and life experiences. Few are directly involved with music apart from their singing as Sherwoods, but all have worked hard to reach a high-level of singing ability. Today's Sherwoods are actually better musicians and entertainers than they were when they were students at Cornell.

Our repertoire includes ballads, and rich 6- to 8-part close-harmony arrangements, seasoned with original jokes, stories and clever song introductions. Our arrangements are created by members of the group, rather than standard, published music. Often, myself or and Fred Kewley of Nashville will create harmonies. The result is a rich 6- to 8-part harmony that audiences have enjoyed for over 50 years.

Through this experience and these friendships I learned that music is an integral part of me and my life. I have thoroughly enjoyed participating in South Shore Conservatory's Opera by the Bay chorus and singing with the Sherwoods.

In addition to Hingham's Ron Johnson who is an integral part of the Sherwoods, you may recognize the name of another past Sherwood. Singer/songwriter Harry Chapin, best known for this two hit songs "Cat's In the Cradle" and "Taxi," was a member of Cornell's Class of 1964, and was a Sherwood of Cornell. It's funny how, with the recent success of "Straight No Chaser," a cappella ensembles have become the new "cool" thing to do. Yet, we the Sherwoods of Cornell, have been doing this for over 50 years.

South Shore Conservatory will present the Sherwoods of Cornell on Friday, April 23, 7 p.m., at the Ellison Center for the Arts in Duxbury, and on Saturday, April 24, 7 p.m., at One Conservatory Drive in Hingham. The tickets, at $15 for adults and $5 for children, are available online at www.sscmusic.org, or by calling 781-749-7565, ext. 20.

Frank Holden has been a South Shore Conservatory Trustee since 2001. He is vice chairman/clerk, and has served on the Executive and Finance and Audit committees. He is an amateur pianist and singer..

Lincoln assassination discussion April 16

The Cohasset Historical Society holding its annual Spring Dinner on Sunday, April 25, at the Cohasset Harbor Resort, 124 Elm St. Guest speaker, Christopher Daley will present "The Lincoln Assassination". It was in April of 1865 that an assassin's bullet ended the life of President Abraham Lincoln. One hundred and fifty-five years later, this event still evokes questions of "what if?" and "why?".

A past-president of both the Pembroke Historical Commission and the Pembroke Historical Society, Mr. Daley lectures on a number of historical events, both local and national.

The dinner will begin with a cash bar at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m.. Attendees will have an entrée choice of Chicken Parmesan with Penne Pasta or Roast Baby Cod with Seasoned Buttery Bread Crumbs and Garlic Cream Sauce. The cost to Historical Society members is $31 per person and $36 for non-members. All are welcome to attend. Please call the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 with your choice of entrée and submit your check made out to Cohasset Historical Society. Checks may be mailed to The Cohasset Historical Society, PO Box 167, Cohasset, MA 02025 prior to Friday, April 16th.

FROM LETTERS, PAGE 10

Praises stance of Quigley, Koed

TO THE EDITOR:

I want to thank Selectmen Karen Quigley and Fred Koed for voting against having yet another election on paying the Little Harbor sewer project. Those who were fortunate to get city sewer are asking the rest of us Cohasset citizens to help pay for their new sewers. There is nothing more unfair than to ask those of us on septic systems now and probably forever to pay for any part of their benefit. Maybe they should ask only other citizens on sewer to pay the cost; that would at least sound fair.

I very much doubt that any property in town that is on city sewer has not increased in value well beyond the cost of the sewer installation. This is especially true in the Little Harbor area of high-valued property. So thank you Karen and Fred. Please hang in there for us unrepresented, but numerous, septic tank people as I know the pressure will be intense though the premise of any such election would be very much unfair no matter how it is rationalized by those that would benefit.

Make your property more sustainable

Gardeners are beginning to realize that some of the traditional gardening practices like using pesticides and fertilizers result in killing bees and polluting local waterways. We love nature and don't want to harm it, but how do we keep our gardens manageable? Amy Martin, a South Shore landscape designer, will be giving a presentation on easy steps to make your property more sustainable for the environment and for your lifestyle and pocketbook, including information on organic gardening and lawn care, planting with native plants for healthy ecosystems, and managing rain water with rain gardens from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, April 29, at the Cohasset Public Library. Free. All are welcome!

Twenty Eight Year Old Back In Shape After Accident!

Before

I have been an athlete all my life but after a car accident I could no longer participate in the sports I loved. I had given up on the goal of ever being in shape like I was before.

I checked out Get In Shape For Women after a friend told me about it. That was 4 months ago, 13 pounds, 11 inches and 2 dress sizes! The staff have given me back the confidence I need to make my goals a reality. I encourage anyone who wants to be healthier to join their local Get In Shape For Women. It has truly changed my life.

New restaurant for Bernard's space

A new family-oriented Italian restaurant is opening in the former Bernard's restaurant space on Ripley Road. Ava Cocina, to be owned and operated by husband and wife Annette and Vincent Agostino, applied for an all alcohol license transfer.

"We're hoping to have a nice, family Italian restaurant. My husband and four of our five children intend to work there so we're ready to employ our family," said Annette, who will run the front of the house.

Annette is a familiar face for Red Lion Inn frequenters; she was a bartender and server there for the last eight years.

The Board of Selectmen, acting in their capacity as liquor license authority, approved the liquor license transfer.

With the Board of Selectmen approval, the liquor license now goes before the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) for final approval.

The owners expect to open the restaurant in mid-May.

Bids come in double estimates

It's back to the drawing board for the cable TV studio.

Selectman Paul Carlson reported recently the bids for the construction of a television studio in the front corner of the Town Hall auditorium came in more than double what was estimated to complete the project.

The lowest bid was $58,000. Carlson said the project needs to be reworked and a more elaborate bidding process needs to take place.

"It sets us back maybe a month or more," Carlson said, who also serves on the Cable Advisory Committee. The committee previously reported they expected to have the studio and local cable access back up and running by July 1. Now, Carlson said, it is looking more like Labor Day.

Welcoming All at UMass Boston

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

During the severe economic recession that the entire nation is struggling to overcome, much has been written about how the high cost of a college education has affected students, families, and their choices around which college or university to attend. A recent Boston Globe report, for example, indicated that a growing number of colleges and universities in the Greater Boston area are breaking the $50,000-a-year cost barrier and that the high price tag associated with a private college education is encouraging prospective students and their families to take a harder look at public universities.

As chancellor of the Boston area's only public university, I welcome the newfound interest in public higher education. I know that the most important consideration for students and families is a high-quality educational experience, one that positions graduates for jobs in competitive fields, prepares them for success in future professional and graduate studies, and enables them to be leaders in tomorrow's social and economic endeavors.

It is against this backdrop that I addressed a record number of admitted students on our annual Welcome Day this past Saturday. This event provides prospective students with an opportunity to visit our waterfront campus, meet professors and advisors from our seven colleges, tour neighboring housing options, and otherwise get a better sense of the rich educational environment and great opportunities available at the University of Massachusetts Boston.

This year, while our admission rate is about 12 percent higher than last year, nearly two-thirds more students attended our Welcome Day. It was a pleasure to meet so many young men and women and their parents, discuss with them their hopes and plans for higher education, and answer questions about the more than 150 academic programs at our harbor campus and the many opportunities available to become involved in internships, student organizations and activities, and athletic programs. There is nothing more rewarding for me, as chancellor, than to engage with students embarking on their quest for higher education and help to provide insight and guidance toward making choices that best meet their goals.

The wonderful attendance at our Welcome Day indicates a continued growing interest among high school students who see UMass Boston as a first choice for a high-quality, high-value education. At the same time, we also see continued heightened interest among the many other populations we serve – graduates and professionals looking to pursue master's- and doctoral-level degrees, those looking to enhance career skills through our Division of Continuing, Corporate, and Distance Education, and older adults seeking life-long-learning opportunities through our Osher Lifelong Learning Institute.

I encourage you to learn more about opportunities in higher education at UMass Boston by visiting www.umb.edu or calling 617.287.6000.

CNC SUPER TEAMS

• • • Basketball • • •

NAME: Meredith Kelly
SCHOOL: Cohasset
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Kelly had one of her best games of the season in the biggest, scoring 19 points in the Div. 4 State Championship game, including 15 in the first half. It wasn't just the points, but the way she took control of the game so quickly. She outright dominated. It wasn't just the title game though. Kelly played that way just about every night, and could hurt opponents with her shooting, passing and defense. Kelly will play basketball at Bates next year.

NAME: Amanda McKenney
SCHOOL: Braintree
GRADE: Junior
STATS: McKenney led the Wamps in scoring at more than 16 points a game, with a career-high 30 points in a two-point loss at the buzzer to Norwood. She was also Braintree's leading rebounder as well as an excellent defender and passer, and has established herself as one of the best all-around players in the conference.

NAME: Nicole Beresford
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Beresford had a season to remember and then some. The junior forward, and one of Marshfield's top scorers, came back from an early season injury to score her 1,000th point and become the all-time leading scorer in Marshfield High School girls basketball history.

NAME: Amanda Hawkesworth
SCHOOL: Abington
GRADE: Freshman
STATS: One of three freshmen in the starting lineup, Amanda was the leading scorer on the Green Wave, averaging 11.3 points per game. She also led Abington's varsity team in offensive and defensive rebounds with a total of 152. "She has an unbelievable drive when it comes to basketball. She's only going to get better with age."

NAME: Paige Marshall
SCHOOL: Braintree
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Marshall averaged nearly 10 points a game and led the Wamps in assists. It looks like she just keeps getting better in all phases of her game, and she should be one of the premier point guards in the conference the next two seasons.

NAME: Samantha Crough
SCHOOL: Cohasset
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Crough was the ultimate team player for the Div. 4 champs. She could lead the team in scoring on any given night, make the clutch shots when they had to go and play tight defense. She's also an outstanding rebounder and shot blocker and a terrific leader as well.

NAME: Sarah Fisher
SCHOOL: Hingham
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Fisher led Hingham in scoring and was named a Patriot League All-Star as well. She will be a captain on next year's Hingham squad.

NAME: Tori Lehr
SCHOOL: Cohasset
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Lehr was named the South Shore League Player of the Year and was a huge factor in Cohasset's championship season. An all-around player, Lehr is the tallest Cohasset player at 6-3, and can win games with her inside presence, both offensively and defensively. Lehr also runs the court as well as any player in the area. She'll play at St. Anselm next season.

NAME: Kendra Kerr
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Kerr, one of three 2010 Atlantic Coast League all-stars for Marshfield, was dangerous along the baseline for the Lady Rams. One of the team's top scorers, Kerr also was near perfect from the free-throw line, had a lethal outside jump shot, and was one of the main reasons the team won the Atlantic Coast League title.

NAME: Kelly DuVal
SCHOOL: Hanover
GRADE: Senior
STATS: DuVal scored her 1,000th career point this season, led Hanover in scoring and was one of the top scorers in the Patriot League.

NAME: Kelly Martin
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Freshman
STATS: The freshman phenom gave Scituate the little extra boost that turned them from a good team into one of the Patriot League's elite teams with a 16-4 regular season record and a tournament victory. Martin led Scituate in scoring (13.8 ppg), assists and steals.

Skippers making waves

Team playing good baseball

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Baseball

The Cohasset baseball team split their first two games of the week, but it was a good one for the Skippers even with a loss.

The loss was an 8-4 setback on Monday to defending Div. 3 State Champion Abington. The win was an offensive and defensive showcase 18-3 rout over Carver on Tuesday.

Cohasset has shown some thump in the lineup, scoring 17 or more runs twice this season, both wins.

Junior Drew Cobin pitched seven strong innings, giving up five earned runs and striking out four against Abington.

"We trailed 5-4 after five innings, but just couldn't muster enough offense to overcome our mistakes," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "Andy McKenna was 2 for 3 with a double and two RBI in the loss. The kids played hard, but simply made too many mistakes against a very good team in Abington."

Afanasiw said when you play strong teams like the Green Wave, you can't give them anything.

"They are the defending state champions, and don't do too many things to hurt themselves," he said. "We do get another shot at them in about three weeks, and it will be very interesting to see how we progress from now until then."

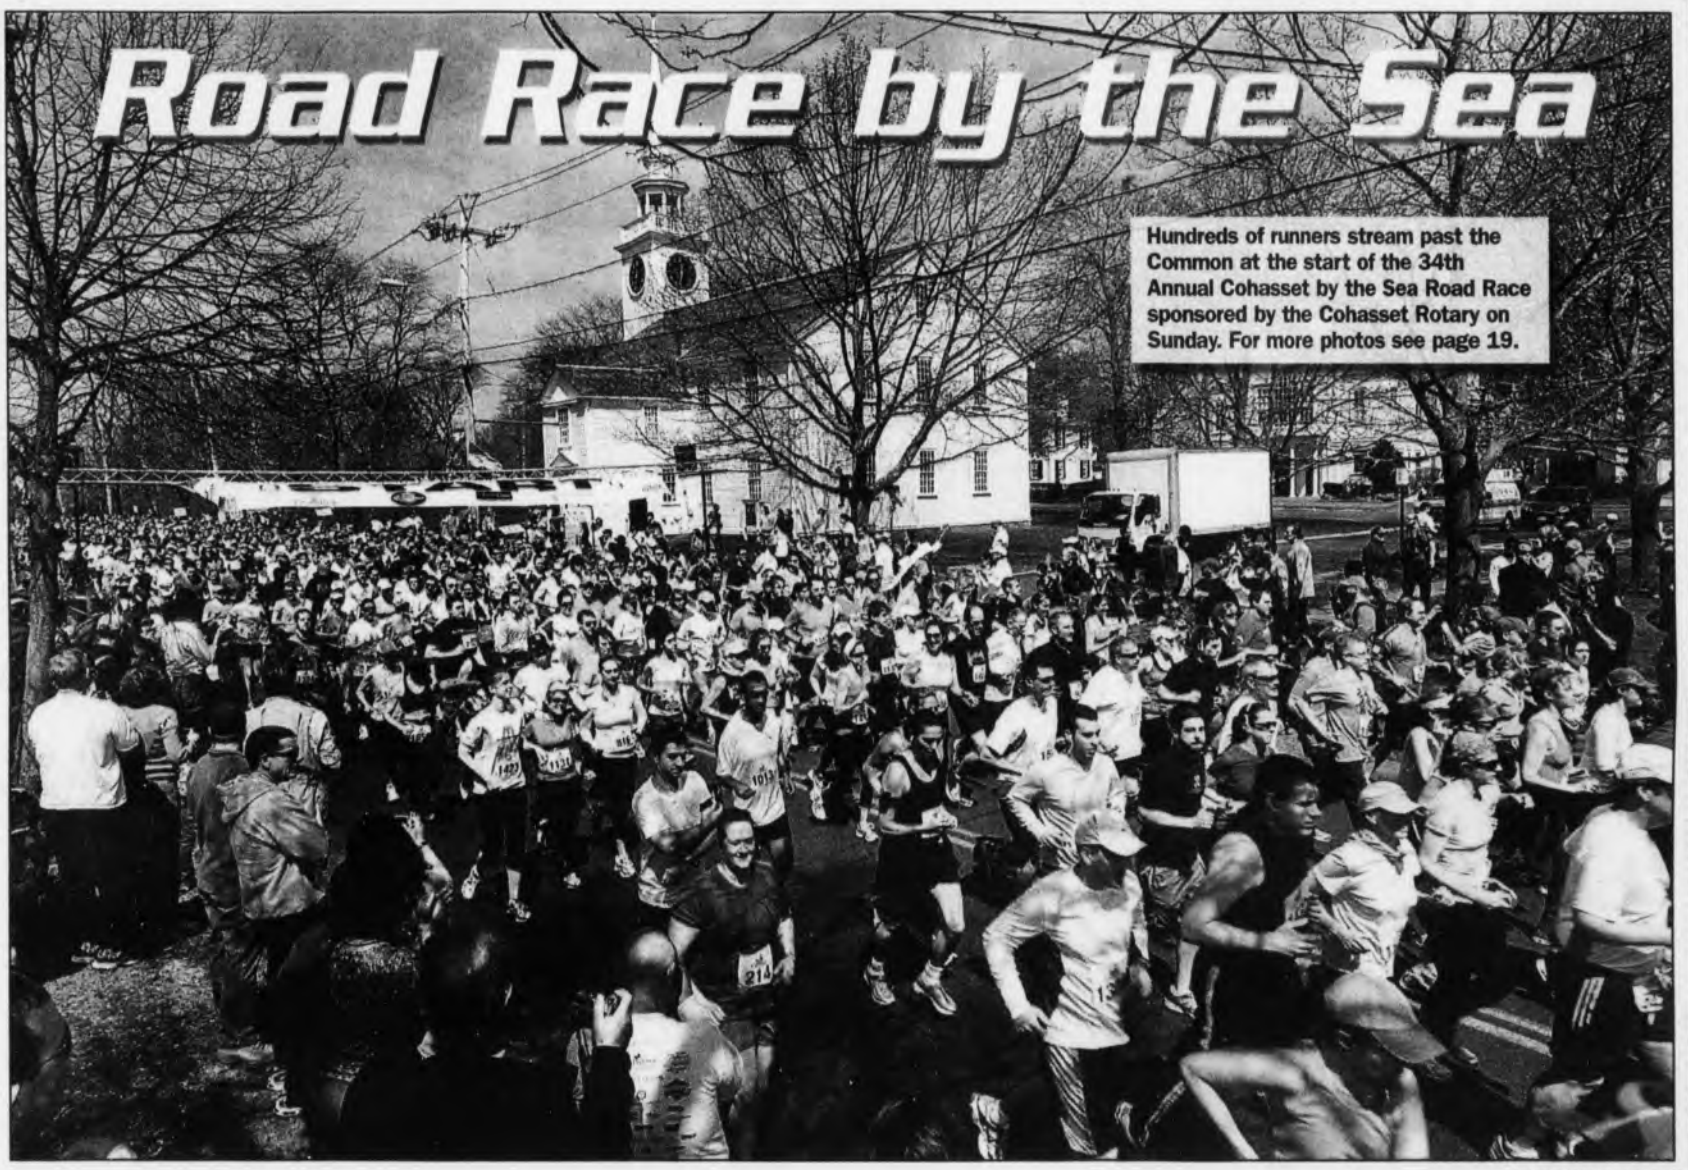
Tuesday's result was very different in an 18-3 victory.

Junior Anders Goetz pitched a complete game for the win. It was his first of the year. Goetz struck out 10, and walked only one batter, as well as allowing only eight hits on the day.

At the plate, Goetz was 3 for 5 with a triple and three RBI, and two stolen bases.

Junior shortstop Jeff Cavanaro was 3 for 5 with a grand slam and knocked in six.

Cavanaro also stole three bases.



Sophomore second baseman Jamie Faber was 4 for 5 at the plate with three RBI and a stolen base, and freshman outfielder Shane Haggerty was 3 for 4 with three RBI as well.

While the offense was prolific, Afanasiw pointed to another stat as a favorite.

"Among all of the offensive stats, the one glaring defensive item, is that we did not commit a single error the entire game," he said. "It was great to see the kids respond to the Abington loss with such a dominant performance. The kids' focus and intensity never waned, and we played very hard from first pitch to the final out."

Cohasset was at Harwich yesterday.

Both teams came into the game with 3-2 records.

Cohasset High School's Thomas Flibotte, a junior on the lacrosse team, won the Dan Dawson Skills Competition during halftime at the Boston Blazers game on April 10. The event, sponsored by Reebok, awarded Flibotte $500 for his high school team and 25 Reebok lacrosse heads. Boston Blazers captain Dan Dawson held fifteen skills competitions throughout Greater Boston and the winner of each were invited to participate in the halftime contest on April 10. The halftime contest entailed each participant showing off their best trick shot.

SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

Boys' Lacrosse

With some huge wins over the past few games, the Cohasset boys lacrosse team has made its name known once again as a team to be feared.

The Skippers are now officially ranked at the No. 1 team in Division 3 Massachusetts rankings by the Boston Herald.

If you weren't convinced about the No. 1 ranking from last week, then it surely has been solidified after this week as they beat No. 2 Dover Sherborn, and third ranked Hanover.

Oh, and did I mention it was in back to back games

On Saturday, April 10, Cohasset beat on Dover Sherborn 12-5.

The last time they met was back on June 8, 2009 in the state semi final game.

The Dover Sherborn Raiders bested the Skippers in a grueling 10-9 win to advance to the State Championship game where they lost to Scituate.

There was a lot of bad blood between these Division 3 lacrosse juggernauts going into the game with Cohasset looking for redemption and Dover Sherborn looking to knock off the No. 1 ranked team.

The first half was very physical on both sides of the ball and both defenses were impressive. These two teams usually put up a lot of points but when the first half was over, the score was only 4-3 in favor of Cohasset. Defensive standouts Jake Kissick, Dana Valentine, and Sam Leahy did a great job protecting goalie, Jack Murphy.

The second half opened with a bang and the Skippers never looked back. Offensive specialists Dean Driscoll, Will Wise, and Thomas Flibotte controlled the ball and put it in the net. They kept the pressure down on Dover Sherborn's side of the field. Even if the ball got down

Growing pains

Softball starts season with heartbreakers

Softball

New season, new challenges.

That's the way it has been for the Cohasset softball team in the early going of the 2010 season.

Last season, the team won the first South Sectional softball championship in school history.

This isn't the same team.

Graduation took it's toll, and this year's group is younger and more inexperienced.

Only two players, pitcher Kelly Naegelin and Christine Coner are back in the same positions they played last year, with Naegelin on the mound and Coner in center field. Only four returned.

Cohasset's Kelly Naegelin is one of just four returning players from last year's team, and one of two who have played the same position as last year.

COHASSET YOUTH LACROSSE

Cohasset Girls Youth Lacrosse recaps

All of these girls really made the difference with their hustle on ground balls, defense, and in unsettled situations. A nice win on a beautiful day.

U15 Blue

The U15 Blue team had a very slow start at home against Scituate and fell behind 3-0 in the first ten minutes before turning up the heat and putting together a great second half of tenacious defense and excellent ball movement. Goalie Hanna Cooper was the star of the defense and made several outstanding saves, including two awesome saves on free position shots. Defenders Shannon McGowan, Caroline Prescott and Molly Fitzgerald locked down the Scituate attack and only let up two goals over the last 30 minutes of play. Offensive standouts included Kathryn Dunn, Alex Oremus, Valerie Farren, Isabelle Dunne and Lexa Grasz. The highlight goal of the game came on a great feed from the behind the cage by Dunn, who fired one to Oremus for a pretty, quick-stick goal. Carly Kinscherf and Maggie Ernst were tough on the ground balls and Cohasset finished in style with a 12-6 win.

U15 Grey

The Grey squad made the trek to Sandwich and pulled out a hard fought 11-9 win. Allie O'Callaghan was a superstar in her first game ever in the cage, with 10 saves and two coming from free position shots. The D held tough all game with Christina Tedeschi, Caroline Evans and Isabelle Seal anchoring the unit. The Offense was led by Maddie Curley, Katie McKenna, Annie McElgunn and Grace Ryan.

U15 White

Cohasset U15 White Girls Lacrosse team travelled to Scituate on a sunny Sunday with many players who were on their second game of the day. Even with tired legs, Cohasset dominated the game from the first draw won by Lexa Grasz. Cohasset struck first with a quick goal by Kathryn Dunn. Scituate answered with a goal off a penalty shot. Cohasset continued to dominate the draw followed by a nice series of passes with Dunn assisting Charlotte Allard to close out the first quarter 2-1. Cohasset's offense came to life second quarter with more passing around the perimeter and patience in looking for a good shot. Isabelle Dunne found Caleigh Hart with a high pass that Hart fired in for a score. It was a physical game around the cage on the Scituate end and the refs weren't afraid to call penalties. Allard (3 goals, 1 assist) scored one on a penalty.

On the defensive end, Shannon McGown, Cassandra Lieberman, Emily Robbins and Caty Gilman all kept Scituate at bay and out of scoring range. Taylor Frederick, was fearless in the net stopping 7 of 11 shots on goal. Great job, Taylor. Cohasset's defense held Scituate to 2 goals in the second half.

After the half, Cohasset came out running and passing with middies Isabelle Dunne, Erin Driscoll, Molly Fitzgerald, Mackenzie Axelson all running hard and passing well to fan a scoring spree. Isabelle Dunne (1 goal, 2 assists) notched her first goal of the day with a nice pass from Hart. Next, K. Dunn found Grasz in front of the goal who then finessed a goal with a quick fake. Attacker Jackie Driscoll was in on the action throughout the game. As the penalties continued, Axelson capitalized with a hard penalty shot up in the corner. Allard won the next draw and found K. Dunn (3 goals, 2 assists) who found a lane open and scored.

In the end it was Cohasset 10, Scituate 4.

U13 White

The U13 White team had an outstanding game, with an exciting 10-8 win over Scituate at Gates Field, trading goals back to back. Alexandra Leahy was the top scorer with three goals, dominating one great draw after another as center. Colleen McKeon and Margot Robbins hit two amazing goals, with Molly Cunning, Bebe Davis and Lily Smith each hitting fast goals. Cohasset's White U13 team dominated on the field with strong passing to overtake our opposition, who was extremely challenging with quick breakouts and high scoring.

Cohasset U11 White

Cohasset U11 White travelled to Scituate in its second game of the season. The team split to have two 7vs. 7 games so all girls had plenty of opportunity to play. The girls have shown great improvement in just a few weeks of being on the field.

In one game, Scituate started out strong scoring the first goals, and controlled the first half of the game. After the half, it was all Cohasset. The game-changer was capitalizing on ground balls. Anytime a ball hit the ground, Cohasset was in the fight for it. At midfield, Emily Reppucci, Isabelle Buckley, Maggie Lucier and Margaret Norton repeatedly won possession of the ball and swiftly moved it down the field. Lauren Cunning, Julia Placek, Kate Quigley and Bridget Osten set up the offense around the cage for some swift 3-pass combinations.

Lucy St. Saveur, Emma Stephens, Kate Nee held Scituate back with tight defense, allowing Cohasset to tie the game and eventually pull ahead in the end, winning 4-3.

In the other game, the teams had goalies for the first time. Suiting up for Cohasset were first time goalies, Annie Toomey and Eleanor Dunn. They combined for three saves on 7 shots—not bad for rookies! All the girls switched positions throughout the game. In a low scoring game, Cohasset's Margaret Michalowski got the first score. She got lots of help with the sharp passing by Jane Cavanaro, Sophie Swartwood and Elizabeth Bernstein. Annie Toomey and Haley Walsh Pederson provided solid D with middies helping to mark up the active Scituate offense. In the second half both teams improved their play. Scituate and Cohasset battled the third quarter to each have one score. Eleanor Dunn notched her first career goal. Veteran 4th graders Leann Hayden and Margaret Michalowski were all over the field throughout the game providing solid defense and setting up plays for their teammates. Michalowski scored her second goal toward the end of the game off of three sharp passes from Kerr, Julian and Hayden. Scituate blocked many of Cohasset's shots with a wall of bodies, a shooting space penalty, keeping Cohasset from scoring on their many opportunities. Scituate got three quick scores in the fourth quarter for a final score of Scituate 4, Cohasset 3.

U11 Blue

The U11 Blue team hosted Scituate on Sunday. The format for the day was two simultaneous 7v7 games to maximize touches for the new lacrosse players. Cohasset remained undefeated with a combined score of 18 to 7. In one game, Cohasset dominated from the opening draw with 4 quick goals. Highlight of this contest was the selfless passing and feeding from the 4th grade veterans who assisted rookies Laney Hixson, Annie Pyne, Jane Hansen and Tillie "hat trick" McLean for their first career goals.

In the other game, Scituate fielded their top players against a predominantly 3rd grade Cohasset squad. Cohasset got off to a 7-2 lead before Scituate ironed out some kinks and made a nice comeback. Maggie O'Donnell paced the offense with three goals and some nice passing, but the real catalyst for the win was the high-energy play of Caleigh Durkin, Madison Ahern, Maeve Humphrey (2 goals), Christine Dietrich and Cora Quinlan. All of these girls really made the difference with their hustle on ground balls, defense, and in unsettled situations. A nice win on a beautiful day.

Boys Youth Lacrosse Opening Day recap

On a beautiful, sunny day at Milliken field the team battled hard during a very evenly matched contest with Kingston in the first half.

U11 Team 1 (aka Abominable Snowmen)

The Boys U11 Team 1 started the season on a very high note and were excited to finally get into some game action! On a beautiful, sunny day at Milliken field the team battled hard during a very evenly matched contest with Kingston in the first half.

Goalie Tyler Mulhern and his defensive counterparts Brendan Cooper, Joseph Wellmann, Henry Snyder, Thomas Guinee and Sully Mulhern did a great job of thwarting a quick Kingston attack and turned away several fast breaks.

Speedy middies Will Greer, Danny Durkin, Jackson Roberts, Cal Osten, David Burke, Chris Longo, Bryan Thomas, Cole Speer and Jake Allen were flying all over the field scooping ground balls and making great passes.

Attackers Mason Fitzgerald, Charlie Pyne, Nick Slamp and Thomas Marsden made life tough on the Kingston D and goalie all day long. Team 1 managed to pull away in the second half and finished a great first game with an 11-6 win.

U11 Team 3

Cohasset U11 Team 3 had an outstanding debut – beating Hanson 10-3 on a sunny afternoon. With only seven seasoned players, there was some trepidation regarding how the boys would handle their first action. This was quickly put to rest as Team 3 came out hustling and scrapping all day.

Scoring was led by Will Thomas who had a hat trick including two coast-to-coast forays from the defensive end of the field.

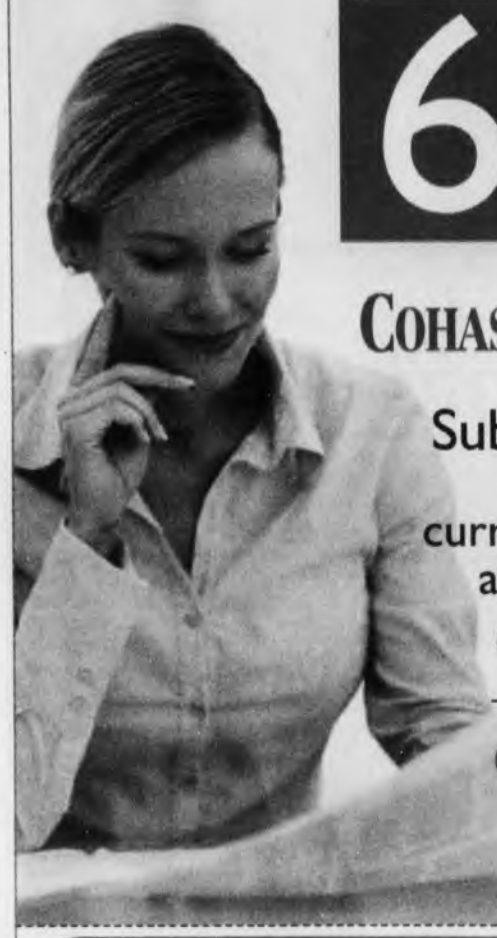
Otherwise, the scoring was very evenly distributed with single scores from Tommy Carrabes and Jay Frederick as well as career first goals from Kyle McFetridge, Cliff Ward, Hank Waters, Henry Thomas, & Jackson Fitzgerald.

The goal was ably manned by Jack Mahoney, James Krumsiek, & Ryan Donovan. Stanch performances on defense were given by Trevor Glavin, Declan Havlicek, Patrick Hagearty, and Amby Tierney.

On attack, Luke Donovan, Terrence Faherty, and Henry Thomas debuted with some stellar passing and movement. The middies carried the ball well with Max Farber and Sam Albino in particular showing some nice speed. Overall, it was an impressive first effort.

American Legion tryouts

The Scituate and Cohasset American Legion Baseball team will hold tryouts on Sunday, April 25 and again on Sunday, May 2.



Both tryouts will be held at Milliken Field in Cohasset at 3 p.m.

Any player requesting a release must try out in order to get a release.

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Legends Div. of the South Coastal Hockey League has five teams battling for the four playoff spots with two weeks left in the regular season.

The Sharks may have helped themselves as Fred Bickford of Norwell scored his second goal of the game with 6.6 seconds left as they scored the last three goals of the game to tie the Crusaders, 4-4. Mike Murphy of Hanover and Jay Sloan of Marshfield also scored for the Sharks who moved into second-place with the tie.

Marshfield's Ed Burke, Sean Regan, Ed Culhane of Cohasset and Mike Hankes scored for the Crusaders, who are in third-place.

Peter Tamborella of Pembroke, Norwell's Joe Murray and Peter MacPherson of Hanover scored the last three goals of the game as the Stingers rallied for a 3-2 Legends Div. win over the Toros.

Norwell's Mike Rober and Frank Brinkman of Pembroke scored for the Toros, who led the game, 2-0.

John Maguire of Norwell scored two goals, Duxbury's Kevin Mackin and Richard Swift of Pembroke added one each as the Whalers moved into first-place in the Legends Div. with a 4-1 win over the Saints. Charles Ryan scored the Saints goal.

Jeff Gauthier scored two goals, Jim Smith of Pembroke and Steve Mudge of Marshfield added one each as the Maple Leafs remain undefeated with a 4-1 Classics Div. win over the Red Wings. Steve Figioli had the goal for the Red Wings.

Rockland's Jim O'Toole scored two goals and assisted on another as the Rangers pulled out a 4-3 Classics Div. win over the Bruins. Mike Crisp and Joe O'Connell also scored for the Rangers, while Jim Reilly, Dennis Yates and Jim Martin of Hanover scored for the Bruins.

Tom Maguire (three goals and two assists) and Mike Maguire (two goals and an assist) combined for eight points between them as the Thunder rolled to an 8-3 Masters Div. win over the Aeros.

Pembroke's Derek Rappaport, Ed McVeigh and Duxbury's David Tearse also scored goals and Mike Joy of Hanover had three assists for the Thunder.

Mark Dorsey, Joe McLeod and Sean Taylor both of Pembroke scored for the Aeros.

Rockland's Mike Flaherty scored two goals, Hanover's Jeff Ray and Joe McCafferty added one each as the Grizzlies pulled out a 4-2 Masters Div. win over the first-place Wolves.

Pembroke' Ryan Murphy and Bob McCabe scored the Wolves goals.

Craig Ingemi scored three goals, Kevin Barnard and Ted Duggan added two goals each as the Roadrunners curised to a 10-2 Masters Div. win over the Vipers.

Bob Ward, Michael Achille and Ken Sweezey had a goal each for the Roadrunners, while Dan White scored Vipers goals.

Cohasset youth battle to end for Coastal Stars

Recently, the Coastal Stars faced off against Norwood for the Championship of the South Shore Conference and came up just short in a 4-3 loss.

The stars went down 4-1 mid way through the third period and the coaches Steve Mudge and Paul McHugh (Cohasset) pulled the goalie Kieran McHugh (Cohasset) with five minutes remaining. The Stars were able to notch two goals and closed the gap to 4-3, but time ran out as the stars came up short losing a hard fought battle. The team was represented well by Cohasset with players Kieran McHugh,Nathan Arnold, Kristina Dietrich and Katie Pyne. Coach Paul McHugh is also from Cohasset.

Coastal Stars players Katie Pyne and Kristina Dietrich are both from Cohasset.

into Cohasset's end, the defense wasn't having any of it and quickly brought it back up the field. This style of play resulted in Dover Sherborn only scoring 2 goals in the second half. Cohasset, on the other hand, netted eight in the second half resulting in a huge 12-5 win by Cohasset.

The team was very happy with the win, to say the least.

"You know, we worked real hard all week in practice," said senior captain Dean Driscoll. "Clearly it showed out there on the field and in the end, we got our revenge."

Despite the seven point win against one of their rivals, Dover Sherborn, Cohasset still had its hands full in preparing for the third- ranked team in Division 3 lax, Hanover.

On Tuesday, the Indians and the Skippers faced off in a game that was closer than expected, with the Skippers edging the Indians 8-7.

Like the Dover Sherborn game, the first half was closely contested, physical, and the score at half was 4-3 Cohasset.

One key component in this game was Hanover's James Loughlin, who played at Milton Academy last year and led the team in scoring.

He returned to Hanover this year looking for more success, but Cohasset was ready for him.

The double team of Sam Leahy and Derek Froio contained the talented Loughlin and kept him from taking over. With more top notch defense and a couple of outstand Jack Murphy saves, Cohasset was able to win the game with a final score of 8-7.

The two wins cap off a superb 5-0 start to the season.

"The best part about this season so far is how our team has played as a whole," added Driscoll. "Ever since the first day of practice our offense and our defense has been clicking. As a result, we have been playing great out on that field."

Thursday marked the start of the 3rd Annual Chowda Cup Memorial Tournament.

The four teams participating this year are Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield, and Catholic Memorial. The first round games were Thursday with Cohasset (5-0) vs. Marshfield (3-0) and Scituate (3-2) vs. Catholic Memorial (5-2).

Results were unavailable at press time.

The winners face off in the finals Saturday and the losers of these games also face off this Saturday playing for 3rd.

"Every team we face is a threat, and that's the team has been practicing so hard," said Driscoll. "There are no easy match ups in this tournament so we need to play our best and work together every minute of every game to ensure victory in the Chowda Cup."

In the 2009 Chowda Cup, Scituate beat Cohasset in the opening round in a heart breaking 10-9 overtime loss for the Skippers.

Marshfield won last years Chowda Cup so a Cohasset win in the first round would crush their dreams of a repeat.

Softball starts season with heartbreakers

FROM SOFTBALL, PAGE 17

Meredith Kelly has moved from first base to shortstop, and Carly Martin has made the transition from third to first.

So far the overall results have been mixed, with the team opening the season with a 1-2 record that included a pair of tough losses.

"In our first home game against Mashpee we trailed 1-0, then tied it 1-1 in the middle innings," Cohasset's new coach Torin Sweeney said. "Then we gave up two runs in the top of the seventh inning. We made a few mental errors defensively and offensively we let a few opportunities get away."

Sweeney is in his first year as head coach, but was with the team as an assistant last year. He also coaches golf and wrestling at Cohasset.

In the loss, Naegelin struck out 17.

"It's a shame to have 17 strikeouts and still lose the game," Sweeney said. "She only gave up four hits. One was to her pitching counterpart, but we made a critical error late and Mashpee is solid. They played good defense."

Cohasset followed with an 8-6 win over Abington on Monday in a back and forth game. Naegelin gave up eight hits, mostly of the seeing-eye type and bloopers, but fanned 11.

In their latest game, the Skippers lost another heartbreaker, 3-2 in extra innings.

"We got a homer from Kayla Orner, who was hitting in the four spot and Kelly was flying along with 11 strikeous," Sweeney said. "She was doing a really good job. Then in the top of the seventh we got a walk and two great bunts for an insurance run. In the bottom of the seventh they led off with a double. We had an opportunity for a double play but didn't turn it and that gave them life. They scored two to tie and won in extra innings. That was as frustrating of a game as any I've ever been in."

With that said, Sweeney is hoping his young squad will turn things around.

Naegelin has been solid and Kelly has been outstanding at shortstop.

"Kelly had seven assists against Carver," Sweeney said. "Her fielding has been great. She's been flawless. I think she's enjoying the position. We go where she goes."

Orner has played well and has a home run.

Other youngsters Sweeney has high hopes for are catcher Michaela Brophy and Sara Mavilia and Haley Wheelwright.

Wheelwright and Mavilia are platooning in right and second base, whil Brophy is settling in nicely.

"Michaela is doing a nice job," Sweeney said. "Kelly likes her. She's gotten comfortable with her."

Cohasset played a big one against Harwich yesterday.

Before that, he said the team had a very good practice and talked about the things they need to improve on.

"We will have growing pains," he said. "We have a younger team and do have to grow into it. We talked about things today, had a good practice. I hope it translates into the game tomorrow."

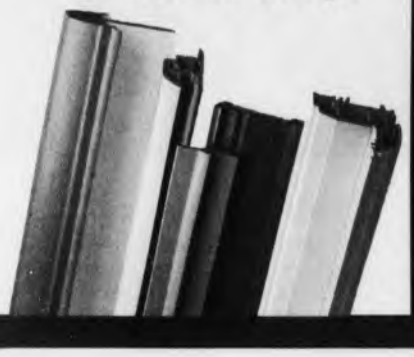
For those who don't want to replace their replacement windows.



To ensure the durability of our patented Fibrex® material window, we've kept the same window frame submerged in a Florida swamp since 1988. To this day, our testing engineers inspect it every year, and there has been absolutely no change. Our other weather-testing sites in sub-zero Minnesota and the Arizona desert have yielded the same result: after 22 years in the worst conditions, the very same Fibrex® material has remained unchanged.

Why do we perform this crazy weather-testing? To build the best replacement window, that's why. Our practically indestructible Fibrex® frame keeps our glass from shifting and our insulating seals intact, even during drastic temperature changes. This is how we maximize your home's energy-efficiency, season after season, year after year.

- With the $1,500 Federal Energy Tax Credit ending this year, don't get the tax credit "run-around" from another company whose windows don't qualify.
- Our windows have glass that's up to 70% more energy efficient, saving you substantial money on energy costs.†
- 96.2% of our installations have begun and ended on time.
- Every installation finishes with a thorough cleaning with a EPA-compliant HEPA vacuum cleaner, removing debris as small as one micron from your home.
- Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish window replacement subsidiary of Andersen—the most recognized name in windows.

Prom, report cards and Kentucky Fried Chicken!

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Wootay (combination of "woot woot" and "hooray" for Wednesday!) Why? Because Wednesday was a half day.

The first word that comes to my head when I think about this week is sunshine. Contrary to the previous weeks, you could actually see the large orangish/yellowish circle. That means me and my peers no longer look like ghosts. Some look like cooked lobsters though as they were must have forgotten their SPF 40.

Monday was the first day of term numero (or nombre or number) quarto (or quatre or four). You know what that means? This is my last term EVER in high school. Ever. Yup, I got about 25 days left of high school as of Friday. Then it's off to lounging around on my friend's boat. Then off to college. Then off to a low paying job. Then off to rising through the ranks using hard work and dedication. Then off to buying a Lexus. Then off to marrying someone I met oversees on some exotic island. Then off to having kids with the island girl I marry. Then I move back to Cohasset and raise him to write "Life at CHS" articles every week. Too much information? Yeah but that's expected from me.

Not much at all happened during the school day of Tuesday, but a lot went on at night. The post prom committee met Tuesday night to discuss the events taking place at the undisclosed location of the post prom party. I was asked to get your ATTENTION and tell you that the post prom committee is in need of donations to make the party the best it can be for the senior class that deserves it the most. Please donate and ensure that there will be a fun and safe environment for kids to go to after prom. You wouldn't want Mr. Skipper to have a sub par prom, would you? My thoughts exactly. So yeah. All you senior parents need to donate some cash is the moral of the story. Thank you.

Wootay (combination of "woot woot" and "hooray" for Wednesday!) Why? Because Wednesday was a half day. Shortened periods allow for more fun in the day which is always welcomed by myself. I immediately drove to Kentucky Fried Chicken to get the new Double Down sandwich. You know…the new sandwich that substitutes chicken for bread? Needless to say it was the best thing I have ever consumed. Whoever invented it deserves the Nobel Prize for Awesomeness. Man I feel bad for bread. Pretty soon it's gonna be obsolete after the Double Down debuted. Peanut butter and jelly sandwiches will soon be sandwiched in between fried chicken. Can you say Utopia?

I was not in school on Thursday. I do know there was an activity period. That means everyone probably got their report cards back. In a nutshell, that means a lot of kids were like "yippee!" and then other kids were like "Oh crap! It's gonna be a bad April Vacation.

Friday is BLOOD DRIVE DAY! WOO HOO! It's my favorite time of the year. Badgering people to get a pint or two of blood taken out of them is such a satisfying job. You know that I will always be the first to get my blood removed; now it's your job to do the same so we can save as many lives as possible. Remember, you only need to be 16 to save a life. If you don't save a life now, then you have to go into the Army and stay in the Middle East until you save someone's life. I suggest you go the blood drive route. With that being said, text or call your child (because everyone had their cell phones in class) once you read this if it's before 1 p.m. and tell them to donate blood.

At the conclusion of the week, everyone frolicked outside to enjoy the April Vacation presented before them. Fishing, boating, shooting, and tanning. That's about all this guy is gonna do this next week. I apologize for missing last week's episode/article, by the way. I wrote it but had a ridiculous brain fart and forgot to send it. I will catch ya again the week after the vacation. Have a nice vacation by the way.

Sean MacCarthy ran 3 miles on a whim the other day…mainly to make up for eating the KFC Double Down…

Cohasset students dig up some fun

The COMPASS enrichment program recently finished a month-long study of dinosaurs. Students participated in a wide variety of activities ranging from building their own fossil models to eating dinosaur eggs. Art and gym activities taught about the lifecycle of these amazing animals and students even had some good clean fun by excavating their own fossils.

Last month, students learned about the Arctic and Antarctic. Students participated in hands-on activities that helped teach them about the Iditarod race, penguins, polar bears, and some of the "coolest" places on earth.

The COMPASS program is available to any interested Cohasset families. Contact Mr. Erick Amero at eamero@cohassetk12.org or 781-383-8223

CAMP JOBS & INTERNSHIPS: A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITY

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director American Camp Association, New England

Since camps ARE worlds created exclusively for children, folks working at camp typically enjoy spending time with children, but not every camp employee works directly with children on a daily basis. There are some camp jobs and internships that involve the care and keeping of the camp and its equipment rather than that of the campers!

The American Camp Association, New England has compiled a list of essential and lesser known jobs that are required at camps across New England.

The General counselor - couselors, which is the most common job, work directly with children-teaching, role-modeling, listening, problem-solving, chaperoning, entertaining, supervising, and helping in various ways.

The Shopper - a chief provisioning role in camp requiring numerous trips to various stores, to the Post Office and to perform errands.

The Driver - (may require special license)—drop off and pick up those canoers or hikers on out of camp trips, run camp errands, take a camp team to compete at a neighboring camp, drives campers to doctor/dentist visits, or picks up and drops off staff and campers at the airport or bus station.

The Kitchen Staff - can be perform highly specialized tasks (pot scrubber or dishwasher) or general ones (assistants can do everything from chopping veggies for the salad bar, receiving deliveries or serving up food).

The Maintenance/ Ground Jobs - mow fields, deliver camper gear on opening and closing day, do odd jobs involving basic carpentry and/or brute strength, perform maintenance for camp vehicles and other equipment, like boats, and keep camp looking neat.

The Office-Based Staff - deal with the ever-growing mounds of camper mail and email, keep up with registration and health forms and parent requests, and offer a friendly voice on the telephone.

The Lifeguard - uses that Red Cross credential to keep campers safe in the lake or pool.

In Animal Care - horses, small farm animals - llamas even - are an important part of camp programming and camp life; animals require attention and care during the hot summer months.

Check out positions like these as well as other camp jobs on ACA, New England's website (click on "camp professionals" and then "jobs").

Broad Cove Chorale celebrates 35 years

Anniversary concert May 1 in Scituate

The Chorale will present a special anniversary concert, under the direction of founder Margo Euler of Hingham, at 8 p.m., on Saturday, May 1, in the Arts Barn of the Inly School in Scituate.

For 35 years, the Broad Cove Chorale has held the distinction of being the only women's chorus on the South Shore performing the classical repertoire while also exploring "The American Songbook," barbershop and folk music. The Chorale will present a special anniversary concert, under the direction of founder Margo Euler of Hingham, at 8 p.m., on Saturday, May 1, in the Arts Barn of the Inly School in Scituate.

When anniversary years come along, Chorale alumnae are often invited to join the current singers. This year's returning alums will include Carol Whittaker of Braintree and Rena Zeller of Hingham, who sang with the original Chorale in 1975, and soloist Karen Ginsburg of Norwell, who will be featured in the classical portion of the concert.

The event will showcase the many and varied talents of BCC members. Flautist Christa Prescott of Plympton and oboist Sally Davenport of Hingham and the South Shore Conservatory will at times step out of their singing roles to perform with accompanist Mark Goodman. Anne Reel of Cohasset will take the audience back to the '60s with her guitar. A barbershop quartet and a bit of Broadway, including dance, will round out the evening. A reception will follow the concert and will feature a slide show looking back on highlights of the Chorale's 35 year history.

Tickets are $15 in advance or $18 at the door. They are available at Noble's in Hingham Square, Hingham Public Library, Buttonwood Books in Cohasset, and by calling 781-749-0162. Inly School is at 46 Watch Hill Drive, directly on Route 123, in Scituate near the Norwell town line.

GIMME SHELTER

Roxie loves to be brushed

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is looking for a "forever and ever" home for Roxie. Roxie is a 3-year-old white and black, absolutely gorgeous female cat. She is longhaired but adores being brushed. She will purr and turn the other way as if to say, "brush this side now." She would like to be an only cat. She loves attention and deserves a special home.

The shelter has open hours from 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. If these hours are inconvenient, call Shirl, the adoption coordinator, at 781 925 3380 for an appointment. Also check out the website at www.hsar.org and meet other friendly felines. The shelter is at 50 L Street, Hull. The mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787. Hull, MA 02045. Telephone numbers are 877-378-1195 and 781-925-3380.

Give us a call if you' like to become a member and help keep our shelter running smoothly and our cats purring.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
APRIL 26, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You still might have to deal with some lingering confusion that marked a recent workplace situation. But for the most part, you should now be well on your way to your next project.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new commitment might demand more time than you'd expected to have to give it. But rely on that special Bovine gift for patience, and stick with it. You'll be glad you did.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're earning the admiration of a lot of people who like the way you handle yourself when your views are on the line. Even one or two of your detractors are being won over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking your responsibilities seriously is what you do. But ease up on the pressure gauge and make time for much needed R & R. Start by making this weekend a "just for fun" time zone.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Some recently uncovered information might make a change of plans inevitable. If so, deal with it as quickly as possible, and then find out what went wrong and why. What you learn might surprise you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Aspects favor moving carefully and deliberately when making any significant changes. Could be there are more facts you need to know, which you might overlook if you rush things.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A problem neighbor might be looking to goad you into an action you don't want to take. Ask someone you both respect if he or she would act as an impartial arbitrator for both of you.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A recent workplace accomplishment hasn't been overlooked by those who watch these things. Meanwhile, start making travel plans for that much-too-long-deferred trip with someone special.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Those money matters continue to move in your favor. Now would be a good time to start putting some money back into the house, both for esthetic as well as economic reasons.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A changing workplace environment can create job pressures. But, once again, follow the example of your birth sign and take things a step at a time, like the sure-footed Goat you are.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Cheer up. You could soon have the funds you need for your worthy project. Your generous gifts of time and effort are well known, and someone might decide it's time to join with you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your inner scam-catcher is right on target, and you're absolutely right to reject that "too-good-to-be-true" offer. Meanwhile, something positive should be making its way to you.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Ordering flags for Healing Field

The Sons of the American Legion is planning to install a Healing Field as part of the town's Memorial Day 2010 observances.

The effort should result in hundreds of American flags on eight-foot-tall poles temporarily installed on the town-owned island at the corner of Border and Summer streets. The island faces Veterans Memorial Park where the annual Memorial Day observances are held.

The flags sell for $25 and can be dedicated to anyone. In other words, the purchase of a flag is not limited to those honoring someone who is serving or has served in the Armed Forces. (Those who purchase flags will be able to pick them up after 10 days).

Checks should be made out to the Sons of the American Legion, with a note on the memo line indicating "Healing Field" and sent to Sons of the American Legion, PO Box 118, Cohasset, MA 02025. For more information, please visit www.healingfield.org/cohasset or contact the Legion post at 781-383-9657 or stop by the post at 98 Summer St. any weekday after 3 p.m., Saturdays after 10 a.m. or Sundays after 12 noon. Applications for Healing Field flags are available at the Post. All proceeds will go to veterans' projects of the Sons of the American Legion.

The Healing Field will be on display from May 22 to June 1. The dedication is scheduled for 1 p.m., Saturday, May 29.

'Addams Family' reunites on Broadway

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

The mysterious and spooky, but perhaps not altogether ooky Ad-dams Family first burst onto the scene in the 1930s in a series of sketches and drawings by cartoonist Charles Addams in The New Yorker magazine. Since then, the twisted yet charming Gomez, Morticia, Uncle Fester, Wednesday, Pugsly, Grandma, and Lurch have appeared in a classic 1960s sitcom, two feature films, and now a Broadway musical, which opened earlier this month at New York's Lunt-Fontanne Theatre.

Setting the macabre to music is a good move, according to West Dennis native Fred Inkley, who appears in the new musical as one of the Addams' ancestors.

"The characters are already well known and well liked. And the story Marshall Brickman and Rick Elice have written for them here works very well because it has wonderful comedy, but also some very engaging drama, too. What I remember from the very first night of rehearsals, however, was that I went home humming the music which was a good sign that our audiences would leave smiling and humming the tunes, too, and that our composer, Andrew Lippa, had done a good job," explained Inkley recently by telephone from his home in Cedar Grove, N.J.

Starring two-time Tony Award winners Nathan Lane and Bebe Neuwirth, "The Addams Family" musical features an original story about something parents – at least those like Gomez and Morticia Addams – dread. Their little girl is fast becoming a woman and, making things even worse, she's falling head over heels for a well-mannered young man from a very proper family. Indeed, Wednesday Addams, devotee of darkness, has found herself a "normal" boyfriend. For Wednesday's morbid Mom and Dad that's a hard-to-swallow development, especially when they must host a dinner party for the young man and his parents.

Fr Adam Riegler, Jackie Hoffman, Bebe Neuwirth, Nathan Lane, Kevin Chamberlin, Krysta Rodrigues and Zachary James in the "Addams Family."

West Dennis native Fred Inkley plays one of the Addams' ancestors in the "Addams Family."

"The Addams ancestors are there to assist Uncle Fester in moving Wednesday's love affair along and to do some singing and dancing along the way, too. We weren't given very much backstory on the ancestors, but at one rehearsal Bebe gave us each names. Bebe named me Preston Addams, and then I added Ascot in the middle just to dress it up a bit more. I imagine my character as a former World War I doughboy. And since I relate more to Lurch, I'm probably his father."

Inkley remembers enjoying the old black-and-white "The Addams Family" TV series, starring Carolyn Jones and John Astin, in reruns and is now enjoying the benefits of being with the new musical from an early reading, through a winter tryout in Chicago, and now on Broadway. "I think it makes a real difference when you're with something like this from the beginning. It becomes like your child. You care that much more because you're there from the start. The nice part about a cast as good as ours is that they meet and exceed all the expectations you could ever have for the show. We work well together, too, because we have all been together since the very beginning."

Inkley – who in addition to playing an Addams ancestor is understudy for the characters of Lurch and Mal Beinecke – got his start in 1965 when he was born at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis to parents Fred and Janet Inkley.

"When I was born, my mother was a nurse at Cape Cod Hospital and later she became my school nurse at Ezra Baker elementary school in West Dennis." It was as a child that Inkley, along with older brothers Kevin, who now lives in Warwick, R.I., and Brad, who makes his home in Yarmouth, first discovered theater.

"As kids, we always did the plays with John and Betty Kelly at Allegra Academy in Orleans. They taught us a great deal about voice and dance," says Inkley, a 1983 graduate of Dennis-Yarmouth Regional High School who was the first musical theater major to graduate from Catawba College in Salsbury, N.C.

A college production of "Hair" brought Inkley together with his future wife, Tori. Now married 22 years, the couple have a son, Zack, 18, and two daughters, Kiersten, 15, and six-year-old Madison.

While raising his family, Inkley has also been chocking up impressive theater credits, including a starring role in the long-running first national tour of "Beauty and the Beast" and two stints on Broadway as Jean Valjean in "Les Miserables." Living in New Jersey and working in New York hasn't, however, curtailed his Cape connections.

"I've sung the national anthem for the past four years at the annual 'Pops by the Sea' concerts on Hyannis Village Green. Those appearances have given me the opportunity not only to sing with Keith Lockhart and the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra, but also to meet and work with guest conductors like William Shatner, Ray Romano, Henry Winkler, and Angie Dickinson. I'm planning to be there again on August 1, although I don't know yet who they'll have as celebrity guest conductor this year. I'm also planning to sing with the Cape Symphony at Barnstable High School for their holiday concerts in December."

Even with "The Addams Family" playing to packed houses on Broadway, Inkley's mind still sometimes drifts to summers on the Cape.

"My father passed away a few years ago, but my mother still lives in the house my brothers and I grew up in, so we're back there often. I love taking my kids to West Dennis Beach and to other places we really like including the Red Cottage Restaurant on Old Bass River Road in South Dennis. They do a really great breakfast there. The owner and chef, Dan Rosenbach, is an old high school friend. He's been down to see 'The Addams Family.' Dan transformed the Red Cottage from a convenience store to a neat little breakfast spot. Dan's a nice, nice guy and a really good egg – no pun intended."

"The Addams Family" is at the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre, 205 West 46th St., New York. For tickets and information, call 877-250-2929 or go online at theaddamsfamilymusical.com

South Shore Conservatory presents the Sherwoods of Cornell in concert on Friday, April 23, 7 p.m. at the Ellison Center for the Arts in Duxbury, and on Saturday, April 24, 7 p.m. at One Conservatory Drive, Hingham. An a cappella group in the traditional sense, the Sherwoods have performed annually since 1985. Their group is comprised of Cornell graduates from 1958 to 1974 and their repertoire includes ballads, and close-harmony arrangements, seasoned with original jokes, stories and clever song introductions. One of the group's baritones is Hingham native Ron Johnson. Tickets, at $15 for adults and $5 for children, may be purchased online at www.sscmusic.org, or by calling 781-749-7565, ext. 20.

Fey and Carell save the 'Date'

Film Review
AL ALEXANDER

Date Night (B-)

Claire (Tina Fey) and Phil (Steve Carell) get caught up in a mystery in "Date Night."

It's no secret that marriage can get boring, especially when kids, jobs and exhaustion get in the way of intimacy. Add to that the contempt bred by familiarity and you have a recipe for divorce.

To combat this malaise, some dope invented date nights, a weekly ritual in which man and wife must force themselves to get off the couch, ditch their sweats and engage in extemporaneous conversation while stuffing their mouths with over-priced entrees in under whelming venues.

I've never understood the point. And, thankfully, neither have the makers of "Date Night." They mock the phenomenon with just enough cynicism to hook you into their otherwise pedestrian tale about Phil and Claire Foster, a long-married couple from Jersey dealing with fissures in their relationship.

They've been running on fumes for months, and Steve Carell and Tina Fey perfectly express the stress and anxiety resulting from that beatdown. You see it in their faces and hear it in their voices as they lamely feign disdain for the couple pawing each other at the next table; secretly longing for that to be them.

It's great to watch because it's honest and it's genuine. And if director Shawn Levy and writer Josh Klausner had stuck to that level of realism, they might have really been on to something.

Instead, they fritter it away on a familiar yarn in which the Fosters become victims of mistaken identity after they steal another couple's dinner reservation at an exclusive Manhattan restaurant.

Before you can say "After Hours" and "Adventures in Baby Sitting," they've stepped through the looking glass into a dark criminal world where mobsters and crooked cops are in hot pursuit of them and a computer flash drive containing prized information.

Beyond a surprising dearth of laughs, the chief problem lies in the movie's episodic structure, which, like marriage, begins to take on a sameness, as the Fosters draw the ire of a series of special guest stars.

Meanwhile, we're trying to guess what's on the flash drive that's causing so much chaos and destruction. The bigger question, though, is why did so many talented people get mixed up in this?

Just look at the names: Mark Wahlberg, Mark Ruffalo, Kristen Wiig, James Franco, Mila Kunis, Ray Liotta, Leighton Meester and Taraji P. Henson. Not to mention Fey and Carell, two of the hottest comedians working today.

Apparently they saw something I'm missing amid the perfunctory action and strained jokes holding "Date Night" together like low-gauge baling wire.

And speaking of baling… there were many moments during the mercifully short 88 minutes when I was tempted to ditch this "Date." But Carell and Fey were always there waiting to lure me back to the table.

I'm glad I stayed, too, because watching those two work their magic is fascinating, even more so when it's in service of an inferior product like this one. You marvel at their skill and their versatility, as they seamlessly jump from comedy rooted in subtle irony to full-on slapstick and back again.

They also have chemistry to burn. And like an old married couple, they play off each other in perfect rhythm. It's in the details, though, where they truly excel. Whether it's a look or a shrug, their interactions always feel real.

The supporting cast is equally strong, but it's Franco and Kunis who leave the most indelible impression as the nefarious couple whose dinner reservations the Fosters make the mistake of stealing. They do more in five shorts minutes of screen time than the rest of the cast combined. They even actually made me laugh aloud, a rarity in a movie full of flat, obvious jokes.

Normally, that would be a deal-breaker, but with this charming ensemble and the good will they inspire, there's more than enough here to make this a "Date" worth keeping.

Rated PG-13. "Date Night" contains sexual and crude content, adult language, some violence and a drug reference.

The geese-fighting duo

Cohasset woman, her Border collie handle 'fowl' problem

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The grassy fields that look out to the blue waters of Hingham Harbor beckon passersby to stop for a respite. The expanse of green grass surrounding the iconic gazebo begs to be walked on in bare feet or sat on for a bit of sunbathing.

Upon closer inspection between the blades of grass there is a not so appealing prospect — goose droppings.

For years now, the park at Hingham Harbor has been a hot spot for Canada geese congregation. They come in the dozens, feast on the mowed grass and enjoy the harbor view.

But, that all changed earlier this month when the geese met Zinger, a 10-year-old Border collie hailing from Cohasset. Zinger and his owner, Judy St. Peter, were recently hired by the Town of Hingham to deter the geese from coming to the harbor area.

"The geese love mowed grass, being near the water and having an open vista (to allow for a quick getaway)…this is the perfect spot for them," St. Peter said.

This week, about a month after Zinger made his first visit to the harbor, there was a vast reduction of geese in the area. On Wednesday morning, just three Canada geese loitered on the grass near the gazebo. Once Zinger arrived they fled — squawking all the way — to the water, and then, when pursued, they flew away from the area.

"It's not an easy job; it's relentless," St. Peter said. When she and Zinger were first hired they were down at the beach four times a day – rain or shine, holiday or no holiday.

"You have to be really persistent. The geese have to find out there's a new sheriff in town."
— Judy St. Peter

"You have to be really persistent. The geese have to find out there's a new sheriff in town," St. Peter said, adding the geese were extremely established at the location. "They've been coming here for generations and we have to break that."

Now, just a few weeks later, the geese have gotten the message and Zinger's visits have tapered off, but the geese will return again after their young are born and he will be back again to do his job more frequently.

In the beginning, the duo would work in one area, then return a few hours later to work in another area. Different families of geese would come at different times of day and each had to learn this was no longer a safe place to be. They would approach from different places to catch the geese by surprise.

If there is a large group of geese, Zinger will run right toward the gaggle and, at the last second, angle around them to scare them away and force them to take flight.

The geese know the difference between Border collies, who are shaped more like coyotes, and other dogs, like Labrador retrievers, St. Peter said,

Women can learn self-defense

RAD course to be taught by police officer

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The women of Cohasset can now be prepared to defend themselves — and carry themselves more confidently.

The Cohasset Police Department is launching a new course to teach women from their teens to their 60s the basics of self-defense.

"Some walk into the class a little shy and the confidence level when they leave is like night and day."
— Officer Jay St. Ives

The nationally recognized Rape Aggression Defense (RAD) system is a comprehensive, women-only course that begins with awareness, prevention, risk reduction and risk avoidance, while progressing on to the basics of hands-on defense training. The ultimate mission is to empower women with the skills they need to keep themselves safe.

Officer Jay St. Ives, who joined the Cohasset police force full-time in November, has teamed up with middle-high school physical education teacher Deb Beal to teach the course. The first session is offered on three consecutive Saturdays in May (May 8, 15 and 22) at the Middle-High School from 9a.m. to 1p.m. Registration is through the Cohasset Recreation

Making use of MBTA lot

Grant would set stage for 'alternatives'

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Free parking (on the weekends) and overnight parking at the MBTA station?

It's possible, if Cohasset is awarded a Clean Air and Mobility grant.

Approximately $2 million is available at the state level to fund projects that promote clean air and mobility.

The Massachusetts Planning Organization is overseeing the Clean Air and Mobility grant, which gets its funding from the federal government.

The grant program is looking for projects involving alternative transportation options, sidewalks, increased signage for walking paths or bike lanes. The ultimate goal is put efforts in place that will improve air quality and mobility, and reduce congestion in the region.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer came before the Board of Selectmen in February to discuss possible projects appropriate for the grant.

PICTURE THIS/Nan Jordan and Jeffrey Benham

Names: Nan Jordan & Jeffrey Benham.

Occupation: SSMC Box Office Manager (Jen). Cape Cod Melody Tent Box Office Manager (Jeff).

Best day of your life: When my children were born (Nan). The day I met my girlfriend. And no, she didn't pay me to say that (Jeff).

Best vacation: Visiting a friend at the Huntinghill in Charleston, West Virginia (Nan). My girlfriend and I spent a week exploring all over Florida last year; everything from Disneyworld to Fort Myers to seeing the Red Sox in spring training (Jeff).

Favorite season: Fall (Nan). Fall: Thanksgiving, football, my birthday, what's not to love? (Jeff).

Favorite holiday: Thanksgiving (Nan). Thanksgiving. I love that it always brings family together, and I can't ever get enough turkey and stuffing (Jeff).

Favorite junk food or meal: Peking Duck in Beijing (Nan). I don't consider it "junk," but anything chocolate. But especially dark chocolate, so at least it's healthy, right? (Jeff).

Best book: "The Secret," by Rhonda Byrne (Nan). "Now I can Die in Peace," by Bill Simmons (Jeff).

Best movie or actor: "The Hurt Locker" (Nan). Johnny Depp. The man can literally play anything (Jeff).

Best TV show: CBS News Sunday Morning 9-10:30 a.m. (Nan). "The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air." Will Smith in his prime and Carlton…need I say more? (Jeff).

The Mariner caught up with Nan Jordan and Jeffrey Benham at the South Shore Music Circus this week. The box office is now open for the season!

Best music, group, or artist: Michael Jackson (Nan). Ben Folds (Jeff).

Fun fact: At age 40-plus, the waitress at the restaurant asked for my ID when I ordered a glass of wine – in front of my husband and mother-in-law (Nan). I used to play drums in a band that showcased the APAP Conference in New York City (Jeff).

Pet peeve: Biting your nails. The sound of it just gets under my skin (Jeff).

Goal: Stay healthy, happy and be the best mom to my children (Nan). Without looking too far into the future, my goal this summer is to help make everyone's experiences memorable and enjoyable with a great season at the Melody Tent (Jeff).

Person you'd most like to meet: No one (Nan). Andy Kaufman (Jeff)

Biggest worry: My children's future (Nan). Life getting ahead of me before I have time to catch up (Jeff).

Best part of Cohasset: South Shore Music Circus (Nan). Not to sound like a homer here but…The Music Circus! (Jeff)

Theft of plants, tools being investigated

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police are investigating the apparent theft of a power washer, valued at $900; a leaf blower, valued at $400; and a quantity of hydrangea plants, valued at $300, that went missing from a business on Route 3A (Chief Justice Cushing Highway) last week.

The owner of the business, a 45-year-old Norwell man, reported the overnight theft at about 9 a.m. on Monday (April 12). Detectives are following up, police said.

MV crashes

• A 1999 Ford F450 truck, operated by a 50-year-old Hanover man, was backing out of a service garage on North Main Street at about 10:12 on Monday (April 12) without clear sight lines and hit a 2006 Ford pickup that was traveling south on North Main Street. Police said the big truck backed out and the pickup, operated by a 47-year-old Cohasset woman, could not stop. The pickup was towed. There were no injuries, police said.

• A 2008 Chevy Tahoe, operated by a 50-year-old Rockland man, was headed north on Route 3A at 12 p.m. on Saturday (April 17) when it rear-ended a 2005 Nissan Altima, operated by a 35-year-old Scituate woman, that was stopping at a red light at the lights at Stop & Shop.

Police said there were no injuries. The Altima was towed and the operator of the Tahoe was cited for following to closely.

• A 53-year-old Hull woman reported to police that her 2009 Honda Accord was backed into by another vehicle while parked in the parking lot at Cohasset Plaza; the other car then left. There was minor damage to the Accord. The accident was not caught on the surveillance tapes, police said.

Gate damaged

Witnesses reported to police seeing a truck – a 2004 GMC pumper truck — that manages the portable toilets at the Beechwood Ball Park hit a gate at the park, twisting it as it turned right onto Doane Street at about 5:50 p.m. on Monday (April 12). Witnesses reported seeing the driver – later identified as a 36–year-old Hyannis man — get out and look at the gate and then drive off. The company will make restitution, police said.

Purse on ground

A resident, whose house abuts the Town Hall parking lot. reported hearing a loud bang and when she went out to investigate found a woman's pocketbook on the ground at about 9:10 p.m. on Monday (April 12) and she called police.

Police said further investigation revealed the purse belonged to a 54-year-old Hingham woman attending the AA meeting at Town Hall, whose car was broken into while parked in the parking lot that night. The woman's ID was still in the purse that was found but her wallet with $50 in cash was missing, police said.

MV theft

A 45-year-old Quincy woman is facing charges of receiving stolen property (a car); using a motor vehicle without authority and operating on a suspended license after taking the car belonging to her boyfriend last week. The 54-year-old Cohasset man called police and said he took a nap on Wednesday (April 14) and when he awoke his car was missing; he suspected that his girlfriend had stolen it. Police located the car in Tedeschi Plaza and arrested the operator. She was held in the lockup overnight and was arraigned the next morning on the charges at Quincy District Court.

Lawnmowers

A junk dealer removing dilapidated lawnmowers from the former Joseph's Hardware on Route 3A was stopped by police after they received a report about someone removing lawnmowers from the site. The lawnmowers were "scrap" and the Bank of Canton, which owns the inventory, gave the OK, police said.

OUI arrest

A 63-year-old Marshfield man who was driving a 1999 Lincoln Continental on Route 3A near Pond Street was arrested for drunk driving on Friday (April 16) at about 8 p.m. Police said the Lincoln was traveling 55 in a 35 mph zone and was "all over the road." Police stopped the car near Shaw's. The operator failed several field sobriety tests and was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol. He was also charged with marked lanes violation and speeding.

Dispute

A 60-year-old Cohasset woman is in a dispute over credit card charges by a contractor she hired for work at her condo and reported the matter to police. The contractor was given authorization to use her credit card but then used it for some additional work that exceeded her authorization. At this point, it is a civil matter, police said.

Expired license

A 58-year-old Cohasset woman is being summonsed to court for speeding and driving with an expired license. The woman was stopped at about 5:20 p.m. on Tuesday (April 13). She was clocked by radar as traveling about 45 in a 35 mph zone on Sohier Street. Further investigation revealed she had an expired license, police said.

Pole

A 79-year-old Cohasset woman driving a 2002 Volvo apparently backed into a pole in a parking lot off Route 3A prompting a witness to call police at about 11:10 a.m. on Saturday (April 17). Police said her car tapped the pole; there were no injuries, no tows and no damage.

RAD course to be taught by police officer

Department.

"The program's objective is to develop and enhance the options of self-defense, so they may become viable considerations to the woman who is attacked," St. Ives said, who has been a certified RAD instructor since 2001. At his former job as a police officer for UMASS-Boston he underwent a weeklong training program to become a certified instructor.

The course is not a martial arts program, but it does cover the basic self-defense moves: stances, strikes, kicks and ground defense.

But, more importantly, St. Ives said, is the confidence the students can gain from learning self-defense and how to best carry themselves to lessen their risks.

"The first class is in a classroom setting. We talk about being aware of your surroundings, recognizing bad situations, avoiding them," St. Ives said. "It is amazing the difference in confidence after even the first class. They keep their head up; they walk with confidence."

During the 12-hour class, students learn about risk awareness, risk reduction strategies, risk recognition and risk avoidance.

One of the bonuses of taking the course is it comes with a lifetime return and practice policy if a woman finds she'd like to brush up on her skills a few years down the line.

When St. Ives taught the course to college-age women at UMASS-Boston he heard back from many students how they incorporated what they learned into their everyday life.

"We absolutely always heard how the way the woman carried herself after the course changed, and that's really what we try to stress," St. Ives said, adding there were some more rare cases where RAD graduates had to use the physical self-defense training she received.

"Some walk into the class a little shy and the confidence level when they leave is like night and day," St. Ives said.

St. Ives encourages any woman to sign up for the course from high school seniors heading off to college to stay-at-home moms alone during the day to early morning runners.

"It's an intensive course, but anyone can get something out of it," St. Ives said.

The course is yet another means for the Cohasset Police Department to interact with members of the community.

"Part of the motivation is to carry out the mission of community policing, be visible and active," St. Ives said. "We want to build positive relationships."

This is the first time – at least in recent memory – a RAD course has been offered in Cohasset.

"I'm pretty excited," St. Ives said. If the initial program is successful St. Ives hopes to expand and offer the program at different times and for age-specific groups.

More information on the RAD system is available at www.rad-systems.com or by picking up a brochure at the Cohasset Police Station. Registration for the course is through the Recreation Department (www.cohasset-rec.com); cost is $48 for the 12-hour course. Any questions, call Officer Jay St. Ives at 781-383-4138 x1037.

Joseph's Hardware put on auction

Joseph's Hardware and an adjacent lot off Route 3A were put up for auction last week. But, the foreclosed property had no takers and went back to the holder of the defaulted mortgage.

The auction included two commercial buildings, one of them being the Joseph's Hardware Barn, and approximately 1.5 acres of land. The former Joseph's Hardware was described as a retail building with 3,392 square feet of gross building area located on a 36,800 square foot lot. An adjacent lot closer to Route 3A featured a 2,388 square foot building and 29,200 square foot lot. A third parcel is vacant lot of about 1.5 acres where Joseph's had a permitted expansion for the hardware store. The properties are zoned highway business.

The auction was a mortgagee's sale of real estate. The Bank of Canton held the mortgage given to Baron "Barry" Joseph, who owned and operated Joseph's Hardware. The auction was held on Thursday, April 15 at 11a.m.

Joseph's Hardware, the Cohasset location and three other South Shore locations, were forced to close in January when Norfolk and Plymouth County Sheriff's seized all the inventory of the hardware chain.

The seizure was the final act in a civil suit brought against the owners of Joseph's Hardware by Holbrook Cooperative Bank. In default, according to the bank, was a $500,000 loan signed about a year ago by Joseph's wife, Jenny Madden, who was also the company president.

Zinger, a Border collie, walks back to Judy St. Peter after chasing Canada geese from the fields by the gazebo at Hingham Harbor.

Border collie handles a 'fowl' problem in Hingham

which what makes them so successful at this job.

"Any dog would not be effective as they don't represent themselves as a predator in the way a trained Border collie does. He does not harm the geese, in fact he is only designed to herd them. This is the most humane method and the most natural method," St. Peter said. The geese them move on to find out a safer haven for their young.

On the job, the tri-color Border collie is fast, athletic and focused. His motivation to listen is not a treat, but rather the opportunity to be sent out on assignment once again, "it's like a game for him, he likes and needs that mental stimulation," St. Peter said.

The path to goose management

Zinger and St. Peter have been partners for over eight years. St. Peter became interested in "goose management" when Canada geese became a problem in her Lily Pond neighborhood. She researched the best way to deal with a geese problem and found border collies were used in other communities with much success. She spoke with people who had border collies for this purpose and border collie breeders before taking the leap herself.

She found Zinger, a one-year-old stock trained, purebred border collie. The only way the breeder would sell her the dog was if he had a job to do. So, St. Peter, a painter and performing artist, found a job for her and Zinger.

For the next six months, St. Peter and Zinger worked together on a sheep-herding farm in Middleboro. She learned to use a shepherd's whistle and he learned to respond to it. She trained him on hand signals and they learned about each other.

"We brought him far enough so I could work with the dog on my own," St. Peter said. She has no formal dog training, just a strong interest and fascination in the ways and minds of dogs, and animals in general.

After the sheep came the geese. St. Peter approached the town of Cohasset in the early 2000s to get permission to use the dog to help with goose management in various parts of town.

"The Board of Health was on board. Geese are part an aesthetic issue and part a health issue," St. Peter said. A single goose that's grazing can drop as much as a pound of excrement in one day, she said, making what should be vibrant open space very unattractive, and unsanitary.

Together, she and Zinger worked at eradicating the geese population at Milliken Field and areas around Lily Pond. They've worked for private residences and the Scituate Country Club.

"He became pretty popular, not with the geese though," St. Peter quipped.

They even had a foray into wild turkey management when the Vedanta Center, located on Beechwood Street, called because the turkeys were coming too close and scaring some of their visitors.

"The turkeys are a lot bigger than geese and twice the size of Zinger, but he didn't even think twice," St. Peter said.

St. Peter herself is an animal lover, "to an extreme," she said. She currently has two dogs, four cats, and one ferret. She once had 12 animals at one time. She is the person who stops traffic in order to aid a snapping turtle crossing the road; she has tools in her trunk to help her move the snapping turtle safely. She's successfully socialized feral cats, too.

"I can't handle seeing animals abused in anyway," St. Peter said. If a goose gets hurt in the herding process she brings it to the New England Wildlife Center to be looked at.

When not chasing geese Zinger is comfortable lounging at home with his family, both human and furry.

"He's extremely biddable, he's like Lassie," St. Peter said petting him on the head. "He's just a sweet, sweet, sweet dog. He's one of those very rare dogs to me."

Judy St. Peter of Cohasset stands with her dog, Zinger, on the Bathing Beach at Hingham Harbor. The duo has been hired to help rid the Hingham Harbor area of Canada geese.

Grant sets stage for more use of MBTA parking lot

Brewer came armed with ideas, but only two of them panned out into applications.

A community outreach meeting was held in March where residents were encouraged to come with ideas on how to make alternative transportation more accessible.

The application coming from the town of Cohasset is to make some inexpensive changes to possibly increase the use and accessibility of the MBTA Cohasset Station parking lot off Route 3A. The first prong of the application is to waive parking fees on the weekends.

"I think it might encourage more use of that resource on the weekend," Brewer said. While there are typically only a few cars parked there on Saturday and Sunday if more families took the train in to Boston they could make up the loss revenue in train fare, Brewer said.

The Massachusetts Planning Organization would need to work with the MBTA to see if they would be willing to change their policy on parking for a set period of time, Brewer said.

In addition, a brand new bike train begins across the street from the Route 3A entrance to the train station and connects to Wompatuck State Park. Brewer said if there was parking available bike riders might be more inclined to begin their ride from there.

The second prong of the application is allowing overnight parking at the MBTA station. Twenty parking spots on the eastern side of the lot would be set aside for the use of business travelers or vacationers using the commuter rail to get into Logan. There would be a daily fee.

"Right now people heading to down Washington, D.C. on business overnight have no other choice but to drive in," Brewer said, adding the program would be done on a trial basis. If successful, the program could be expanded to other MBTA stations.

The grant request is for $2000 for some signage and monitoring of the program. Brewer will make a presentation to the Massachusetts Planning Organization in mid-May to describe and answer questions on the proposal.

Although not coming from Cohasset, another grant application would impact residents of the town. Scituate has applied for funding to construct a sidewalk from the Cohasset town line on South Main Street to the Lincoln Park senior housing complex, which would provide a continuous sidewalk from Cohasset to the North Scituate commuter rail station and business district.

"It's one of those projects, inter-municipal projects that's rare when it happens," Brewer said. "It would provide (pedestrian access) to a business district and the train."

Brewer said the Cohasset Selectmen and the Planning Board have provided letters of support to the Scituate application.

The Scituate grant application requests $49,900 for the sidewalk; the town also submitted two other applications for sidewalks in other parts of Scituate.

The timetables for most grants that become available require quick turnarounds between the time they are announced and the time the applications are due. The tight deadlines often make it difficult for volunteers to get town input and support on appropriate projects for the grant program.

Brewer, as a member of the Planning Board, is trying to get an on-going discussion started on transportation planning for the town board, "that way we'll be ready for grants when they come out," Brewer said.

Bike racks are in

Last winter, Planning Board member Clark Brewer came before the Selectmen to gain permission to apply for a $3000 grant to purchase several bike racks. Cohasset was awarded the grant and the bike racks have arrived. They will be placed at key places throughout the village, the Little League fields on North Main Street, and Town Hall.

The grant is from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council as part of their regional bike-parking program.

The grant only pays for the purchase of the bike racks, not for their installation. The rack installations are currently in progress.

If any groups or individuals are willing to donate time to install the bike racks, contact Brewer at"

Young Mother Loses Post-Pregnancy Weight In Less Than Four Months!

Before

After having my children, finding time to work out was a challenge. I had gained a stubborn 20 pounds that just would not stay off. A friend of mine was getting results at Get In Shape, so perhaps I could too?

Get In Shape was an eye opener for me. I thought I knew what it took to be fit and healthy, but I didn't. The staff taught me the key elements to overall fitness. Nutrition and exercise became a focus. They work well together, not alone. Once I made these changes and followed the program I really began to see results. I've lost 20 pounds and feel fantastic!

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES DIRECTORY

TECHNOLOGY AT SUMMER CAMP

By Bette Bussel – Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

*IT'S NO LONGER ABOUT WHETHER TECHNOLOGY IS IN USE AT SUMMER CAMPS—IT'S ABOUT HOW.

Even the most traditional summer camps utilize technology in one way or another – however, it's often in the background of the camp experience. Some campers may never come into contact with technology since this is an intentional aspect of their program design; but technology probably powers those camps' websites, offices, and the business side of their operations.

Other campers may find themselves interacting with technology frequently. Computer camps, camps that offer video, photo editing and writing seek to improve their campers' knowledge of technology. There's certainly a continuum; technology-free and "unplugged" is at one end and computer/technology camps and programs are at the other. In the middle, there are many ways that technology is in use at summer camp—either directly by campers or for their direct benefit. Families should ask camp directors to what extent technology plays a role at camp and what's available for use by the campers and encouraged for parents.

Many summer camps rely on technology to stay in touch with campers' families.

- Email: Some camps encourage families to send camper email and many camps have put into place intricate systems to receive email messages daily.
- Photos & Streamed Video: Creative use of technology to minimize interruption of the child's experience has increased in recent years. Some camps post photos or streaming video content on their websites. This gives parents the information they want while it allows campers to experience safe independence.
- Fax Machines: Some camps deliver fax messages from parents and send messages from campers back to their families.
- Phones: A caution to parents and kids, though: cell phones in general are not encouraged for camper use; but some full and half season camps (4-8 weeks) offer organized use of land lines for camper communication. Ask prospective camps about their cell phone policy.

Summer camps are intentional communities! Expect most to be very intentional about how technology influences the camp experience they offer!

Stormwater committee charges ahead

Inventory of flooding to be developed

The flood survey is the first of its kind in Cohasset, but going forward will be updated annually.

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On the heels of the rainiest season in decades stormwater and flooding is in the forefront of Cohasset residents' minds.

The newly re-energized Stormwater Advisory Committee has been working toward developing a plan to deal with the myriad stormwater issues throughout town. But first, they need to understand where the issues are.

The committee of three has met a half a dozen times since being appointed in late January.

"We are getting some traction," Noel Collins, chairman of the Stormwater Advisory Committee, said. Jim Fitzgerald and Ross Rosano join Collins on the committee.

In the upcoming weeks, the committee is kicking off a series of efforts to step up community outreach and begin to get a bird's eye view of this town-wide issue.

The charge of the committee, in short, is to serve as an advisory committee devoted to stormwater issues from public education to working with affected residents to recommending capital expenditures for stormwater remediation to reviewing reports for the EPA.

One of the important duties of the stormwater advisory committee is to be a forum and clearinghouse of sorts for stormwater issues. Various stormwater/flooding hot spots, like Treat's Pond/Atlantic Avenue and Jacob's Meadow, have been the controversially debated over the past few years.

One of their first efforts is to do an inventory of flood prone areas. The development of a town-wide map of flooding issues, their frequency, the source, and the severity will be a tool to help identify the biggest areas of concern and therefore, focus. The flood survey is the first of its kind in Cohasset, but going forward will be updated annually.

"It's one of our official charges," Collins said. The committee will be speaking with the Selectmen about the effort at Monday's Selectmen meeting.

A public meeting will be held on Thursday, May 6 at 7p.m. where residents can come to discuss any and all flooding or drainage matters. Residents who might not be able to attend can provide the committee with information on their stormwater issues.

The committee is requesting the following information:

- Location of flooding
- Frequency of flooding (every storm event, heavy storm events, only at high tide, etc.)
- Source of flooding (runoff from up gradient area, water body over spilling banks, groundwater infiltration, sewer line backup, etc.)
- Description (providing details on flood area, depth, how long it lasts)
- Individual reporting with contact information, if more information is required
- Any other relevant information.

The committee is also looking into how the process is working for the stormwater management bylaw, which is overseen by the Conservation Commission (the permitting authority) and the town's stormwater agent, Norfolk Ram.

"We want to talk to the constituents and see how the customers feel about it," Collins said. The stormwater management bylaw was passed by Town Meeting in 2008.

No sparks at Cohasset Plaza hearing

Loading dock, fire lane and buffer zone discussed

The application is for a 30,000-square-foot building located to the rear of the property...

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

After more than a month hiatus the developers of a new building at Cohasset Plaza were back again before the Planning Board.

Armed with a new set of engineering plans, they discussed changes and improvements to the proposed development. The application is for a 30,000-square-foot building located to the rear of the property between the other two already-built buildings and is currently before the planning board for site plan review.

In the last month the project has worked with various boards and town departments on different portions of the project and made adjustments to the plans as a result.

Civil engineer for the project, Jack O'Leary of Merrill Associates, said at the fire department's request, they made several traffic flow improvements, such as wider lanes at the entrance and alterations to the landscaped islands. At a session with the Design Review Board, an advisory board to the planning board, there were suggestions for increased pedestrian amenities (crosswalks, sidewalks) inside the plaza as well as some landscaping improvements.

O'Leary said they have also met with the water department and Conservation Commission.

There are still several missing pieces to the application. The planning board is waiting for an updated landscaping plan, a detailed architectural plan, drainage calculations and a traffic report.

Planning Board chair Al Moore has some concern about the 30-foot "green belt" buffer zone required because the property borders a residential district. A portion of the soil absorption pipe is located in this area and Moore asked Town Counsel to look into whether that was allowable under the zoning bylaws. It is unclear whether the zoning bylaw language prohibited underground structures in the buffer zone.

"I'd like to get this resolved before we move too far forward," Moore said.

The town's consulting engineer John Modzelewski has some concerns about the configuration of the loading dock, both in a practical and aesthetic sense, "it's a very awkward situation."

The loading dock is currently sited on the Stop & Shop side of the building and does not have any screening, "if you could shield that loading area so it is not as easily viewed from the street," Modzelewski said.

There was some discussion about the "fire lane" located at the rear of the building. The width of the lane and the design, which is like an alleyway with only two exits at each end of the building, raised some concerns on the board. The building and a retaining wall border the fire lane.

"It effectively creates a channel where the only exits are at the ends, given that is there a safety issue?" asked planning board member Stuart Ivimey. Another concern was if the lane was wide enough. The fire department and regulations call for an 18-foot fire lane, the current design is 20-feet, but Modzelewski said they might need to take into consideration the door swing on the rear exits.

O'Leary said he and the architect would work together to see what improvements could be made to the rear of the building and the fire lane.

"This is one of those inter-related design decisions that if one discipline is driving the bus you can miss something," said planning board member Clark Brewer.

Attorney for the project, Charles Humphreys, said in a previous hearing on the project that there are currently no specific tenants for the proposed building, but they intend to seek three larger tenants to occupy the space. He said the new building would allow the landlord to offer tenants space that is three times the size of the current space available at the plaza.

The plaza, which currently has two large buildings at either end of the site, is home to Stop & Shop, Feng Shui, Papa Gino's, Blockbuster and others.

The public hearing on the project has been continued to Wednesday, May 19 at 7:30p.m.

Wind energy forum April 27 at library

The Wind Energy Center has been recognized both nationally and internationally for its leadership in wind energy research.

The Alternative Energy Committee has been asked to host a public forum in order to get citizen direction in light of a review of the wind bylaw, which was unanimously adopted at Spring 2008 Town Meeting. Presently, the AEC is in its fourth year of working toward the siting of a turbine on town owned land at the Transfer/Recycling facility.

On Tuesday evening April 27th at 7 p.m., the AEC is hosting the first in a two-part series of presentations and discussions on wind energy and site issues. It will be held in the Community Room of the Paul Pratt Library.

Mary Knipe, a Research Fellow and staff engineer at the Wind Energy Center of UMASS/Amherst will present WIND 101: a comprehensive examination of wind energy development from the aerodynamic design and siting of onshore and offshore wind turbines, to the social, economic and environmental impacts as well as the implications of new legislative initiatives.

The Wind Energy Center has been recognized both nationally and internationally for its leadership in wind energy research. Ms. Knipe is directly involved in various aspects of wind power, including managing Massachusetts wind energy pre-development. She will share her experiences in working with Massachusetts communities who are in the process of siting and or have already sited wind turbine facilities. A Q&A period will immediately follow the presentation.

There will be a second follow up meeting which will also be held at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library to be held on Wednesday, May 12.

Opening day parade and ceremony

The CYBSA will hold its annual Parade and Opening Day Ceremony on Saturday, May 1. All teams will gather in the vicinity of the Town Common Pond at approximately 8 a.m. and start the parade at 8:15 a.m. The players and their coaches will proceed down North Main Street to Barnes Field where opening ceremonies will be held.

This is a time-honored tradition and special event that brings out fans young and old. Join the festivities and help kick-off another baseball and softball season.

HOLLY HILL

Basket-making workshop Saturday

Holly Hill Farm, 236 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, will host the following workshops. Some of these events require pre-registration, by calling Jon Belber at 781-383-6565 or visiting the website at www.hollyhill-farm.org.

Basket Making Workshop – Saturday April 24, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Join basket making artist Sharon Owens for this day-long workshop at the farm. Learn the art of creating a one-of-a-kind basket using natural materials. Each participant will take home their own basket. Bring a bag lunch and plan for a creative day. Cost is $75 members, $115 non-members, including all materials. Pre-register as space is limited to 10 participants.

Stroll with the Birds – Saturday, April 24, 8 a.m. Join Holly Hill Farm neighbor and expert bird seeker Sally Avery on a lively walk in the woods and field edges at the farm. Wear boots, dress in layers and bring binoculars. Cost is $4 for members, $6 for non-members.

Soil is Alive! How to Improve Soil and Compost – Saturday, April 24, 10 a.m. Dave Macdonald, owner of Summit Landscape, NOFA certified land care professional, will offer a workshop. Participants will discover the mysterious marvels in the soil and examine through the microscope lens the multitude of hard working organisms that make up the "soil food web." Bring a sample of soil and compost to see how "alive" it is. Attendees will learn ways to improve the health of soil and crops, and gain an understanding of the importance of using organic methods vs. the toxins that destroy the biology of soil. Cost is $12 members, $15 nonmembers.

Yoga on the Farm – Friday, April 30, 10 a.m. Certified yoga instructor Lyn Pompeo will offer an outdoor yoga class at Holly Hill Farm. Come stretch, relax and take in nature among the growing fields at the farm. Bring a yoga mat. Light refreshments to follow. Cost is $8 members; $12 for non-members.

Poetry revision workshop Tuesday

Grub Street South at Buttonwood, a workshop for writers, will meet at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, April 27, at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset. Instructor will be Joyce Wilson. She will present a poetry revision workshop, with an emphasis on revision-revising for clarity, enhanced meaning and sensitivity.

It is a practice to revise poems many times before they are complete. Wilson will lead discussion about revising poems that begin with an awkward event or painful memory, how to transform these initial scribblings into finished poems that stand on their own.

A Scituate resident, Wilson has been an active participant in the poetry communities in Boston, Cambridge and on the South Shore. For more than a decade, she has edited The Poetry Porch, a magazine on the Internet. Her poems have appeared journals, among them Agni and the Harvard Review. She recently published her first book of Poems, "The Etymology of Spruce."

Reservations are requested and can be made by calling Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

SHARE FUN

Hello Cohasset. How is everyone doing this week? Many of us are enjoying a school vacation with our families whether here in Cohasset or traveling around. Make sure to send any photos or stories in next week to let us know some adventures that you were able to share with family and friends.

SWEET 16

A very special wish is being sent out to Callie "Coconuts" Piepenbrink as she celebrates her Sweet 16th Birthday today, April 23rd! Where the time went I have no idea but Callie, Dad and myself, Daniel, Cody and all of your friends and family wish you a super, magical Sweet 16! Happy Birthday Coco, we love you so much.

BIRTHDAY WISHES

I also want to wish Jamie Litchfield a belated happy birthday that he celebrated last week on April 15th.

ANNIVERSARY

Happy eighth Anniversary to a special couple from here in town, Tom and Dee Wigmore. I know that so many send you both the very best in wishes as you celebrate and enjoy this year and many more together.

GETTYSBURG

Megan Sacks of Cohasset, a junior at Gettysburg College, is spending the 2010 spring semester studying in United Kingdom.

Gettysburg College offers off-campus study abroad opportunities that supplement and enhance regular on-campus courses.

Send us a postcard,Megan!

EXETER

Sam Game of Cohasset, a grade 12 student at Phillips Exeter Academy, earned honors for the 2010 winter semester. He is the son of David A. Game and Sally L. Sisson.

Keep up the good work, Sam!

ANIMAL SHELTER

The Scituate Animal Shelter will hold its 7th Annual Golf Tournament on May 21 at Widow's Walk Golf Course. The afternoon tournament will feature prizes, raffles, and Par 3 Poker. 18 holes of golf with cart and dinner at the historic Barker Tavern for only $125. The Shelter is also seeking corporate sponsorships and items for raffle donations. Tournament registration is on a first-come, first-served basis; reserve your place soon by sending in your registration with payment. Registration forms are available at the Shelter and on our website at: www.ScituateAnimalShelter.org. For more golf tournament information, call 781-545-8325.

YARD SALE

Spring Cleaning? Don't Throw It Away! Why not donate it to a worthy cause? The Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will hold its 9th Annual Yard Sale on May 15th from 8-12. The proceeds from this annual event will go towards the Joseph F. Walsh Memorial Scholarship Fund. This scholarship, which has been awarded every year since 1978, goes to honor a civic-minded Cohasset graduating senior. This yard sale will be held at 23 Hill Street in Cohasset. Please call Agnes at 781-383-0222 or Donna at 781-383-9144 to donate your items.

BOOKS IN BLOOM

April 28th through April 30th, The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will once again transform the Paul Pratt Library with beautiful floral arrangements. Each club member who participates will choose a book whose title suggests Spring or the Seashore. Then, through the use of flowers and plant materials, they will create a floral arrangement that interprets the title of the chosen book. Arrangements can be viewed on Wednesday, April 28th and Friday, April 30th from 10 am to 5 pm. This wonderful event is free and open to the public.

GUARDIAN ANGELS

Karen Paolino, author of The Everything Guide to Angels will be presenting "How to Meet Your Guardian Angels" on Wed. April 28th at 7:30. Karen will be at the Second Congregational Church in Bates Hall. As a teacher and intuitive Karen has been blessed with the opportunity to help thousands of people through her books, workshops and retreats. There is a $10 admission.

RELAY FOR LIFE

The American Cancer Society is gearing up for the 26th Relay For Life here in Cohasset being held on Friday, June 11th and Saturday, June 12th beginning at 3 pm. As we all know, the dreaded "C" disease affects children, adults and families way too often and cures and treatments are being worked on day and night. Awareness, the ability to raise funds to help support the American Cancer Society in their efforts and support for the families who are affected by this disease is what is needed.

As a member of the Cohasset Committee for the last several years, I am asking you to consider being part of a team, starting your own team and for businesses, think about becoming a sponsor. The Relay this year is a family theme with entertainment, a Children's tent, the very popular "Taste of the Relay", the Survivors Tent and lap and the Luminaria Lap. Also, we will have a Children's Lap to allow our youngest participants to show their support as we work to help battle this disease.

On Sunday, April 25th from 3-4 pm at the Our World Children's Museum will be an Ice Cream Social for teams, captains and families to come together and we would love to have you come and join us on this day. For more information, please contact Harry St. Onge at st.onge@comcast.netor by calling Harry at 781-254-3400. Hope to see you there!

SWIM/DIVE TEAM

The Cohasset Swim and Dive Team would like for all involved to know some of the upcoming dates and times. Swimmer registration for the Cohasset Swim and Dive Team 2010 season sign-up for returning athletes will be held on Saturday, May 1st from 8-11 am at the Rec Center (behind the Red Lion Inn). The Cohasset Swim and Dive Team will be holding the try-outs for the 2010 season on Wednesday, June 16th from 3-5 for swimmers and 5-6 for divers. The rain date is on Thursday, June 17th with the times being the same.

Home Instead SENIOR CARE®

by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison
SENIOR READING
As people age, they may experience ailments such as poor eyesight, strokes or other medical conditions that deny them the ability to read for themselves; however, that does not mean that there is a loss of interest. These seniors may love to have someone read them a book, an article or the daily news, and find it to be a relaxing and enjoyable experience. Reading helps seniors remain aware of what is going on around them and helps keep their minds sharp. Having someone to sit down and read to them can have a positive impact on their health and long-term mental well-being. A non-medical home healthcare aide can provide this valuable service.
Reading is just part of the companionship that our home healthcare aides provide. While we can also take care of everyday chores, like grooming, bathing and cooking, the most important thing we offer is the warmth of human caring and company. Defusing the loneliness that can afflict seniors helps keep them in their homes much longer. We place experienced and compassionate caregivers with seniors who require a wide spectrum of care, from occasional help with errands to full-time live-in care. Call 781-878-2994 today to set up an initial sit-down to discuss your needs, your parent's needs and what we can do to help you both. We're available day or night, because we know that a crisis may strike at any time. Our address is 145 Washington Street, Suite 11. In-home help for Massachusetts seniors.
P.S. When reading to seniors, just the sound of a voice can be very therapeutic.

Helping hands make light work

O'Donnell family to host clothing drive

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Outgrown clothes, too tight shoes and no-longer-played-with toys aren't doing any good inside your house, but bring them to a Beach Street home in a few weeks and they could do a lot of good for a local child.

The O'Donnell Family is hosting a donation drive at 11 Beach St. for Cradles to Crayons, a local non-profit group, on Saturday, May 15. It is their second drive in two years and they are aiming, with help and support from the community, to top last year's results.

"What makes me feel good is that the things that are donated go straight from my kids' closets to the closet of a child who needs that particular item," Kari O'Donnell said. While other charitable organizations sell donated goods, then use the money to run programs that help people, Cradles to Crayons provides those gently used donated goods to local disadvantaged children.

"The stuff just goes to the right place," O'Donnell said.

Cradles to Crayons is a mechanism to provide "hand-me-downs" to kids that are in need. The non-profit organization based in Quincy is a means of connecting communities that have everything, and in some cases more, than they need to communities that might need a little help. Through a network of over 400 social service organizations based in Massachusetts Cradles to Crayons is notified of specific kids' needs (a pair of shoes, a week's worth of clothes, baby supplies, or a backpack with school supplies) and then provides that to them at no cost.

According to their web site, in 2009 they provided 45,000 local children with basic essentials.

Cradles to Crayons' vision is that one day, every child will have the basic things they need to be safe, ready to learn and feel valued.

At last spring's clothing drive the community was able to fill a 21-foot U-Haul truck with clothing, toys, baby items and other miscellaneous goods.

"This is an organization building on community involvement," O'Donnell said.

The community support, with limited notice, was "incredible," O'Donnell said. Through networking with local families and a small notice in the Mariner's "Around Town" section brought out families with bags of outgrown clothes, shoes and toys.

A jump house, hot dogs and cotton candy made the clothing drive more of an event than a drop off spot. The kids helped sort the donations in between spurts of playtime. About a dozen kids came to lend their two hands in the effort.

"I feel good knowing all the little kids that don't have enough are going to get stuff they need," said Healy O'Donnell, 7.

The O'Donnell Family was as surprised as anyone at the response it received from the community last year.

"It became a true organic grassroots drive and it was really great to see the kids helping kids, even though they don't know them," O'Donnell said, this off-season drive coincides with many families' spring-cleaning efforts.

The O'Donnells hope to create the same, but bigger, community effort this year and have already reserved a bigger U-Haul. They will have the jump house, the hot dogs and the cotton candy machine back again.

"Everyone's welcome. You can just drop off, or grab a hot dog or lend a hand in sorting the donations," O'Donnell said.

As a family the O'Donnells go together to the Cradles to Crayons warehouse for two hours every month.

O'Donnell said the work isn't difficult; children and adults can participate in the sifting, sorting, cleaning and packing up. The family always caps off the volunteering with a game of hide and seek at the warehouse.

"It's fun, I think it is a really good experience to know how good it feels to give to kids who don't have," said Emma Murphy, a Hingham resident and friend of the O'Donnell family. Often the O'Donnells bring friends to their monthly volunteering at The Giving Factory in Quincy.

Last year over 16,000 volunteers donated their time and energy to "The Giving Factory" at Cradles to Crayons. An even greater amount donated new or gently used clothing to the organization.

The Cradles to Crayons organization saw a 40 percent increase in demand for winter coats between 2008 and 2009.

"As the economy suffers, there are more people in need," and as the organization gained more recognition, more social service organizations were turning to Cradles to Crayons for help, O'Donnell said.

Cradles to Crayons is devoted to providing kids (up to age 12) with basic items such as clothes that match, shoes without holes, books to read, toys to play with and a backpack to bring to school.

Donations will be accepted at the O'Donnells home at 11 Beach St. on Saturday, May 15 from 8a.m. to 2p.m. There is an additional drop-off time on Thursday, May 13 from noon to 5p.m. For more information, contact Kari O'Donnell at kariod@comcast.net or www.cradlestocrayons.org.

Make your property more sustainable

Gardeners are beginning to realize that some of the traditional gardening practices like using pesticides and fertilizers result in killing bees and polluting local waterways. We love nature and don't want to harm it, but how do we keep our gardens manageable? Amy Martin, a South Shore landscape designer, will be giving a presentation on easy steps to make your property more sustainable for the environment and for your lifestyle and pocketbook, including information on organic gardening and lawn care, planting with native plants for healthy ecosystems, and managing rain water with rain gardens from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, April 29, at the Paul Pratt Library. Free. All are welcome!

Reviewing racing matters this week

COHASSET SAILING CLUB

The Cohasset Sailing Club offers sailors from youth to adult the opportunity to race.

The last two articles on the Cohasset Sailing Club (CSC) focused on its Adult program (April 9) and its Junior program (April 16). This week's piece gives a general overview of the CSC's racing component as it pertains to both programs. Simply stated, racing boats will definitely help sailors of any age master and refine their sailing skills. Plus, it is just a lot of fun.

The most important point that the CSC wants to stress is that if you are qualified to race — meaning a kid has successful completed all four years of the Junior program and an adult sailor has passed the helmsman test — you are welcome to race. There are no formal tryouts or informal vetting procedures, as some members may have experienced with other sports in the past. The CSC sponsors a racing team for the teenage members, practices on the 420s five days a week with a racing coach, and travels to local and regional sailing competitions throughout the summer. The Stanton series regatta, held on Sunday evenings, pairs a parent or another senior family member with a junior member at the Mate level or above. Using the CSC's Capris, the junior member serves as the skipper and the adult serves as the crew. After the racing concludes, there is a family-style cookout with the CSC supplying the hamburgers and hotdogs and the various families bringing a dish to pass and their own beverages. Trophies are awarded at the end of the season.

Membership applications and sign-up forms for the Adult and Junior programs must be turned in on Registration weekend...

For adult members, the Porter series regatta held on selected Thursday evenings offers a friendly challenge. Bob Deutsch, the Adult program coordinator, particularly recommends it as a way for adult sailors to improve their skills. Skippers and crew are paired up on the Capris, and there is post-racing refreshment. We are particularly interested in getting more participants this summer — last summer was hampered a bit by the particularly rainy weather. Like other sports competitions there are all types of levels, ranging from the local fun run to an ultramarathon. The Porter series is more akin to the former than the America's Cup, and we hope that more adult members will give it a try this summer. You don't have to commit to being there every Thursday evening.

Last but not least, you need to belong to the CSC to participate in the various racing events — membership applications and sign-up forms for the Adult and Junior programs must be turned in on Registration weekend, May 15 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., and May 16 from noon to 2 p.m at the clubhouse on Government Island. The CSC's web site: www.cohassetsailingclub.org, has more information posted, including the applicable forms.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

MBTA parking lot

There is no shortage of available parking in Cohasset MBTA parking lot off Route 3A.

That does not necessarily mean the train is unpopular in Cohasset – although we think there is a lot more passenger capacity available on the Greenbush line.

The fact is that in Cohasset a fair number of commuters either walk to the station or get dropped off and picked up there.

We are sure once the Old Colony Square (our Transit Oriented District) is fully occupied and Avalon is built and the apartments leased – more Cohasset folks will be taking the train.

However, there will still be room in that enormous parking lot for opportunities.

Clark Brewer told Selectmen recently about availability of Clean Air and Mobility grants. In Cohasset's case, money could be used for some inexpensive changes to increase the use and accessibility of the MBTA Cohasset Station parking lot off Route 3A including waiving parking fees on weekends and allowing overnight parking in the parking lot for business travelers or vacationers for a daily fee.

Brewer said the program would be done on a trial basis. If successful, it could be expanded to other MBTA stations.

Also, there is an entrance to a brand new bike trail across the street from the train station that connects to Wompatuck State Park. Brewer said if there was parking available, bike riders might be more inclined to begin their ride from there.

In a related matter, Scituate has applied for funding to construct a sidewalk from the Cohasset town line on South Main Street to the Lincoln Park senior housing complex on Country Way, which would provide a continuous sidewalk from Cohasset to the North Scituate commuter rail station and business district.

In other good news, bike racks that Cohasset purchased with grant money have arrived. They will be placed at key places throughout the village, the Little League fields on North Main Street, and Town Hall.

Brewer also headed up the effort for town to receive this small, but potentially impactful, grant.

Wouldn't it be ideal to see a line of bikes at the bikes racks every summer Thursday at the farmer's market? You can't get much "greener" than buying local organic produce and taking it home in a basket on your bike.

The rack installations are currently in progress with the help of volunteers.

Brewer notes that timetables for most grants that become available require quick turnarounds. The tight deadlines often make it difficult for volunteers to get town input and support on appropriate projects for a given grant program.

Brewer, who serves on the Planning Board, is trying to get an on-going discussion started on transportation planning "that way we'll be ready for grants when they come out," he said.

It would be great to see the planning board and other members of the community get involved in efforts like Brewer has and to "think outside the box."

We applaud Mr. Brewer's efforts. Efforts to promote cleaner air and a more accessible community with alternatives for transportation are some of the ways to take Cohasset into the future. Grant money – no matter how much – can make a big difference, especially in tough economic times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Questionable as a matter of governance'

TO THE EDITOR:

A copy of this letter to the Board of Selectmen was provided to the Cohasset Mariner.

To the Board of Selectmen:

Your decision not to permit balloting on continuing town-wide 50-50 sharing of the costs of additional sewering districts was in effect a decision to nullify the overwhelming vote on the matter by the March 29 Town Meeting. Your decision makes a travesty of our governance process, as well as sending a signal to the citizenry that it is not worth performing their civic duty to attend Town Meeting if major policy choices are to be overturned by second-guessing of issues they have settled at Town Meeting.

The moral issue was clear to the Town Meeting, which by its overwhelming vote implicitly recognized the unfair, inequitable, and bad public policy of awarding residents of two Cohasset sewer districts with a town-wide 50-50 cost sharing of State-imposed sewering, and then denying the same treatment to a third district similarly mandated – the Little Harbor Sewer District. (The estimated per capita cost of fairness would be a little over $8 per month.) I speak as a resident of that district, and as a citizen offended by what I believe to be a misuse of our political process.

Speaking also as a political scientist, your act strikes me as highly questionable as a matter of governance. The scheduling (or not) of a special town meeting is your official prerogative. But I doubt if is your prerogative to leave unchallenged the ability of two members to decide the matter by offering personal opinions not on the merits of a ballot, but with the merits of substantive issues dealt with by Town Meeting after exhaustive debate before several hundred voters present. One reportedly spoke of fiscal moderation, which is important but a matter for the voters at Town Meeting or the ballot box. The other ensured nullification by opining that that no further sewering is likely (so we don't have to ensure equal treatment for the Little Harbor District?). Your resultant decision puts into question the heart of town governances under our system – the sovereign lawmaking authority of Town Meeting. It is also not irrelevant that the 14th amendment to the United States Constitution bars states from denying any person the equal protection of the laws, which effectively is what your action unwittingly achieves.

In sum, your act put into question both the moral issue of fairness, and the political issue of direct democracy under which our town operates. I urge the Board of Selectmen to reconsider its unwise and inappropriate action and allow this matter to be settled by ballot, which was the clear intention of the town's sovereign body.

The gem right here!

TO THE EDITOR:

Right in our front yard lies the South Shore Art Center. Try it you'll love it! I've just finished a year of clay classes and I'm so thrilled with the teachers, the studio and my fellow potters that I wanted to give a public thank you and shout out to the Art Center.

The caliber of the teachers is amazing and they're fun too! Sheilagh, Janice and Ann bring different perspectives to their classes. Jeanne runs the studio and the kilns with finesse and humor. An added bonus is that along with us beginners who are just enjoying "playing with mud" there are potters in the classes that have been at this craft for years and are selling and exhibiting their pieces. I often recommend art classes to my clients. They come from all over the South Shore to explore their creativity, decrease their stress, hone their painting skills or just play with the materials.

For those of us in Cohasset, SSAC is right down the street. What I have found is tremendous talent, inspiration, new friends and an invigorating break from the real world.

Reflections of six years on School Committee

COMMENTARY

ADRIENNE MACCARTHY

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude for having the pleasure to serve the town of Cohasset as a School Committee member for the past 6 years. It has been an unbelievable growing experience for me as well as for the school district.

In 2004, the challenges that faced the School Committee and the then new Superintendent were enormous. In the beginning, it seemed like every time the committee asked a question related to the budget, contractual obligations, or policies we were met with more unanswered questions. However, as I reflect back, I realize that unraveling past practices allowed the School Committee and the Superintendent to really restructure how the schools function; everything from budget to policy. After the development of a new Strategic Plan, it was all about building and implementing strong foundations of change. One example: Residents should feel confident that the schools operated with a transparent budget and transparent process, which builds that budget. You should know that with a strong Budget Transfer Policy, the monies determined for each cost center (i.e. Salaries, Special Ed, Utilities, etc) cannot be used outside of that center without the authorization of the Committee. This policy was established to create strict oversight in the area, which is under the statutory authority of the School Committee. Additionally, the school committee, superintendent, business manager, and community now have the ability to track the actual operating expenses verses the budgeted, allowing for fiscally sound management tools to be used in order to live within the operating budget set by Town Meeting.

During my tenure, we also instituted numerous quantifiable/measurable goals. Even though this was not my area of expertise, I have grown to recognize the importance of these measures as a way to track achievement not only of the students but also of the staff and administrators. For me, this is where hindsight is truly 20/20!

For instance, fact, the number of students accessing and performing better in Advance Placement classes has increased. Evidence,

Managing tidal flow at mouth of Jacobs Meadow

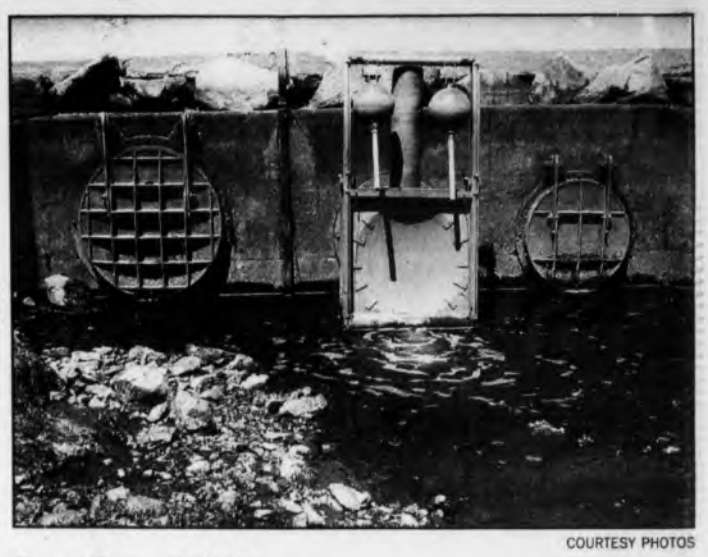
MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project — By now, you have read quite a bit in our articles about the project to rebuild the channel at the Legion Building and to replace the existing tide gates at the harbor. There are two conditions that the Town needs to pay attention to in managing the flow of water between the meadow and the harbor. First, is to avoid, as much as we practically can, high water levels in the meadow that might cause damage to the bordering properties. The second condition is to manage the inflow of salt water into the meadow to encourage the growth of a healthy salt marsh.

We have mentioned that the three existing gates (66" and 48" flap gates and a 48" self regulating tide gate (SRT)) that control this interchange flow will be replaced by a vertical sluice gate. In this article, we'd like to give you a more detailed idea of what this gate replacement will mean. Let's start by reviewing a picture of the gates that are actually at the edge of the harbor today.

The photo shows the three existing gates as seen from the harbor, looking toward Cohasset Harbor Resort. Each of these gates is directly connected to one of three underground pipes (66, 48 and 48 inches in diameter, respectively) that carry water from Jacobs Meadow to the harbor. The gate on the left is a 66" flap gate and the gate on the extreme right is a 48" flap gate. These two flap gates allow water to flow from the meadow to the harbor. Flap gates do not allow any water to flow back into the meadow. The center gate is a 48" self-regulating tide gate. This gate is designed to carry water between Jacobs Meadow and the harbor, in either direction, depending on its settings and tidal conditions. A common concrete wall, called a "head wall" acts as a terminating point for the three pipes as well as a solid mounting point for the three gates. Also, keep in mind that each of the 48" pipes at their maximum potential can carry about 25 percent of the flow in either direction. The 66" has about 50 percent of the total flow capacity.



So, what could be improved? Well, first of all, the two flap gates are constructed of cast iron and are very heavy. As you might imagine, the water coming from the meadow to the harbor has to create a lot of "pushing" force to get them open to any great degree. If you happened to see these flap gates during the heavy rains of several weeks ago, they were struggling to let the Jacobs Meadow water pass to the harbor, even when the water in the meadow was quite high and the tides were low. They just didn't open very far and posed a restriction at a time when we really needed to get water out of the meadow f-a-s-t. Also, keep in mind that the only time that water can be released from the meadow is when the water level in the harbor is lower than the water in the meadow. So, at higher tide conditions, no water at all can be released from the meadow. When we can't release the storm water it just backs up in the Meadow until such time as we can release it.

The SRT is another matter. The flap on the harbor end of the pipe can open very wide and allow nearly a free flow of water to the harbor. Even when this flap is closed there are two additional flaps on the side that can open to allow water from the meadow to exit to the harbor.

So let's recapitulate. The SRT can allow water flow out of the meadow at nearly a free flow. However this is only 25 percent of the total pipe capacity. But, the two flap gates pose somewhat of a restriction to flow and limit the storm water that can be drained into the harbor. Thus, as James Brook flows into Jacobs Meadow, the present gates become a limiting factor in letting the meadow water drain into the harbor. Also, keep in mind that water can only drain out of the meadow when the water level in the harbor is below the level in the meadow. Thus, at best, about 50 percent of the time we can't get any water out of the meadow into the harbor. And when the tide is favorable, we are limited by the restriction caused by the two flap gates. That's not what we want or need in times of heavy rains and high water in the meadow.

COURTESY PHOTOS

We will be replacing all three gates with a free flowing vertical sluice gate. The vertical sluice gate is similar to a guillotine and moves up or down to open or close.

There is also a flip side of this equation. There are times when we would like to have saltwater from the harbor to flow into the meadow in controlled amounts. Saltwater encourages a healthy marsh habitat and encourages the natural marsh flora and fauna. The SRT can permit some inflow but since it is limited to using one 48" pipe, the amount of water that can travel into the meadow is limited to about 25% of the maximum flow capacity of the pipes. The other 48" and 66" pipes, because of the flap gates, cannot let any salt water into the meadow.

So what to do?

We will be replacing all three gates with a free flowing vertical sluice gate. The vertical sluice gate is similar to a guillotine and moves up or down to open or close. The sluice gate shown in the photo is operated up or down by manually turning a hand wheel. Our gate will be operated by an automatic system driven by an electric motor and is much larger with a 10 foot wide by a 6-foot high opening. This size will allow for much greater flow than what we have today.

The way in which the gate is controlled will determine when the water can flow and the tides will determine the direction of flow. The idea is that prior to a nor'easter we will be able to let as much water out of the meadow as possible. And, we will inhibit any harbor water from flowing into the meadow. This will lower the residual water in the meadow, which creates more space for storm water to be held in the meadow before flooding conditions are experienced. When the tides are favorable we will be able to have greater amounts of storm water leave the meadow and enter the harbor.

In the final analysis, we will be able to have more room in the meadow for storm water to be stored and we will be able to get rid of that storm water faster. The net result should be less frequent flooding in the area. From this you can see why the gate replacement is critical to the flooding issues in the Jacobs Meadow area. In future articles we will be reviewing the other major aspect of this project, namely replacing the collapse of the fragile channel wall at the Legion. This collapse further endangers the Town's ability to let storm water escape to the harbor and moves this project into the critical category.

HEALTH NOTES

Brain fitness is a growing field

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Brain exercises have been the topic of increased media speculation and several new reports beg questions about their efficacy.

At the last Health Board meeting, the issue of brain fitness was taken up, The joint program at the Library has been a success and will continue. The brain fitness exercises on Library computers, available by visiting the library and checking out a program, will soon have new exercises in place on the library software. Meanwhile, the wait for existing modules will be somewhat shorter.

Brain exercises have been the topic of increased media speculation and several new reports beg questions about their efficacy. Actually, considered as a whole, mental exercises used consistently and over periods greater then 90 days have an ability to improve cognitive reasoning. According to a recent Wall Street Journal article, there is an effort worldwide for some individuals to improve memory, mental fitness and even intelligence levels by performing computer-based brain-training exercises.

The brain training and fitness industry is still in its infancy and largely centered on software programs or online offerings. In North America, the market increased to $265 million in 2009 from $225 million a year earlier, according to SharpBrains, a market-research firm in San Francisco. It is forecast to grow to at least $1 billion in five years. Some $95 million of last year's revenue came from consumers who buy commercially available brain-training programs. The rest came from professional users, including schools, insurance companies and retirement communities.

The brain-training field has been boosted by studies suggesting that even adult brains are "plastic," and cognitive ability can be improved with the right mental training. Another spur is an aging population, and the hope that cognitive exercises and lifestyle changes may help to forestall brain maladies such as Alzheimer's disease. The authors of a new study point out that some modest benefits to cognitive abilities have been reported in studies of older people and preschool children

Evaluation of Brain Fitness Programs — Recently the journal Nature made an attempt to evaluate the effectiveness of some brain exercise programs: One group took part in online games aimed at improving skills linked to general intelligence, such as reasoning, problem-solving and planning: A second test group did exercises to boost short-term memory, attention and mathematical and visual-spatial skills — functions typically targeted by commercial brain-training programs. A third "control group" was asked to browse the Internet and seek out answers to general knowledge questions.

Preliminary data from early studies have concluded that results from those who did the brain-training exercises were inconclusive. But those reviewing the study said the study's design had some shortcomings. For example, the participants were asked to do brain workouts for at least 10 minutes a day, three times a day for six weeks. Most consider such a short exposure to a fitness program is inadequate. Such studies have concluded that brain-training groups got better at the tests they practiced, and the more they practiced, the better they got.

"It's not brain training," said Alvaro Fernandez, chief executive officer of SharpBrains. Past studies, he said, indicate that proper cognition transfer "only happens after more than 15 hours of training and where each session lasts at least 30 minutes." Steven Aldrich, chief executive of Posit Science of San Francisco, which sells brain-training programs, said the "study overreaches in generalizing that since their methods did not work, all methods would not work." Mr. Aldrich added that other randomized, peer-reviewed studies have shown that brain training improves many aspects of brain performance.

No Silver bullet — Brain training is not intended to replace other forms of cognitive brain exercise, but to supplement brain activity for those who feel that their memory can be improved by exercising the brain in common tasks not normally a part of their daily activity.

Useful and Good Fun — The new programs now being considered at the Library will expand the scope of current brain fitness exercises to include a broader scope of cognitive experience such as improving sensing of details, colors and shades in common scene; improving recall of features in scenes and event scenarios, etc.

As new programs are coordinated with those already available, visit the Library to observe the progress.

Center activities and a little nostalgia

SENIOR SCENE

LOUISE SMULLEN

Out come the marbles, jump ropes and rubber balls, which have lain in wait during the long winter months.

Here we are again in midspring. Isn't it great to have these warm sunny days interspersed with rain? Although those rainy days can be dark and dreary, we need them to keep things green and growing.

Fire Chief Bob Sylvia entertained us in late March with a video starring Tom Bosley. It was very well done and dealt with safety in the home, with emphasis on fire prevention and what to do if fire should break out. Then Chief Sylvia discussed smoke and C02 detectors, which are required by law. He answered our many questions.

In early April Phil Flaherty from the Scituate Animal Shelter, spoke to us about a program, which was new to many of us. The Social Service League manages a grant left by the late Mary Hooper of Cohasset. This grant helps elders of limited means get help with pet expenses including food, neutering and more.

Last week Mary Lou Clark presented a memoir of her dad, Admiral Clark. We enjoyed a video showing the preparation of the aircraft carrier Yorktown for service in W.W. II. Admiral Clark was commander of this ship.

Now if I may, I'll indulge in some nostalgia for my childhood.

Spring has arrived, bringing with it forsythia and my favorite – daffodils. Out come the marbles, jump ropes and rubber balls, which have lain in wait during the long winter months.

There is no school today, as it is Saturday. I call for my best friend, Grace. We play marbles for quite a while. I have about two hundred that are kept in a large coffee can. I love the smooth feel of them, and admire their shiny, swirling colors. The early spring mud has dried somewhat, leaving the earth just right for shaping the small hole at which we aim the marbles.

When we tire of that we play a game with the ball, bouncing it against the side of the house. We go through various motions with our hands and feet and twirl around, all the while trying to catch the ball before it can hit the ground.

After lunch we join with other neighborhood kids and play jump robe. We play safely in the street, as there are no cars in our neighborhood.

When we've had enough of jumping rope, with chalk we draw hopscotch diagrams on the street and see who can capture the most squares.

When one of the mothers calls for her daughter from her front door, we know it is time to go in and wash up for supper.

It has been a great day filled with fun and energy.

Hoping to see you all at the Lightkeepers Cottage on the morning of Monday, April 26 from 9 – 11 a.m., where we'll enjoy a good mug of coffee and fellowship.

Our next seminar at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, April 28 is titled "Get Up and Move." So get up and move to the Center that day to find out what it is all about and make a reservation for lunch to be served immediately afterward.

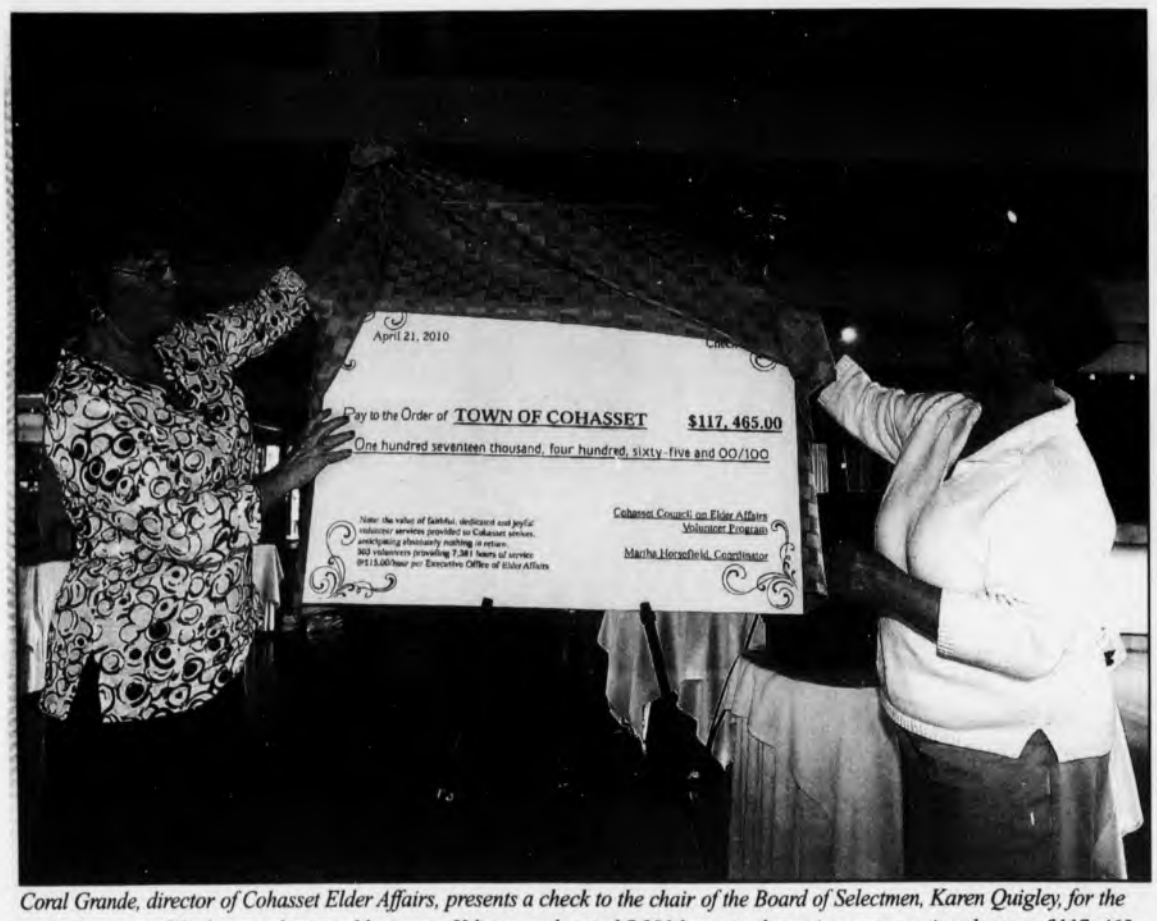
LIBRARY CORNER

Take part in 'Great Discussions'

The following programs and events will take place at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset. For more information or to register, call 781-383-1348 or visit the website at www.cohassetlibrary.org.

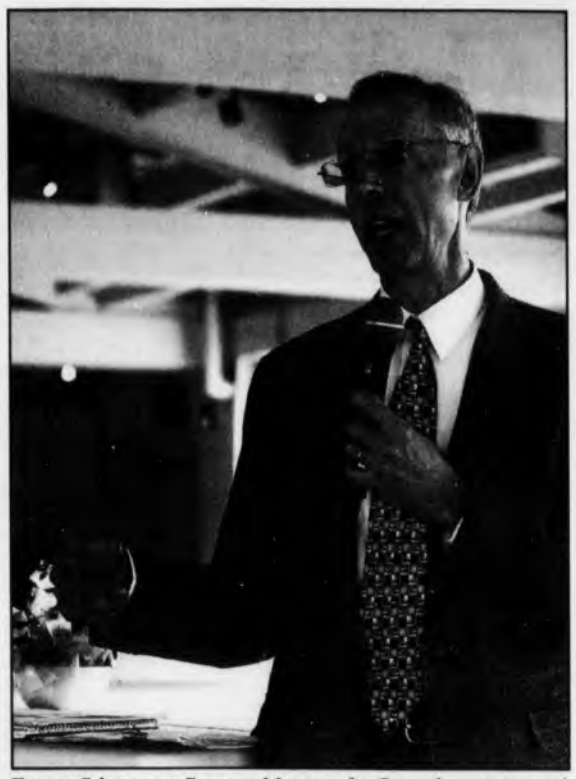
Great Decisions Discussion Group – Become a participant in the Great Decisions Discussion Group at the library. Great Decision is a nation-wide discussion group that focuses on current foreign policy decisions being made in this country. The group will meet at 10:30 a.m., every Tuesday, April 27 through June 15. Space is limited. Register online through the website or call the reference librarian for more information.

Library Book Group – Join others for coffee and discussion of Per Petterson's book "Out Stealing Horses" at 10 a.m., on Wednesday, April 28. All are welcome.



Going Green in the Garden – Amy Martin, a South Shore landscape designer, will give a presentation on easy steps to make property more sustainable for the environment, as well as one's lifestyle and pocketbook. Included will be information on organic gardening and lawn care, planting with native plants for healthy ecosystems and managing rain water with rain gardens. The free presentation will take place at 7 p.m., on Thursday, April 29. All are welcome.

FOR CHILDREN



MamaSteph – Music, movement and more for young children in the Meeting Room at 10:30 a.m., on Mondays, April 26 and May 3, 10, and 17. Sponsored by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Story Time – In the Children's Story Room at 10:30 a.m., on Tuesday, April 27 and May 4 and 11. All ages and communities welcome. Drop in and enjoy the fun.

Coral Grande, director of Cohasset Elder Affairs, presents a check to the chair of the Board of Selectmen, Karen Quigley, for the equivalent cost of the hours volunteered last year. Volunteers donated 7,381 hours to the senior center saving the town $117, 465.

Emmett Schmarsow, Program Manager for Councils on Aging and Senior Centers in Massachusetts, says that people who don't know how big an impact a little thing can have haven't tried sleeping with a mosquito in the room. He told the room of volunteers that their work causes a lot of little impacts in people's lives.

Tulips – once upon a time treasures…

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

MARY KENNEDY

Who would pay $25,000 for three tulip bulbs? Answer: a wealthy Dutch merchant in 1636. That year those three Semper Augustus bulbs, with a red and white flower, were worth three times the cost of a fine mansion on one of Amsterdam's grand canals. Scores of other investors looking for "bargains" in the Dutch garden catalogue might choose Viceroy, with a maroon and white blossom, costing a mere $3,000 for one bulb.

It was a year of intense financial speculation, a time of madness, known even then as Tulpenwindhandel (tulipmania). It became an acceptable practice to sell tulip bulbs, which were still in the earth, with payment made upon delivery in the summer. Oftentimes, sellers did not actually own the bulb and buyers did not have cash available, so the exchange of goods was purely speculative. The expectation, however, was that a succeeding sale might be even more profitable. It was a futures market; tulips were like junk bonds, a high-stakes game played by everyone from the prosperous to the poor. Farmers gambled their fields, chimney sweeps and maids mortgaged or sold all their worldly goods, hoping to get rich quick. Speculators began buying and selling bulbs that never even left the ground. For a while, there were winners – escalating prices, increasing supplies – and then, inevitably, there were more sellers than buyers.

In 1637 the market collapsed, resulting in lost fortunes, suicides, and so many lawsuits that the Dutch legal system itself almost collapsed. Ironically, even as prices plummeted, the popularity of the flowers continued to soar. Artists soon began to realize that people would pay for paintings featuring tulips in lush bouquets. Those who could no longer afford real tulips in their gardens settled for hanging painted ones on their walls.

Long before tulipmania and before they became the national flower of Holland, tulips were from Turkey. Cultivated in the gardens of the sultans since the early 1500s, their beauty and variety had long impressed European visitors. One admirer was Busbecq, the Flemish ambassador to the Ottoman court of Suleiman the Magnificent. Busbecq sent a stack of bulbs and seeds to his friend, Dutch botany professor Carolus Clusius, who, in 1593, planted the first tulip bulbs in the Netherlands. Clusius is noted for being one of the first in northern Europe to value plants as much for their beauty as for their medicinal or culinary uses. One story tells that he refused to part with any of his bulbs, believing that tulips should not be bought and sold like common items. He complained in a letter that the "world of the connoisseur is being cheapened." One dark night thieves made off with his precious supply of zoomerschoon (Summer Beauty) red and yellow tulips. The Dutch fascination with the beautiful blossoms began to flourish, some 40 years before the frenzy of tulipmania.

Today, about 5,600 varieties of tulips are registered with the Netherlands Royal General Bulbgrowers' Association. The exquisite blossoms range from pure white through dazzling shades of yellow, orange, red, pink, and a purple so dark it seems almost black. Some tulips are the classic cup shape, others feature scalloped, feathered, or fringed petals. The Tulipa Clusiana, named for the great botanist himself, wears broad vertical red stripes against a white background.

Amsterdam's Keukenhof (kitchen garden) once functioned as a royal herbal garden. Today the world's largest flower park – almost 70 acres featuring 6 million flowers – is truly a tribute to tulips. Poetic names adorn each new variation: Queen of the Night, China Pinks, Apricot Beauty.

From the garden to the kitchen: did you know that tulip bulbs are edible? Back in the 1600s hungry Dutch sailors reportedly snacked on the cooked bulbs after sprinkling them with oil and vinegar. During the German occupation of Holland (1940-1945) starving citizens, including the family of the young Audrey Hepburn, made flour out of tulip bulbs to bake barely edible biscuits. Today, Dutch bulb growers lop the heads off tulips in the late spring in order to force the plant's energy into the bulb. Farmers cart off mounds of blossoms to use as barnyard ground cover and to feed cows. Treasures of a different sort indeed.

And finally – who (or what) today treasures tulips just as much as we? What steps daintily through the dark night to shear the heads off every tulip in our gardens? Oh deer!

Reflections of six years on School Committee

FROM COMMENTARY, PAGE 10

125 students took the AP test in 2004: 77 percent scored a 3 or better and 15 percent scored a perfect 5 as compared to 224 students in 2009 with 80 percent scoring a 3 or better and 29 percent scoring a perfect 5. So, what contributed to these changes? Perhaps the "block" style schedule? How about the fact that more students have access to Honors Level courses then ever did before? What about the fact that some of our teaching staff embraced our vision that all students will be challenged and motivated to reach there full potential? This is just a taste of why it's important to have measurable goals and then to explore what is working and what isn't, in order to "continue the commitment to excellence."

My only regret is that I was unable to thoroughly communicate the many areas of improvement as well as address continued areas of concern. However, contrary to poplar belief, I am confident that our schools are in a better place as indicated by the evidence. My sincere thanks to the Administration and Staff who have worked hard to support the vision that "We hold high expectations of all students and staff…"

I also want to thank all those who have served with me on the School Committee during the past six years; where would we be without your dedication? In addition, I want thank all those who have supported me throughout the years and those especially who took the time to call, express their concerns and allow me to articulate my view as a committee member. We may not have always agreed but at least we could agree to disagree or bring a resolution in some manner. Last, but certainly not least, I want to thank my family and friends; I couldn't have done it without all of you! I look forward to time with my family and to the many opportunities that exist to continue to contribute to the Town of Cohasset.

Adrienne MacCarthy lives at 85 Doane Steet.

CHAMBER CHATTER

Social security is topic of special program

Richardson will go into detail as to when, who is eligible and how much benefits are paid…

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce will host a presentation at 8 a.m., on Wednesday April 28, at Focus Gallery, 15 Depot Court. Steven Richardson from the Social Security Administration will provide information related to receiving Social Security benefits, disability benefits and death benefits from the government. The stream of income produced by Social Security is a critical element for people in retirement. Richardson will go into detail as to when, who is eligible and how much benefits are paid, what can be earned while on Social Security and what cost of living adjustments are given along the way.

Check the Chamber website at www.cohassetchamber.org to view this and other chamber news.

Senior Happenings

'Get up and Move!' on April 28

The following events will take place at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 N. Main St. For more information, call 781-383-9112.

Cohasset Café – held at Lightkeeper's every Monday through June 28, except holidays, April 26, from 9 to 11 a.m. Call for transportation.

Get up and Move – presented by Lori Mahoney, R.N. and Laurie Galvin P.T. of the Norwell V.N.A. April 28 from 11 a.m. to noon.

Chair Yoga – Kathy Dunn, an exercise instructor, offers Chair Yoga every Tuesday from 1 to 2 p.m. Fee: $3 per session. Call 781-383-9112 to sign-up for the exercise sessions.

Free Hearing Test – Drs. Elena Schepis and Abigail Keller, South Shore Hearing Center in Weymouth, will conduct free hearing test at Cohasset Elder Affairs. In addition, they will supply information, clean your hearing aids and answer any questions. Be sure to have your ears checked prior to the test for impacted ears with wax. Call 781-383-9112 for an appointment.

2010 Census Timeline

March 2010: Census forms are mailed or delivered to households.

April 1: Census Day. The official day of the population count.

April-July: Census Bureau workers visit households that did not return a form by mail.

Dec. 31: Census Bureau delivers population counts to the President of the U.S.

March 2011: Census Bureau completes delivery of redistricting data to states.

Why Should You Respond

Census date is used to determine U.S. Congressional apportionment as well as federal funding. For example: implement the Supplemental Social Security Income and Social Security Disability Insurance Programs; plan programs for seniors living alone; apply for grants to help seniors caring for their grandchildren; create facilities and services for people with disabilities.

Help with 2009 tax returns – A volunteer, trained by AARP in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, is available to assist Cohasset seniors with basic, simple tax returns, including filing the State income tax return to obtain a Circuit Breaker property tax credit or refund. Call 781-383-9112 for an appointment.

Circuit Breaker — The state Circuit Breaker law allows homeowners, 65 or over, who meet certain income eligibility requirements to apply for a state income tax credit of up to $960. The qualifying home value has been reduced to $788,000 for the year 2009.

The Circuit Breaker allows elderly homeowners to get a refundable state tax credit if their local property tax, sewer, and water bills exceed more than 10 percent of their income. Elderly renters can also take advantage of this law if their tax, sewer, and water bills exceed 25 percent of their annual income. To figure out how much the state may refund to you, get a copy of State Income Tax Schedule CB at the public library or call 1-800-392-6089 and press 1 to wait for an agent.

Even if you owe no state taxes, you can get back up to $960. To qualify for this credit, you must be a Massachusetts resident, age 65 or older, and own or rent residential property in Massachusetts as your primary residence. In addition, your annual income must be less than $51,000 if you are a single filer who is not the head of household, or less than $64,000 if you are the head of household, or less than $77,000 for taxpayers filing jointly.

You can claim up to three years retroactively by contacting the Department of Revenue, so you may be eligible to receive a check for up to $3,490. If you go to a professional tax preparer, make sure to ask them to calculate your Circuit Breaker property Tax credit.

Field of Honor flag display to return to Cohasset

On May 29, Operation: Home Ties will join the Field of Honor with a traveling exhibition and tribute consisting of pencil portraits of all Massachusetts' Fallen Heroes who have died since 9/11/01.

On Traffic Island, at the junction of Border, Elm and Summer streets, The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 118 of Cohasset, will host the fourth annual Field of Honor on Memorial weekend. The field of flags will be erected facing the permanent Veteran's Memorial that is encircled by the flags of the 50 states. It has become a legacy and a tradition for the citizens of Cohasset and surrounding areas.

The flags will fly from May 22 through June 1 to honor the heroism, strength and unity of Americans, and all veterans who served the nation to preserve security and freedom. The dedication is scheduled for 1 pm, on Saturday, May 29.

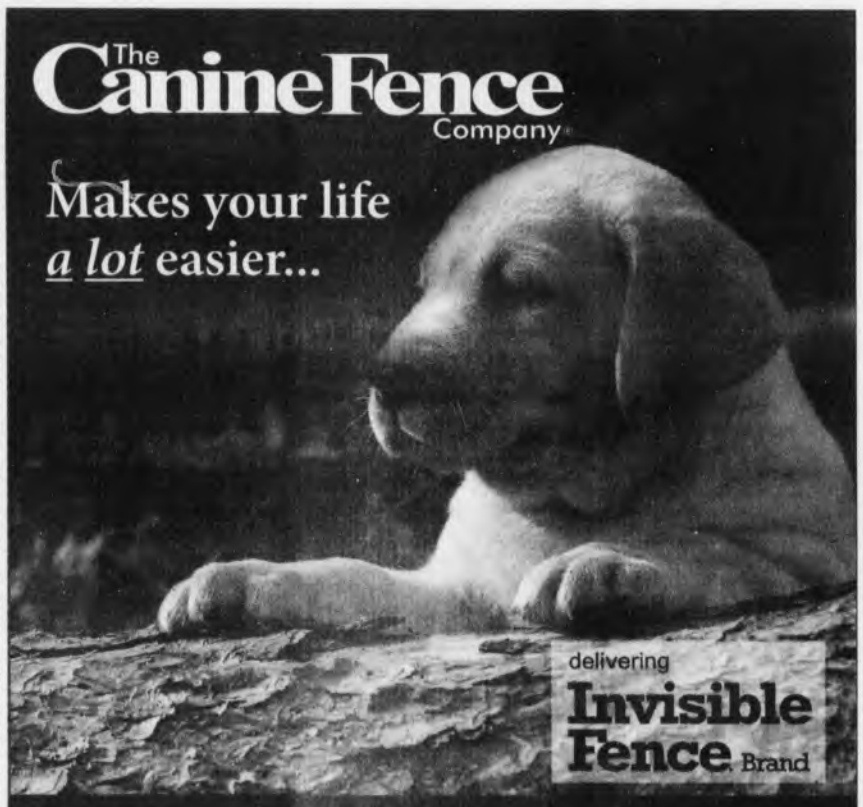
Visitors will be able to experience a patriotic array of hundreds of large U.S. flags atop 8-foot poles in perfect rows on a field of green. The temporary memorial event is free to the public.

The flags may be sponsored for $25 each in memory of a loved one and can be taken home after the event to continue the tribute throughout the community as they fly proudly from homes and businesses. Sponsors will be able to pick up their flags from the field on June 1, after 4 p.m.

On May 29, Operation: Home Ties will join the Field of Honor with a traveling exhibition and tribute consisting of pencil portraits of all Massachusetts' Fallen Heroes who have died since 9/11/01. This Wall of Honor was created by Woburn portrait artist Gina Johnson to honor the memory of local loved ones in a gesture of support to the families.

For more information or to sponsor a flag online visit www.healingfield.org/cohasset. For details on becoming an event sponsor or applications for field flags, call the Legion at 781-383-9657 or stop by the Post at 98 Summer St., weekdays, after 3 p.m., Saturdays, after 10 a.m., Sundays, after noon. Volunteers are needed. To volunteer one's time contact Thomas Wigmore.

Checks should be made out to the Sons of the American Legion, with a note on the memo line indicating "Field of Honor" and sent to Sons of the American Legion, P.O. Box 118, Cohasset, MA 02025. All proceeds will go to veterans' programs provided by the SAL, Cohasset.



The Colonial Flag Foundation, providers of the Healing Field and Field of Honor flag display programs, is a 501(c)3 nonprofit charity that oversees and administers a network of patriotic and awareness programs and fundraisers.

Seeking art from young artists!

Young people are welcome to have their favorite art, including paintings, sculpture, photographs, collage or other pieces, displayed in the Massachusetts Cultural Council-sponsored Art Show at Second Parish Church, 685 Main St., Hingham, from May 6 through May 16. Artwork may be dropped off from 4 to 6 p.m., on Thursday, April 29, or Friday, April 30, at the church.

Older students, in high school and middle school, are eligible for prizes; younger children, in nursery and elementary school, will receive participant ribbons. There will be an opening reception for contributing artists, their families and their teachers at 6 p.m., on Thursday, May 6.

For more information, call Jane Shute at 781-749-6518 or Joyce Schreier at 781-749-6690.

WASH DAY

COURTESY PHOTO

Please try to stop by the Cohasset Historical Society this month to see the third in our series of monthly vignettes, "Wash Day." Ongoing through May 8, the exhibit highlights an 1876 painting by renowned artist Frank Shapleigh and an unusual 1860 maternity dress with a pocket. Pockets were seldom seen in women's clothing of this era. Also on exhibit are kitchen implements and other items necessary for women's daily chores of the mid-1800s. We believe that Shapleigh's painting of 100 Elm St. depicts the house at the time it was owned by Lyman Willcutt. Lyman Willcutt was a Civil War veteran who upon returning to Cohasset became a mason and building contractor. He was instrumental in the building of St. Stephen's Church. Lyman married Meriel L. Pratt and they had five children. The Pratt Building at 106 South Main St. is open Monday through Friday, 10a.m. to 4p.m. Looking for prom dresses*: The Historical Society's next exhibit will be prom dresses. If you have a prom dress you would like to donate (or lend) to the society, please contact us at 781-383-1434 or cohassethistory@yahoo.com.*

Bylaw change on the table

Addresses undersized lots and additions

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Roughly three-quarters of the town's residences are built on "undersized lots" according to the zoning regulations.

A homeowner in Cohasset wants to build a deck in the backyard.

He goes to the Building Department seeking a building permit.

However, the zoning bylaws say since the home is on a "undersized lot" according to the area of regulations in the town's zoning bylaws, he needs to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals to seek relief.

This scenario hasn't happened in Cohasset yet, but it could in future, if a proposed bylaw amendment is not put into place. The bylaw amendment was discussed at Wednesday's Planning Board meeting.

A portion of the zoning bylaws that deals with nonconforming uses, structures and lots stipulates any extension or alteration on a non-conforming property may be done if the extension complies with the area regulations (zoning bylaws 8.7.1). One of the regulations deals with lot size.

"Over the years we're taken a fairly liberal approach to this because there are an awful lot of undersized lots in town," said Woody Chittick, chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals, said. Roughly three-quarters of the town's residences are built on "undersized lots" according to the zoning regulations.

While in practice the strict interpretation of this portion of the bylaw has not been enforced, recent revelations both in and around the state has changed that.

Two recent Supreme Court decisions have concluded that in the absence of exclusionary language, town cannot "pick and choose" which area regulations to apply and which to ignore, Chittick said.

"(With these decisions) it eliminates the practical application (of this part of the zoning bylaws)," Chittick said. It means for most of the changes property owners want to make to their property, whether is a deck, a family room or a complete re-construction, the proposal would have to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals for relief, even if all the other requirements are met. It effectively eliminates the "as of right" ability for small and large additions that otherwise comply with the zoning bylaws in setback, height, frontage, etc.

"It seems really unnecessary and burdensome," Chittick said.

To ensure the process if streamlined – and reflect what has been the town's practice for more than two decades – Town Counsel has proposed minor language changes to the bylaw.

"We should clean it up and move on," said planning board chair Al Moore.

The planning board was in agreement on the proposed changes and voted to send the zoning bylaw to the Board of Selectmen. The Selectmen will discuss the item at their Monday meeting. If the Selectmen are in agreement on the bylaw change, it would be sent back to the Planning Board for a public hearing.

A public hearing on the zoning bylaw would need to be held prior to the Special Town Meeting (slated for sometime in June).

Current language of zoning bylaw section 8.7.1

An existing nonconforming building or structure may be extended, altered, or enlarged so long as the extension, alteration, or enlargement complies in all respects with the Area Regulations as set forth in Section 5.3.1, and,

Proposed language of zoning bylaw section 8.7.1 (changes in italics)

An existing nonconforming single or two-family residential building or structure may be extended, altered, reconstructed, or enlarged as long as the extension, alteration, reconstruction, or enlargement complies in all respects with the Area Regulations as set forth in Section 5.3.1 other than minimum required lot area;

Lincoln assassination discussion April 25

The Cohasset Historical Society holding its annual Spring Dinner on Sunday, April 25, at the Cohasset Harbor Resort, 124 Elm St. Guest speaker, Christopher Daley will present "The Lincoln Assassination". It was in April of 1865 that an assassin's bullet ended the life of President Abraham Lincoln. One hundred and fifty-five years later, this event still evokes questions of "what if?" and "why?".

A past-president of both the Pembroke Historical Commission and the Pembroke Historical Society, Mr. Daley lectures on a number of historical events, both local and national.

The dinner will begin with a cash bar at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 6 p.m. Attendees will have an entrée choice of Chicken Parmesan with Penne Pasta or Roast Baby Cod with Seasoned Buttery Bread Crumbs and Garlic Cream Sauce. The cost to Historical Society members is $31 per person and $36 for non-members. All are welcome to attend. Please call the Historical Society at 781-383-1434 with your choice of entrée and submit your check made out to Cohasset Historical Society. Checks may be mailed to The Cohasset Historical Society, PO Box 167, Cohasset, MA 02025 prior to Friday, April 16th.

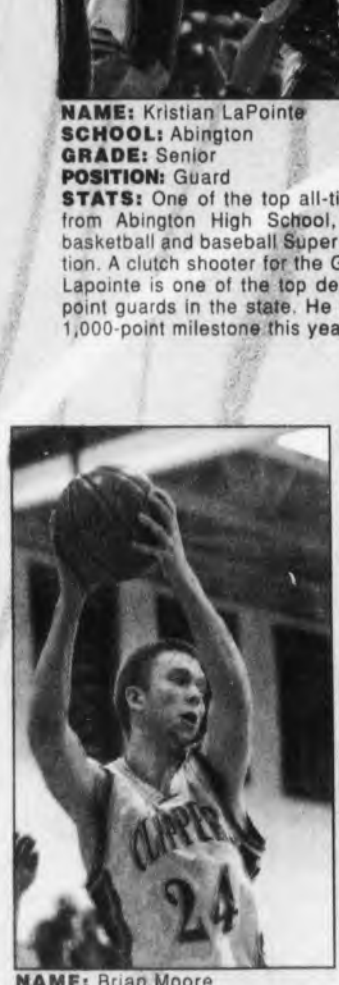
NAME: Barrett Murphy
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: When Murphy was on, he was on fire. The Atlantic Coast League all-star averaged in double figures in both points and rebounds this year. He scored 18 points and grabbed a career-high 17 rebounds in Marshfield's tournament-clinching win over Plymouth North. He also scored 24 points against Sandwich, a game in which the Rams came back from a double-digit deficit to pick up the win.

NAME: Brian Hard
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Center
STATS: Hard was Weymouth's leading scorer and rebounder this season and what is amazing is that Hard was only 6-foot tall yet was able to hold his own consistently in the Bay State Conference against opposing centers who had a five- and six-inch height advantage.

NAME: Nick DaPrato
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: DaPrato, a senior captain and Atlantic Coast League all-star, played a huge role in getting the Rams to the Division 1 South Sectional tournament. He came up big in huge games, scoring a season-high 31 points against Dennis-Yarmouth and following that up with 23 points in a come-from-behind win over Sandwich.

NAME: Bryan Whitt
SCHOOL: Rockland
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Whitt overcame medical problems – a severe case of vertigo where he could barely sit up without getting sick - to lead the Bulldogs back into the state tournament. He was Rockland's leading scorer, averaging 16 points per game and one of their top playmakers.



NAME: Kristian LaPointe
SCHOOL: Abington
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: One of the top all-time athletes from Abington High School, a football, basketball and baseball Super team selection. A clutch shooter for the Green Wave, Lapointe is one of the top defenders and point guards in the state. He reached the 1,000-point milestone this year.

NAME: P.J. Douglas
SCHOOL: Braintree
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Although Douglas played only two years of varsity basketball at Braintree, he broke the all-time scoring record and was selected by Win Bates as the No. 1 basketball player in the last half century at the high school. Averaged 30 points as a junior and 22 points this year as a senior.

NAME: Ryan Chambers
SCHOOL: Abington
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Chambers might be one of the purest shooters to play for Abington High School and this year became the all-time leading scorer, breaking the mark set by Paul Carey. Chambers was deadly from beyond the three-point arc and seemed to always come through in the clutch for the Green Wave.

NAME: Brian Moore
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Moore could bury a shot from anywhere on the court. The South Shore League all-star led the Clippers in scoring this year and averaged more than 20 points and 10 rebounds per game. In a game against Hingham this winter, Moore recorded his first-ever triple-double (16 points, 10 rebounds, 10 assists). He scored a career-high 29 points Jan. 12 against Harwich.

NAME: Robert Jones
SCHOOL: Cohasset
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Jones led the Skippers, and was one of the top scorers in the South Shore League with more than 18 points per game. The co-captain was Cohasset's catalyst on the offensive side. He played solid defense, passed well and was pretty much money from the line.

NAME: Brian Grossman
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: Duxbury's leading scorer and top playmaker, the Wheaton College bound Grossman, a Patriot League all-star, averaged more than 20 points and 10 rebounds per game for the Dragons. Grossman, who helped take his team all the way to the Division 2 South Sectional quarterfinals, also averaged roughly seven assists and six steals this season.

NAME: Rodney Beldo
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Guard
STATS: The senior superstar averaged a team-leading 22.3 points per game, but just as important, Beldo was a team leader who preached intensity and work ethic. Beldo could, and often did take over games, and when he did that usually meant good things. Beldo was also a lot of fun to watch. His repertoire of shots, moves and big plays, including some exclamation-point three-pointers were one of a kind.

Say Chowda!

Skippers win Chowda Cup

SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

Don't blame the Cohasset boys lacrosse team if they smile a little too big the next time they catch the Simpson's episode where a relative of Mayor Quimby is accused of murder because the victim pronounced the word chowder with a French accent rather than the New England style chowda.

That's because the team is now the 2010 Chowda Cup Champions. Yes, Chowda.

The Skippers entered the four-team tournament with a 5-0 record and left the tournament with an impressive 7-0 record and the Chowda Cup Championship.

They beat Marshfield and Catholic Memorial to win the title.

On April 15, Cohasset took on Division 1 Marshfield in the opening round of the Chowda Cup and came out with a 6-4 win.

They beat Catholic Memorial 10-8 in the final.

Unlike some of Cohasset's previous games, this was a low scoring affair. Both defenses were dominant and both goalies played outstanding games with Jack Murphy recording 18 saves for the Skippers.

"The game was just a defensive battle," said Jack Murphy. "In the past, we haven't won these defensive battles so it's good to come out of a game like that with a win."

Ian Quinlan, Will Wise, Dean Driscoll, Thomas Flibotte, Alex Kinnealey, and Kyle Livingstone each scored one goal in the Marshfield win, keeping the Marshfield defense busy with multiple threats.

A key component to defeating Marshfield was figuring out how to bypass their zone defense, something Cohasset rarely has to face.

"Marshfield has a great zone defense and it is hard to overcome it," said Murphy. "Coach (Stew) Curran had us practice a lot of different plays to break it up and it worked."

After the systematic defeat of the Rams, the Skippers, who went into the game with a 6-0 record, took on Catholic Memorial, who came into the game with 6-2 record.

Catholic Memorial beat Scituate 9-5 in the opener to advance to the finals on Saturday.

The two finalists started the game off slow and at halftime, Cohasset only led 4-2. The third quarter was a completely different game, a game that was dominated by Catholic Memorial.

Catholic Memorial jumped out of the gates and were first to score in the third making it 4-3. Cohasset was quick to answer as they were determined to stay ahead. However, their willpower didn't matter to Catholic Memorial who scored five unanswered goals to close out the third quarter.

Cohasset's offense was shut down in the third and the defense was not clicking. Even goalie Jack Murphy, who also recorded 18 saves in this game, struggled a bit letting six goals find the back of his net.

Going into the fourth down 8-5 with zero momentum, Curran had to give the team a talk to make sure the Skippers went out there and won.

"Before the fourth quarter, Coach gave us some words of wisdom about having heart," said middie and eventual hero Thomas Flibotte. "He also told us to get out there and create more offense by moving the ball around. After the talk we all knew what needed to be done to get that score back in our favor

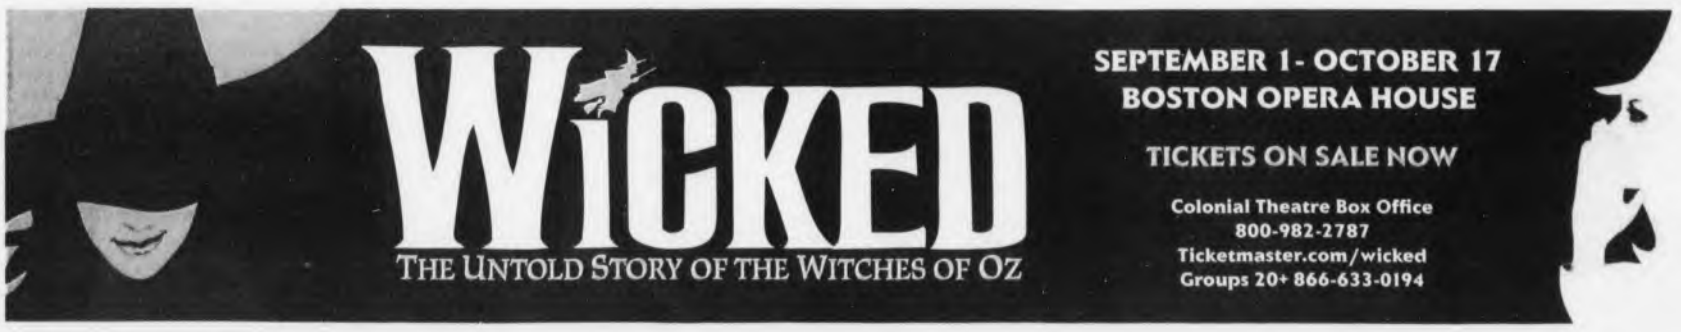
KNOCK ON WOOD

RYAN WOOD

It's not easy competing with the Red Sox, Celtics, Bruins, and Patriots when it comes to being a new professional sports team in Boston. But last year, the Boston Breakers, part of the new Womens Professional Soccer league, held their own. Sure, they didn't outsell the Sox and some of their home games competed with Celtics playoff games, but they still managed to draw an average attendance of roughly 5,000. Not bad considering it's the newest of Boston's seven professional sports teams (the aforementioned four and the New England Revolution, the Boston Blazers lacrosse team) competing in arguably the most competitive sports markets in the country.



Womens Professional Soccer and the Boston Breakers have returned for a second season. The Breakers have two games under their belt, getting a 2-1 win over the Washington Freedom in their season opener and drawing with the expansion Philadelphia Independence, 1-1, this past Sunday at home. The Breakers play at Harvard Stadium, and seeing 4,000 fans in the 30,000+ Harvard Stadium doesn't look like a huge draw, but considering Cohasset's Jeff Brown and Crandon Leahy share a moment together after they faced off on April 11 in Denver, Colorado. Both players played for Cohasset coach Stew Curran and the Skippers and both are currently playing Div. 1 college lacrosse, with Brown a junior at Denver University and Leahy a senior at Quinnipiac University in Hamden, Conn. Both are long pole defensemen and both start for their respective teams. In their game, Denver beat Quinnipiac 14-10.

that you can fit the capacity of six of the other seven WPS stadiums inside Harvard, the home games would look like sellouts in any of those other venues.

So how do the Boston Breakers survive amongst Red Sox Nation, the Celtics playoffs, and the Revolution, whose season runs into the fall. The WPS season runs until the end of September. And how do other teams in other major markets – Chicago and Philadelphia for example – survive. The WPS has teams in Boston, New Jersey, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, the Bay Area (California), St. Louis, and Washington, D.C. It features some of the best women's soccer talent in the world from a number of countries, including England, Brazil, Canada, Mexico, France, Spain, Denmark, Sweden, Australia, Japan, Switzerland, Iceland, Norway, Finland, the Netherlands, and Scotland. Many internationals play for their home country's national teams and have won Olympic gold medals and World Cups. Practically the entire U.S. Women's National Team, a group that won the gold medal in 2008 at the Beijing Olympics, plays in the WPS.

The league is all about creating a fan-friendly and family environment. A family of four can spend less than $100 on tickets, parking, and food combined. They can meet players and get autographs before the games. And on social media networks, fans can follow and even interact with their favorite players from around the league. There are also a few local connections. Pembroke's Niki Cross, a former star at Notre Dame Academy of Hingham, plays for St. Louis Athletica, two players on the Breakers grew up in Massachusetts, and local youth sports groups (including Duxbury Youth Soccer this past Sunday) attend games and get recognition on the stadium's big screen.

This year, the WPS is receiving nearly twice the media coverage it saw last year. Not only do daily newspapers cover the teams, a number of soccer websites and blogs have emerged to provide top WPS coverage. Some strictly focus on the women's game, while others dedicate a section of their sites to the WPS. Jeff Kassouf of The Equalizer, extensively covers the WPS. He launched his website, www.equalizersoccer.com in July 2009. He's had a steady increase in traffic since then. Kassouf, a New York native, covers every aspect of the league, spending a lot of time not only following the game action but also focusing on the business and marketing side of the game. But the question remains – is the WPS growing in popularity and will it catch on and become a successful professional organization?

"I'd like to think so, but it's too early to tell," said Kassouf, who has also done WPS podcasts for soccer websites Set Piece Analysts and World Soccer Reader. "Jersey sponsors are popping up, which points to positive signs. Looking at sponsorships being up and ticket sales up, that should be an indication. I think there's more of a general awareness. We're (sportswriters/bloggers) immersed in the culture of it, but it seems like it's up. I've seen a lot of increase in blogs. People I know that are fans on Twitter start following me, and now I'm seeing them doing freelance (writing)."

Alondra Hernandez, a Los Angeles based writer for Bleacher Report, covers three WPS teams – FC Gold Pride, St. Louis Athletica, and the Atlanta Beat. She also contributes to Pretty Tough, covering women's soccer on the professional, semi-pro, college, and international levels.

"I'm not sure if the interest in the league has grown from last year to now," Hernandez said. "I know that the Fantasy League does help WPS fans follow the league a lot more closely and pay more attention to everything that goes on. But I do think interest is growing and will grow simply because I think the quality of play is better than it was last year and WPS likes for people to go to a sporting event and leave wanting to come back for more. Also, I think that the new Defend Your Turf ad campaign is really helping the league putting the teams out there and to new, different people than the ones who are already fans of the league."

WPS launched its first-ever fantasy league this year, and it's Defend Your Turf campaign, which according to the WPS is a, "campaign, created by Pereira & O'Dell, (and) includes TV, social media, out of home, online advertising and media planning that engages fans to 'Defend Your Turf' – the tagline that will be used within the league's larger "See Extraordinary" brand message throughout the 2010 WPS Season. Following its WPS Kick-Off Week 2010 debut, the campaign will then continue to drive awareness and excitement for the 2010 WPS All-Star Game. The imagery encourages fans to 'Defend Your Turf' by texting messages of team support to a number that will transpose those text messages right onto the projections themselves. An autotext will also direct fans to a promotional number where they can receive special ticket offers."

Another way the league is drawing attention is through social media sites such as Facebook and Twitter. The latter has really helped spread the word about the WPS. The league itself tweets about everything that's going on. A number of athletes also Twitter, and some of them interact with the fans.

"You're never going to get that one-on-one interaction with another athlete on Twitter," Hernandez said. "I follow a few athletes that aren't soccer players, and what they do is they ask their followers questions, they get tons of responses and answer back by taking all those responses and putting them into one and going from there. I can go on Twitter and ask a WPS player something, and they'll answer back. I think it's awesome that we can interact like that, and some people are huge fans, and these players are huge celebrities to them, so I think it makes their day when they can get and athlete to write back. It's good to know that these players are very fan-friendly."

Kassouf agreed.

"I think it's good because it's a personal element," he said. "Some people that come to mind are (Boston's) Tiffany Weimer and (Washington's) Cat Whitehill. I think it's cool that here and there you'll get responses from (WPS players)."

Both Kassouf and Hernandez said it may be too early to tell if WPS will survive longer than the first women's professional soccer league, the WUSA, which ceased operations in 2003 after just three seasons. Reportedly, the WUSA spent its $40 million initial budget all in one season. That money was supposed to last five years, according to reports. But it's not just about the money. In order to survive, the WPS needs to keep people hooked both by getting them come back to games and watching the nationally televised games on Fox Soccer Channel.

"I really hope this league lasts longer. There's no reason why it shouldn't," Hernandez said. "I think the league and team officials just have to know that women's soccer, and just soccer alone in the U.S., has a smaller audience than any other sport, and they're going to need smaller stadiums, etc., and not get too excited that they start moving into bigger stadiums. It will take a few more years until they get packed stadiums for every game. Even now, so early into the season, the league is seeing very low attendance (rates), so that could start to make people think that this league won't last. But the main thing is patience. I think this league can make it."

The league has a number of new faces, some of the top college players in the country, which breeds a whole new crop of players that younger soccer fans can look up to. Kassouf and Hernandez said people look up to a number of players, including several from outside the U.S.

"One of them is Marta just because of her style," said Hernandez about the 24-year-old Brazilian star and four-time FIFA Womens World Player of the Year. "I think she attracts more than just kids though. Everyone is just impressed with her. Another player that I think younger fans look up to is Hope Solo. Most people love the one who scores all the goals, but I've never seen as many fans of a goalkeeper before Hope Solo came into the scene. Then there's Abby Wambach, (who has) more than 100 goals for the U.S. I think what helps younger fans have players they look up to is the players' personalities as well."

Kassouf said that in addition to Marta, people look up to U.S. Women's National team striker Natasha Kai and even someone who's name might not sound all too familiar to the average U.S. soccer fan, French international Sonia Bompastor.

"I went down to Washington last year, and Sonia Bompastor was a walking idol," he said. "Kids went nuts."

If the WPS can keep people interested in the women's game and keep them aware that there's a women's professional soccer team in eight major cities, this league has the potential to stick around a lot longer than the WUSA. Putting together a professional women's soccer league is a feat in and of itself, and getting it to survive would make even greater strides for the women's game.

Skippers win Chowda Cup

by the end of the game."

The fourth quarter started with Dean Driscoll capping off yet another hat trick in a man-up. Shortly after, Flibotte got his third goal of the game and Wise got his first, tying the game 8-8. With just over five minutes left in the game, Flibotte scored the go ahead goal.

Cohasset fended off the fierce Catholic Memorial offense, keeping them scoreless in the fourth. Even when Catholic Memorial had a man up, they were ineffective as Cohasset's man down defense only allowed one goal in eight tries.

"Our defense's ability to shut down opponents on man down was a huge part of our success in the game," added Murphy. "Also, it was really helpful that they were able to deny teams what are usually easy scoring opportunities. In turn, it gave the offense more time with the ball and gave them more chances to score."

Flibotte scored his fifth goal of the game with about two minutes left in the game making it 10-8. The goal secured Cohasset's first ever Chowda Cup Championship and earned Flibotte the Most Valuable Player award of the tournament. Flibotte, Alex Kinnealey, Will Wise, Dean Driscoll, and Murphy were all named to the Chowda Cup all tournament team.

With the 10-8 victory and Chowda Cup Championship, Cohasset continues to climb the ranks to the upper echelon of Massachusetts Lacrosse.

"Winning the Chowda Cup is very important to us," said Murphy. "It's our first time winning it and we also beat two quality opponents on the way."

The Skippers look to further their seven-game undefeated streak against the likes of Abington and Norwood this coming week.

They face their toughest opponent yet on Tuesday as they square off with Duxbury.

The Dragons are the No. 1 ranked lacrosse team in Massachusetts and are the six-time defending Division 1 State Champions.

They have played very well this season, including a blowout win over Scituate last week.

From High School to Adulthood

All are welcome to a workshop titled "Transition 101: High School to Adulthood" from 7 to 9 p.m., on Tuesday, May 4, at Paul Pratt Library, 35 Ripley Road, Presenter will be Marilyn Weber of the Federation for Children With Special Needs.

This workshop will address the effective use of the IEP and the Massachusetts Transition Planning Form for students who are ages 14 through 22. Individualized, person-centered planning of curriculum and supports throughout high school leads to better post high school outcomes and opportunities in education, training and/or employment for students with disabilities. Discussion will include age of majority, self-determination and self-advocacy, life skill development and preparing students to pursue as independent an adult life as possible. All workshops and presentations are free and sponsored by the Cohasset PSO/Parent Advisory Council.

Rave reviews for All School Band Night!

THE ARTS

KATHRYN HILLMAN

All School Band Night is a great opportunity for students and families to hear performances from all age groups

The Cohasset Middle/High School gym was packed with people who had come to enjoy a fast-growing tradition, the sixth annual All School Band Night on March 25. A great way to showcase all of the band students' skill and show the younger students what they could aspire for over the next few years, All School Band Night is a great opportunity for students and families to hear performances from all age groups – from those who first picked up their instrument a few months ago to those who have been involved for years.

The night was kicked off by the fourth-grade band, in their first public performance. Directed by Mr. Biagini, the band started with the classic "When the Saints go Marching In." Despite the enormous size of the band, they had strong clarity of tone and well-defined dynamics. The next piece, "Old MacDonald Had A Band," highlighted individual sections well by passing the melody line to different sections. The fourth-grade band's final song for the evening, "Hard Rock Blues," is a classic at All School Band Night. With a strong percussion underneath the rest of the band, the piece had a driving, hard rock rhythm. The band was very in sync throughout the song, and the percussion cowbell added just the right touch of funk. The band had a great overall performance.

The fifth-grade band performed next, starting with "Dance Celebration." The song began with the reeds, and then layered the brass on top of them. Dynamics added a lot of dimension to the piece. The woodwind staccato section in the second movement was very well done layered on top of the legato reed section. The whole piece was polished off the by brass, which was highlighted quite nicely. The whole piece was exceptionally well done. The fifth-grade band's final piece for the evening was Rock Solid, a percussion-intensive, cowbell infused, driving rock piece. The brass and woodwinds complemented each other beautifully, with a nice layering of sounds, phrases, and textures. The overall performance was excellent.

The sixth-grade band, under the direction of Mrs. Goldstein, performed "Pachelbel Canon." The flutes added a beautiful component to the piece, and the brass was exceptionally strong. The whole piece had a great sense of balance between the parts. The seventh and eighth-grade band then performed Aliens Landing, the musical story of what the composer thought would happen in aliens were to land in one's backyard. The first movement had a driving, adventurous tone, helped along by the brass and cowbell, whereas the second movement was more relaxed, before diving back into the first theme of the piece. It sounded like a piece from a movie soundtrack. The percussion punctuated the piece nicely; particularly the timpani roll at the end to polish everything off. The band sounded excellent.

The high school band was next to perform, under the direction of interim band director John DeWall. Their first piece was "World's Fair March," which the band will be performing this year in band competitions. The piece was a smart, brisk march. The band was very together, through the fast pace. The reeds were highlighted nicely, providing a smooth contrast to the staccato brass layered underneath them. The dynamics added a nice flair to the whole piece. The second piece, Instant Concert, was a quodlibet – an amusing mash-up of over 30 classical and pop pieces, including "Wedding March," "Jingle Bells," "Waltz of the Flowers," and the "Can-Can." It was very fun, fast-paced, and received a standing ovation from the crowd.

The Cohasset Jazz band performed a set of two songs, opening with "The Preacher." The piece begins with gospel tones, before changing into a bluesy, almost jazzy swing. The bass, played by Austin Meyers, was featured nicely, as was the trumpet solo. The piece ended with a stylish lick. The next piece, Fly Me To The Moon, is a classic big band piece. Featuring Garrett Canney on trumpet, the Sinatra signature piece was appropriately smooth. After the jazz band performed, grades eight to 12 performed the classic piece Addison Way Overture. The high school students had tutored the middle school students to turn this collaboration into a teaching experience for everyone. The piece kicked it off with brass and percussion, giving the piece a stately air. The flutes were featured nicely, and the reeds layered underneath added great sound support. The whole piece was very together and polished. The final piece for the evening, Ode to Joy, was played by all of the students. Despite the enormous number of students, the piece sounded awesome. It really embodied the point of All School Band Day. The evening was a tremendous success and the Town sincerely hopes that this great new tradition will continue in the years to come.

After 22 years in a Florida swamp, our window is as good as new.

To ensure the durability of our patented Fibrex® material window, we've kept the same window frame submerged in a Florida swamp since 1988. To this day, our testing engineers inspect it every year, and there has been absolutely no change. Our other weather-testing sites in sub-zero Minnesota and the Arizona desert have yielded the same result: after 22 years in the worst conditions, the very same Fibrex® material has remained unchanged.

Why do we perform this crazy weather-testing? To build the best replacement window, that's why. Our practically indestructible Fibrex® frame keeps our glass from shifting and our insulating seals intact, even during drastic temperature changes. This is how we maximize your home's energy-efficiency, season after season, year after year.

Broad Cove Chorale includes Cohasset voices

Anniversary concert May 1 in Scituate

The Chorale will present a special anniversary concert, under the direction of founder Margo Euler of Hingham, at 8 p.m., on Saturday, May 1, in the Arts Barn of the Inly School in Scituate.

For 35 years, the Broad Cove Chorale has held the distinction of being the only women's chorus on the South Shore performing the classical repertoire while also exploring "The American Songbook," barbershop and folk music. The Chorale will present a special anniversary concert, under the direction of founder Margo Euler of Hingham, at 8 p.m., on Saturday, May 1, in the Arts Barn of the Inly School in Scituate.

When anniversary years come along, Chorale alumnae are often invited to join the current singers. This year's returning alums will include Carol Whittaker of Braintree and Rena Zeller of Hingham, who sang with the original Chorale in 1975, and soloist Karen Ginsburg of Norwell, who will be featured in the classical portion of the concert.

The event will showcase the many and varied talents of BCC members. Flautist Christa Prescott of Plympton and oboist Sally Davenport of Hingham and the South Shore Conservatory will at times step out of their singing roles to perform with accompanist Mark Goodman. Anne Reel of Cohasset will take the audience back to the '60s with her guitar. A barbershop quartet and a bit of Broadway, including dance, will round out the evening. A reception will follow the concert and will feature a slide show looking back on highlights of the Chorale's 35 year history.

Tickets are $15 in advance or $18 at the door. They are available at Noble's in Hingham Square, Hingham Public Library, Buttonwood Books in Cohasset, and by calling 781-749-0162. Inly School is at 46 Watch Hill Drive, directly on Route 123, in Scituate near the Norwell town line.

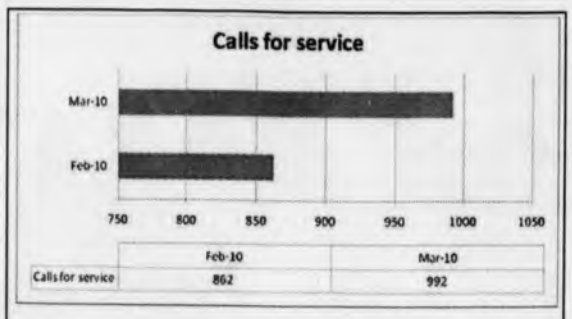
POLICE STATUS REPORT

Police summarize March activities

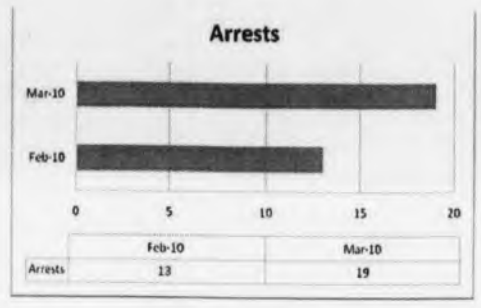
Special projects/achievements/innovations: Cohasset Resident Douglas Bumstead and his sons, made a very generous donation of an Executive Office Desk to the department. Doug is a Cohasset resident and the owner of Key Office Interiors in Boston. This beautiful desk was the final piece that was needed to complete the remodel and update of the chief's office. We are so very fortunate to have such generous people in town.

Chief Mark DeLuca, Lt. William Quigley, Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor, Police Officer Patrick Kenney, and Police Officer Patrick Reardon visited Jack Buckley's Introduction to Law classes throughout the month of March.

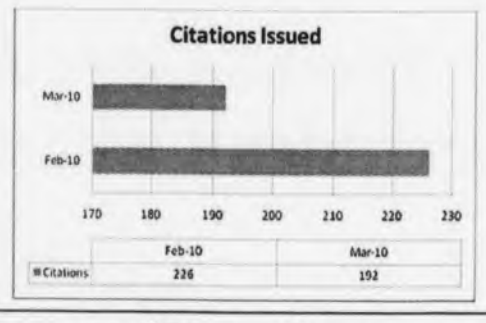
Cohasset High School junior Christian Quebec is a candidate for the Boy Scouts of America, Eagle Scout rank. Christian has committed to constructing 20 wooden traffic barricades for the department as his Eagle Scout project. The barricades will be used for traffic control during major town events such as the Cohasset Triathlon and the Cohasset Road Race. Christian is being assisted by Animal Control Officer Paul Murphy with the project, which includes seeking donations for the procurement of materials, design of the barricades and production. Christian is looking to complete this project before June.



Chief Mark DeLuca, Lt. William Quigley, Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor, Police Officer Patrick Kenney, and Police Officer Patrick Reardon visited Jack Buckley's Introduction to Law classes throughout the month of March. During the classes, which are mostly comprised of Cohasset High School sophomores and juniors, the officers talk about search and seizure, police procedure and "what it is like being a cop." The classes culminated with over 50 students visiting the Cohasset Police station for a tour. This program, which was developed by Buckley, has been in existence for over nine years now, and is highly successful in opening lines of communication between officers and students.



The department continues working toward becoming an accredited police department. The Accreditation Team, comprised of five members from the department, reviews policies and procedures, and makes suggestions for best practices. The accreditation process is long and cumbersome, but the benefits of State Accreditation will be rewarding.



Monthly activities, Patrol Division Cases of Interest: On March 12, at about 3:30 p.m., at 19-year-old Cohasset man was arrested for distribution of marijuana, possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, distribution of marijuana in a school zone, and possession of more than 1-ounce of marijuana. This arrest was the result of an ongoing investigation by Cohasset CID detectives and members of the patrol division.

• On March 13, at about 2 p.m.,

POLICE STATUS REPORT

Police summarize March activities

officers responded to a violent domestic dispute between father and son. A 9-1-1 caller was reporting that the son was attempting to stab the father with a knife. Officers arrived and subdued a 16-year-old male that was wielding a kitchen knife. The 16-year-old was charged with assault with intent to murder, assault with a dangerous weapon on a person over 60, assault and battery on a disabled person over 60, and simple assault and battery.

• On March 21, at about 1 a.m., a Cohasset officer stopped a vehicle that was being operated erratically on Route 3A. After having conversation with the operator, and having him perform several field sobriety tests, the driver, a 41-year-old male from East Weymouth, was arrested for third offense OUI, reckless driving, failure to signal, and failure to yield.

• On March 21, at about 6:30 a.m., officers responded to a residence for reported B&E in progress. On scene officers found an unknown male inside of a home. A violent struggle with the male ensued and a Cohasset Police Officer fell down a large flight of stairs. A second officer on scene was also assaulted. The suspect ran from the home and a lengthy search was conducted. After more than nine hours, the suspect was apprehended and charged with burglary, assault and battery on a police officer (two counts), resisting arrest (two counts), being a fugitive from justice, B&E motor vehicle, and disorderly conduct.

During March the department investigated several serious incidents involving road rage. Chief DeLuca sent out a town-wide Connect CTY message advising residents of how to handle such situations and describing the suspects. To date, one of the suspects has been identified and talked to by officers.

March brought record rainfall to Cohasset. As a result, officers responded to multiple incidents of large scale power outages and reports of flooded homes, roads and basements. Additionally, a driver who moved a police barricade and entered a flooded stretch of road in the area of Jerusalem Road and Bow Street had his truck swept away by ocean current. The driver escaped without injury, but the vehicle was totaled and had to be winched out of at least 8 feet of water – an operation which took over 2.5 hours.

Statistical Data,Training: Sgt. Jeffrey Treanor completed 80 hours of basic sergeant training at the Randolph Police Academy. This training is mandated by state law.

Three officers attended 8 hours of breathalyzer recertification training held at the Reading Police Academy.

An officer attended 16 hours of grant writing training held at Boston City Hall.

A sergeant attended 16 hours of recreational vehicle enforcement training at the Point Allerton Coast Guard Station.

A police officer attended 8 hours of "detecting drug impaired drivers" training in western Massachusetts.

A sergeant attended 16 hours of METRO-LEC motorcycle training at the former South Weymouth Navy Air Station

A police officer attended 16 hours of training having to do with handling juvenile crime issues relating to schools, including bullying, and cyber-bullying.

Two special officer candidates are enrolled in the Massachusetts Police Training Committee's Basic Reserve Police Officer Academy in Plymouth. The course is over 298 hours and the candidates are attending on their own time. They are due to graduate in late June.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
MAY 3, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The Lamb is usually excited about taking on a new challenge. But if that's a touch of doubt you're feeling, maybe it's you telling yourself to go slow on this until you learn more about it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Accepting new commitments when you haven't yet finished the batch on hand could be a bit rash. Better to ease up on the new ones until you get further along with your current lot.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Reward yourself for what's sure to be a dynamic week with a getaway to someplace wonderful, hopefully with a wonderful someone. You'll return refreshed and ready for what's ahead.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Some people might be anxious about your plans. So you need to take time to explain what you expect to do and how you expect do it. And don't forget to ask for suggestions.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Dealing with an unfamiliar problem can be difficult. The wisest course you can take is to ask for advice from those who have been where you are and have come through it. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Tackle a frustrating job problem by considering possibilities you might have ignored before. This reassures colleagues you're serious about finding a solution, even if it's not totally yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your balanced approach to life proves to be helpful this week when someone you care for needs your spiritual comfort, while someone else benefits from your tough-love practicality.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Once again, you're likely to be asked to keep a secret for someone. But do you really want to do so? Be honest with yourself and with your needs before you make any such commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Taking a more direct approach from the more diplomatic one you've used before could make a difference in finally resolving a too-long-held disagreement. Try it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Being asked for advice is flattering to the Sea Goat, who has a habit of saying the right thing. This time, expect someone to be especially impressed and to act on that sentiment.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With a number of pressures easing, your project could be making a lot more progress than you expected by this time. That's great news. But don't let yourself be distracted; stay with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An interesting challenge looms that could be exactly what you've been looking for. Discuss this with colleagues who could have much to contribute and who might want to join with you.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

'Little Women,' big stage

Hingham Civic Music Theatre presents classic novel

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Louisa May Alcott's novel "Little Women" has proven so enduringly popular since it was first published in 1868 that it has been turned into a play, a musical, an opera, 11 different feature films and TV movies, four Japanese anime versions, and even a Korean comic book serial.

Beginning Saturday, Hingham Civic Music Theatre will present the 2005 Tony Award-nominated musical version of the 1860s-set "Little Women" at Hingham Town Hall, in support of the ongoing celebration of Hingham's 375th anniversary, which has been organized around a timeline of historical eras.

"Hingham is now commemorating the Civil War period which is when 'Little Women' takes place so we thought now was the perfect time to do this show," explained Hingham Civic Music Theatre President Pauline Rockwell by telephone last week.

Anne Thornton of Hanover as Marmee and Claire Lukaczyn of Quincy as Meg March perform in "Little Women" presented by the Hingham Civic Music Theatre April 24-May 2.

Hingham Civic Music Theatre president and Hanover resident Pauline Rockwell.

Like its best-known feature film counterparts – including a 1933 version with Katharine Hepburn, a 1949 treatment with Elizabeth Taylor, and a 1994 movie remake with Winona Ryder – the 2005 Broadway musical adaptation, with book by Allan Knee, music by Jason Howland and lyrics by Mindi Dickstein, follows the lives of sisters Meg, Jo, Beth, and Amy March. Loosely based on her own childhood in Concord, Mass., Alcott's story presents the young women as they struggle to overcome their individual character flaws, whether it be Meg and her vanity, Jo with her temper, Beth and her shyness, or Amy with her selfishness.

"I haven't read the book, but I did see the 1994 film version with Susan Sarandon, Claire Danes, and Christian Bale, and I also saw the recent Silver Lake Regional High School production of the musical which was wonderful. The only difference, and what really came through in Kingston, is that the music just adds a whole different layer to the experience. The songs serve to deepen the heart-wrenching drama of this beautiful story. And, of course, the great humor, dealing with family relationships and romance, is still there, too."

Rockwell, a Hanover resident who has appeared in five Hingham Civic productions, doesn't mind acknowledging that the music gets to her. "When I hear songs like 'The Weekly Volcano Press,' 'Some Things Are Meant to Be,' and Marmee's ballad, 'Days of Plenty,' I get goose bumps. This is a very emotional score, which is sure to make some people cry. The music has beautiful harmonies and gorgeous melodies and we've got just the right singers to pull it off."

The 10-person cast includes Kathleen Comber of Brighton as Jo, Hanover's Anne Thornton as Marmee, Clair Lukacyn of Quincy as Meg, Waltham's Kat Aberle as Amy, and Katherine Joy of Brockton as Beth, with Bridgewater's Gavin Killee as Laurie, Amy Rogers of Weymouth as Aunt March, Quincy's Brendan Auld as Professor Bhaer, Marc Bourgeois of Waltham as Mr. Brooke, and Framingham's Dan Moore as Mr. Laurence.

"Everyone in our cast has a special spark. As Jo, Kathleen Comber is never offstage and can also belt out a song with the best of them. Kat Aberle, our Aimee, lives in Waltham, but she's appeared in New York in 'Urinetown,' and as the title character in 'Pippi Longstocking' on national tour."

While lauding the cast, Rockwell is also quick to credit her director and costumer.

Our costume designer, Brianna Plummer of Hanover, has made some gorgeous, beautifully detailed, and elaborate costumes for this show. Our director, Adam Joy, from East Bridgewater, is brand new to us and he has really stepped up. His directing techniques are spot-on and I know our audiences will be delighted with the way he has staged this show."

Hingham Civic Music Theatre will present "Little Women" April 24 thought May 2 at Sanborn Auditorium, Hingham Town Hall, 210 Central St., Hingham. For tickets and information, call 781-837-1499 or visit hcmt.org.

'New Mel Brooks Musical: Young Frankenstein' arrives at Boston Opera House

Anne Horak, Roger Bart , Cory English, Joanna Glushak & Shuler Hensley in YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN: The Mel Brooks Musical Directed by Susan Stroman

Roger Bart has been a Mel Brooks fan since childhood. And over the past decade, the legendary Brooks has also become a fan of Bart – casting him in both of his Broadway musicals, "The Producers" and "Young Frankenstein," the latter of which brings Bart to the Boston Opera House this week.

"I have always been a Mel Brooks fan. As a kid, I loved 'Blazing Saddles.' I had a great uncle who toured with George Burns and Gracie Allen and I really think knowing him helped me to understand and appreciate Mel's comic sensibilities. Mel's style of comedy writing speaks to one, or probably now two, generations of people who have a communal recognition of his work from his films. It is borscht-belt style comedy at its very best," explained Bart by telephone recently from a Toronto tour stop. "The first time I met Mel was when I auditioned for the role of the Nazi in 'The Producers.' I had gone into the room and done my schtick, and then I could hear Mel's voice saying, 'too small, he's too small' to the director Susan Stroman."

Brooks may not have been able to see Bart – who made his Broadway debut as Tom Sawyer in "Big River" and won a Tony Award as Snoopy in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" – as a Nazi, but he did cast him as the "common-law assistant" to openly gay theater director Roger DeBris, played by actor Gary Beach.

"When I did my reading for Carmen Ghia, I held the 's' in 'yes' for as long as I possibly could. Watching Mel Brooks turn bright red laughing as I held that's' was amazing. Mel was so tickled when I got that role. Mel has always been very gracious to me. While we were in rehearsals for 'The Producers,' Mel and his wife, Anne Bancroft, came to see me off-Broadway in 'Fully Committed.' They did not have to do that, but they did and it meant the world to me."

That first "New Mel Brooks Musical," starring Nathan Lane and Matthew Broderick, opened on Broadway in April 2001 and went on to become a must-see sensation that won more Tony Awards than any other show in history.

"My days in 'The Producers' were amazing. It was a fantastically delirious romp. Gary Beach and I didn't make our first entrances until about 45 minutes in so we'd watch from backstage and see the audiences just going wild. We were right there and we couldn't wrap our brains around just how big the show was," says Bart, who television audiences know as the scheming pharmacist who pursued unsuspecting Bree – and knocked off her first husband in the process – on ABC-TV's "Desperate Housewives."

When Brooks began adapting another of his classic films into a Broadway musical, he had a role in mind for Bart – although not the one he would ultimately play.

"Mel had written Igor with me in mind, because that part matched my comic sensibilities and clowning skills. And I am a huge, huge fan of Marty Feldman so I was very excited."

Plans changed, however, when it became clear that it wasn't going to be easy to find just the right actor to play Dr. Frederick Frankenstein, a straight man who must also get some laughs. Before long, Bart was asked to move up to the lead role created on film by Gene Wilder.

Like the 1974 film on which it is based, "The New Mel Brooks Musical Young Frankenstein" is a comedic reimagining of the Mary Shelley classic which finds Dr. Frankenstein, a respected New York brain surgeon and professor, inheriting a castle and laboratory in Transylvania from his deranged genius grandfather.

The young Dr. Frankenstein was the second role Bart had inherited from Wilder. When Matthew Broderick left "The Producers," Bart took over as nebbish accountant Leo Bloom, a part first played by Wilder in the 1968 film version of "The Producers." Wilder didn't just star in "Young Frankenstein," however – he also co-wrote the screenplay with Brooks. Indeed, the pair earned an Academy Award nomination for Best Adapted Screenplay.

When Wilder came to see a matinee of the musical when it was still in previews, he also made his way backstage to see Bart.

"I think Gene Wilder is the best. He is all over this show. When Susan Stroman brought him to my dressing room, I did all the talking. I didn't want him to feel as though he were on the spot and had to say something nice," recalls Bart, 47. "I just said that I was a huge fan of everything he did and that I thought of him every day that we were working on this show. Finally, I said to him, 'Was it a little weird for you to watch?' And he replied, 'Yes, it was a little weird.' And then he said, 'But I loved the dancing.' That was enough for me. If I were doing 'Raging Bull: The Musical,' I wouldn't expect DeNiro to come back after the show and say, 'Yeah, it's great. I loved you in my role.'"

"The New Mel Brooks Musical Young Frankenstein" will be at the Opera House, 539 Washington St., Boston, through May 2. For tickets and information, call 1-800-982-2787 or go online at broadwayacrossamerica.com

Nina Wellford (left), with Personnel Manager Sarah Gast and Conductor Jin Kim, steps down this Sunday at the Pops after 12 years as Managing Director of Atlantic Symphony Orchestra.

Atlantic Symphony presents Season Finale Pops!

The Atlantic Symphony Orchestra presents their Season Finale Pops concert, at Thayer Academy's new performing arts center in Braintree at 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 25.

Always a festive mix of lighter classical music, this year's program highlights Atlantic Symphony's outstanding principal musicians soloing in front of the full orchestra: Bach's Concerto in D minor for Two Violins, Vaughan Williams' Fantasia on Greensleeves with flute solo, Haydn's Cello Concerto in D, and Mozart's Clarinet Concerto. Along with polkas by Strauss, favorite by Bizet, selections from the Star Wars Suite and Sousa's rousing Stars and Stripes Forever, the music leaves audience members exhilarated.

This year's Pops marks the final concert for Atlantic Symphony Managing Director Nina Wellford, who is stepping down after 12 years in that role. "This is always a bittersweet concert for me, since the music is so exciting, yet with it another season comes to a close," says Wellford. "This one will be really special. I've enjoyed every moment of these 12 years, and look forward to being in the audience for many more."

Conductor Jin Kim enjoys this concert as well. "The Pops gives our orchestra a chance to show their personality. We always have fun," says Kim, who completes his thirteenth season with the orchestra, and is in the process of planning next season.

Pops includes a pre-concert party in the lobby beginning at 3:30, with wine contributed by Marsh's Wine & Spirits in Norwell and light refreshments sponsored by Derby Street Shoppes. Seating is reserved, so groups of friends may sit together. Tickets at $40 adults, $30 seniors and $10 youth through age 18 maybe purchased in advance at 781-740-5694 or www.atlanticsymphony.org. A limited number will be available at the door.

16 apartments at Old Colony Square

Lottery slated for the two affordable units

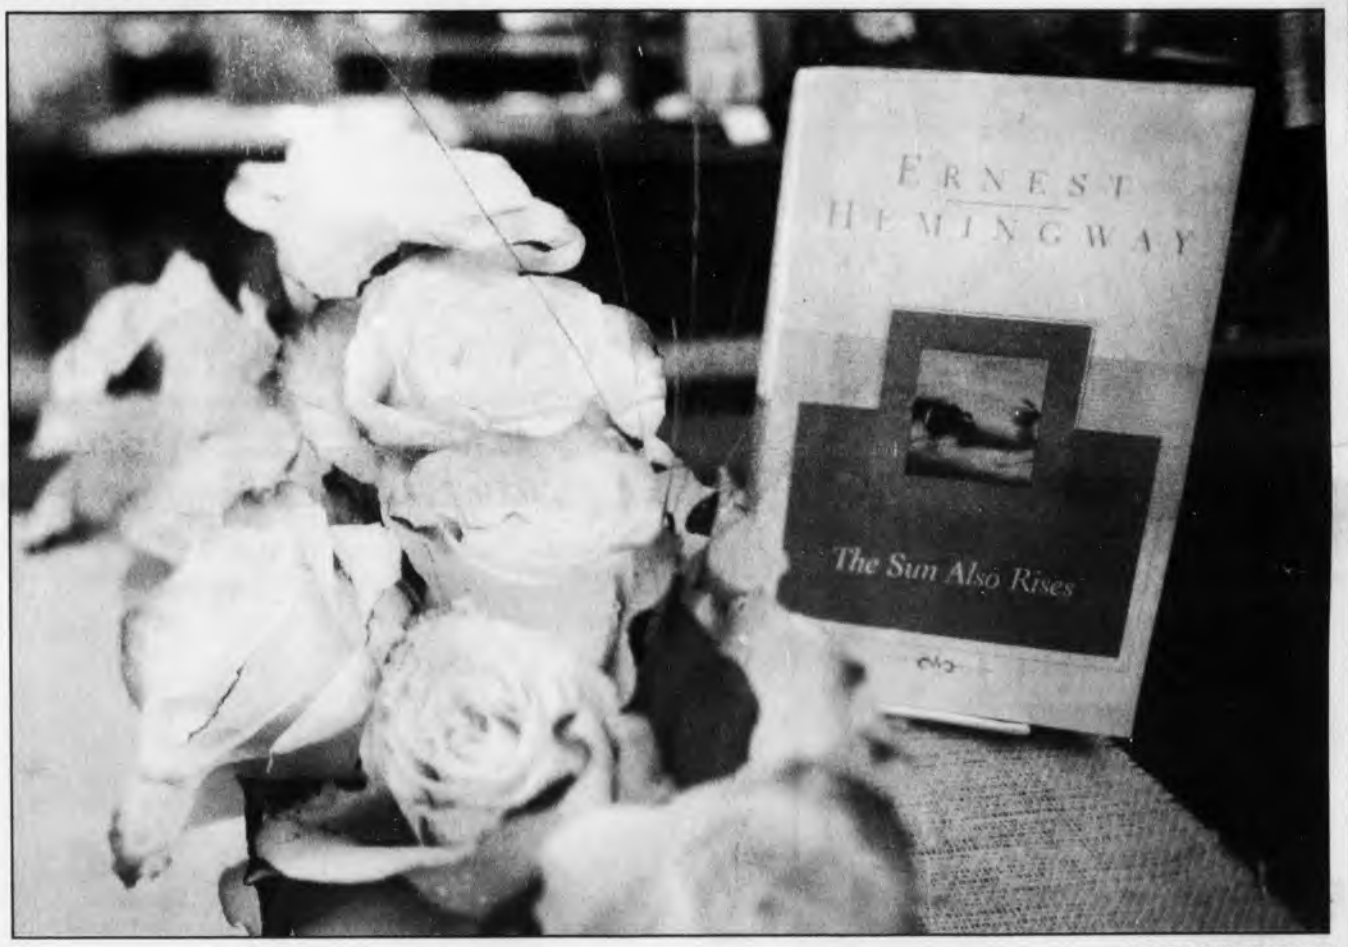
By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In a matter of months, the town of Cohasset will have its first new affordable units in decades.

Old Colony Square, the transit-oriented mixed-use building sited next to the MBTA station, is nearly complete.

The development includes 16 apartments and 32,000 square feet of retail space. The final touches are being put on the development and one of the tenants, South Shore Athletic Club, is now open.

Representatives from the developer, Connell Cohasset Greenbush LLC, were on hand at the Selectmen's meeting Monday night to discuss a regulatory agreement an affiliate of New Jersey-based Connell Real Estate & Development Co., for the two affordable apartment units.



Town Manager Bill Griffin said the agreement was critical to ensuring the two affordable units "counted" toward the town's affordable unit inventory. These two apartments will be the town's first "countable" affordable housing units since the senior housing was build at 60 Elm St.

"The negotiation took quite awhile with town counsel and the housing consultant weighing in," Griffin said.

The agreement stipulates the two affordable units at the property will be

50/50 question makes comeback

But board sticks with decision on sewer

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

No minds were changed, but it was not due to a lack of trying.

On Monday night, a roomful of residents came out to speak to the issue of Little Harbor 50/50 cost share — and sending it to a ballot box — at the Board of Selectmen meeting.

The Little Harbor 50/50 cost share question was not on the Selectmen's agenda Monday night, but several residents asked to speak to that issue during the public comment section of the meeting.

The comments prompted some dis-

Home Instead SENIOR CARE®

by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison

ASSISTANCE WITH GROOMING

Health limitations or depression may require at-home seniors to have help maintaining their personal hygiene and appearance, and a home healthcare aide can assist. Bathing should be a regular routine. Hair washing may be done in the home, or the aide may take the senior to the barber shop or salon for a regular appointment. Assistance or supervision with shaving may include the use of an electric razor. Women may like to have makeup applied. The aide can make sure senior clients keep their fingernails and toenails trimmed. Also, they will encourage twice-a-day tooth brushing and proper care of dentures. These procedures help maintain the health and promote a sense of dignity and self-worth in the senior.

Maintaining independence is vital to keeping your loved ones happy and healthy at home. Bathing and grooming is just part of that. Our home healthcare aides can also help with meals, getting dressed, and errands, all of which can keep your parents in their homes longer. Call 781-878-2994 today to learn about our wide variety of services, from occasional overnight respite care to full-time live-in care. We know nobody likes to think about these things, but we're here when you need us. We are located at 145 Washington Street, Suite 11. In-home help for Massachusetts seniors.

P.S. Always treat a senior as an adult, with the dignity and respect he or she deserves.

To you, it's about finding a trusted partner. To us, it's personal.

POLICE BEAT

Cracking down on Jr. Operator violations

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Cohasset police will be monitoring the high school parking lots and sporting events for teen drivers, who are violating the Junior Operator Law.

Police said parents should be aware that there is no provision in the JOL law for transporting friends to and from school. If a junior operator receives a citation for a JOL violation, the fine is $35 and a (60) day license suspension for a first offense with a reinstatement fee of $100.

Chief Mark DeLuca explained the JOL was created because of the large number of motor vehicle accidents involving younger, inexperienced drivers.

"The responsibility that goes with being given the right to operate a 5,000 pound machine that can go as fast as a car can go is often taken lightly," DeLuca said. "As a police officer, and more importantly a Dad, I understand that parents and kids should be aware of the dangers that distractions can cause when driving."

He said the JOL addresses some of these dangers including have young passengers in the vehicle.

The following are some facts about the Junior Operator Law (source: Registry of Motor Vehicles):

- Junior Operator is a licensed driver between the ages of 16-1/2 and 18 years of age.
- Purpose is to provide junior operators with an opportunity to develop good driving skills, while being free of possible distractions caused by having friends in the car their own age while behind the wheel.
- Junior Operator may not operate a motor vehicle, within the first six months after receiving a "Junior Operator's License" while any passenger under the age of 18 is in the vehicle (other than an immediate family member), unless accompanied by a person who is at least 21 years old, has at least one year of driving experience, holds a valid driver's license from Massachusetts or another state and is occupying a seat beside the Junior Operator.
- Junior Operator may not operate a motor vehicle during the hours of 12:30 a.m. to 5 a.m. unless accompanied by parent or legal guardian.
- Junior Operator may not operate a motor vehicle requiring a commercial driver's license;
- Junior Operator's License will be suspended for a substantial period of time if the teen is under 18 at the time certain driving offenses involving alcohol or drugs are committed.
- License suspension for all speeding or drag racing violations.

Chief DeLuca urges all motorists — young and old — to beware of driving distractions such as loud music, eating while driving, and cell phone use all of which impede a driver's ability to operate safely.

"Also be sure to give yourself plenty of time so you don't have to hurry, respect others and pay attention the business at hand which is safety," he said.

Stolen credit card

A 46-year-old Scituate man has been arrested and charged with identity fraud and larceny (of a credit card) after he tried to use a stolen credit card to buy a bottled of vodka at Curtis Liquors last week. Curtis Liquors called police when the card came up "stolen" at about 4:20 p.m. on Monday (April 19). Police found the man, who was intoxicated, walking in Tedeschi Plaza. Police said he told them he had found the credit card at the Scituate MBTA station.

White dog

The animal control officer is keeping an eye out in the area of Ripley Road for a white dog that put a woman in fear last week while she was out for her morning walk. She called police about 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday (April 20) to report the incident; she said the dog came at her. She was not bitten but it frightened her.

Shopping cart

A 57-year-old Scituate woman who was in Shaw's with her granddaughter last Tuesday (April 20) at about 4:30 p.m., went to the service desk to complain about a man whom she said had purposely banged her granddaughter with a shopping cart. Police arrived to make sure it had not been a deliberate act where a child was involved. The man, who is 68 and a Scituate resident, said it was an accident. He apparently is a grouchy sort and that may have led to the accusation, police said.

Bad accident at lower King Street

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

A car crash last Thursday (April 22) at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A sent two women to the hospital.

Around 12:30 a 2001 Hyundai Sonata pulled out of lower King Street attempting to make a left turn onto 3A. The car collided with a northbound GMC Sierra Dump Truck.

The Cohasset Police received multiple 9-1-1 calls reporting the two-car accident. The two passengers of the Hyundai were trapped and unconscious. The Cohasset Fire Department used the jaws-of-life to free the trapped women, who were both taken by ambulance to South Shore Hospital.

The driver, a 20-year-old Rockland resident, has been released from the hospital. The passenger, a 39-year-old woman from Halifax, sustained a broken neck and was later transferred to Brigham & Women's Hospital. The passenger was not wearing a seatbelt; it is unclear whether the driver was restrained, Cohasset Police Lieutenant William Quigley said.

Investigation on scene, as well as witness statements, showed that the driver of the Hyundai was attempting to enter Route 3A south from

Police: Cushing Road home invasion targeted

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Police Chief Mark DeLuca wants Cohasset residents to know a home invasion on Cushing Road last Saturday night was a targeted incident and not a random act.

"This specific individual was targeted," DeLuca said in a phone interview.

The police department knows the victim and his residence. In 2008, police executed a search warrant at this home that resulted in this victim being charged with drug dealing. He was later convicted.

According to the police report, two men knocked on the victim's door Saturday night and identified themselves as police officers. When the victim opened the door they allegedly knocked him to the ground and tied him up. Once inside, they tied the victim to a radiator, blindfolded him and threatened to light him on fire if he did not hand over money and drugs.

On Saturday night (April 24), at 10:45p.m., Cohasset Police were called to a Cushing Road address for a report of a man banging on a neighbor's front door screaming for them to call 9-1-1.

On arrival, police said they found a 22-year-old man visibly upset and his hands and feet bound.

DeLuca said a quantity of cash and a laptop computer were stolen from the victim's home; it is not known if drugs were taken as well.

What is clear though, police said, is the suspects knew the victim: they called him by name and appeared to have some knowledge of his habits.

The two suspects are described as approximately 40 years old, with stocky builds and dark colored hair. No other information is known at this time, DeLuca said.

The Cohasset Criminal Investigation Department spent hours collecting evidence and processing the crime scene well into Sunday morning. DeLuca said detectives are now examining the evidence looking for any leads.

CUTTING CORNERS WON'T CUT IT!

When it comes to repairing the body damage that your car has sustained in accidents and parking lots, the goal is to get a factory-like finish. For the most part, this involves labor-intensive attention to detail before the paint is sprayed. To begin with, the damaged body panels must be totally isolated from attached trim so that the repair will extend to the entire piece of metal and overspray will not be an issue. The damaged section must then be thoroughly cleaned, hammered, realigned, patched, and sanded before being primed and feathered with multiple layers of matching paint and clearcoat. Keeping this in mind, vehicle owners should consider more than just a price quote when selecting a quality body shop.

Of course, the quality of workmanship is vital to any repairs on your car, not just body work. After all, your life can literally depend on having a safe and reliable car. At ATLANTIC TIRE AND ALIGNMENT our technicians are ASE certified, which means we have the best possible training. What's more, we have five frame straighteners, so we can get the job done fast and right. And don't forget that if the accident wasn't your fault, the other party's insurance will pay for a rental! Call 781-925-3200 for an appointment today. Our address is 25 Atlantic House Rd. If you've gotten in an accident, be sure to check out our sister store, Cohasset Collision Center, 179 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Cohasset, 781-383-3001.

Hint: Vehicle owners should resist the urge to repair their automobiles with cut-rate parts that do not have the quality and fit of original equipment.

lower King Street while the dump truck was traveling North on 3A. The driver of the Hyundai allegedly went through a stop sign and pulled in front of the truck. The driver of the truck hit the driver-side door of the Hyundai, pushing it over 50 feet down Route 3A.

The driver of the dump truck, a 56-year-old man from Marshfield, was uninjured. The dump truck ended up off the road and on the lawn of the Brass Kettle building.

"He did everything he could to avoid the accident," Quigley said.

The driver was cited for failure to stop for a stop sign and failing to yield to on-coming traffic.

The Hyundai was totaled and the dump truck sustained substantial front-end damage.

The accident shut down traffic on Route 3A between lower King and the MBTA station for 30 minutes while emergency response officials cleared the accident. Northbound traffic was diverted down lower King Street to North Main Street and southbound traffic was diverted into the MBTA station over to North Main.

Hingham Police assisted with traffic control.

The intersection has been the location of numerous accidents over the years.

"It seems people become impatient waiting for a break in the traffic at this intersection or misjudge the speed and distance of 3A traffic," Quigley said. "It's a place we monitor as much as we can. This intersection is really on our radar screen right now."

Lights at the Lower King intersection were discussed when developers came forward with plans for a commercial development on Scituate Hill between the Brass Kettle Building and Sunrise Assisted Living facility. However, nothing is in the works for a set of traffic lights at that intersection at the moment, said town engineer Mark Brennan.

A traffic light is being built a quarter mile to the north at the Route 3A exit for the MBTA parking lot. The developers of the Old Colony Square mixed-use complex are paying for the lights.

TAKE OUR POLL!

In light of this accident at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A, do you think action needs to be taken to make this intersection and area safer? This portion of the Route 3A corridor is getting busier and more commercial than ever.

We set up a poll on our website to gauge reader opinion on what should be done at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A.

The option are install traffic lights, lower the speed limit, increase police visibility in the area, drivers should just be more careful, and do nothing.

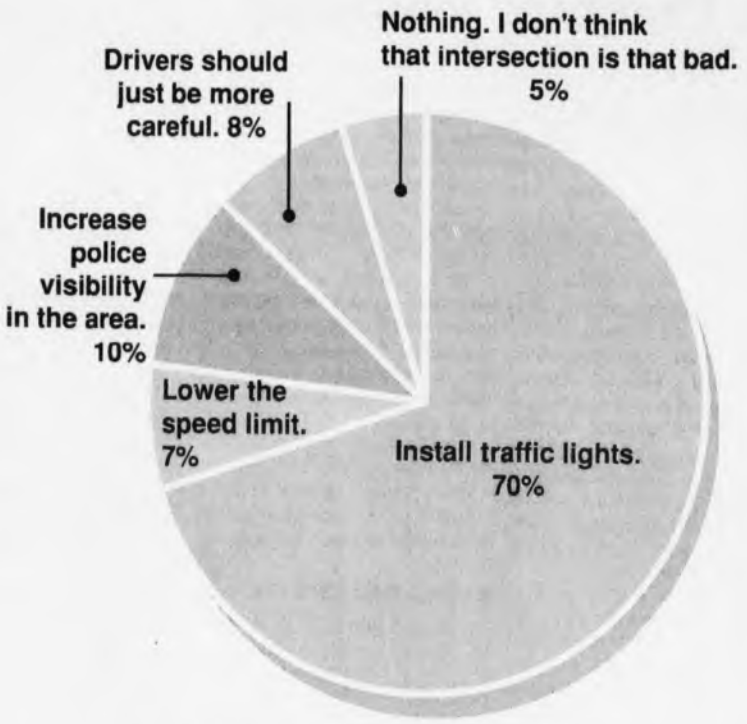
Light at lower King?

Here are preliminary results from our on-line poll about what should be done at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A?



As you can see from the pie chart – 70 percent of the votes so far think a traffic light is needed. So far 48 web visitors have voted in our poll.

Here is the question posed to our Web visitors:

What should be done at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A?

- Install traffic lights
- Lower the speed limit
- Increase police visibility in the area
- Drivers should be more careful
- Nothing. I don't think the intersection is that bad.

Total votes: 48 (as of Thursday morning).

No insurance

A 44-year-old Cohasset woman is being summonsed to court for operating an uninsured vehicle on Ripley Road last Tuesday (April 20). An officer was on routine patrol at about 7:20 p.m. when he spotted a black 2004 GMC Envoy with an expired sticker on the license plate. A registry check revealed the registration had been revoked for non-payment of insurance. The vehicle was towed, police said.

Expired license

At about 5:23 p.m. on Sunday (April 25), a motorist hit a deer on Route 3A between Stop & Shop and Red Fox Lane. The 51-year-old Marshfield woman was driving a Honda Odyssey van when the mishap occurred. While filling out the accident report, the responding officer found through a registry check that the woman's license had expired last month. She is being summonsed to court for operating on an expired license. Police urge motorists to check the expiration date on their driver's license, as the registry no longer sends out reminders.

Parking lot

A witness reported seeing an elderly woman in a 2003 Saab back into an unoccupied 2008 Ford Focus last Wednesday (April 21) at about 11:42 a.m. in Tedeschi Plaza. The witness took down the plate number and investigation revealed the car was owned by an 80-year-old Milton man, who said his wife had been driving. Police said it appears the woman did not realize she had backed into the other car. Police are following up and may request a medical evaluation to determine her ability to drive.

Lexus vs. Lexus

Witnesses reported to Hull police that a 2004 Lexus backed into a 2007 Lexus parked in the DiNero's lot on Saturday evening (April 24). The reporting parties copied down the plate, which came back to a 54-year-old Hull woman. She immediately drove to the scene and told Cohasset police that she did not think that she had hit the other car, police said. There was minor damage to the 2007 Lexus.

Stolen tools

A 47-year-old Grace Drive man reported to police on Saturday (April 24) that $500 worth of tools was taken from his shed including a cordless drill and hammer drill. Police have checked with neighbors to see if anyone saw anything. The incident is under investigation.

Restraining order

Foxborough contacted Cohasset police about a 55-year-old man whose last known address was on Cushing Road who had violated a restraining order. Investigation revealed the man is now out of state in Indiana.

What sets this gym apart is having an appointment three times a week for your training. I never miss it, whereas if I had joined a conventional gym I would have trouble motivating myself to go as often as I do. This concept really works. I've almost reached my goal weight. It's a great feeling of accomplishment. I've lost 30 pounds and am now a size 8. It makes shopping for clothes a pleasure.

2010-2011 School calendar voted on

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For the first time in several years the Cohasset Public Schools will go back to school after Labor Day.

It was one of several changes to the 2010-2011 school calendar discussed on Wednesday night, but the only one that stuck.

Each year it falls on the School Committee to set the following year's calendar in the spring. They set the days for professional days, elementary conferences, and graduation.

Conference days, Thanksgiving recess and a before Labor Day start were discussed and debated before the calendar was voted on.

The administration was recommending moving the traditional October parent-teacher conference day to December, shortly after the first trimester's report cards come out.

However, most of the committee had reservations about making the change.

"As a parent of an elementary school child I would be very upset if my first scheduled meeting with my child's teacher was in December," member Jeanne Astino said.

Superintendent Denise Walsh said the argument for moving the conference day to December was to offer parents a chance to go over the first part of the year's assessment and allow the teacher to have enough data to show the progress of the student.

Several solutions were discussed including having two half-days, one in October and one in December, where parents could sign up for whichever they preferred.

In consensus, the committee decided to send the conference issue back to the elementary school buildings for more input from teachers and parents.

Next up, the Wednesday before Thankgiving is wrought with tradition: the annual Powder Puff game is held, alumni return, and school spirit abounds. This year, the administration was recommending, citing nearly a 50 percent absentee rate, no school on that Wednesday. The Powder Puff tradition would need to be moved to a different date.

Walsh said other school districts are moving in that direction as well.

The committee, as a whole, felt this was not the year for change.

"Let's leave it as it, if we're going to change it we need more feedback," said member Linda Snowdale.

Because the committee decided to keep the Wednesday before Thanksgiving as a school day thereby gaining a learning day, member Paul Schubert suggested moving the start of school to after Labor Day.

For Walsh, having the two days before the long Labor Day weekend allowed teachers and staff to get the start of school introduction and paperwork out of the way in those two days. Then, on the students' return on Tuesday, the learning and curriculum truly began.

"Starting after Labor Day does delay instruction," Walsh said.

The only concern, expressed by the committee, was the possibility of a bad year of snow – and lots of snow days. With the start of the school year on Tuesday, Sept. 7, 2010 without any snow days school would let out on Friday, June 17, 2011. If there are snow days, the last day of school would move into the next week.

"Let's try it and if it doesn't work we can go back next year," Helene Lieb, School Committee chair, said.

Changing graduation from the first Saturday afternoon in June to the first Sunday in June was discussed in the late fall. But, it was not revisited during the calendar discussion. The Class of 2011 will graduate on Saturday, June 4.

The school calendar will be available on the schools' website (www.cohassetk12.org) and in the District office.

Last day of school 2010

With the snow behind us, the School Committee voted on the last day of school for the current school year. This year, Cohasset had one snow early dismissal and one delayed opening, but no snow days, Supt. of Schools Denise Walsh said.

For kindergarteners and grades three through 11, the last day of school will be on Friday, June 18. First and second graders at Osgood School because of a broken pipe and related flooding did not have school one day back in the fall, so their last day of school will be Monday, June 21.

In both cases the last day of school will be a half-day schedule.

Getting their priorities straight

Selectmen set agenda for coming year

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

If a discussion at Monday night's Board of Selectmen meeting is any indication, the Selectmen will have a busy year ahead.

Each member of the board came forward with the issues they would like to see the board tackle going forward. Some were issues that the board and public have been dealing with for years, while others were new initiatives.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley aim to set aside 30 minutes to an hour at the end of every meeting to discuss ongoing issues and efforts on the priorities set forth by the board.

"We want to get things moving forward that maybe we haven't had time to work on in the past," Quigley said.

Stormwater and flooding issues was one of the top priorities brought forward by several members of the board. Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr said he was committed to finding a resolution for Treat's Pond, both restoring the pond and alleviating the flooding.

Quigley suggested the board "dust off" the town-wide stormwater management plan created two years ago.

"We want to get things moving forward that maybe we haven't had time to work on in the past."
— Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley

Financially speaking, Selectman Lee Jenkins said he would like to have a report from town accountant Mike Buckley quarterly. The status report would be on the town's general fund as well as water and sewer enterprise funds.

"We want it presented in language people like me can understand," added Quigley.

Jenkins also suggested the board look into managing health care costs for the town long-term.

The Community Preservation Act was also something Jenkins wanted to re-visit, "it has done wonderful, wonderful things, but most people need tax relief at this time."

A 1.5 percent property tax surcharge makes up a portion of the money for community preservation; the state matches the town contributions at a certain percent.

Jenkins also suggested the selectmen look to the employees and ask if they could find cost savings in their respective departments, "it is amazing what people can come up with when asked."

The Water Department's financial woes and long-term debt also topped some lists. Selectman Fred Koed said he'd like to see some goals set for debt reduction.

Koed also prioritized the health of the harbor and asked for a long-range plan to address the influx of freshwater into the inner harbor through the wastewater treatment plant outfall.

Selectmen Paul Carlson said the Senior Center and moving that project forward was a priority as well.

Quigley said she would compile the priorities into a document.

"This is not going to be a closed list, as issues come up we can add to it," Quigley said. "If we don't at least begin talking about these items we can't make any progress."

Helene Lieb is new school board chair

Helene Lieb is the new School Committee chairman, but the nomination was not unanimous.

Re-organization of the committee was the first order of business at the School Committee meeting Wednesday night. Post-election two new members, Jeanne Astino and Linda Snowdale, joined the board. Superintendent Denise Walsh opened the floor for nominations for chairman.

Re-organization of the committee was the first order of business at the School Committee meeting Wednesday night.

Member Paul Schubert nominated Alfred Slanetz, who is entering his sixth year on the School Committee. None of the other members seconded the motion after long moments of silence. Hearing no second Walsh asked for other nominations.

Member Jeanne Astino then nominated Lieb for School Committee chair. Snowdale seconded the motion. No other nominations came forward. The vote on the nomination was three in favor (Astino, Snowdale and Lieb), one against (Schubert) and one abstention (Slanetz). Lieb is in her second year of her three year term.

Immediately following the vote, Lieb said a few words to address what just happened.

"I can't do this job unless all five of use are willing to work really hard together. It was a surprise to me that people in the community wanted me to serve in this way," Lieb said, adding she respected all Slanetz has done for the schools and the committee over the years.

In response, Slanetz said, "I am committed to the schools and making them better."

Immediately following, Slanetz was named vice chairman in a unanimous vote. Schubert was named secretary.

"Now, we have our board of officers," Lieb said.

BRIEFLY

Auditor position named

The School Committee voted to establish a sub-committee of one to review in detail the bills to be paid by the school department. Superintendent Denise Walsh suggested the position and said it was a common practice in other school districts.

The 'auditor' is a member of the committee who will review the warrant, the list of invoices to be paid, every week. The auditor will then report to the School Committee. The warrant is signed at every School Committee meeting. In the past, it was up to each of the School Committee members to come in and review the invoices.

"It's another way for us to be more transparent," said school committee chair Helene Lieb.

Jeanne Astino volunteered for the job and will serve as the committee's first auditor. Lieb will serve as the back-up.

CHAMBER CHOIR

Eleanor Baumgarten, a freshman at Connecticut College, sang alto in the college's Chamber Choir spring concert.

Eleanor, a 2009 graduate of Cohasset High School, is the daughter of George and Barbara Baumgarten of Cohasset.

The concert, which was held April 25 in Harkness Chapel at Connecticut College, featured musical selections including works by composers Vaughan Williams, Morten Lauridsen and Eric Whitacre. The choir also performed Mozart's "Venite Populi" with the Connecticut College Orchestra.

TOP DOC

Clifford Breslow, MD, of Cohasset was recently elected president of South Shore Hospital's medical staff and to the board of directors of South Shore Hospital and its parent, South Shore Health and Educational Corporation.

Dr. Breslow is board-certified in Anesthesiology and Pain Management and practices with South Shore Anesthesia Associates, Inc. in Weymouth. He has been a member of South Shore Hospital's medical staff since 1992. Dr. Breslow will serve as medical staff president for a two-year term. "I am committed to the support of our medical staff as we partner with South Shore Hospital to provide for the care and good health of our patients. The integration and collaboration between community-based and hospital-based physicians will become critical as we navigate the evolving landscape of medicine in the coming years," said Dr. Breslow.

Dr. Breslow is a graduate of New York University School of Medicine and did his internship and residency at Brookdale Hospital Medical Center. He did a fellowship in pain management at the Department of Anesthesiology at New Jersey Medical School and was an assistant professor of Anesthesiology at Yale University School of Medicine prior to joining the medical staff at South Shore Hospital. He lives in Cohasset, with his wife and two children.

SOPRANO

On April 21, Boston Lyric Opera presented the 2010 Stephen Shrestinian Award for Excellence to soprano Meredith Hansen, a Cohasset native, before a gathering of Board members, patrons, singers, guests and staff at the final dress rehearsal for Idomeneo, re di Creta. The award is presented annually to a member of BLO's chorus who has demonstrated exceptional artistic growth and great promise for continued professional achievement.

The Stephen Shrestinian Award for Excellence, a cash award, was created to assist young artists with further professional development and training. The recipient may use the award for BLO-approved advancement activities such as coaching a new role; taking a movement, dance, or acting class; or paying a portion of graduate school tuition.

"It is such an exciting honor to be the 2010 recipient of the Stephen Shrestinian Award for Excellence," noted Meredith. "This vote of confidence from a company so near and dear to me is extremely encouraging and will enable me to further my career development by working with some of the top professionals in the opera field. My deepest thanks go to the Shrestinian family and to Boston Lyric Opera."

Meredith made her principal role debut with BLO last November as Frasquita in Carmen.

ASP FUNDRAISER

The Cohasset Applachia Service Project Kinnealey Meats Fundraiser kicks off on Sunday, May 2nd. CASP volunteers will be offering Kinnealey Meat products available for purchase for two weeks only. All pricing and product details are outlined on order forms available from any CASP volunteer or at the offices of Second Congregational, First Parish, St. Anthony's or St. Stephen's churches. Items come frozen and vacuum packaged. They keep nicely in the freezer for up to 6 months.

If you are a Kinnealey Meats fan, please use this opportunity to purchase your favorite, high-quality meat products just in time for the spring and summer grilling season, and support an ASP volunteer at the same time. If you don't happen to know an ASP volunteer, but would like to support this very worthy cause, please contact the Second Congregational Church office at 383-0345 to place an order. The fundraiser runs through Sunday, May 16th. Please make checks payable to Cohasset ASP.

POPPY DRIVE

Cohasset Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9146 will conduct the annual Poppy Drive from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., May 27 through 29, at various locations. Volunteers are what makes the Poppy Drive an annual success and the post is in the process of seeking members to man the various locations.

Those who can assist are asked to call Joe Laugelle at 781-383-0079 to sign up.

FISHING DERBY

A Kids Fishing Derby will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, May 15, at Scituate Rod and Gun Club, off Route 3A, near the Cohasset/Scituate town line. The derby is for kids younger than 12, who must be accompanied by an adult. The event is free.

Rods and reels will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis. If possible bring rods and reels from home. Hooks and bobbers will be provided. The pond has been stocked with trout, and prizes will be awarded for the largest fish and tagged fish. Also included will be lunch consisting of hot dogs and sodas.

Katharine Marie Grimm and Mackenzie Elliot Fulk.

Grimm - Fulk

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Grimm of Cohasset announce the engagement of their daughter, Katharine Marie Grimm, to Mackenzie Elliot Fulk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard B. Fulk III of Kiawah Island, S.C.

The bride-to-be graduated from Cohasset High School in 2002 and received her bachelor of arts degree with honors in English and psychology from Georgetown University in 2006. She is the manager of merchandise planning for Bonobos Inc. an online retailer of men's apparel in New York, N.Y.

Her fiancé graduated from the Landon School in Bethesda, Md., in 2002 and received his bachelor of science degree from the McDonough School of Business of Georgetown University in 2006. He is an associate on the institutional services team at Wolfe Trahan & Co. in New York, N.Y., a Wall Street research boutique dedicated to sell-side transportation and macro research.

An Oct. 10, 2010, wedding is planned on Kiawah Island, S.C.

30 students to participate in walk for MS

walk in support of high school art and photography teacher Eileen Rohrer, who has MS. Both girls are in Rohrer's photography class.

"We saw what it was like to live with MS seeing her in class everyday," Melinda said, who had previously volunteered to help with the walk with her family.

Rohrer is in her 15th year of teaching at CHS and was both surprised and honored when her students told her of their plan.

"I was very touched, moved, really. I had no idea; it completely surprised me," Rohrer said. Every year Rohrer tells her students on the first day about the fact she has MS and, as a result, some days she can walk and others she can't.

Multiple sclerosis (or MS) is a chronic, often disabling disease that attacks the central nervous system, which is made up of the brain, spinal cord, and optic nerves. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of MS are unpredictable and vary from one person to another.

Melinda and Caitlin said when they approached their classmates with the idea everyone was supportive.

"Everyone was up for it, they just said 'why not,'" Caitlin said. Before long the team had grown to include 30 high school freshmen, mostly girls, but two boys are on the roster as well.

The captains had purple t-shirts made up by Goodwin Graphics for all the members of Team Rohrer. On the front of the shirts is "Team Rohrer" and on the back, a quote: "A journey of 1000 miles begins with a single step."

The group plans to walk the six-mile course as a big group. The walk typically draws more than 400 walkers and 50 teams are currently registered. Team Rohrer hopes to raise at least $1000 for the cause.

"I'm absolutely going to get down there and see my team to cheer them on," Rohrer said.

The Walk MS is a series of walks throughout the country that raise money to end the devastating effects of MS. Donations from the walks support groundbreaking research in the pursuit of a cure for MS, as well as to help people with MS and their families locally.

There are 25 walks in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts this spring and 700 across the United States.

The Central New England chapter of MS Walk goal is to raise $2 million and have 16,000 walkers, one for each person with MS in Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire.

The MS Walk of Cohasset has currently raised more than $56,000 for its cause.

Participants can register the day of the walk, tomorrow, Saturday, May 1. Registration begins at 9a.m. and the walk steps off at 10a.m.

According to their website, www.msnewengland.org, 85 cents of every dollar raised in the MS Lifelines Walk will go toward achieving their mission. Roughly half is spent locally to help people with MS while the remainder funds leading MS research projects around the country. More that $20 million in National Multiple Sclerosis Society funds are spent in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts medical research facilities.

Approximately 400,000 Americans have MS, and that number is only growing, every week about 200 people are diagnosed. World-wide, MS affects about 2.5 million people. Because the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention does not require U.S. physicians to report new cases, and because symptoms can be completely invisible, the numbers can only be estimated.

The walk will begin at 10a.m. at the South Shore Community Center on North Main Street, across from the Common. The course travels through the village, down Elm Street to Sandy Beach (first checkpoint), continuing on Atlantic Avenue and Jerusalem Avenue, up Forest Avenue to Robbin's Garage (second checkpoint), back to North Main Street ending at the South Shore Community Center. The checkpoints will have water and snacks for the walkers.

The walk will conclude with a reception at the Community Center for all participants.

For more information about multiple sclerosis, the Walk MS or to donate to the cause, visit www.msnewengland.org or call 1-800-344-4867.

Marine Electric survivor to speak

The Cohasset Historical Society will host speaker Captain Eugene F. Kelly Jr., a survivor of the Marine Electric disaster at sea on Sunday, May 16 at 3p.m. at the Society's headquarters.

The Marine Electric, a "reconditioned" World War II vessel, sank off the coast of Norfolk, Va. in February 1983. This tragedy prompted an intense investigation by authorities and a book titled "Until the Sea Shall Free Them" written by Robert Frump.

The story has been featured on the History Channel and pictures may be viewed on the Internet.

Captain Kelly was born in Charlestown, Mass. and graduated from high school in Abington, then went on to graduated in 1975 from the Massachusetts Maritime Academy. He is one of three survivors of the Marine Electric disaster along with Chief Mate Bob Cusic of Scituate, and seaman Paul Dewey. Captain Kelly was sailing as Relief Third Officer on this trip.

Tickets are $10 and light refreshments will be served.

Space is limited. Reservations, information and tickets are available at the Cohasset Historical Society's headquarters, the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St.

For more information, contact the Historical Society at (781) 383-1434 or by e-mail: cohassethistory@yahoo.com

Pilgrim Bank, which owns the Cohasset Hardware building, is going to turn the building into its new headquarters.

Pilgrim hammers out plans for hardware site

Will refurbish building, move headquarters over

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

After years of speculation about what could, would and should go into the storefront, which might be forever known as "the hardware store," the residents of Cohasset can now breathe a collective sigh at finally learning what will occupy the empty space. Pilgrim Bank, which purchased the property last December will be its own new tenant. The Bank which is currently located in the adjacent storefront will move its entire operations over to the Hardware Store location at 40 South Main.

"The hardware store is a fantastic space, and there's a lot of history there. A lot of work and financial resources are required to restore and update the interior and exterior," says Frank Campbell, President and Chief Executive Office of Pilgrim Bank. "After meeting with the architect it was decided that we should make the refurbished space the new headquarters building and lease out our current location instead."

The firm of Sheskey Architects in Quincy, Mass. has been hired to redesign and refurbish the space to suit the needs of Pilgrim's customers and staff. Garry Gardner is a lead architect with Sheskey and also a Cohasset resident. Gardner will be responsible for working with the bank's Building Committee to design a storefront and interior that takes into account the overall look and feel of the village.

Pilgrim and Sheskey are still very much in the infancy stage of the design process. As the drawings progress and a design is approved, Pilgrim will be share the new look via photos and articles in subsequent Mariner articles.

"We want the town to know what's going on with this property," says Campbell. "This building is a landmark and we will treat it as such as we enter the design phase."

Campbell estimates that the entire process could take at least a year, if not longer, to complete. For those who have lived in town more than a few years this will give ample time to get used to a new way of giving driving directions to those from out of town. Want to get to the Harbor? Just take a left at Pilgrim Bank.

Promote cross-cultural relationships in Cohasset this summer

Cohasset Education Foundation recently received a boost in its ongoing quest to fund the new middle school language lab from Cambridge based EF Educational Homestay Programs. EHP is a division of EF Education, a leader in international education and cultural exchange programs. Last week, EHP presented Carolyn Coffey of the CEF with a check for $5,000 as a thank you to the many Cohasset families who have already agreed to participate in an international EF program here in town this summer.

EHP recently presented Carolyn Coffey of the CEF with a check for $5,000 as a thank you to the many Cohasset families who have already agreed to participate in an international EF program here in town this summer. From left are: Kathy Sanges, middle school foreign language teacher, Anna Smith, Stephanie Noble, middle school history teacher, Carolyn Coffey, CEF, and Peg Jordan, high school Spanish teacher.

Ninety-three students from France, China and Spain will be coming to the area for 18 days from July 15 through Aug. 2. The students will be under the supervision of EF Program staff from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, attending language and American cultural classes in the morning at St. Anthony's Parish and participating in a variety of organized educational and fun activities during the afternoons.

Local residents and host moms Anna Smith and Stephanie Noble are heading up this short-term summer exchange program in Cohasset. Peg Jordan, a Spanish teacher at Cohasset High School, is also actively involved in promoting the program.

Smith shared that she has been encouraged at the reception the program has received thus far. "Nonetheless, there is still a need for more host families."

To be a host family, people should be able to provide three meals a day – regular, everyday fare, a bedroom or a bed in a room, may be shared with similarly aged children of the same gender and a temporary bed can be provided as needed. Students speak English, come fully insured, and bring their own spending money. Host families are even invited to join in the students' afternoon activities. Smith, Noble and Jordan are looking for caring homes that are open to sharing their family's interests and lifestyle. Potential host families come in all shapes and sizes but all share an interest in bringing a student into their family as a family member and in helping break down the barriers of language, culture and geography.

When Smith, who has volunteered with the CEF in the past, learned about the CEF's plan to promote language learning through their implementation of the new language labs, she approached EF and the CEF about a possible partnership. "This is a win-win situation for the CEF, Cohasset and these EF students who will get to spend part of their summer in such a beautiful town," said Coffey who is also hosting.

Traveling all over the world, meeting new people, learning new languages and experiencing new ways of life sounds like a wonderful lifestyle, but unfortunately it is out of reach for many American families these days. An easy alternative would be to bring the world to your family.

Smith grew up hosting exchange students here in Cohasset and was fortunate to be an exchange student herself several times. "I think my family hosted over 15 exchange students and we are still in contact with most of them. I still receive warm birthday wishes every year from our Argentine student from 24 years ago.

"Intercultural exchange programs foster mutual understanding and acceptance among different cultures. These exchanges will help teach your children to be citizens of the world. It's a fabulous opportunity and definitely contributed to my desire to travel to new places and experience different cultures," said Smith.

Noble, who will be the site director for the program, said, "EF has presented an opportunity to learn about different cultures and an opportunity for the students abroad to learn our culture. It's the ultimate learning experience outside of the classroom.

You really get attached to these young people. It's a great feeling to know that you are giving them an experience that they will remember all their lives and leaving them with a good picture of what American life is like. We gain by just touching the lives of someone else."

Anyone interested in becoming a host family or for more information, email Smith at annasandellsmith@yahoo.com or call 781-383-2330; or Jordan at mjordan@cohassetk12.org, 781-582-8674.

EF and the CEF would like to thank the following Cohasset families for opening their homes this summer: McMeekin family, Prescott family, Goodwin family, Corry family, Coffey family, Vainisi family, Willard family, Dunne family, Marshman family, Lengyel family, Stone family, Fechter family, Alves family, Wellman family, Gildea family, Baumgarten family, Appleby family, Goodman family, Peacock/Clay family, Hillier family, Sturdy family, Harvey family, Linhart family, Redfield family, Froio family, O'Duggan family, Inman family, Cayer family, Cunnie family, Dugan family, Tolman family, Russell family, Sandell family, Noble family and Smith family.

Big Blue goes green

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Mother's Day weekend Cohasset residents can celebrate and learn how to help Mother Earth.

On Saturday, May 8 Cohasset Common will be full of activity to raise awareness of the many efforts residents can do to take better care of the Earth.

Three high school seniors have organized an event they are calling "Big Blue goes green," an Earthfest for Cohasset, event as part of an independent study. Megan Richardson, Jenny Magruder and Emily Bertovich have been working since January to put all the details in to place.

The 10a.m. to 2p.m. event will include live music entertainment from local bands, vendors, children's activities and information booths.

"The event is aimed at entire families," Megan said. "We want to the whole town to come out."

At the same time, the Recreation Department is hosting an electronic waste collection day in the Town Hall parking lot (see sidebar).

The event is both a culmination of their public school careers and a way to give back to the town.

"In Cohasset schools we've always been involved in the environment," Megan said.

One of the highlights of the event will be the resurrection of the "CO2 Cube" the students helped to build when they were freshmen. Under the direction of former science teacher David Ames, a group of students helped to design and construct a 27-square-foot cube, primarily made from recyclable material.

"We wanted to bring it back one last time," Megan said.

The Cube, which made an appearance at Earthfest Boston in 2007, represents one cubic ton of carbon dioxide. The average American produced 19 cubes per year. The project was designed to raise awareness about how much carbon dioxide people are putting into the air.

"We want to raise the town's environmental consciousness as a whole," Emily said.

Local groups like the Center for Student Coastal Research (CSCR) and the Sustainable Energy Committee will have information tables.

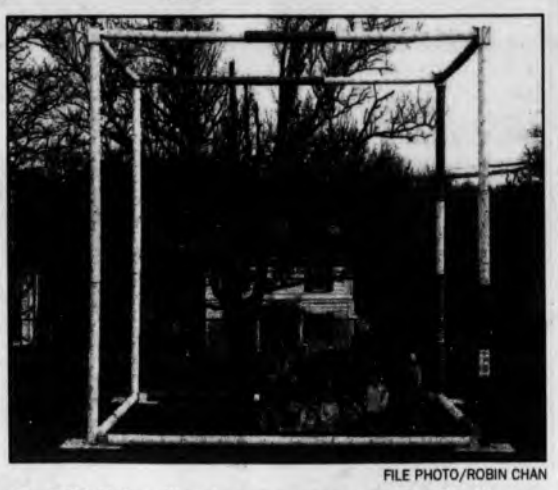
Cohasset's own organic farm, Holly Hill Farm, will be on hand at the event.

Kids can take part in chalk drawing on the path in the Common. High school teacher Dr. Ann Thomae will be setting up a table for kids to learn to pot lemon-scented geraniums.

Vendors will include Del's Lemonade, All the Best Natural Foods, 5 South Main and the Nona's Ice Cream truck.

"Everyone's been really friendly and seemed to support the idea," Jenny said.

The girls have tapped their musically inclined classmates for entertainment, including The White Cloud Hunters, a trio of three Cohasset teenagers, and the Cohasset High Jazz Combo. Musical duo Devon Dickson and Chase Baldwin will bring out their bass and guitar and Cassie Cardelle will sing.



To publicize the event the students, in an effort to reflect the event's overall theme, created flyers from recycled newspaper and used e-promoting methods like Facebook.

The high school seniors head off to college in the fall. Emily is headed to Syracuse to study art. Jenny is attending Wake Forest and plans to study English and music. Megan will enroll at Lafayette and study mechanical engineering and environmental science.

With their post-high school plans set, the trio is focused on making the event a well-attended success.

The only thing left to worry about is the one thing in which they have no control – sunny skies.

"We don't want it to get rained out!" Megan said.

The CO2 Cube will make a re-appearance at the Big Blue goes Green event on Sat. May 8 on the Common. The three high school seniors organizing the event were involved in the building of 'The Cube' as freshmen. They wanted to erect it one last time before graduation.

Recycle your e-waste

In conjunction with the Big Blue goes Green event on the Common, the Cohasset Recreation Department is holding a fundraising and recycling opportunity.

Residents can bring anything with a cord from a microwave to a VCR to a computer monitor for recycling. A donation of $5 or $10 (depending on the type of electronic, televisions are $20) is required, but proceeds go to the Recreation Department.

"It's a way for residents to clean up their houses, feel good about recycling and benefit the Recreation Department," said Recreation Director Ted Carroll.

CRT Recycling, Inc. based in Brockton is performing the collection free of charge. A 24-foot box truck will be on hand to collect and transport the goods.

The proceeds from the electronic waste collection will be used to defray the cost of the recent heating and air conditioning system installed at the Rec Center in the Village. Students from South Shore Vo-Tech did the installation for free, but the town had to pay for the cost of the materials (about $4000). Two other fundraisers, a sports yard sale and Thanksgiving road race, also raised funds for the project.

Carroll said he is hoping to raise between $500 and $1000 from the e-waste collection.

"We hope people drop off their electronics then go enjoy the activities on the Common," Carroll said.

The collection will take place on Saturday, May 8 from 10a.m. to 2p.m. in the Town Hall parking lot. For a complete list of acceptable e-waste and associated cost, visit www.cohassetrec.com.

We were watching a recent "Frontline" program on TV about vaccines that was scary. The vaccines themselves were not scary but the fact that unsubstantiated information on Web sites, videos, etc. on the Internet are scaring people away from being vaccinated. The problem is if enough people do not get vaccinated – it exposes others, and especially those who cannot be vaccinated due to a medical condition – to the possibility of contracting a preventable disease, whether that be whooping cough or the flu.

We point this out to hammer home the reality that anyone can post anything on the Internet. The Internet does not have millions of researchers behind the scenes that determine what is fact and what is not.

To us in the newspaper business, the Internet is a bit like the Wild West – it is a lawless place that is changing and developing daily.

Newspapers, including ours, are still trying to find ways to differentiate content so the print version of the news is fresh, viable and presented differently from what goes on the Web. Frankly, the online versus print news delivery system is still a work in progress.

However, what is clear to us here at the Cohasset Mariner is that letters to the editor and commentaries that we print each Friday should include the author's name and address. We have always required that and believe our opinion pages are among the best and reflect our community. Simply put, by putting your name and address on something you have written requires some accountability and instills a level of responsibility and pride in the piece.

We cannot check all our commentaries and letters for accuracy but allow the rebuttal of opinions by others, who do not agree or who want to further explain or set the record straight.

Blogs on the Web are different. At www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset we require bloggers to register but most choose to use a "pen name" allowing them to comment anonymously. Blogs are more like a back 'n' forth conversation.

We have found that once we post a signed commentary or letter that appeared in the Mariner that week to our Web site, some readers join the blog to share their views on that opinion.

As journalists, we would prefer that all bloggers use their real names but the way most websites are set up, including ours, using your true identity is optional. Those who manage the Internet feel that requiring one's true identity would discourage debate. However, Web visitors need to realize that blogs do not have the same accountability as letters to the editor do. They should be viewed in that light.

Blogs online tend to be somewhat "self-policing." Bloggers who disagree with a comment from another blogger will let that be known as the debate unfolds. Blogging by its nature is interactive. The Mariner has the ability to take down inappropriate comments on blogs.

At the Cohasset Mariner we encourage signed letters and commentaries for print and encourage bloggers to join the conversation on line. From time to time, the Mariner will post a comment online encouraging our Web visitors to joint the debate and share their views. However, we do not join the blog anonymously so you will be aware when we post a comment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reconsideration of vote not justified

TO THE EDITOR:

I was at the Selectmen's meeting in Cohasset on Monday (April 26), and heard everyone who spoke during the public comment segment in favor of the Town holding an election on the 50/50 proposal that taxpayers share the residents' costs of the recently completed 'Little Harbor' sewer project. There was a fair amount of passion, and some revising of historical detail to suit the argument, but no new information. I spoke against it, and am opposed to the idea, because we took that vote in 2005 when the project was given life. (Full disclosure: I was avidly opposed to the proposal then, because I thought it highly unfair that I should be asked to help pay the finite cost for the complete, permanent, incredibly valuable improvement to some one else's real estate. But that is not why I think it would be wrong to hold a second election on the same question.) The 2005 vote was taken at a time when all of the facts were in front of us, the issues had been widely and energetically debated for months leading up to the TM vote, and a near 40 percent of Cohasset voters went to the polls to be heard. Nothing has happened in the interim that could justify reconsideration of that vote.

My observation is the people arguing the loudest for the special election and its attendant cost to the Town have a notion in their heads that because there was a vote in favor of a citizens' petition at Town Meeting in March, the Selectmen are duty-bound to hold the special election it sought. They are wrong because this is not true. The Board of Selectmen can, and in fact did, decide on the merits of that proposal following Town Meeting. The two members voting against did so for reasons clearly stated which had nothing to do with the "fairness" of the underlying proposal and everything to do with the integrity of the democratic process. Having another election, for no reason other than one group's unhappiness with the first, is not acceptable.

The Board is not ruled by the sentiments of a single group of citizens in a case like this, nor should it be. This Town voted decisively against the 50/50 proposal at the time it was first made, and no matter how long and hard people with a vested interest in changing that outcome stamp their feet like children, the Town should not give them a 'do-over.'

Democracy avoided – again!

TO THE EDITOR:

The April 26 Selectmen's' meeting provided the interesting spectacle of a Selectman orating at great length against enabling the citizens to vote whether to have a 50/50 split of the cost of the Little Harbor sewer expansion (50 percent paid by those sewered and 50 percent by the town as a whole, including those sewered).

His "thinking" is that such a split is unfair, therefore the voters should be denied the right to a vote which would determine for themselves whether they think it unfair.

Seems to me pretty arrogant for a Selectman to abrogate to himself the right to decide, rather to let the voters decide. Unfortunately, the chairperson of the Selectmen also seemed not to grasp the democratic principle that the voters should not be denied their right to choose. Although entitled to their personal views on cost sharing, Selectmen should not deny the voters to express their opinion.

As to fairness, it should be noted that the state mandate to sewer the area has entrapped many homeowners whose property could have provided on-site adequate sewage treatment with no real need for connection to sewers. Who knows what areas future state mandates may entrap?

Post Office food drive May 8

TO THE EDITOR:

Saturday, May 8th is the annual Post Office drive for the Cohasset Food Pantry. In the past, this drive has made a tremendous difference in the quality of service that we provide to our clients. Due to the current economic situation our client base has grown dramatically. Now, more than ever, we need YOUR HELP!

You can help us fill the shelves with: plain peanut butter, jelly, tuna, spaghetti sauce, beef stew, cereal, juice, coffee, canned fruit, crackers, toilet paper, paper towels, Kleenex, paper napkins, personal products (soap, toothpaste and shampoo), trash bags, dish detergent and laundry detergent.

Please examine expiration dates and make sure packaging is sealed.

Thank you to all our Postal workers for their continued support!

What is true fairness?

COMMENTARY

TOM CALLAHAN

Well, Little Harbor has made it to the Globe! Connections are nice. However, the concept of true wastewater fairness does not exist in Little Harbor's plaintive, repeated pleas, and the framework for true fairness was lost long ago. With imagination and true community-wide spirit, though, it could be recaptured.

While sympathetic to my friends in Little Harbor given how Central and North Cohasset were paid for, I cannot join them in their cause (yet) because a) we voted on this before and I have a distaste for losers of a vote continuing to come back until they win, particularly by stuffing ill-attended and largely ignored town meetings, and b) a sizeable portion of this town remains non-sewered and without any financial help from the town. Unless and until Little Harbor and others wish to join forces in an actual plan of wastewater fairness for all of Cohasset, I must applaud the courageous stand of my former and successor colleagues on the Board of Selectmen.

Let's not forget history. In the early '80s, a town-wide sewering plan was rejected, the solons leading the town at the time letting their fear/paranoia about growth and their misguided policy of zoning by wastewater rather than by true zoning rule the day. We'd all be sewered now at a much less collective cost. These same solons then decided to ignore that state's lawsuit over the pollution caused by our little Central plant for years, until such time as the understandably frustrated state developed the guts to threaten fines that would have impacted all of us.

The natural consequence of rejecting a town-wide plan was, of course, a piecemeal approach, a Cohasset classic in so many areas of endeavor, and which has and continues to pit area against area. For whatever reason, the initial small Central district was done 50-50. Decades later, the Central expansion and North Cohasset got a 50-50 deal based on no other justification but this

Making recreation part of your life

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

With all the new gadgets nowadays, it's not surprising that the general health of our younger population is suffering from reduced physical fitness. The spate of gadgets is now available to everyone, but many are designed to increase the frequency and number of personal contact modes and situations: cell phones, Facebook, Twitter — applications all enabling contact with ever more individuals.

Its becoming more difficult to organize ones life to do the things ones peers expect along with the things necessary to remain healthy. It's more necessary than ever to review activities to see that they consistently contain sufficient exercise and recreation along with usual obligatory duties. It's surprising how rapidly habits involving reduced exercise enter our scheduleleaving exercise devfecits For this reason if for no other, it's useful to go by the Town hall and pick up a Program guide from:

The Recreation Department — They are aware of most of the Town's activities for both adults and children and a great source of ideas. Stop by and speak to Ted Carrol to find out the latest trends in exercise and recreation.

What shall we do? — Surprisingly, creation of an organized structured leisure period appears to be a need in many locations all over the country. The following discussions have been taken from lists of suggested activities when one queries a search about "family recreation." For children any place can seem special if their parents are with them. Being together is what is important. So do you want to enjoy outdoor activities at home? Then you might want to consider some of the following activities: Bicycle rides, flying kites, croquet, badminton, barbecues, rollerblading, taking a walk (bring the dog and don't forget to say "hi" to the neighbors), basketball, horseshoes, picnic in the backyard, building a tree house, start a hobby together — woodworking, making crafts, plant a garden — watch it grow and reap its tasteful bounty."

Other sources: Activities away from home, such as: horseback riding, hiking, backpacking, swimming, tennis, volley ball, putt-putt golf, boat rides or doing paddle boats, skiing (snow, cross country, or water), sledding or tubing, ice skating, make a snowman, picnics (mountains, countryside, seashore, park), camping (with campfire chats and roasting marshmallows), fishing trip, take a drive to scenic spots (lakes, mountains, beaches), eat at an outdoor cafe, visit a zoo, take a train ride, National Parks, Dude Ranch, Hot Springs."

Your decision may be to go somewhere but still be indoors — Some possibilities could include: Roller skating, bowling, racquet ball, recreation centers, art galleries, ballet, symphony orchestra, nature and science museums, the planetarium, butterfly pavillion, train museum, IMAX theatre, the Library or how about visiting Grandpa and Grandma and enjoying some good old fashioned down home cooking.

Another pundit says: These are activities that refresh while at the same time draw the family closer together in love. One of the goals parents should have is to instill values in their children that will help them to make wise decisions when they have the freedom to choose their own recreation and entertainment. The Bible says: "Train up a boy [or girl] according to the way for him; even when he grows old he will not turn aside from it." (Proverbs 22:6) Wise parents would agree that recreation should not become the primary focus of one's life. Recreation should be like the dessert at the end of a meal, not the main course. No matter how much you enjoy sweet desserts, you would soon tire of them if you ate nothing else, and they would not provide much sustenance.

But when planning activities, don't forget the exercise component.

State gets high marks for vet support

VETERANS

JOE MCELROY

It is a tribute to the citizens of Massachusetts that we offer as good or better support to our veterans than any other state in the nation. This was not always the case, when I served in the military from 1963 to 1984; many Massachusetts service members changed their residency to Florida or Texas because our state had a poor reputation for supporting veterans. You hear much more about the Veterans' Administration (VA-federal level), which also does a great job, but, today, I would like to focus my comments on the MDVS.

Perhaps the single most important reason that veterans and their families have a strong "safety net" in Massachusetts is that state law requires that each community (351) in Massachusetts be represented by a Veterans' Services Officer (VSO).

Communities with a population of 12,000 or more must have a full-time VSO whereas smaller towns can have a part-time VSO. There are also provisions for towns and cities (1) to regionalize into districts to improve staffing and reduce costs. A key point that I would like to make is that it is nearly always best to contact your VSO for help before going to the MDVS or VA (simply call your town/city hall and ask for the VSO or go to the MDVS Home Page for the link). It can save you and the MDVS/VA a lot of wasted time.

Although not specifically stated on the Home Page, a major role of MDVS is to be the veterans' advocate at the State House and with the Governor. Most, but not all the services that MDVS provides include:

a. SAVE (Statewide Advocacy for Veterans' Empowerment) Tel: 888-844-2838 & Press 2 (Targets Suicide Prevention-Quick Response-Telephone and On-Site)

b. Visiting Lawyer Program/Tel: 888-844-2838 ext 5782(Including Assistance on Financial Literacy)

c. The second annual Conference for Women Veterans will be held on Saturday, June 19, 2010, at UMass Medical School, 55 Lake Avenue North, Worcester. The Conference will provide information and networking for women veterans and their families. The day's agenda will include exhibits, workshops, lunch, and speakers. Admission is free but registration is required. Register online. Exhibitors can download an application form (Word | PDF). Applications due Friday, June 4, 2010. Contact: Women Veterans' Network, Panayiota Bertzikis, Assistant, 600 Washington St., Suite 1100, Boston, MA 02111, phone: 617-210-5778, fax: 617-210-5755, DVSWomen@vet.state.ma.us

d. Benefits: Public Assistance, Annuities, Bonuses, Tax Exemptions and more…. Take particular note that some low-income veterans, spouses, surviving spouses, and dependents may be eligible for limited financial help and more…

e. Education Benefits: Financial Assistance, Post 9/11 GI Bill, Veterans' Representatives at State Schools, Colleges, Universities and more…

f. Outreach and Counseling: Traumatic Brain Injury(TBI), Physical Rehabilitation, Bonus, Welcome Home Guide(3rd Ed. 4/2010) and more…

g. Honors and Records: Cemeteries, Medals, Military Records, Service Organizations and more…

h. Employment and Training: Job Protection, Civil Service, Green Jobs and Training Grants, Vocational Rehabilitation and more…

i. Housing: Shelter and Transitional, Permanent Housing, Women's Housing, Soldiers' Homes and more….

j. Women Veterans/Tel: 617-210-5778: Women's Network, Honoring Women Veterans, Conference for Women Veterans, Thirty Six Frequently asked Questions and more…

k. Family Members and Dependents: Benefits, Counseling Services, Education Assistance, Family Assistance Programs and more…

The MDVS Home Page also identifies how to contact Federal and other State resources useful to veterans. It offers News and Updates such as upcoming veterans' events, affordable housing opportunities for veterans and more…. It also provides "quick links" to (a) find your local VSO, (b), State veteran status eligibility, (c) the Guide to Veterans' Laws and Benefits, (d) the Massachusetts Aging and Disabilities Information Locator (MADIL) and more….

Special Town Meeting slated for June 14

It's official. There will be a Special Town Meeting held in June, primarily to deal with the water department's financial issues. The Board of Selectmen voted to hold the meeting on Monday, June 14 at 7p.m. It is the last Monday before school lets out.

If a citizen would like to submit a citizens petition it must be turned in with at least 100 signatures by Friday, May 7 at 1p.m. and that is when the warrant will close.

The warrant will go to press on Friday, May 21 and be in resident's mailboxes by May 28.

It is expected at least four articles will be placed on the town meeting warrant: a collective bargaining issue, a proposal for a zoning bylaw amendment, proposal for a water rate increase, and certification of the water department's budget for fiscal 2011.

Elder Affairs volunteers recognized

At Elder Affairs volunteers make the difference.

Elder Affairs director Coral Grande illustrate that point when she and volunteer coordinator Martha Horsefield presented a mock check to the Board of Selectmen for $117,465, which is the value of the 7,318 hours donated by volunteers last year.

"Elder Affairs is alive and well in the town of Cohasset and in many ways that's due to our volunteers," Grande said. "They are so dedicated."

Volunteers perform a variety of functions for the Elder Affairs department. They drive seniors to the supermarket, bake cakes, serve lunch, do in-home visits and answer phones.

Elder Affairs has 303 registered volunteers.

The Board of Selectmen gratefully accepted the oversized check.

"It shows the true sense of community in Cohasset and what happens when we are a community of neighbors helping neighbors," Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said.

Hold-up in Little Harbor paving spelled out

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Paving Resumption – We, like you, are anxiously awaiting the resumption of paving to fix roads that were disturbed by the Little Harbor Water, Sewer and Drainage Project. The hold-up has been the re-bid of the road preparation services by the South Shore Regional Consortium. To refresh your memory, the Town DPW is actually doing the paving portion of this project, rather than the original contractor, L M Holdings. The reason is that Cohasset belongs to a consortium of South Shore towns that aggregates their expected needs for specific road construction related services and then solicits bids from contractors for those services. What this means to Cohasset, is that by being a part of a buying consortium we get excellent pricing for this services covered by this competitive bid practice. In fact, our paving cost was way lower than the project contractor could match, saving dollars for the project and the residents.

As of this week, the bids have been received by the Consortium administrator and the winning bidders should be announced shortly.

We have also spoken, in the past, about the two methods of road paving preparation. These are cold-planing and reclaiming. The former being the process of grinding an amount of asphalt off of the old road surface generally equal to the thickness of asphalt being laid. Reclaiming is the process of grinding and homogenizing the whole road surface down into the subsurface, removing the excess and then repaving with both a base and topcoats of asphalt. In our case, the commissioners have decided to cold plane all of our roads before paving.

So, what does all of this have to do with why we haven't started paving? Both the services for cold planing and reclamation are currently being rebid by the South Shore Regional Consortium. As of this week, the bids have been received by the Consortium administrator and the winning bidders should be announced shortly. Once we know who the successful bidders are, we can contact them and begin to schedule their work for our roads. As soon as we can get this done, we'll start with the cold planing and paving operations. That's our story and we are sticking to it!

A Bit More on Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project – This week we'd like to spend a few words reviewing the Jacobs Meadow end of the project. Jacobs Meadow is a marsh area that lies in the space that lies between Elm Street, Summer Street and South Main Street. This is a naturally occurring salt marsh that, at one time, was open to the Cohasset Harbor. Jacobs Meadow is the repository for storm water run-off from an area that goes as far north as Lower King Street and up the hill at the Route 3A medical building, and almost to Beechwood Street to the south. When it storms, all of this storm water run-off from this area enters the Jacobs Meadow via two brooks, James Brook from the north and Stewart Brook from the south. The run-off from these areas is directed into the meadow where it must sit until it can flow to the harbor. Its ability to pass to the harbor is limited be the tide gates and the channel capacity at the Legion. While the storm water sits waiting for its exit to the harbor, it accumulates in the meadow, potentially causing flooding and possible property damage.

Thus, channel improvement at the Legion is the second part of our project equation. If you look carefully at the pictures of the channel, you can easily see that the stone walls have partially collapsed narrowing the channel to as small as 3 feet in places. This seriously restricts the flow of storm water to the harbor. When storm water enters the meadow rapidly, it can only build up higher and higher until such time as it can flow to the harbor. As stated in previous articles, the outfall channel walls continue to deteriorate.

The goal of the Jacobs Meadow outfall project, in addition to the harbor-side improvements reviewed last week, is to dramatically increase the capacity of the channel. The new sluice gate will then allow more water to escape to the harbor.

This project will replace the collapsing stone culvert with a precast smooth concrete channel 125 feet long that will be 10 feet wide and up to six feet deep. Between the end of the concrete and the start of the meadow the channel wall will be constructed of gabions. Gabions are heavy duty galvanized wire cages filled with stones. Gabions are used to hold the stream banks in place and create a channel as it enters the meadow. (Gabions were also used to line the banks of James Brook behind the Masonic Building.) As we mentioned last week, the improvements both at the Legion and in the harbor are designed to improve the flow of water in either direction. This will allow us to begin to create a healthy salt marsh as well.

As you might imagine, projects such as this are not stealth projects. We cannot creep in under the dark of night and disappear by morning with all of the construction changes in place. There will need to be very heavy construction equipment and construction materials brought into the work area so that this construction can be accomplished. Why do we mention this, you ask? Shortly we will be contacting property owners in this area asking for permission to access the work area across their property. While most of the work will be done on Town property, there still will be a need to access abutter's property to perform work. Without access, these improvements cannot be constructed. Further deterioration of the Jacobs Meadow outfall could result in catastrophic impacts to the area. We energetically solicit the support of the nearby property owners to make these improvements a reality. Of course, any upset to private property will be corrected before the project is completed.

A New Tree for Cohasset – In Cohasset we have a number of memorial squares named to commemorate service men who gave their lives for their country. One of these is Captain John Paul Lyon Square, which is the triangular island on North Main Street at the entrance to Joy Place. Captain Lyon was a pilot from Cohasset who was killed in action on April 18, 1969 while flying over Vietnam, just over 41 years ago.

As part of the road restoration on Joy Place, granite curbing was installed and grass planted on this memorial island. In keeping with the idea to make this a simple and tasteful space, it was decided to plant a singular tree. This week, the Cohasset Garden Club was kind enough to donate and plant a beautiful red oak on this island in preparation for Memorial Day. They carefully selected a tree for this area and with a specific shape that is particularly suitable for this site. The photo shows the chosen red oak tree waiting to be planted in its final spot. By the time you read this, the tree should be planted in its final location. As you look at this much improved memorial island, also think of Captain Lyon who gave his life so that we can all enjoy the simple pleasure of passing by.

House dealing with fiscal crisis

YOUR REP

GARRETT BRADLEY

One of the first actions taken by the Massachusetts House of Representatives at the start of the annual state budget debate speaks volumes in demonstrating the commitment of legislators to helping local officials deal with the ongoing fiscal crisis. By facilitating mutual aid agreements, allowing pension systems to extend their funding schedules and authorizing municipalities to enter into leases of up to 30 years without a home rule petition, legislators have provided cities and towns with new methods for managing their budgets during these difficult economic times.

The members also agreed to leave Proposition 2-1/2 alone, and instead focused on giving our municipal officials better tools for managing local budgets and addressing long-term financial obligations such as employee pensions.

The members also agreed to leave Proposition 2-1/2 alone, and instead focused on giving our municipal officials better tools for managing local budgets and addressing long-term financial obligations such as employee pensions.

The legislation establishes a statewide mutual aid agreement allowing mutual aid assistance – such as fire services, law enforcement and emergency medical services – during a public safety incident. The bill also creates a statewide public works mutual aid agreement for the sharing of public works resources across jurisdictional lines during public works incidents.

The bill allows pension systems, with the exception of the State Employees Retirement System and the Teachers' Retirement System, to extend their funding schedule to 2040.

Additionally, the bill allows municipalities to enter into leases of up to 30 years without a home rule petition. Currently, municipalities may only enter into leases of up to 10 years without a home rule petition.

In an effort to control costs, the bill lets school districts reimburse parents of disabled children who drive their children to private day programs outside the municipality in which they live rather than allow only the school district to provide such transportation.

The package also allows any accepting municipality to establish an early retirement program for its employees. Municipalities would be restricted when filling vacancies created by early retirements and could pay only a fraction of the participants' total annual salary in upcoming fiscal years.

The bill includes an amendment stripping the legislation of a provision that would have allowed municipalities to raise property taxes to furnish overlay accounts used to fund abatements through the appeal of tax bills and other tax abatement programs. The House voted to remove the provision out of concern that it would have circumvented Proposition 2-1/2, which limits annual increases in property taxes.

The relief package includes a local option tax amnesty program which allows cities and towns to waive portions of interest and penalties due on unpaid taxes as long as the taxpayer pays the principal amount and is not subject to criminal investigation for failure to pay taxes. The tax amnesty period could extend no later than June 30, 2011.

The bill also gives municipalities the choice of accepting a section that requires school and city officials to meet each year to review the fiscal status of the school district and identify potential cost savings through regionalization initiatives. Furthermore, the bill empowers school committees to join with one or more other school committees to elect a superintendent to represent the partnering districts.

As the budget debate continues, legislators will be challenged to address the ongoing budget shortfall while ensuring that essential programs and services are maintained. As the vote for the municipal relief bill shows, however, we have an opportunity to consider adopting more of the best business practice management methods that the private sector has been using for years, which will have the added benefit of saving taxpayers' hard-earned dollars.

State Rep. Garrett Bradley represents the Third Plymouth District that includes Cohasset.

Cohasset ASP holds spring fundraiser

This year, they are partnering with Kinnealey Meats for the Spring fundraiser.

Cohasset Appalachia Service Project (CASP) sends volunteers to the poorest areas of our country to improve and repair homes. In June, over 165 people will be traveling with CASP to five counties in West Virginia. While the projects they will be doing may vary, their goal is singular: to provide warmer, safer and drier homes for the families they serve. Participation in this program requires 10 months of preparation, study, fund-raising and workshops to train and help the volunteers have the highest level of preparedness for the projects and challenges they will face during their week-long service.

This year, they are partnering with Kinnealey Meats for the Spring fundraiser. Kinnealey Meats has earned its reputation as one of the premier suppliers of meats to fine restaurants, hotels and resorts in the U.S. and overseas – a reputation built upon quality, service and integrity. The company's longevity is due in part to its ability to stay abreast of the times, be innovative, and at the same time relate to the individual needs of the most demanding buyers. This is a proud tradition that present generations of the Kinnealey family are committed to carrying on into the future.

The Cohasset Applachia Service Project Kinnealey Meats Fundraiser kicks off on Sunday, May 2. CASP volunteers will be offering Kinnealey Meat products available for purchase for two weeks only. All pricing and product details are outlined on order forms available from any CASP volunteer or at the offices of Second Congregational, First Parish, St. Anthony's or St. Stephen's Churches in Cohasset. Items come frozen and vacuum packaged. They keep nicely in the freezer for up to six months.

If you don't happen to know an ASP volunteer, but would like to support this very worthy cause, contact the Second Congregational Church office at 383-0345 to place an order. The fundraiser runs through Sunday, May 16. Checks may be payable to Cohasset ASP.

Spring Walk at Whitney and Thayer Woods

Hingham Land Conservation Trust Spring Walk will take place at 10 a.m., on Saturday, May 1. Whether people are hoping to learn more about nature photography or just looking for a scenic, guided walk, Whitney and Thayer Woods in Hingham/Cohasset offers the perfect venue. Mark Roberts, an accomplished photographer, will share his insight into capturing the scenery of this woodlands location offering views of Boston, along with glacial erratics, vernal pools, an azalea-lined path and even a hermit's shelter.

Those attending should meet at the Whitney and Thayer Woods parking lot across from Stop & Shhop.

Ordering flags for Healing Field

The Sons of the American Legion is planning to install a Healing Field as part of the town's Memorial Day 2010 observances.

The flags sell for $25 and can be dedicated to anyone. Checks should be made out to the Sons of the American Legion, with a note on the memo line indicating "Healing Field" and sent to Sons of the American Legion, PO Box 118, Cohasset, MA 02025. The Healing Field will be on display from May 22 to June 1. The dedication is scheduled for 1 p.m., Saturday, May 29.

Author, columnist James Carroll to speak May 11

Scituate and Weymouth Affiliates of Voice of the Faithful will present best selling author and Boston Globe columnist, James Carroll at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, May 11. Carroll will present and sign his latest book, "Practicing Catholic," at St. Albert the Great Parish Hall, 1130 Washington St., Weymouth.

Carroll is the author of 10 novels and six works of non-fiction, including the National Book Award winning "An American Requiem," the New York Times bestselling "Constantine's Sword," now a documentary, and "House of War," which won the first PEN-Galbraith Award. Carroll's column appears weekly in The Boston Globe. His writing and his work toward Jewish-Christian-Muslim reconciliation make him a leading voice on the problem of religion and violence – the subject of his current work-in-progress. Carroll is Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence at Suffolk University in Boston. In "Practicing Catholic," Carroll, a former priest, finds meaning in his personal story and delivers a loving critique of the Church while offering an incisive vision for renewal.

The event is free, but donations would be appreciated. "Practicing Catholic" will be available for sale at the event and refreshments will be served. All are welcome.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on three roll calls from prior legislative sessions.

All of the roll calls are on proposed amendments to the bill that would authorize two resort casinos and up to 3,000 slot machines - 750 at each of the state's two horse racing tracks and two former dog racing tracks.

There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week. Both branches met only in informal sessions as they do every year during April school vacation week.

BAN MARKETING TO ADDICTED GAMBLERS (H 4591)

House 80-76, approved an amendment to a section of the casino bill that allows problem gamblers to voluntarily request that their names be placed on a "self-exclusion" list. The amendment would prohibit casinos from marketing to anyone on the list.

Amendment supporters said that these addicted gamblers should have the right to opt out of direct marketing campaigns that entice them to gamble.

Amendment opponents said that the amendment goes too far and is another example of the Legislature trying to interfere with the free market system and micromanage the gaming industry.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment that would prohibit casinos from marketing to anyone on the "self-exclusion" list. A "No" vote is against the prohibition.)

SLOT MACHINES MUST POST ODDS (H 4591)

House 20-137, rejected an amendment that would require the odds of a player getting each winning combination at a slot machine to be posted in a conspicuous place in 18-point type at each machine.

Amendment supporters said that this would ensure that players are informed that the odds are overwhelmingly against winning on a slot machine.

Amendment opponents said that the amendment goes too far and would require the listing of so many odds that the sign would be up to three times larger than the machine itself.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment that would require the posting of the odds. A "No" vote is against the requirement.)

BACKGROUND CHECKS ON PROSPECTIVE EMPLOYEES (H 4591)

House 45-112, rejected an amendment that would require that the newly-created state gaming commission conduct a specific background check on all applicants for jobs with the commission, including a complete criminal history, convictions and current charges for all felonies and misdemeanors. The commission would also be required to conduct drug tests on applicants and obtain fingerprints and a photograph.

The amendment would replace a section of the legislation that allowed but did not require the commission to obtain all that information.

Amendment supporters said that it is essential to make every effort to ensure that potential employees have a clean background if they are to be hired to work in this "tempting" business.

Amendment opponents offered no arguments.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment requiring background checks and other information. A "No" vote is against the requirement.)

GOV. PATRICK SIGNS INTO LAW A MEASURE BANNING DEVOCALIZATION OF DOGS AND CATS (H 344) - Gov. Patrick signed "Logan's Law," a bill that would ban devocalization, the practice of cutting vocal cords to stifle or remove an animal's voice. The measure does allow vocal cord surgery on dogs and cats to treat disease, injury or birth defects. The law was named in memory of a show dog whose breeder had him devocalized and then didn't want him when he stopped winning blue ribbons.

Supporters say this ban will protect countless animals from a cruel convenience surgery that commonly results in complications regardless of the veterinarian's skill. They may range from difficulty breathing to chronic gagging and even death, according to Leslie Burg of the grassroots Coalition to Protect and Rescue Pets, the bill's sponsor. She notes that devocalization appears to be most prevalent among breeders and others who keep many animals for profit or hobby. Gayle Fitzpatrick of the Friends of the Plymouth Pound, who rescued Logan, says hearing him cough and retch, wheeze and rasp every day as a result of this selfish and needless surgery was "heart-wrenching." She notes, "Devocalized animals are abandoned like other dogs and cats. Convenience surgeries like devocalization and declawing don't keep them in good homes. Owners who choose, care for and train animals responsibly and humanely do."

Friendships made through BBC London

By Rosmarie Engel-Conn
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Rosmarie Engel-Conn reads from one of her memoirs of being a teenager in Germany during World War II.

After World War II, in the fall of 1945, the bitter, meager life of the German nation began. A nation who had lost not only thousands of soldiers and civilians during the year-long battles and bombarding, but lost the war itself against the mightier enemies.

My hometown Wittenberg in Saxony/Germany was occupied by Russian troops. Daily life was fearful. In the air still danger, the fear of something life-threatening or dangerous could or would happen.

Me, I was just 18 – I didn't know much about better times and did not take things as serious and frightful like the elder people around me. Whenever I was able, I sat in front of our small radio the so called "Volksempfanger.". It had a simple shape, made of dark wood. It rose on the bottom, the upper part slightly curved. The big round cutout speaker part in the center was covered by a rough, dark fabric which showed some dots of color now and then. Three or four buttons were under the round opening. This was the "Volksempfanger" in all its simplicity.

It had been produced and sold for a very low price, so that radios would be affordable for the "Volk," the people. Everyone would have access to the latest news and entertainment in a new way.

There were not many stations or channels available but I found out I now could receive stations from other countries, close to Germany.

This was great! Something special! An experience as if suddenly other parts of the world opened up to me! After having been for long years under the restriction of the government.

With my, then – limited, school English, I enjoyed especially listening to the messages from the BBC – London. What another world opened up! The music, the news – even the language I enjoyed.

One day when I switched on the radio and turned one of the big round buttons, the BBC announced an interesting offer, which encouraged young people in Germany to write a letter to the station about their current situation and daily life. A letter, which would be given to an English person of the same age. Obviously with the purpose to connect the youth of both war struck countries and to build a bridge to the future, after the hard wartime.

What a wonderful idea! What a great opportunity! In excitement and hurry I wrote the address down, which was given at the end of the broadcast.

And naturally, also at once, I started my letter, a little cautious but full of enthusiasm. Would somebody answer? Would I be able at all to manage with my little knowledge of the English language to build up a written conversation – with a former enemy? Big question! – so, with mixed expectations I had to wait for an answer – or wait for nothing.

But really, one day our letter carrier came, Herr Schramm, an elderly friendly man with a white beard, rang the bell in front of our house. I ran out to the white wooden fence. He stood there aside of his bicycle vividly waving an envelope in the air and loud he called, "You have a letter from England!" We both smiled in a way of being pleased and surprised that something like this could happen. Happen after long years being cut off from the world outside of Germany. Eagerly, both of us started to read the address of the sender.

One day when I switched on the radio and turned one of the big round buttons, the BBC announced an interesting offer...

"Miss Barbara Smith, London," I said and ran back into the house with my trophy. With trembling fingers, but cautious, I opened the letter. What a surprise! Half of the only one page long letter was written in German – in rather good German.

Barbara, 18 years also, introduced herself, gave her background and family situation, etc. She asked for a response to start a contact or even to find a matching pen pal. How nice this was! Quite naturally I was holding the frame of my return-letter in the same way: half in German, half in English, which we kept holding up this way in our correspondence.

This moment was the start of a wonderful conversation by writing. Out letters became longer and longer. There were so many things to talk about and to ask for. In one letter she asked me, whether I would like to write also to a friend of hers, a Swiss-girl living in Schaffhausen, Switzerland, close to the German south border. Her name was Elsbeth Spengler. She had the same age as Barbara and me. And I agreed. How wonderful was this! Suddenly there was a feeling of hope arising. Borders seemed to vanish, "a smell of freedom," of opening up for more! Not really knowing what to expect, but all accepting like a beam of light in this dark after-war-time.

We three wrote to each other frequently. Elsbeth from Switzerland even sent little parcels with a good Swiss-chocolate, a highly praised treat then. Our threefold letter friendship lasted through many years, through many happenings. We met each other finally for the first time at the wedding of our Swiss friend in Switzerland. Then, Barbara moved – as a teacher – to Singapore and married an English man there. I, in the meantime, had moved under very difficult circumstances, given by the harsh Russian occupation rules, to Dusseldorf in the west part of Germany, then under U.S. occupation. Wisely, my parents, to escape the Russians in Saxony, had left all their property and house and had fled to Dusseldorf.

Looking back, I am very grateful for the enterprise that the BBC had started in difficult times. The BBC connected three girls from three different nations to open up their understanding and world view. They got the feeling despite many differences between people in culture, education and lifestyle, if they can exchange and recognize their feelings and experiences, a growing better understanding could be possible.

Our threefold friendship started, as I mentioned, in 1945. We continue to write to each other up until today, in 2009, in the same way.

The friendship of three girls, of three different nations held strong for an amazing 64 years.

Not to forget the funny fact that the first names of our three husbands were all the same – only each in his own language. They were: John, the English; Jean, the French/Swiss; Hans, the German.

Thank you, BBC.

Series of memoirs

The Cohasset Mariner is publishing a series of memoirs by Cohasset resident Rosmarie Engel-Conn. The 83-year-old German native has penned her most vivid memories and experiences as a teenager during World War II.

She lived under Adolf Hitler's rule, worked in an ammunitions factory as part of mandated service to the country, narrowly survived the bombing of Dresden, and escaped harm when the Russian army marched into her village just outside of Wittenburg.

This year is the 65th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Her memoir "The BBC" is the fourth installment in the series.

What is true fairness?

FROM FAIRNESS, PAGE 10

questionable precedent, but each 50-50 proposal could have been just as easily defeated. The piecemeal approach runs the inherent risk that each piece is subject to the economic conditions at that time. Little Harbor has unfortunately run into bad economic times and the corresponding distaste for added tax burden. That is indeed unfortunate, but not inherently unfair or incorrect given it being the natural consequence of earlier mistakes. (And by the way, although now part of the judgment with the state, the Little Harbor expansion was not compelled by the state or its original lawsuit. I have no problem that it was joined, but let's not delude ourselves that there was a gun to anyone's head over Little Harbor itself.)

And still out there are all of us unfortunate souls with archaic, glorified privies (a/k/a septic systems) (mostly within our reservoir's watershed by the way), now balkanized into various areas of town making a single solution logistically difficult. We all face replacement and repair expenses that far exceed what anyone has had to pay to date for their sewer connection. Who is helping us? Yet we already pay for some sewers and are asked to indulge more whining and more payments without even lip service to our problems. How is that fair?

While I was a Selectman, I proposed a plan to municipalize septic systems to achieve a measure of fairness — to make everyone's wastewater disposal a matter of municipal responsibility. It could work. It was unfortunately misunderstood and misconstrued by even my allies, but more fundamentally, like so much other out of the box thinking, fell on so many deaf ears. Fairness, my Little Harbor friends, means addressing the rest of us as well — not with some vague promise of future help, but a definitive solution now as part of any solution for yourselves. Otherwise, be my guest to trade your sewer connection fee spread over 20 years for my all-at-once septic replacement bill any time. But until true town-wide fairness is implemented, circumstances will compel me to be distastefully and uncomfortably selfish.

Our choices as I see them [(2) or (3) being preferred]:

1) Be nasty, but fair, in the sense that everybody pays for their own wastewater solutions. Meaning, rescind all past 50-50 votes (with rebates to us septic owners) and deny Little Harbor's current effort. If the sewered folks want to be 50-50 amongst themselves, go ahead. I personally despise this divisive solution.

2) Give all sewer users a 50-50 deal, and revive and adopt my municipal septic plan.

3) Even more outside the box, cut the logical deal with Hull that would benefit us both — trade our excess water for their excess and existing sewer capacity. A complete win-win.

4) Build a new sewer treatment plant for the south side of town and Beechwood, and expand the Central and Hull systems to cover the gaps in the center and north of town.

Tom Callahan is a former Selectman, and owns property in un-sewered Beechwood.

Selectmen stick with decision on Little Harbor sewer cussion among the board, and later it was re-visited in a more detailed discussion.

In early April the Board of Selectmen considered whether to call a special town election to vote on debt-exclusion override for the Little Harbor sewer project. A vote at Town Meeting, which was only advisory in nature, supported the citizen petition article. A majority, three out of the five selectmen, voted in favor of holding a special election, however a super-majority (four out of five) is required in this case.

At the crux of the issue is history the two most recent town sewer expansion projects involving homes and businesses in the central and North Cohasset districts the project cost was being paid for by a 50/50 share, which means half of the cost is paid by the benefiting residents and the other half from the entire property tax base.

In addition, this same issue was taken up, discussed and voted on in 2005. According to votes taken at the 2005 Annual Town Meeting and a subsequent special election, the cost of the largest sewer expansion project, involving 487 homes in Little Harbor, is being 100 percent borne by the benefiting residents.

"I am extremely disappointed in the selectmen as a group would defy Town Meeting and vote against holding an election," Robin Lawrence of 15 Beach St. said. He was the first resident to speak. "You are holding up several hundred people from voting."

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley and Fred Koed voted against sending the debt-exclusion question to the ballot. In order for the election to happen one of them would have to change his or her vote.

Armed with the results of the 2005 election, Koed said the results were 57 percent against the debt-exclusion override and the turnout was substantial.

> "I am extremely disappointed in the selectmen as a group would defy Town Meeting and vote against holding an election."
> — Robin Lawrence, 15 Beach St.

"Town meeting and an election has spoken on this issue," Koed said. "How many times are we going to re-visit the same decision?"

Some residents argued that many were not fully aware of the ballot question in the first time around because it was before the project was a reality.

"There's a lot more awareness now," said Alex Koines of Atlantic Avenue, one of the proponents of the citizen petition article.

Not all present were in favor of another election on the Little Harbor sewer project, "I'd just like to say this has been voted on back in the day when it was relevant. I'm glad (the selectmen) decided not to revisit it," said Agnes McCann of Doane Street.

As the public comment time is only allotted a few minutes, Quigley attempted to wrap up discussion.

"Obviously this issue is not going away, but it is not a decision that should be made under duress," Quigley said.

Given the interest in the issue, Selectman Paul Carlson asked for it to be formally placed on an agenda again.

The majority of the residents who came out to speak to the Little Harbor issue left shortly after the public comment section.

Later in the meeting, the topic was revisited.

Quigley asked to get a sense of the board and how they felt about the issue. The question turned into a debate on whether the question should be sent to a town-wide election. Only two residents remained in the audience.

The only way an election can be called is through a super-majority of the Board of Selectmen.

"I am fully sympathetic to the comments made by people tonight, but nothing new has come forward that would I think would substantially change the original vote (of the selectmen a few weeks ago)," Quigley said.

Both Quigley and Koed felt strongly that the election in 2005 should have validity.

Koed likened the situation to a ping-pong game where both sides are going back and forth, "we have to make a decision and stick with it."

However, Koed said if something substantially different were brought forward he would reconsider. He suggested Little Harbor residents form a coalition with residents in Beechwood, the next section of town likely to receive town sewer. If something like that was brought forward, he would re-consider his vote on sending the cost-share question to the ballot.

"We are in the worst recession since the depression and people are asking why am I paying for everyone else's and no one is paying for mine?" Koed said, explaining Title 5 septic systems have to be replaced every 15 to 20 years. "No one is helping them."

Carlson said if a 50/50 cost share was not going to happen in Little Harbor, a policy should be established so that no future project would have that benefit going forward.

Realizing no one changed his or her mind Quigley tabled the topic.

Treat's Pond deadline extended

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Town of Cohasset has been given more time to consider the Army Corps Treat's Pond aquatic restoration project. In a letter to the Board of Selectmen, Army Corps Chief of Planning John Kennelly said a letter of support for the project would be required by Sept. 1, 2010 or the project would be terminated and the funds used for other restoration efforts.

The town requested more time to allow recently elected Selectman Lee Jenkins to assess the merits of the project. For the past few years, the board has had to make decisions regarding Treat's Pond with four selectmen. Former Selectman Ralph Dormitzer recused himself from the issue because of his residence's proximity to the project. In a recent vote, the board was deadlocked, two to two, on supporting a study of the project's potential impacts on Cohasset Harbor.

The Board of Selectmen sent a second letter to the Army Corps asking for information about possible project opportunities and funding mechanisms through the Army Corps stormwater remediation project to relieve continued flooding the Treat's Pond/Atlantic Ave area of Cohasset.

The letter also indicated they would like the Army Corps to come before the Selectmen to discuss the specifics and ramifications of a peer review process to evaluate the various engineering alternatives for the proposed Treat's Pond project.

The letters crossed in the mail. The Army Corps' letter is dated April 14 and the Selectmen's letter is dated April 15.

Lottery slated for the two affordable units

deemed affordable for no less than 30 years and as long as there are residential uses of the property there affordable units will be there in perpetuity.

A lottery will be held for the two affordable units in the coming months; one of the units will have local preference. A one-bedroom unit and a two-bedroom unit are available.

There are four categories for local preference: a current resident of Cohasset, someone who works for the town, someone who commutes into Cohasset and families with students currently in the school system, such as METCO students.

Local preference applicants will get two bites at the apple — they will be entered into the lottery for the local preference unit as well as the at large pool.

A third party company, MCO Housing Services is coordinating the lottery and the marketing effort for the affordable units.

Maureen O'Hagan, of MCO Housing Services, said eligibility for the affordable units is based on income. The maximum income earned guidelines are as follows: for one-person household is $46,300; for two-person $52,950; for three-person $59,550; and for four-person $66,150.

> Carlton Blake of Connell Development said the units are expected to be ready for occupation by June 1.

Income calculations are based on 80 percent of the area's median income. The number has to include 5 percent of an individual or family's assets.

The rent has yet to be approved by the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), but is expected to be $1140 for the one-bedroom and $1258 for the two-bedroom.

O'Hagan said a marketing plan is about to be set into motion. The time frame is 60 days and the units will be marketed in local and regional press, on a variety of different websites and there will be some minority outreach. Town employees will be notified of the units' availability.

Carlton Blake of Connell Development said the units are expected to be ready for occupation by June 1.

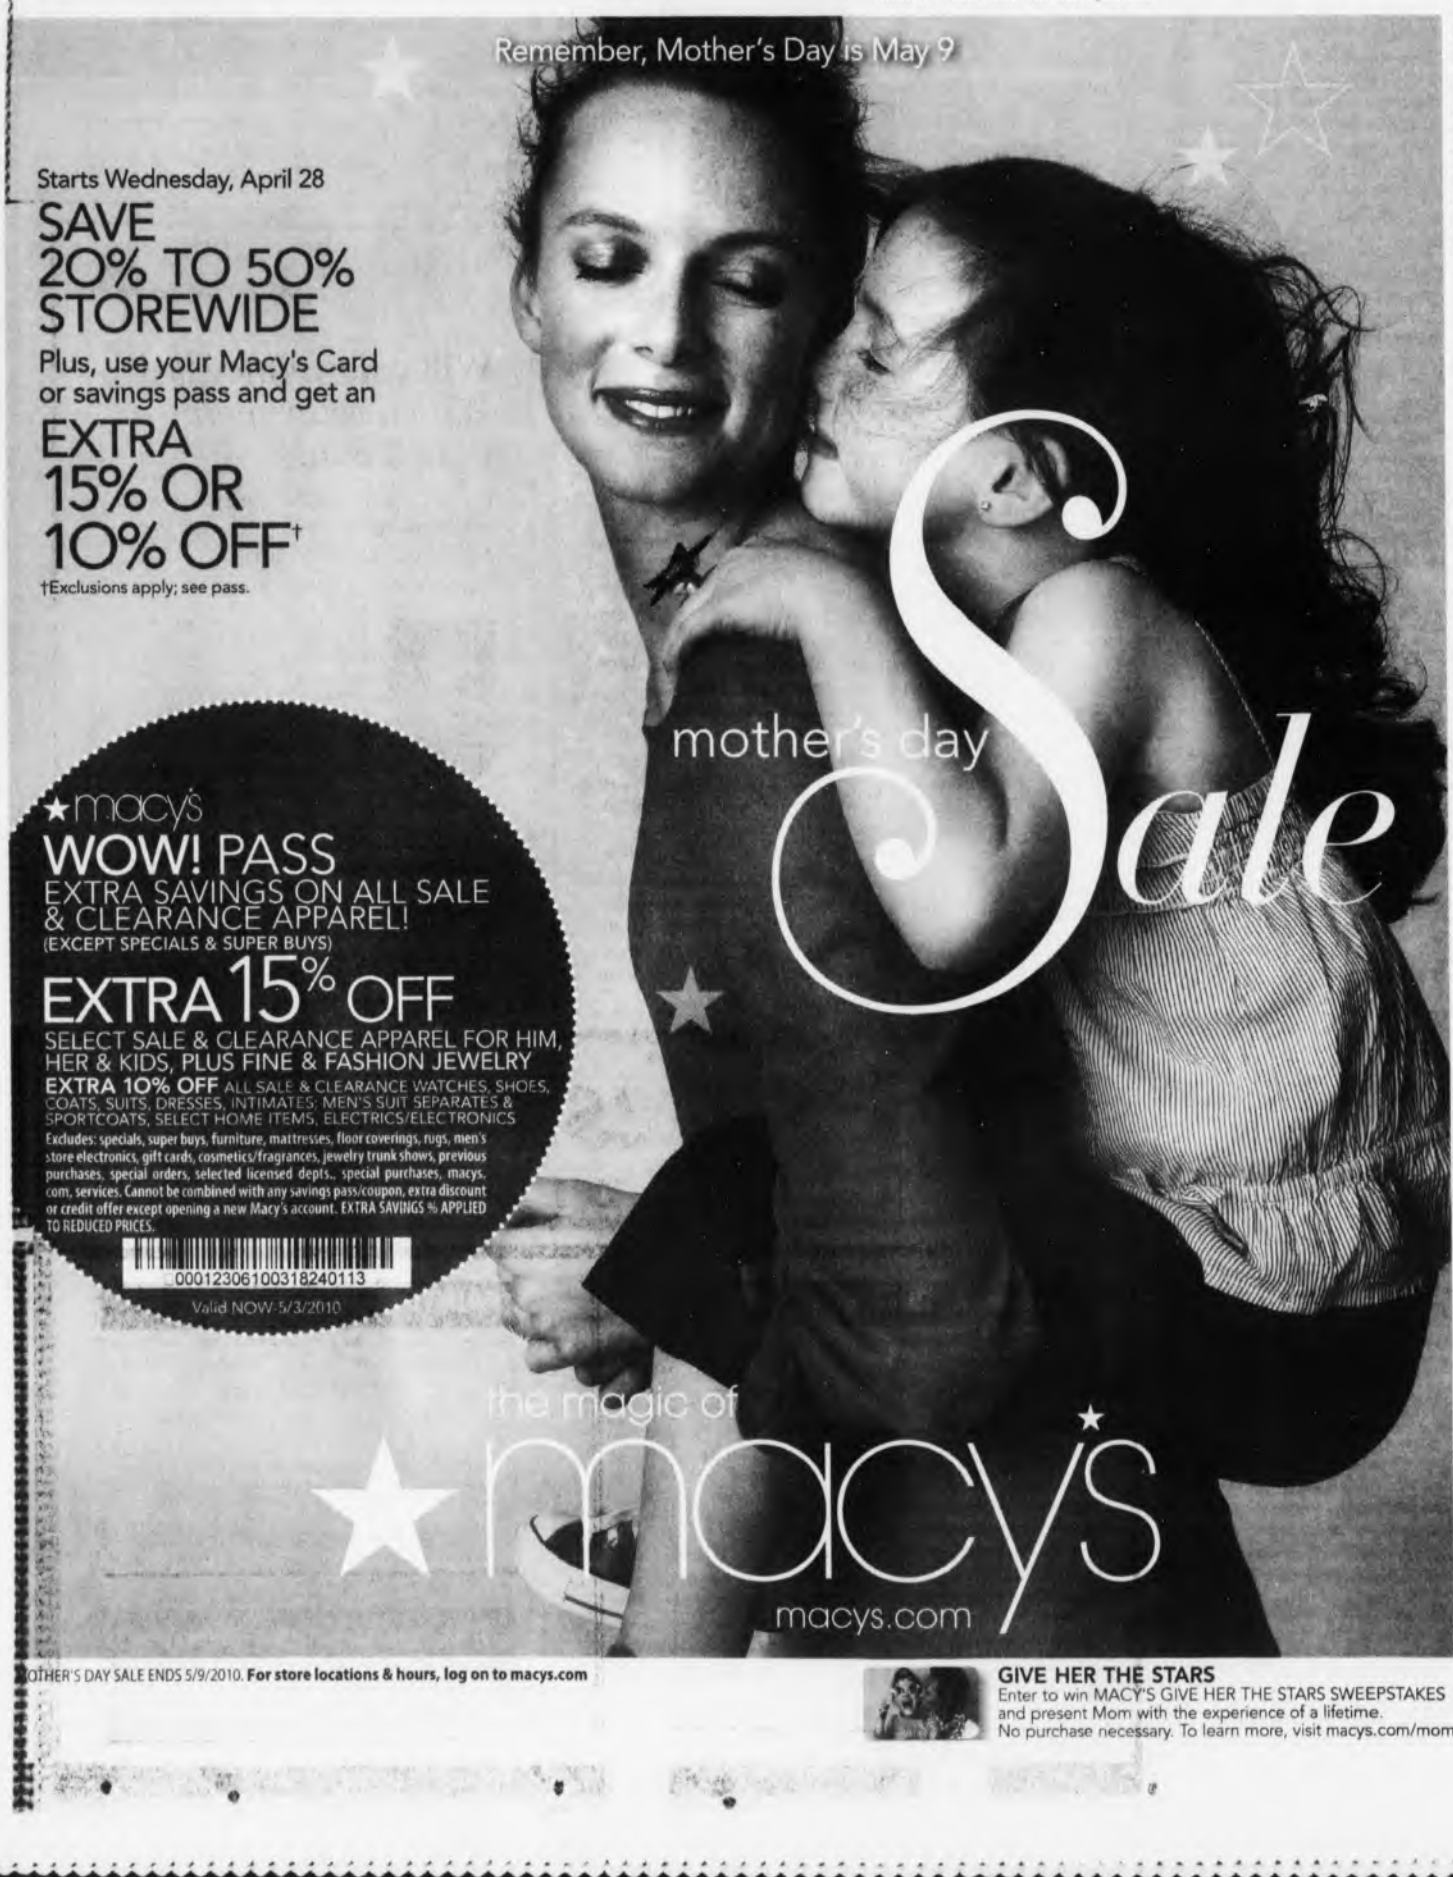
Fourteen other market-rate units are available for lease. There will be five, one-bedroom units and 11, two-bedroom units. All of the apartments have at least two baths and a loft area. Power said the apartments would have open floor plans and high-end amenities like gas-lit fires, stainless steel appliances, and granite countertops. The apartments range from 1100 to 1400 square feet in size.

The residences are all located on the second floor and the loft areas are the third floor. The apartments will have a private lobby and residents will be able to park their car in a detached garage for an additional fee. The monthly rent for the market-rate apartments will be between $1850 to $2400.

Space is also available on the first-floor for retail. In addition the athletic club, a wine shop (Local Vines) focusing on local vineyards and breweries is set to open soon.

For more information about Old Colony Square, visit www.oldcolonysquare.com. For more information about the market-rate apartments, contact Christine Powers at christinedpowers@nemoves.com. For more information on the affordable unit lottery, or to be added to the application list, contact Maureen O'Hagan at Maureen@mcohousingservices.com

Proposed zoning bylaw change

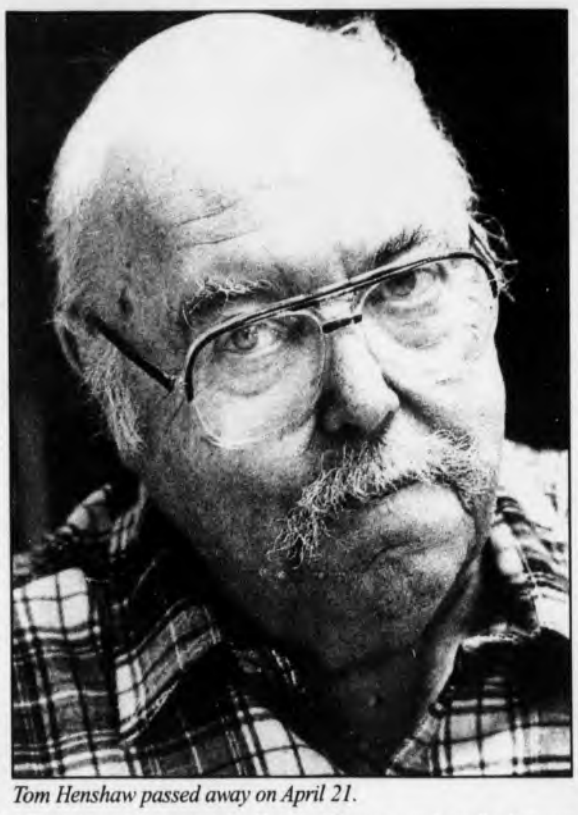


The Board of Selectmen referred a proposed zoning bylaw change back to the Planning Board for a public hearing.

The bylaw amendment deals with the portion of the zoning bylaws concerning non-conforming uses, structures and lots. The specific section stipulates any extension or alteration on a non-conforming property may be done if the extension complies with the area regulations (zoning bylaws 8.7.1). One of the regulations deals with lot size and in Cohasset the majority of lots are undersized according to the regulations.

Former long-time planning board member Bob Sturdy has some reservations about the proposed change. In particular, he was concerned the change would allow whole house reconstructions to take place without having to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Zoning Board of Appeals chair Woody Chittick said the proposed change was a minor tweak. Planning Board chair Al Moore said all interested citizens would have two chances to discuss the bylaw amendment: once at the public hearing and another at Town Meeting.



It is expected the bylaw change will be on the June 14 Special Town Meeting warrant.

Remembering the illustrious 62-year career of Tom Henshaw

By Cathy Conley
CCONLEY@CNC.COM

Well known columnist Tom Henshaw passed away Wednesday, April 21 at his home in Braintree. Mr. Henshaw retired as a reporter for the Weymouth News and Braintree Forum 11 years ago. He continued writing a popular weekly column for the Cohasset Mariner up until last year when his health failed. In honor of his masterful 62-year career as a journalist, we are running an updated feature on his life, originally published when he retired.

Tom Henshaw passed away on April 21.

"When I was young and ice covered the earth."

Tom Henshaw started many of his columns this way.

It's amazing how quickly that ice melted and Tom chose his path on sturdy ground, a path that led him to an old typewriter in a newsroom at the Braintree Observer 62 years ago, a path that took him to the Quincy Ledger, the AP desk; the Boston Herald, the Quincy Sun, and finally the Weymouth News, a path that led him to retirement in August, 1998.

Along the way, he wrote a book about the Kennedy assassination that sold more than four million copies and another popular book on the Boston Celtics.

Tom was born in Hubburston in 1925. His father worked for Western Union. Mother stayed at home in the early years.

When he was a boy, the family moved to Braintree, where Tom stretched his young muscles on the pastures of Penn's Hill and played hockey on Morrison Pond ("where I left a few teeth") and attended Braintree schools.

At 16, his father died. At 18, he was drafted into the Marines as World War II raged in Europe and the Pacific.

Boot camp at Parris Island was followed by training in radio communication and aerial gunnery.

In 1944, Tom was stationed in the Pacific as a gunner on a B-52, running bombing raids on tiny islands occupied by the Japanese.

"It was (General Douglas) MacArthur's task to leapfrog over these islands and let them wither on the vine," he said.

In 1945, Tom was sent to the Philippines as American troops prepared for an invasion of Japan, cut short nine months by VE Day followed by VJ Day,

"I was in an open theater watching 'Robin Hood' with Errol Flynn for the 15th time when I heard the Germans had surrendered," he said.

The war was over.

Tom returned to Braintree and entered Boston University on the GI Bill.

His fascination with newspapers began as a teenager.

A friend's father was a news photographer for the Record American. He took young Tom on his shoots and snuck him into Bruins games carrying his camera.

On Dec. 1, 1946, Tom began his illustrious newspaper career as a copy boy at the Quincy Ledger.

He started on a Monday.

By Friday, he was covering high school sports and typing up his stories in the two-finger method that has been his trademark for more than half a century.

"I never learned to type," Tom said.

He made $23 a week.

In his first news assignment, he covered the birth of a two-headed calf on Penn's Hill in Braintree. He called it a thoroughbred calf.

The first letter to the editor he drew lambasted him. Horses are thoroughbreds. Cows are purebreds, the letter-writer told him indignantly.

Tom remembers a sports lead he was very proud of.

He was covering the 1947 Marshfield-Scituate Thanksgiving game. It was a scoreless tie.

At the end of the game, Marshfield's Donny Martins broke loose for a touchdown but a speedy little guy named John Smith from Scituate caught up with him on the 10-yard line and the game ended in a tie.

"My lead was 'Donny Martins runs fast. John Smith runs faster. That was the story of the Marshfield-Scituate game.'"

The south edition only printed the lead.

Tom worked for the Ledger for two years.

"I was fired for talking to the guys on the picket line during a strike," he said.

From 1948 to 1952, he covered sports and selectmen's meetings for the Braintree Observer, the forerunner of the Braintree Forum.

Ten cents an inch was what they paid him.

The selectmen's meetings were hot. The board consisted of Ray Palmer, Al Roberts, and John Mahar.

"I remember one night Palmer called Roberts a contented cow while the state stole the town from under him," Tom said.

He covered Braintree football during the illustrious Arigo LaTanzi era.

He covered various assignments for the Boston Globe.

In June, 1952, he was hired as a summer replacement on the AP desk.

A member of the staff quit and Tom slipped into his job, a job he would hold for the next 15 years: five in Boston and 10 in New York City.

Tom wrote about almost every major event in Boston and then in New York during those years.

"In my first election in 1952, I elected the wrong governor of Rhode Island," he said: "I picked up the Eisenhower votes and gave them to the Republican gubernatorial candidate. I'm told they were congratulating him on TV before we corrected the mistake."

The first inkling of the sinking of the Andrea Doria on that night in July, 1957 came to the AP desk from a short wave operator in Virginia who heard a distress call off Nantucket, Tom said.

It was late at night. There was a skeleton crew. The office boy had to go to the local bars and round up a full staff.

AP reporters often talked to men on sinking vessels on ship to shore radios.

"One guy was interviewing a sailor on a sinking ship. The guy said, 'I have to hang up now. The water is up .to my knees,'" Tom said.

The riots at the state prison in Charlestown were another big story Tom covered.

"We paid a guy to use the phone in a bar across the street from the prison," he said.

In 1962, it was off with AP to New York, where he focused on features.

In one of his favorites, he spent a week with a Class D baseball team and wrote about what life was like.

President John Kennedy was assassinated while Tom was in New York.

He and four colleagues collaborated on a book about the assassination called "The Torch is Passed."

The assassination occurred in November. The book was out in January.

"They locked us in a hotel room for two or three weeks with five typewriters," Tom said.

"One AP guy, Bernie Gavzer, came back from Texas with a story a cop told him about a couple standing beside him. Just before the assassination, the wife said to the husband, 'You can see the Secret Service is on the ball. Look at that guy in the window up there with the rifle.' Of course, it was (Lee Harvey) Oswald.

"This was such a good story we sent Bernie back to Texas to get the name of the cop. He did. It's in the book."

Each of the five AP writers focused on different aspects of the assassination.

Tom's areas were a profile of Jack Ruby, the man who killed Oswald, and reaction to the assassination.

"I called Ruby a bizarre footnote on a tragic page," Tom said.

Seventeen years ago, Tom was browsing in the Clift Rogers Library book sale in Marshfield when he saw a copy of "The Torch is Passed."

Tom brought it to the counter.

He couldn't resist.

"I wrote that book," he said to the clerk.

"That's nice," she replied. "That will be a dollar, please.'"

In 1967, Tom returned home with 15 years of AP experience under his belt and a-five-year-old son named Ian to raise.

He worked at the Herald from 1966 to 1972, when it folded.

Then a 25-year career as the AP correspondent for the Bruins began.

Tom also covered Celtics games for a while but "liked covering hockey better than basketball. I understand it better."

Tom played hockey as a youth and coached his son's team although he didn't have much luck on the winning ledger.

"We lost 12 out of our first 13 games and then went into a slump," he said.

After leaving the Herald, Tom returned to his first love, local journalism, for 10 years with the Quincy Sun and then for 13 years with the Weymouth News.

"I found moving on rejuvenating. I was the Weymouth News longer than any other place in my career.

"I liked covering Weymouth. I liked the people, even the ones who were at each other's throats."

"Why don't ya tell the truth?" people say to Tom

"We don't tell the truth," Tom said. "We used to print provable facts. Now we print supportable observations."

Health problems have forced Tom to retire from the weekly coverage of news in Weymouth, but those two fingers still pounded his keyboard at home.

Up until six months ago, he continued his weekly column for the Mariner Newspapers, a column that won him several New England Press Association awards.

His first column was entitled "Let's Forgive Bill Buckner."

His favorite column told about the only time in his life he has worn a tie.

His columns exemplified his favorite quote in literature in "Scaramouche"—"He was born with the gift of laughter and the sense that the world was mad."

Tom was feted at a retirement party at the Village Steak House in August, 1998.

The crowd reflected on his illustrious career.

Colleagues told of the joy of working with him.

Five of his editors through the years spoke of his mastery of the written word and the clarity of his stories.

"Just write it like you'd tell your friend," he would advise young reporters about how to cover a selectmen's meeting.

Town officials spoke about how funny Tom was in person and how fair he was in print. The selectmen and the state senator honored him with citations.

Dan.Ryan, his wife, and their newborn baby were at the retirement party.

Dan addressed the crowd and told of another side of the veteran newsman: Tom the landlord.

"Tom owns a two-family house in East Braintree. He rented the upstairs to us for three years at a very low rent so we could save up .We now have our own home, thanks to Tom Henshaw," Dan said.

Making a statement

Skippers nearly dethrone Duxbury

By Sean MacCarthy
SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

With the Chowda Cup in their possession, the Cohasset lacrosse team looked to extend their undefeated streak going into the game against the Norwood Mustangs. The Skippers did just that winning convincingly by a score of 15-7. The win put Cohasset at the 8-0 mark on the season just before their toughest game of the season.

Boys' Lacrosse

After the Norwood game, Cohasset devoted all of their focus to dethroning Duxbury. The Duxbury Dragons are the No. 1 ranked team in all of Massachusetts and have been sitting comfortably at that spot for the last 6 years as they have won 6 consecutive Division 1 MIAA State Championships. They had a 99 game win streak until Saint John's Prep snapped it in the middle of last season and they haven't lost since. They went into the Cohasset game with a perfect 9-0 record.

Cohasset entered the game with the No. 5 ranking in the state, and came close to pulling off the upset in a 9-8 loss that sent a message to the rest of Div. 3 that Cohasset is most definitely back.

In the days preceding the big game against the heavily favored Duxbury, Dave Silk, a member of the 1980 USA Gold Medal Hockey team, compared the upcoming game to the Miracle on Ice victory in Lake Placid. Through an email sent to the team, Silk offered words of encouragement. "Play with heart- play with fire- play hard...but play smart! Go out and take what is yours- believe in yourselves and your teammates and trust your talent and hard work."

Cohasset's midfielder Thomas Filbotte moves down the field for points with Marshfield's Josh White on his trail during the Third Annual Chowda Cup Memorial Lacrosse Tournament.

On a damp and cold Tuesday night, the clash of lax's finest began with a bang. In the first minute, Duxbury jumped out to a 2-0. Shortly after, Jack Carrier was the first to put Cohasset on the board making it 2-1. Duxbury finished the first quarter ahead 4-1.

Cohasset's defense regrouped in the second and kept the high powered Dragon offense from scoring. Capitalizing on a man-up situation, Will Wise had the first of four assists on the day for him by feeding Alex Kinnealey making it a 4-2 game going into halftime.

The battle of unbeatens resumed with Duxbury regaining control of the game. Paul Hellar of Duxbury capped off his hat trick in the early minutes of the quarter. The Dragons followed up with a man-up goal of their own making the score 6-2 in favor of Duxbury. After Duxbury

Outstanding start

Girls laxers start season with seven-game streak

By Susan Franklin

With a 7-0 start, the girl's lacrosse team has high hopes this year coming off last season's 9-9 campaign that brought them to state playoffs.

This year's team is led by first year coach MaryEllen Sullivan, a Cohasset High School guidance counselor, and a lacrosse and field hockey standout at Assumption College.

Returning from last year's squad are co-captains Izzy Franklin at midfield, MacKenzie Hart and Mimi Mahoney on defense and Amy Meikleham at attack.

Mahoney who injured her ankle in the annual Powder Puff Football game last fall will be missed on the field this season but she brings her enthusiasm to the sidelines. The speedy Mahoney could guard most of the attack in the league even wearing a protective boot.

Girls' Lacrosse

Joining the co-captains on the varsity squad are juniors Cally Altholtz and Eliza Kinnealey, sophomore Anna Seraikas and freshmen Kristin Alexander on defense; junior Caroline Fein, sophomores Angela Cipolla, Taylor Kennedy, and Sage Stebbins, and freshman Hope Kissick at midfield; juniors Kelsey Erler and Olivia Murphy and sophomore Whitney Jaffe at attack and finally sophomore Stephanie Brierley and freshman Kylie Coffman in goal. The team has a good combination of youth and varsity experience.

To date the team has shown good ball movement, accurate passing and overall team speed.

Against Hanover, a team the seniors had never beaten, Cohasset battled to an 8–5 halftime lead.

In the first half Meikleham had two goals and an assist and Kissick dominated the face offs continuously giving Cohasset first possessions. The Hanover goalie was outstanding in the first half stopping an onslaught of shots that could have made the score much more lopsided.

Cobin blanks Hull

GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

The Cohasset baseball team improved to 4-4, 3-2 South Shore League with a 9-0 win over Hull on Tuesday.

Drew Cobin had an outstanding day on the hill, tossing a complete game shutout while allowing just two hits and two walks with 10 strikeouts.

"He was very efficient with his pitches as his pitch count wound up at 93," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "Thirteen pitches per inning for a high school pitcher is excellent."

Cobin helped out at the plate as well.

Baseball

"Drew hit two very hard line drive outs, and finally picked up his first varsity hit," Afanasiw said. He drove in two runs in the sixth inning to give Cohasset a little breathing room and making the score 6-0.

Junior shortstop Anders Goetz had several quality plays early in the game, to help Cobin cruise through three perfect innings and five no-hit innings.

Senior third baseman and co-captain Brendan Doonan hit his second home run of the season, in the fourth inning, and freshman outfielder Shane Haggerty was 3 for 4 from the plate and reached base in all four plate appearances. He also stole a base and scored two runs.

With the score 3-0 in the bottom of the fifth inning, Hull had the bases loaded with one out, and Drew struck out the next two batters.

"The last out came on a goalie, Mickey Zaverucha, made many great saves, Thomas Flibotte netted one for Cohasset.

The Division 1 juggernaut remained relentless though and quickly responded with two more goals. With less than two minutes left in the third quarter, Duxbury had a five goal lead, ahead 8-3. The game looked as though it had slipped out of Cohasset's hands like a bar of soap. Against a team as extraordinary as Duxbury, the five goals made it seem like Cohasset could no longer be competitive in the game.

Needless to say, the Skippers proved otherwise.

With about 20 seconds left in the third quarter, the big swing in Cohasset's favor began as standout attack man, Dean "Doomsday" Driscoll, scored. The score was 8-4 in favor of Duxbury going into the fourth and final quarter.

The fourth quarter began slowly, mainly because of the incredible play of Zaverucha for Duxbury and Jack Murphy for Cohasset. Both goalies played great making impressive stops throughout the first portion of the final quarter. Zaverucha and the top notch Duxbury defense couldn't keep it up forever though. Driscoll scored in traffic and then was assisted by Will Wise completing yet another hat trick for him this season. As the four- minute mark approached, Cohasset had cut the lead in half, down 8-6.

The race to match or top Duxbury's score was heating up and Duxbury could feel the immense pressure that the Skippers were bringing. With all of the momentum in Cohasset's hands, Sophomore Kyle Livingstone scored an unassisted goal with 3:21 left in the game. The goal brought Cohasset to within 1 goal of Duxbury.

The Dragons weren't giving up the lead that easy. After regrouping, they pressed Cohasset, getting a handful of shots off. Jack Murphy made a fantastic save as he shuffled in front of the ball. The ball trickled out in front of the net when Duxbury's Seamus Connelly made a miraculous, no look, on the run, behind the back, circus shot.

"I hate losing and so do all of the kids. We played great though and we need to keep that in our heads when looking back at this game.

Cohasset coach Stew Curran

"I have no idea how he got a goal on that play" said Murphy.

The stunning goal put Duxbury up 9-7 with only 2:45 left to play. After Alex Kinnealey won another key face-off and a barrage of shots, Flibotte found the back of the net with 1:09 on the clock.

Heading into the last minute of the game, "I was just thinking 'One more,'" said Flibotte. "That's all we had to do was just get one more goal to tie it up and get a chance to win."

After the face off, there was a questionable call that put Cohasset a man-down for most of the last minute. This allowed Duxbury to pass it around the perimeter while killing the clock. Once penalty was gone and it was 9 on 9 again, Cohasset was able to play the man with the ball. They did just that as Sam Leahy and Kyle Livingstone forced a turnover.

With just seconds left, Kyle Livingstone scooped up the lacrosse ball. He then sprinted 60 yards down to Duxbury's end. The clock read 0:01.4 as Kyle Livingstone took the final shot of the game looking to tie it up 9-9 to bring Duxbury to overtime.

Denied. Mickey Zaverucha made a game saving save with his facemask just barely giving Duxbury the win and Cohasset its first loss of the season. Duxbury's team stormed the field as they celebrated their narrow 9-8 victory, which could potentially be the Game of the Year.

Cohasset also left with their heads held high as they played the No. 1 team in the state more competitively than any other team this year.

"I hate losing and so do all of the kids," said Coach Stew Curran. "We played great though and we need to keep that in our heads when looking back at this game. All the midis played very well, the attack played great and the defense came up huge for us."

Cohasset had 35 shots on the day while Duxbury had 29. Cohasset's shooters also hit two posts which ended up making a big impact.

"That's a game where we could have won," added Curran. "Just some plays didn't go our way which changed the course of the game."

Duxbury comes out of Tuesday's game with a squeaky clean 10-0 record. They have another very tough game against Saint John's Prep on Saturday in a rematch of last year's Division 1 State Championship Game.

"I give Duxbury all the credit for that win," said Curran. "They're the champs because of their ability to play so well when it matters. They certainly showed that tonight."

Cohasset's record now stands at 8-1. They play Martha's Vineyard (6-3) at home on Friday. This Tuesday, they face off against bordering rivals, Scituate (3-8), at Alumni.

Cohasset resident John Giuggio headed to Union College

Cohasset resident John Giuggio will play football and baseball at Division III powerhouse Union College. Giuggio attends Choate Rosemary Hall in Wallingford, CT where he has been a three-year starter and captain of the football team and the starting catcher on the baseball team for the last two seasons.

Union head football coach John Audino commented, " We were very impressed with John Giuggio's athletic ability both as an offensive and defensive player. John is a polished receiver and a very good route runner who will be very involved in our program right from the beginning. John has very good instincts and we are very pleased that he is attending Union College. We are always very happy when we have someone from Choate's outstanding football and academic program come into our program. John will mesh in with our veterans and be an outstanding player for us."

What You Don't Know Could Cost You

Financial Recovery Following the Flood Disaster

BY: ROBERT MORETTI

VICE PRESIDENT & MANAGING DIRECTOR, H&R BLOCK EASTERN SERVICES

During natural disasters, like the recent floods, people worry first about their families and safety, then about their homes and other belongings. Once the disaster subsides, the rebuilding of everyday lives, and the property that has been damaged or destroyed, begins.

Residents are picking up the pieces of their life, sometimes quite literally. You need to know just what you can do to claim your losses, receive funds quickly and get on with rebuilding. You also need to know that your tax or financial advisor should be able to answer these questions.

But where should impacted taxpayers begin?

Filing a Casualty Loss Claim

Tax filers may claim a casualty loss on either their 2009 or 2010 return. The tax code states if a taxpayer elects to claim a disaster loss on their prior year's tax return it is treated as if the casualty occurred in that year. What this means is taxpayers can claim losses from the recent flood disaster on their 2009 tax return and the IRS will treat the loss as if it happened in 2009 rather than recently. This enables disaster victims to recoup their losses more quickly.

Robert Moretti is the Vice President and Managing Director of H&R Block Eastern Service which serves all of the Northeast States. If you have any disaster-related questions, please call 1-800-HRBLOCK (472-5625) to be connected to an office near you.

If Massachusetts and Rhode Island residents choose to claim their loss on their 2009 tax return, special rules will apply:

- No 10 percent floor.
- $500 reduction per event instead of the normal $100
- The loss can be claimed as part of the standard deduction, so itemizing (Schedule A) is not required.

Calculating a casualty loss, however, can be a confusing process and the best advice is to contact your tax professional immediately for assistance.

If you wait to claim your loss on your 2010 tax return, any personal use property losses not covered by insurance or other reimbursements may be deducted. But, taxpayers must first subtract $100 for each casualty event and then subtract 10 percent of their adjusted gross income from the total casualty losses for the year.

As explained above, these limitations are different if the loss is claimed in 2009 instead of 2010. Taxpayers should ask a tax professional for assistance in choosing the best option for them.

Tax Filing Relief.

Following a declared disaster, the IRS generally grants late filing relief to affected taxpayers. In this case it is May 11, 2010. This means the IRS will not assess penalties or interest if tax returns are filed and other obligations are performed within a specified date. Taxpayers may be affected if they live, work, or have financial records located in a federal disaster area, or if they are a qualified relief worker assisting in the disaster area. For information, go to state-specific information on the IRS Web site for the impacted states: Massachusetts, Rhode Island.

with Serakis, Hart, and Stebbins using their speed to disrupt Hanover's offense. After a strong start in the first half Meikleham had to sit out the second half with a bout of vertigo, shivers and bad sunglasses. Nonetheless Cohasset came out strongly.

Franklin fed Erler from behind the cage for a nifty quick-stick goal.

Jaffe made a beautiful pass from midfield to Erler who scored another goal and Franklin scored on a direct shot by dropping down and firing a laser by the goalie side armed.

The final score was as a convincing 19-8 for the Lady Skippers. On the day, the team was lead by Erler with six goals and an assist, Franklin with five goals and two assists, and Jaffe with four goals.

After beating Hanover (19-8) and Quincy (23-8) in two games just prior to spring break the team posted a 7-0 record.

Other early season victories include Nantucket (14-5), Abington (17-2), Mashpee (23-11), and North Quincy (12-1). The team has displayed an explosive offensive, averaging 18 goals per game and an efficient defense, only yielding five goals a game.

The schedule will soon turn tougher for the lady laxers with games coming up against Scituate and Notre Dame of Hingham, followed by late season games with perennial power and defending state champ Norwell, and finally Weston.

Cohasset finally dropped a game, falling 14-9 to a powerful Duxbury squad on the road on Monday.

Chohasset Youth Lacrosse Boys Roundup

U11 Team 3

Cohasset U11 Team 3 continued its undefeated season with an 8-5 victory over Kingston on Sunday. Notably of the 8 goals, four were assisted – and these were flashy, beat my man, draw a few other guys, pass the ball, & do everything but score the goal type of assists! Leading the charge for Cohasset on the day was Tommy Carrabes with 2 goals and an assist, while Hank Waters (2g), Ryan Donovan (1g, 1a) and James Krumsiek (1g, 1a) each added 2 points to the mix. Newcomers Cliff Ward (1g), Kyle McFetridge (1g), and Luca Curatola (1a) all added one point to the cause.

The goal was ably manned by Terence Faherty & Jackson Fitzgerald and supported by stout defensive efforts from Amby Tierney and Jared Seebeck in particular. Declan Havlicek was a monster – flying all over the field and arguably could have had four or five assists on the day if not for last second Kingston checks on the happy recipients of his pinpoint passes. Luke Donovan, Jack Mahoney, & Sam Albino showed brilliant flashes throughout the game at middie and attack.

U11 Team 1

Team 1 faced Old Rochester and took control of the game from the opening face-off. The boys were able to use some excellent passing and control of the ground balls to create scoring opportunities for multiple players. Charlie Pyne blasted a couple of goals home early in the game and then moved to defense and displayed textbook form in tracking the Old Rochester players.

Will Greer, Cal Osten, David Burke, Mason Fitzgerald, Jake Allen, Jake Koncius and Chris Longo all scooped multiple ground balls and controlled the middle of the field.

Cole Speer, Nick Slamp and Brendan "Coop" Cooper took control of the action on the defensive end in front of goalie Thomas Guinee. Guinee had several saves including a tough stop on a blast right off his glove. All in all, a great day for Team 1!

U13 Team 1

Team 1 put together its best effort of the season as the boys got a chance to show their stuff against Kingston on the new Alumni field turf. Alex and Chris Norton led the offensive attack along with Max Fitzgerald and Sam Arnold, as they each scored multiple goals and made excellent passes to their teammates. Ray Tolosko continued to show off his wheels by scooping ground balls and flying up the field on clears.

Goalie Brian Counihan was tough again between the pipes and had great support from the defense of Jack Osten, Griffin Gildea, Owen "Nighthawk" Bernsee and Richie Kinscherf. Jack Curran was tenacious all over the field, throwing his body into players much bigger so he could help his team keep possession. Team 1 had a commanding lead in the second half and that allowed some defenders to try their hand at offense. Gildea showed a nice scoring touch by notching his first goal of the season.

U13 Team 1

The Boys U13 Team 1 faced off against a tough Hanover squad and the game turned out to be a great one. The game was very close early on until Hanover ran off several straight goals while Cohasset kept missing on some great opportunities in front of the cage. Hanover would take a 5-2 lead late in the third quarter until Cohasset's offense woke up and made a late push. Before Cohasset finally got going on offense, it was the play of goalie Brian Counihan and the D of Max Fitzgerald, Owen "Nighthawk" Bernsee and Aidan McHugh that kept the game from getting out of hand. Counihan and the D trio continually turned away Hanover and allowed the Cohasset O to find their stride.

Newcomer Ray Tolosko had a break out game and used his lightning speed to transition the ball at midfield and create some great scoring chances for the attack. On one play, Tolosko took a clearing pass deep in his own end and ran 50 yards before making a perfect pass to Alex Norton who then fired the ball to Michael Tesauro who ripped it into the cage. Cohasset continued to battle hard to come back in the fourth quarter and middies Liam McHugh, Liam McDonald, Drew Skolnick, Will Hoffman and Jack Curran all fought for ground balls and played strong D to spur the comeback. Norton was struggling with a leg injury but managed to stay in the game and moved to an Attack position where he scored the tying goal on a bull rush through half the Hanover squad. Team 1 just missed the winning goal with seconds remaining in regulation play and then lost a heartbreaker in overtime, 6-5. This is certainly a game where the score does not matter because the team did such an outstanding job playing shorthanded and never giving up, great job Team 1!

Chohasset Youth Lacrosse Girls Roundup

U13 Grey

The U13 Girls Grey squad extended their undefeated streak last Sunday by taking down another Hingham team 12 - 7. This was the epitome of a hard fought game as Hingham controlled the first half taking a 7 - 6 lead into the break. Hingham was beating us on the draw (face off), barely giving us a chance to defend their fast breaks. Coach McGovern made a savvy adjustment at the half that turned the table and gave us control on every single draw in the second half; frustrating Hingham to no end.

With only two substitutes and few breaks, everyone played hard and helped at all positions. Jenny Wolfe had a dynamite second half helped by textbook defense in the form of Abby McGrath. Sophie Wolfe had two goals, one assisted by Paige Carrabes and one on a loose ball. Paige had another assist and two goals of her own, the second off a free position penalty shot. Danielle Picot scored as assisted by Abby McGrath, who had two goals of her own, again the second off a penalty shot. Cali Guiggio had two goals, one assisted by Julia Hertzfelder. Abby Thomas stepped up in a big way with three goals, one assisted by Paige. Nadiya Roy assisted once as well. Marcella Flibotte, Megan McElgunn, Kaitlin McGovern, Maggie Queenan, who we're glad to have back, and Olivia Sanderson did great as well keeping the pressure on the Hingham goalie who made some nice saves, defending for Jenny, and working the midfield.

The coaches are so proud of the effort and sportsmanship you displayed. You're quickly becoming the team to beat. Keep up the hard work.

South Coastal Hockey League Roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Grizzlies have had some great finishes in the South Coastal Hockey League playoffs this year.

In the Fall, the Grizzlies won a shootout in the semifinals on their way to winning the Masters Div. title and they needed a John Zimmer (two assists) of Marshfield goal at 2:40 of the overtime to defeat the Thunder, 5-4 and advance to the finals where they will play the Wolves.

Joe McCafferty, Joe Bevilacqua, Kevin Jones and Chad Sullivan scored for the Grizzlies, who led the game 4-1.

Derek Rappaport of Pembroke, Mike Joy and Mike Maguire both of Hanover and Tom Maguire scored for the Thunder. Tom and Mike Maguire each scored in the final 90 seconds to tie the game, 4-4 and force an overtime period.

Keith Smith of Marshfield and Ryan Murphy of Pembroke both scored two goals and assisted on another as the Wolves rolled to the Masters Div. championship game with a 6-3 win over the Aeros. Pembroke's Bob McCabe and Mike King were the other goal scorers and goalie Rich Hoefer of Pembroke had 24 saves for the Wolves.

Pembroke's Dave Marani scored two goals and Sean Taylor also of Pembroke scored for the Aeros.

The Maple Leafs will be the top-seed in the Classics Div. and will enter the playoffs undefeated as Mike Ryan scored two goals in their 2-1 win over the Black Hawks, which they will play in the semifinals. The Black Hawks Pat Mulkern of Pembroke scored their goal.

Mike Fahie of Pembroke and Tim McCrystal of Marshfield each scored a goal for the Canadiens, who tuned up for the Classics Div. playoffs with a 2-1 win over the Rangers. They will play the Rangers, who got their goal from Daron Jacobs of Pembroke.

John Guilderson scored two goals and assisted on another and Mark Tedeschi of Hingham had a goal to go along with three assists as the Red Wings closed out their Classics Div. season with a 5-1 win over the Bruins. Harry Mathews of Duxbury and Eric Schoell scored the other goals for the Red Wings and Tom Dromey scored for the Bruins.

The Saints needed a win to clinch the final playoff spot in the Legends Div., but settled for a 1-1 tie with the Sharks. Mike Ryan scored for the Saints and Richard Petrosino of Marshfield scored for the Sharks, who will play the Crusaders in their semifinal matchup.

Mike Hankes scored two goals, Sean Regan and Ed Burke of Marshfield scored one each as the Crusaders tuned up for the playoffs with a come from behind, 4-4 tie with the Stingers.

Paul Smyth scored two goals, Chuck Gosselin and Mike Seyfert of Marshfield had one each for the Stingers.

The Legends Div. champion Whalers will be the top-seed in the playoffs after they got two goals from John Maguire of Norwell, one each from Paul Flagg and Scituate's Richard Spence in their 4-2 win over the Toros, who clinch the last playoff spot. Steve Concannon of Scituate had three assists in the game for the Whalers, while Patrick Reynolds of Norwell and Paul Brinkman scored for the Toros who will face the Whalers in the semifinals.

CAMP, SCHOOL AND ACTIVITIES

SIGN UP FOR SUMMER CAMP WHERE PLAYING IS LEARNING!

By Bette Bussel – Executive Director American Camp Association, New England

Children's schedules seem to be more packed with activities and responsibilities -- homework, chores, music lessons, and organized sports -- than ever before. Not enough time for good, old-fashioned play for children can result in health and psychological consequences. Child development theories are based on the fundamental concept that play IS learning.

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) stresses the importance of play in children's learning. In a report written in defense of play and in response to forces threatening free play and unscheduled time, AAP concludes free and unstructured play is healthy and—in fact—essential for helping children develop important social, emotional, and cognitive skills. It can also help children deal with stress in a healthy manner.

Quality summer camp experiences meet the developmental needs of children by offering environments designed to encourage kids to be kids:

- Experiential education and experiences (learning by doing)
- Opportunities for healthy, safe risk-taking (physical and emotional)
- Skill building in a broad array of interest/activity areas
- Friendship and decionmaking skill building
- An "unplugged" environment
- A community that includes caring adults, who are teachers and role models
- Opportunities to engage in unstructured play

Summer camps accredited by the American Camp Association offer day and overnight experiences for children that maximize opportunities to play in a tremendous variety of ways. From free play to performing plays, from intense athletic contests to non-competitive games, opportunities for play are paramount at camp. Sign up today!

Cobin blanks Hull

FROM BASEBALL, PAGE 17

curveball in the dirt that senior catcher and co-captain Andy McKenna blocked nicely and tagged out the final hitter to end the inning and the scoring threat for Hull," Afanasiw said.

Cohasset played Norwell on Thursday.

Afanasiw was pleased with the effort.

"The boys played hard from the first pitch to the final out, and really put together their most complete game of the season," he said. "The pitching was outstanding. We played error-free baseball in the field, and had multiple players step up and collect timely hits that slowly wore down the three Hull pitchers that faced us."

The victory was a big one for the Skippers, who are looking to make the MIAA tournament.

"This was a big win, as it evens out our record coming into the second half of the season," Afanasiw said. "Hopefully we can continue to improve with each game and be aggressive in all facets of the game."

A class act

One of our junior lacrosse players at Cohasset High School, Thomas Flibotte, participated in a shooting challenge on April 17at the Boston Blazers game in the Boston Garden. It was an event that was sponsored by the Blazers and Reebok and allowed Thomas to put his special skills on display before 10,000 NLL Lacrosse fans. Thomas went out and earned a big win that came with a cash award for our high school boosters lacrosse program and some great new sticks from Reebok.

Thomas and his parents have discussed his winning effort and how important something like this may be best used. He has chosen to make a donation of the sticks to the younger South Shore League programs in Hull, Abington and Mashpee in hopes to help grow lacrosse in our league. As Thomas's coach, I am never surprised as to the fine things he does on the field & his even better choices he's made again and again a student athlete. He embodies the concept of "doing well for others"

SCHOOLS

Getting back after April vacation

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Friday was a very tough day to cope with if you are one of the AP students because Friday was the last day of school before the two weeks of AP Exams begins.

Ohhhhh how I missed the Life at CHS as I was shooting cans, tanning, playing basketball, and being lazy over April vacation. It was a sweet vacation but you gotta go back to school sometime, right? Unless of course you want to drop out. Stay in school kids and only you can prevent wildfires. I wonder if I can get sued for copyright infringement by writing that…

Monday was a day of mixed emotions. Some people were happy to be back and see people they normally don't hang out with. Some people were sad, especially those that didn't get to go on the trip to Germany because of that pesky Iceland volcano that erupted all over the place called Eyjafjallajökull. I will give you money if you can teach me how to say that properly in an Icelandic accent.

Tuesday hosted the second-to-last president's meeting involving Seniors like myself. They served us chicken wraps, which were delicious. Not gonna lie, there was not a lot to talk about due to the fact that there is only a few weeks left in school. Oh, and because we solved almost every problem the school had in previous months. Awesome.

Wednesday there was a lot of buzz going around the school about the lacrosse game from Tuesday night Duxbury. A lot of people showed up to support the Skippers as they faced the lacrosse juggernaut that is Duxbury. They lost but they gave a great effort only losing 9-8. You should check out my article. I want to show you it mainly so you can realize that I can write in a non-incoherent, stream-of-conscious writing format. I dare you. No I DOUBLE dog dare you.

Thursday there was a very informative Spinnaker staff meeting about putting out the Senior Salute for when the beloved and cherished (and superior...) Seniors leave the halls. The student-run paper editors will most definitely put together a top notch, I repeat, top-notch newspaper for everyone in the school that has $1 to enjoy. If you don't have a $1, you better have a friend who likes you enough to let you read over their shoulder.

Friday was a very tough day to cope with if you are one of the AP students because Friday was the last day of school before the two weeks of AP Exams begins. If you didn't know already, AP Exams are quite dreadful and equal no fun. It's a good thing I don't play a sport so I can leave school after the test without consequences. Finally my terrible knees have done me some good!

Well as I mentioned, my days in CHS are numbered…literally…there is a huge Senior countdown with how many days left we have on the wall. I'm fairly certain we are into the teens. WOO HOO! Sadly, that means I can no longer write Life at CHS articles for y'all because I will no longer be roaming the halls of CHS. ANTI WOO HOO! With that being said, I need to find a replacement so you guys can be entertained next year when reading the paper. I have a whole list of candidates who I know will do a good job at filling my shoes after I am gone. I will start giving you hints to who it is in next week's article.

Peace out homies.

P.S. Sorry if this is a sloppy article. I keep finding myself doing this at the wrong time of day. Senioritis does that to you I guess. Have a nice week, loyal readers.

Sean MacCarthy will be a member of the Class of 2014 at Providence College!

'Transition 101: High School to Adulthood' to be topic of workshop

All are welcome to a workshop titled "Transition 101: High School to Adulthood" from 7 to 9 p.m., on Tuesday, May 4, at Paul Pratt Library, 35 Ripley Road, Presenter will be Marilyn Weber of the Federation for Children With Special Needs.

This workshop will address the effective use of the IEP and the Massachusetts Transition Planning Form for students who are ages 14 through 22. Individualized, person-centered planning of curriculum and supports throughout high school leads to better post high school outcomes and opportunities in education, training and/or employment for students with disabilities. Discussion will include age of majority, self determination and self advocacy, life skill development and preparing students to pursue as independent an adult life as possible. Weberd will also address questions regarding young adults with accommodations for disabled students under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act.

All workshops and presentations are free and sponsored by the Cohasset PSO/Parent Advisory Council.

Jazz galore on special CMHS night

THE ARTS

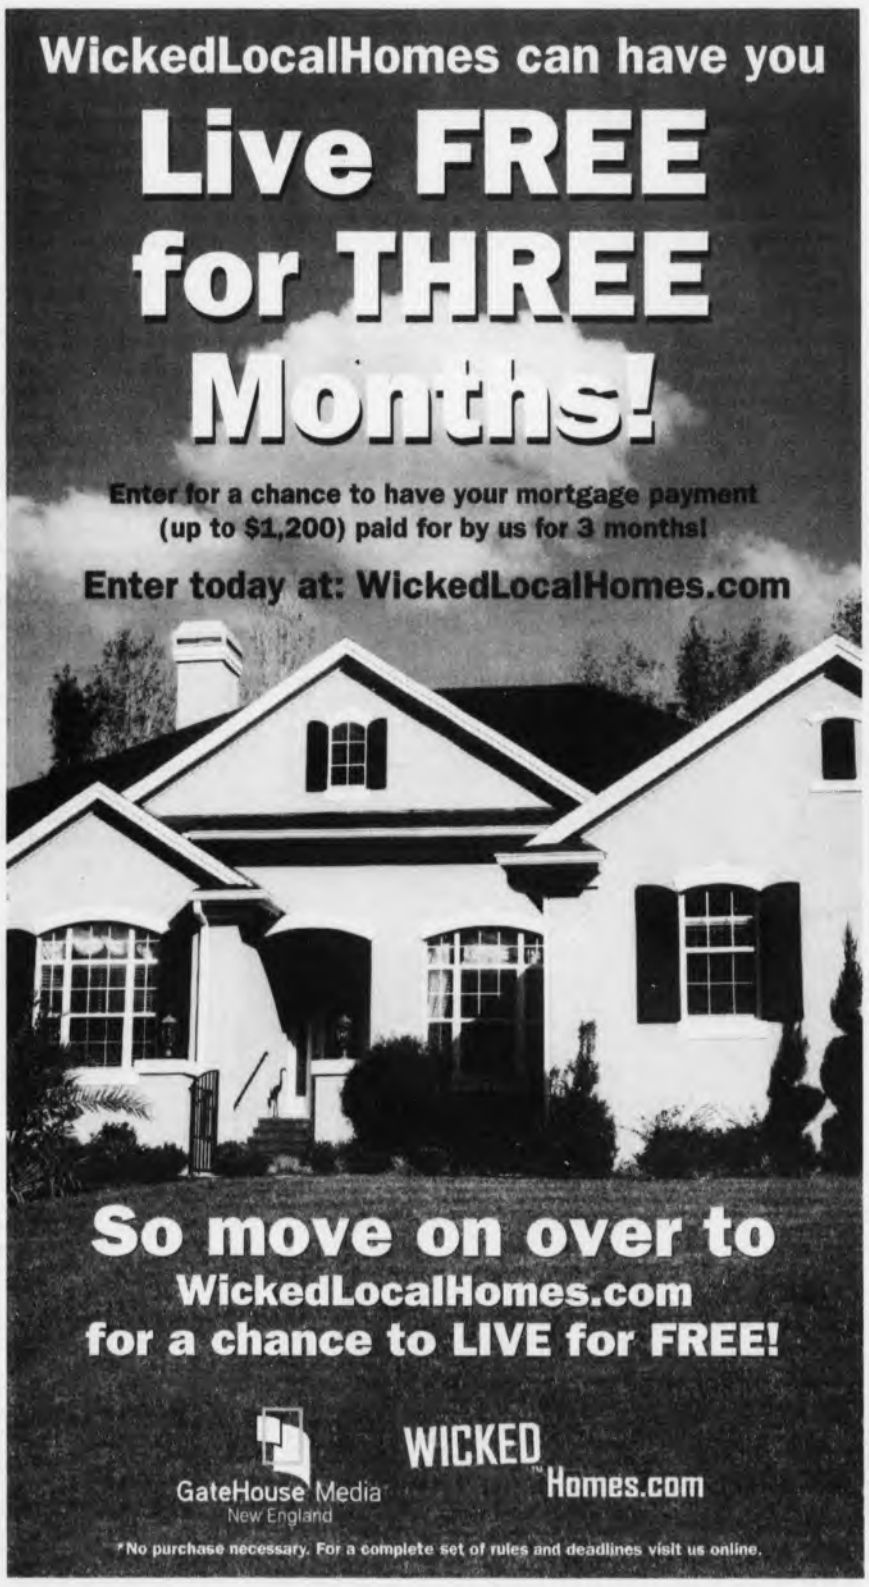
KATHRYN HILLMAN

On April 14th, the Cohasset Middle High School hosted Jazz Night. Held in the upper lobby, the whole event had the air of a relaxed jazz club with the students as the featured musicians. The club atmosphere was enhanced by the boosters, who provided coffee in handmade mugs and the audience seated at long tables. The night kicked off with the Jazz II Band, under the direction of Ms. Goldstein, starting with Fast B-Flat Blues. The bouncy swing piece was upbeat, featuring the trumpets as well as a flute solo by Meghan Considine, a saxophone solo by Evan Canney, and guitar solos by Davis Cronin and Tim Cavanaro. The next piece in the set was entitled Mr. PC, featuring Derek Benson and Julien Geyer on trumpet, Harrison Durant on guitar, and Zoe Meyers on piano. It was a relaxed, cool-jazz piece, with the chorus slipped in between the solos. The next song in the set was Rhumba Latina, with the guest ensemble, the Bobby Gallegos Quartet, playing with the band. Solos included Evan Canney on saxophone, Harry Helbock on trumpet, and Adam Game on drums. The piece had a driving rock rhythm underlying the Latin flair provided by the trumpets. The piece was very spirited and well received by the audience.

At this point in the program, some of the outstanding musicians in the Jazz II ensemble were recognized. Both Zoe Meyers (piano) and Mats Nelson (trombone) received awards for outstanding musicianship. Harrison Durant (guitar) received a jazz comprehension award. Tim Cavanaro received an award for showing the most improvement.

The next group to perform was the Jazz I Ensemble, directed by John DeWall. They opened their set with The Preacher, which began slow with gospel tones, and turned into a bluesy number. Mark Seraikas performed a solo on tenor saxophone. The next piece the ensemble performed was It's Only A Paper Moon, a swing, which fit nicely with the nightclub vibe of the event. Senior Ian Porter provided the vocals, backed-up by the band. The vocal and instrumental components blended beautifully. The next piece, After You've Gone, featured the piano, supported by the reeds and brass. Solos included Devon Dickson on trombone. After this piece, Mrs. Moriarty spoke briefly about the start of the Jazz Band in 2001, when she began teaching at Cohasset Middle High School. She then presented the C.D. Harvey Jazz Award, which is awarded to a senior every year, which went to Austin Meyers. The final song of the set was Don't Get Around Much Anymore, a classic Ellington number with strong piano and saxophone parts. The saxophone and trumpet sections passed the melody line for a bit, which was followed by some solos: Mark Seraikas on tenor saxophone and Garrett Canney on trumpet. The set was very well-received.

The next group to perform was the Jazz Combo, a small group that has been playing at arts events throughout the year and it is student run. They played with the Bobby Gallegos Quartet, and played free-style jazz. Everybody had a solo, which were woven into the different melodies. The whole set was very interesting and was presented very much like a club jazz set. The final group for the evening was the guest band, the Bobby Gallegos Quartet, featuring Bobby Gallegos on trumpet, Binney Stone on guitar, Kenny Hadley on drums, and Bronek Suchanek on double bass. They started with a blues tune called Sisco, written by Binney Stone for the quartet. The four parts layered beautifully, the drums provided the base, the bass and guitar formed the layers of the melody, and the trumpet formed the top layer, featuring Mr. Gallegos' high-power trumpet style. The next piece was Why Wait? It was a slower jazz piece. The trumpet was muted, allowing it to fit into the layered pattern of the piece, each instrument coming out for solo, all of which were outstanding. The next piece, Confirmation, featured the bass, played with a bow. There was a terrific guitar solo. Throughout the piece, there was a bouncy bass line, with a jazz infused rhythm layered on top of it. The trumpet had a relaxed solo, muted throughout. The bass added an interesting touch to the overall piece.



In the final portion of the evening, all of the bands came together to perform something the guest quartet had worked on that day with the students in the "jazz clinic" as a part of Jazz Day at Cohasset Middle/High School. They had worked on improvisations, passing the melody line, texture, timing, and beats. They performed Blues in the Closet, a head tune. It was not written down — it simply began with a rhythm, which the band picked up. There were solos from nearly every band section. The Bobby Gallegos band also played with the jazz bands. The whole piece really showed a mastery of basic jazz skills; it was a pleasure to listen to them.

This reporter was fortunate enough to be able to speak with Bobby Gallegos after the concert. He said that all of the students were attentive, respectful, and he saw "a lot of potential here." He had a lot of good things to say about the music programs in the Cohasset school system. He says that he is glad to see how the community supports live music and the arts. The town certainly hopes to see more of this live music.

Kathryn Hillman of Cohasset is a senior at Notre Dame Academy.

Save the date

Mark your calendars for Saturday, May 22, for the annual Cohasset Education Foundation Spring Event. Join the CEF under the tent to celebrate another year of tremendous community support for our public schools.

HAPPENINGS

Clothing drive

The O'Donnell family at 11 Beach St. is hosting a clothing drive to benefit Cradles to Crayons on Saturday May 15 from 8 a.m. to 2m p.m.. Cradles to Crayons collects clothing, baby equipment, school supplies and crafts, shoes, books and Jackets and distributes these goods through a wide network of social service agencies benefiting children from birth to age 12. If a ride is needed to the Café, call the Senior Center at 383-9122.

Using the arts as educational tool

CONSERVATORY NOTES

CAROL FORBES SCHEIG

I consider myself blessed to be an early childhood teacher, with 35 years experience — and counting. Through South Shore Conservatory's arts-based approach to preschool and kindergarten, I've watched my young students grow from timid, unsure individuals into outgoing, creative, confident and eager learners. Although we are an arts school, our goal is to build a strong foundation for a lifelong love of learning, not just in the arts, but for all types of learning and discovery. Using the arts as an education tool allows us to make the learning extra-fun, and the long-term results are phenomenal.

How lucky are we that, using the abundant resources right here in our facility, we can teach children how to share through music class, how to find their own space and learn about their bodies through movement class, and how to use acceptable table and bathroom manners through drama? Even after all these years, I never take this creative freedom for granted. As students experience concepts in a variety of ways, they gain a deeper understanding and have greater recall.

The mantra that is consistent through my many years is that "it's the process, not the product" we must focus on. In planning our curriculum, we make sure that all themes, activities and projects embrace and celebrate the open-ended process of early learning. The arts not only allow for, but require that the process be child driven to foster the creative potential in each young child. The fact that the child has tried to play the instrument or build a structure is much more important than what it sounds like or looks like in the end.

Nowhere is the success of this mantra more obvious than when former students, many now in their teens, return to the Conservatory for further arts instruction. It affirms that I have done my job in creating a thirst for learning and the arts. These informal and insightful visits continually remind me of how unique this journey through learning can be for all involved. One of my former preschool students, now a dad in his 30s with small children (who also attend our preschool), is a successful lawyer, yet he displays his guitars right there in his living room. Clearly music, though not his chosen profession, has had a profound impact on his life and his decisions for his children.

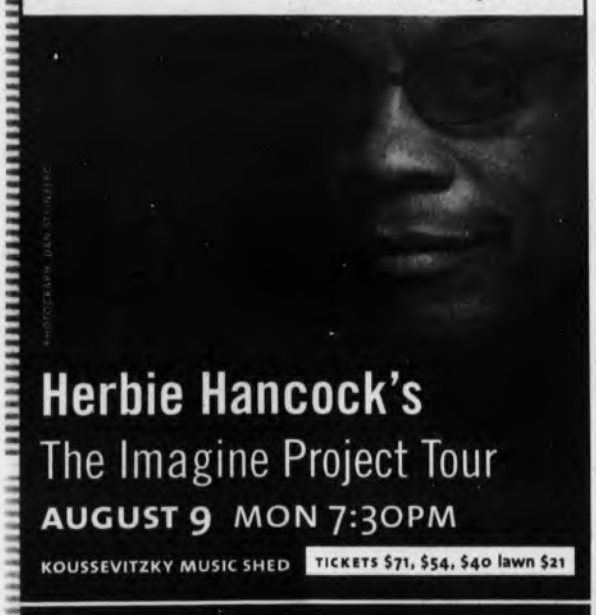
Preschool director Carol Forbes Scheig, facing forward, waits for her turn on the glockenspiel during South Shore Conservatory preschool music class.

These informal and insightful visits continually remind me of how unique this journey through learning can be for all involved.

Speaking of decisions and decision-making, our children find that choice time is their favorite time because they're allowed to make their own decisions. And believe me, they know when they've made a poor one! But, as we tell our children, it is through our mistakes that we grow. Our easily restructured environment encourages children to make creative decisions when things don't turn out the way they want them to.

There are still openings available in our preschool and kindergarten classes for the 2010/2011 school year, but they won't last long. If you are interested in taking a tour with your child on a day when class is in session, please call me at 781-749-7565, ext. 17, to set up a time. For more information, please visit www.sscmusic.org.



Carol Forbes Scheig is South Shore Conservatory's Preschool Director. She has worked with children for more than 35 years and is considered an expert in child development. Her incredible sense of fun is the secret to her success with children.

Acclaimed author kicks off book tour in Hull

Stephen Puleo, acclaimed author of "Dark Tide: The Great Molasses Flood" and "The Boston Italians" will kick-off his book tour for "A City So Grand" at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 6, at the Mary Jeanette Murray Bathhouse.

Presented by The Hull Public Library, The Hull Lifesaving Museum and The Department of Conservation and Recreation, A "City So Grand" chronicles for the first time a breathtaking half-century in Boston's history and its emergence as a world-class city: The abolitionist movement of the 1850s, the Great Fire of 1872 and the rebuilding of downtown, the 35-year engineering and city-planning feat of the Back Bay, the arrival of the Irish that transformed Boston demographically, Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone in Boston, and the many contributions Boston made to shaping transportation, including the grand opening of America's first subway. These stories and many more paint an extraordinary portrait of Boston.

Save The Date

Sign up for your senior or T.A.P. Charliecard from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday, June 14 at Cohasset Elder Affairs.

New Senior CharlieCard ID's will be processed for customers exchanging their old Senior IDs (issued before May 2005) and to first-time Senior customers (65+ with proof of age). The new Senior CharlieCard will arrive by mail. Also, applications for the MBTA Transportation Access Pass (T.A.P.) CharlieCard, issued to persons with a qualifying disability, will be available.

Greater Boston Legal Services – Do you need some legal advice? Greater Boston Legal Services has a program that provides free legal advice and representation, education and information services to elderly residents in the South Shore area, with particular focus on elders having the greatest social and economical need. A program lawyer will visit residents in nursing homes, homebound elders, and residents of assisted living facilities. For more information, call 1-617-603-1776 the Elder intake line

Men Wanted – The Chanticleers, a retired men's breakfast club is soliciting new members. Now in its 22nd year, the Chanticleers consist of more than 40 members from 10 South Shore communities. They meet at the Red Parrot in Hull, from 8:15 a.m. to 10 a.m., every Wednesday rain or shine. There are no dues, a breakfast brunch, just $13 (more than you can eat) from juice, fresh fruit, sausage, eggs Benedict, Belgian waffles and more. Interested speakers and spirited banter always makes the meeting, one to remember. If you need transportation, we will try to accommodate you. For more information, call Lloyd Prescott 781-544-3626.

Free seminar for seniors and their families

A question and answer period will follow the presentations, and all attendees will receive a complimentary planning and organizational guide.

Information vital to seniors and those caring for aging family members will be presented at a free seminar at 2 p.m., on Tuesday, May 4, at the Hingham Sons of Italy Lodge in Hingham. Hosted by the Pyne-Keohane Funeral Home, this informational seminar will focus on funeral planning, estate planning and asset protection.

Ron Kearns expert nurse attorney from the Senior Resource Center, will discuss care, financial and legal strategies, and requirements for effective estate planning and asset protection, including Medicaid qualification issues and veteran's funding benefits. Joe Reardon, a funeral director and certified pre-planning consultant, will discuss the benefits of planning ahead for funeral services. The third speaker, funeral director Dennis Keohane, will explain the various types of cremation service options that are available.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations, and all attendees will receive a complimentary planning and organizational guide.

"An increasing number of Americans – an estimated one million last year alone – are planning for their own final arrangements in order to spare their families much of the emotional and financial burden," said Keohane. "This seminar gives seniors facts they need about alternatives and options in order to make informed decisions."

The Hingham Sons of Italy Lodge is at, 88 Chief Justice Cushing Highway at the corner of Route 3A and Kilby Street. Registration is necessary as seating is limited. To register for the seminar or to learn about a free seminar that will take place in Quincy on Oct. 5, call 800-536-4263.

Biennial Art Forum to showcase work of middle school students

South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset, will showcase the artwork of middle school students in its biennial exhibition Art Forum, opening Wednesday, May 5. The exhibition will kick-off with an opening reception from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The reception is free and open to the public.

Art Forum will feature the work of sixth, seventh and eighth grade students at 13 middle schools: Cohasset Middle School, East Middle School in Braintree, Frolio Middle School in Abington, Furnace Brook Middle School in Marshfield, Galvin Middle School in Canton, Hanover Middle School, Hingham Middle School, Inly School in Scituate, Norwell Middle School, Sacred Heart in Kingston, South Middle School in Braintree and South Shore Charter School in Norwell.

"Art Forum gives the Art Center – and our gallery visitors – an exceptional opportunity to peek inside the art classrooms around the South Shore and see the exciting work being done by so many creative students. This is always a highlight of our exhibition calendar and we are very pleased to be working with the many art teachers who help young artists create at a very high level," said Heather Collins, director of community programs at the Art Center.

Art Forum will be on view May 5 through May 16. South Shore Art Center galleries are open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon to 4 p.m., on Sundays. For more information on the Art Center's exhibitions and education programs, visit www.ssac.org.

Earth Day Clean Up

This is the third annual Earth Day Clean Up of Cohasset Conservation Trust properties. Both boys and girls lacrosse teams provided the student workers who met at Saint Anthony's parking lot and were divided into two work parties.

Cohasset Health Board and the DPW supplied trash bags and gloves, and the two parties picked up bottles, can, plastic, and trash that has accumulated at both sites. Harbormaster Lori Gibbons transported the girls to Bassing's and helped haul several boatloads of trash back to the Government Island parking lot. Bassing yielded the most trash including an abandoned tent. Cohasset Conservation Trust thanks all the students who showed up and made the clean up relatively short work under sunny skies.

The CCT owns or manages 18 properties comprising over 100 acres of shoreline, woodlands and meadows. Scott's Shore is a 1000-foot strip of rocky beach off Atlantic Avenue providing a nesting area for migratory birds. Bassing Beach was the first property acquired by the Trust in 1967, which is 3/4-mile barrier beach with two cottages in the inner harbor portion of the property.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MAY 10, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A seemingly stalled romantic situation could benefit from your reassurance that you want this relationship to work. And if you do, use a tad more of that irresistible Aries charm.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Going to new places and meeting new people appeals to both the Taurean's romantic and practical side. After all, you never can tell where those new contacts can take you. Right?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) That career-change opportunity that didn't work out when you first considered it could come up again. But this time, remember that you have more to offer and should act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There could be some tensions in relationships — domestic or workaday. But a calm approach that doesn't raise the anger levels and a frank discussion soon will resolve the problem.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good idea to begin preparing for that career change you've been thinking about for a while. Start to sharpen your skills and expand your background to be ready when it calls.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Bless that Virgo skepticism that has kept you from falling into traps others seem to rush into. But you might want to give a new possibility the benefit of the doubt, at least on a trial basis.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Traveling and career are strong in your aspect. Perhaps your job will take you to someplace exotic. Or you might be setting up meetings with potential clients or employers. Whatever it is, good luck.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might use deception to try to push you into making a decision you're not fully comfortable with. But those keen Scorpio senses should keep you alert to any such attempt.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Romance dominates this week when Cupid spears the Archer, for a change. Positive things also are happening in the workplace. Expect important news to arrive by the week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Anyone trying to bully the Sea Goat — whether it involves a personal or a professional matter — will learn a painful lesson. Others will also benefit from the Goat's strong example.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. With things going the way they are, you should be able to spare some time and take a break from your hectic schedule for some well-earned fun and games.

PISCES (February 19 to March 21) Your sharp Piscean intuition should be able to uncover the true agendas of those who might be trying to catch the Fish in one of their schemes.

Level Hoo Boy:

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

An interfaith spiritual retreat for people living with Parkinson's disease, dystonia, tremor and similar conditions will take place at Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., on Saturday, May 22. "Moving in the Spirit, will feature adaptive yoga, chair massage, discussion, guided meditation and prayer. Cost is $4, and lunch will be included. The program is offered by the Spirited Movement Foundation, a Cohasset-based nonprofit dedicated to serving people with movement disorders.

"My team and I are thrilled to offer this retreat at Glastonbury Abbey. It is the perfect place to offer a day focused on healing and wholeness," said Lindsay McGrath, the Cohasset resident who heads up the group. McGrath is a trained hospital chaplain who holds a master of divinity degree from Boston University School of Theology. She lives with a movement disorder called cervical dystonia that effects her neck and shoulder muscles. The day will feature chair-supported yoga with Renee Le Verrier author of "Yoga for Movement Disorders" (Merit Books). Jennifer Greenwood and her staff from Healing Touch Therapies in Scituate will provide gentle chair massage.

The Spirited Movement Foundation has received support from the American Parkinson Disease Association, Allergan Inc. and Gentiva Home Health.

Estelle Parsons steps right in 'August: Osage County' doesn't miss a beat with new lead

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Through six decades in show business, Estelle Parsons has done Broadway, movies, sitcoms and even TV news. With four Tony nominations to her credit, however, Parsons had only ever originated roles on Broadway until two years ago when she went into "August: Osage County." Parsons enjoyed the lead role in Tracy Letts' acidic, but funny, Tony Award- and Pulitzer Prize-winning play so much that she asked to play it on the show's national tour, which comes to Boston's Colonial Theatre next week.

Shannon Cochran and Estelle Parsons perform in "August: Osage County" at the Colonial Theatre in Boston, May 4-9.

As the drug-addicted Violet Weston, Parsons is matriarch of a large, far-flung Oklahoma brood that reconvenes at the family homestead when Violet's alcoholic husband turns up missing. The pain-killers Violet pops do nothing to stop, or even slow her from inflicting pain on everyone in her path. Actress Deanna Dunagan originated the role of Violet, first with Chicago's Steppenwolf Theatre and then on Broadway. Not long after winning the 2008 Tony Award as Best Actress, Dunagan left the show citing exhaustion. With Violet charging up and down 352 steps on the play's three-story set – 704 steps on two-show days – the part would tire almost anyone.

For the 82-year-old Parsons, however, those on-stage steps are just the latest in a career that might have been derailed if the Lynn-born, Marblehead-raised actress had finished law school at Boston University instead of taking singing and piano gigs at local nightclubs. Parsons soon headed to New York where she was hired as Women's Editor on NBC-TV's brand new "Today Show" in 1952, making her the first female on network news. Leaving "Today" three years later, Parsons turned to acting and made her Broadway debut in 1956 in "Happy Hunting" with Ethel Merman. Parsons has since appeared in 26 Broadway shows. An Academy Award winner for 1967's "Bonnie and Clyde," Parsons is well known to television audiences as Beverly Harris, the title character's sometimes-shrill mother on the long-running ABC-TV sitcom "Roseanne."

Estelle Parsons

Parsons – a mother and grandmother of three whose grandson, Eben Britton, is an offensive tackle for the NFL's Jacksonville Jaguars – was on the telephone from a Cleveland tour stop when she spoke with Town Commons last week.

Town Commons: You did this show in New York for almost a year. What made you want to take it out on the road?

Estelle Parsons: I didn't have much of an opportunity to tour earlier in my career, because I was bringing up twin girls and a son and I wouldn't leave my children. I went out for a few months with "Miss Margarida's Way" about 20 years ago, but otherwise I turned down most offers to tour. I love being on the road. It's like vaudeville – I've got to prove myself in every city. It is tough and wearing, but wonderful, too. It is really what theater is all about.

Town Commons: What has it been like replacing someone?

Estelle Parsons: The play was already a very big hit, and I think that if something is a hit, then the hit should be maintained. The play wasn't broken, so I didn't see any need to go in there and fix it. My job was to replace what was there and to do what was there. I had seen Deanna in the role and it was seared into my brain. All actors are imitative, so I just went in and learned the lines and the blocking. I did what Deanna did and tried to fit into the existing company. When I explain this to some people, they laugh because I am nothing like Deanna. I don't usually try to put my personal stamp on everything though. I just try to play the play the way it was written. My work has gotten deeper and better thanks to the dynamic nature of our audiences. Even with that, this is a very, very strong play. I think anyone who does it will succeed.

Town Commons: How did you build your stamina for all those stairs?

Estelle Parsons: I've always lived in a house with stairs so the stairs in this show aren't daunting to me. I think they probably look more intimidating than they feel. I've also been very physically active all my life. I run, swim, or go to the gym every day and I also do yoga. I started working with weights several years ago, because as you get older your strength dissipates. This play requires so much physical and psychic energy that I dance around my dressing room for a half hour before I go on. My son gave me an iPod with all kinds of great music, which has been a big help.

Town Commons: Violet Weston has to be one of the scariest characters in modern theater history. What do you think of her?

Estelle Parsons: I think she is a very intelligent woman who was probably abused as a child and carries the scars from that. I have sympathy for her, but it is hard to say whether or not I like her as a person, because it is hard to really see her deep down. It has reached the point that she will probably never be anything more than a drug addict. And addicts are very cruel. Their needs are very different. And you never know what they're going to do, so they're a threat to normal people.

Town Commons: What was it like to be a part of the "Today Show" in the early years?

Estelle Parsons: In those days, people didn't even know if daytime TV would ever catch on – it was an experiment. It was my day job. I got to be successful in it, but I wasn't interested at all in that type of career. I was singing at a club on Long Island, and I was focused on getting into musicals. Then I landed this new show at NBC. I did all the literary and fashion features and then kind of just landed in news. I was the first woman to be part of the news department to handle a presidential primary campaign [Tennessee Sen. Estes Kefauver's]. We were really pioneers, but that didn't matter to me. I still hated interviewing people on TV. If it were print, you'd get to talk to somebody, get to be interested in people. On camera, it was all about how it would look. Morning television just wasn't something that came naturally for me.

Bowen heads back to space

Cohasset astronaut readies for launch

By Jill Michaels

COURTESY PHOTO/NASA

NASA astronaut Steve Bowen, STS-132 mission specialist, attired in a training version of his Extravehicular Mobility Unit (EMU) spacesuit, awaits the start of a spacewalk training session in the waters of the Neutral Buoyancy Laboratory (NBL) near NASA's Johnson Space Center.

If you thought his first space shuttle mission played out like a Hollywood blockbuster, just wait for next week's sequel.

Navy Capt. Steve Bowen, 46, is scheduled for launch aboard STS-132 Atlantis next Friday, May 14, at 2:20 p.m. The Cohasset native and his five astronaut crewmates will deliver a Russian-built Mini Research Module to the International Space Station (ISS) during their 12-day orbital flight.

Bowen, NASA's first submariner astronaut, nurtured his love of the ocean in Cohasset. His childhood home was located 1-1/2 miles uphill from the beach. As a career, he chose to become an engineer of a submarine and qualified for command.

In his STS-132 pre-flight video interview for NASA, he said he made one deployment on the submarine named USS Pogy. "I really enjoyed being at sea."

NASA selected Bowen as an astronaut in 2000. He flew in space aboard STS-126 Endeavour in November 2008.

Upcoming discussion with Selectmen

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For close to a decade the funds from the Community Preservation Act have made more than a few community projects go from pipe dreams to reality.

The Beechwood Ballpark went from a tired and shabby baseball diamond to a neighborhood park frequented daily by families and children.

The Cohasset Historical Society's Captain John Wilson House was beleaguered by water damage for years, but got fully restored with help from community preservation funds.

Acres of open space to protect the town's water supply and to be enjoyed by many residents were purchased.

Thousands of dollars were devoted to make needed improvements to the senior housing complex on 60 Elm St.

But now in its ninth year some residents are wondering whether the community preservation act has run its course. As a result, the Board of Selectmen will meet with the Community Preservation Committee (CPC) in May to begin a discussion on repealing the act and its associated 1.5 real estate tax surcharge.

The Community Preservation funds are a combination of the property tax surcharge and a percentage of matching funds from the state. The funds must be spent on three areas: open space and recreation, historical preservation, and community housing. The CPC can use a small percentage of its budget for administrative tasks, such as appraisals. All uses of the CPC funds are approved

Welcome to Cohasset!

Chamber distributes baskets to new residents

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

New residents are coming to Cohasset every month – and the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce wants to do their part in making them feel welcome to this seaside town.

To that end, this week the Chamber launched a welcome basket effort to introduce new residents to the local businesses in the community.

Chamber vice president Matthew Cunningham has hand delivered two baskets to new residents and plans to do more in the coming weeks.

"We wanted to have something that welcomed people to town," Cunningham said. The basket includes about $250 worth of gift cards, coupons and gifts from chamber businesses.

Using public records and local real estate agents the Chamber is contacting Cohasset's newest residents. Cunningham left messages for those homeowners' last week explaining the welcome baskets.

The Morin Family who just moved into a home on Pond Street were the first homeowners to receive a welcome basket.

PICTURE THIS/Susan Gilmore

This week, the Mariner caught up with Susan Gilmore and her dog, Murphy, outside the Cohasset Sailing Club on Government Island. Susan is the new Junior Program Director at the sailing club.

Name: Susan Gilmore.

Occupation: High school English teacher (recently retired) and Junior Program Director at the Cohasset Sailing Club.

Best day of your life: The older I get the truer it gets: the day that each of my children was born (Amy, Sara and Andrew) and then the days that my grandchildren were born (Allie, Mikey, Lily and Griffin). It doesn't get any better than that!

Best vacation: Every summer that I spent with my family and New Silver Beach in North Falmouth on the Cape.

Favorite season: Fall.

Favorite holiday: Halloween.

Favorite junk food: Double Stuff Oreos.

Best book: The three most recent and best (I am an English teacher so this is really hard) are: "Edgar Sawtelle," "Cutting for Stone," and "Kite Runner." Favorite "teacher book" is "To Kill a Mockingbird."

Best actor: Meryl Streep in every movie she has made, but "It's Complicated" was so much fun!

Best TV show: CBS Sunday Morning News on Channel 4 from 9-10:30 a.m.

Best music or group: Chris Botti.

Pet peeve: Adults who say, "My bad."

Most embarrassing moment: After hearing the statements, "Oh, Ms. Gilmore I can't believe you said that!" or "Oh, Ms. Gilmore I can't believe you did that!" from my students over the years, I have to think that I must have said or done too many embarrassing things to count!

Fun fact: Many years ago I made an offhand remark to one of my students about being a Solid Gold Dancer when I was younger. There has been a rumor at Norwell High School since then that in fact I had been a Solid Gold Dancer in the 70s before I became a teacher. Frequently even parents would ask me about that at Open House nights and parent-teacher conferences over the years.

Goal: To keep an open mind.

Person you would like to meet: Maybe, president John F. Kennedy.

Biggest worry: That my dog, Murphy, will never learn her manners!

Best part of Cohasset: Its beauty during every season of the year — especially the owls at five in the morning — right Char?

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Special Town Meeting June 14

It's official. There will be a Special Town Meeting held in June, primarily to deal with the water department's financial issues. The Board of Selectmen voted to hold the meeting on Monday, June 14 at 7p.m. It is the last Monday before school lets out.

If a citizen would like to submit a citizens petition it must be turned in with at least 100 signatures by Friday, May 7 at 1p.m. and that is when the warrant will close.

The warrant will go to press on Friday, May 21 and be in resident's mailboxes by May 28.

It is expected at least four articles will be placed on the town meeting warrant: a collective bargaining issue, a proposal for a zoning bylaw amendment, proposal for a water rate increase, and certification of the water department's budget for fiscal 2011.

Police Beat

Summonses following traffic stops

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

• A 43-year-old Scituate man is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and no inspection sticker following a traffic stop at 9:25 a.m. on Monday (April 26) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway.

An officer was monitoring traffic near Route 3A and Brewster Road when a black 2005 Ford pickup with a failed inspection sticker for safety reasons that was headed north passed by. The officer pulled the pickup over and further investigation revealed the operator's license had expired on his birthday. The vehicle was towed.

• A 30-year-old Rockland man is being summonsed to court for operating with suspended registration and an uninsured motor vehicle. A detective was monitoring traffic in the Stop & Shop parking lot and his attention was drawn to a 1998 Lincoln Continental with three men inside. He ran a registry check on the plate the revealed the registration had been suspended due to nonpayment of insurance. The detective called for a marked cruiser and while he was waiting the Lincoln left the lot and headed south on Route 3A. Police stopped the car by Beechwood Street. The two other men in the car were from Weymouth. The vehicle was towed and the men were shown to a payphone, police said.

MV accidents

• Police responded to a 9-1-1 call at 2:16 p.m. on Wednesday (April 28) on King Street about a two-car accident. A 2008 Nissan Altima, operated by a 30-year-old Pembroke woman, was headed north and making a left into Sunrise when the car was "rear-ended" by a 2003 Jeep Grand Cherokee, operated by a 17-year-old Cohasset girl. The Nissan was towed and the Cohasset girl was cited for following too closely on a state highway, police said.

• An 80-year-old Hingham woman reported to police at 6:50 p.m. on Wednesday (April 28) that her 2006 Nissan Sentra had been scratched while parked at the Dunkin Donuts off King Street. An officer viewed a tire mark on the driver's side bumper. There were no witnesses and the car was drivable.

• A 59-year-old Cohasset man reported to police at 3:40 p.m. on Saturday (May 1) that his 2007 Mercedes was parked at the Cohasset Golf Club when it was struck on the rear passenger side. There was damage to the molding and bumper; there was also fresh paint transfer from a white or gray car. Witnesses at the club reported seeing a white Mini Cooper parked next to the Mercedes. Police checked every Mini Cooper in Scituate and Cohasset and none had any damage.

Dogs

• Police received a call about a dog in distress at 2:26 a.m. on Monday (April 26) in the area somewhere between the condos and the end of Forest Avenue. Police investigated and said a couple of dogs were barking and none were in distress.

• In an unrelated incident police responded to a call from a woman in the parking area at Whitney Woods across from Stop & Shop who reported there was a dog that was still alive but had been hit by a car at about 9 a.m. o n Sunday (May 2). As it turned out the dog, which had become separated from its owner and had wandered out of the woods had not been hit by a car. Police said it was an older dog and not moving around very fast.

Police were able to trace the owner of the dog through its dog tags.

Shoplifting

The manager of Stop & Shop notified police at 2:30 p.m. on Monday (April 26) about a potential shoplifting incident. However, the suspects noticed the manager watching them, abandoned their full shopping carts and exited the store. They got into a 2000 Pontiac Grand Am with the driver. The trio was from Whitman and Rockland, police said. Police talked with them in the parking lot and they have been issued a no trespass order from Stop & Shop. Police also notified surrounding towns about the possible shoplifters.

Signs stolen

Three traffic signs were apparently stolen from private property off Pleasant Street last week. The total value of the signs is $10. The theft was reported at 12:36 p.m. on Wednesday (April 28).

Chop Saw

A local business reported the theft of a $250 Dewalt Chop Saw from an unlocked storage container off Pleasant Street last Thursday (April 29) at 8:21 a.m. The theft happened overnight.

Walk-through

Police walked through a business off King Street with its owner following a burglar alarm last Thursday night (April 29). It is not clear why the alarm went off but everything was in its place, police said.

Vandalism

A 36-year-old Cohasset woman told police that someone had broken the rear driver's side window of her 2004 Subaru Impreza station wagon while it was parked in her driveway off Hull Street. The incident was reported at 4:23 p.m. on Friday (April 30) and had occurred sometime overnight.

Bike found

A woman's Schwinn Voyaguer bicycle valued at as much as $500 was found hanging from the basketball hoop off Ripley Road at 9:52 a.m. on Saturday (May 1). The DPW was notified and brought the bike to the station. No one has reported it missing, police said.

Jewelry

A 48-year-old Cohasset woman went to the police station on Saturday (May 1) to report the apparent theft of three items of jewelry. The woman said she was missing a 19-inch yellow gold box chain valued at $1,000; a 14-karat gold ring with three diamonds valued at $750; and a 14-karact gold chain bracelet valued at $1600. The last time she noticed the items was in January. She told police she has a new housekeeper and police are looking to speak with that person.

Bridge jumpers

The first group of bridge jumpers of the new decade (2010) was removed from the Border Street bridge on Sunday (May 1) at about 5:30 p.m. Police will continue to monitor the bridge and ask parents to discourage their children from jumping off the bridge. "There are plenty of safe places in town for children to swim," Lt. William Quigley said.

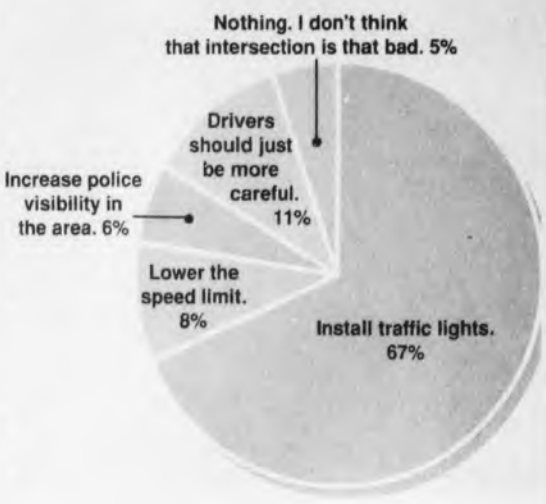
Handicap placard

An 83-year-old Scituate woman went to the police station at 3:22 p.m. on Monday (April 26) to report that her handicap placard had been stolen out of her 2001 Nissan Maxima in the Shaw's parking lot. She told police she had left the window open and believed someone had reached in and taken it. She needed a police report to get a replacement placard from the registry.

Wicked Local Poll

Light at lower King?

Here are the results from our on-line poll about what should be done at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A?



As you can see from the pie chart – 67 percent of the votes so far think a traffic light is needed. So far 82 web visitors have voted in our poll.

Here is the question posed to our Web visitors:

What should be done at the intersection of Lower King and Route 3A?

- Install traffic lights
- Lower the speed limit
- Increase police visibility in the area
- Drivers should be more careful
- Nothing. I don't think the intersection is that bad.

Total votes: 82 (as of Thursday morning).

Here are some online comments:

• How about slowing the speed limit down to 35 mph in that section of 3A and posting police officers there on a regular basis to enforce the limit.

• Putting up a light and lowering the speed limit coming to the light would make a drastic improvement.

• The addition of multiple soccer fields at the top of Crocker Lane is going to make a bad traffic situation worse. MASSDOT (the former Mass Highway Dept.) is going to have to allow for some type of traffic control in this area.

• That intersection needs a traffic light now. The only way to safely enter 3A is to be patient, turn off the radio, concentrate on the traffic and go when the path is clear. Many drivers do not have the experience to eliminate the distractions and judge the traffic — note that the driver who was injured (recently) was a younger driver who misjudged the speed of traffic. The turning lane was a good start but a light is needed before someone loses their life. Frankly, I think extra police patrols will only be a distraction adding to the intersection's problems unless the police officer is going to actually get out of his/her car and direct traffic.

While our polls are not scientific, we think the polls can be a good vehicle to provide a quick snapshot of public opinion.

We have the ability to conduct polls as often as we want. Be sure to visit: www.wicked-local.com/ cohasset to vote in our weekly polls. We hope to more of you will participate in our polls. Voting only takes a minute.

We welcome ideas for new polls. Please email your thoughts to editor Mary Ford at mford@cnc.com

Matt Cunningham, Vice President of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce delivers a "Welcome Basket" and gift bag to Deirdre and Luke Carlyle. The Carlyle family moved to Cohasset this past February.

Chamber distributes baskets to new residents

"It definitely made us like the town even more. It's such a small town thing to do," said Tara Morin in a phone interview. The family is settling into Cohasset after moving from Boston last week.

"I think it's a great thin to do for new residents," Morin said, adding Cunningham spent a little time telling her about some of the many advantages in Cohasset, like the summer Farmers' Market, the schools, and youth sports groups.

"It's great exposure for the village and for the businesses on 3A," Cunningham said. He hopes the baskets would prompt new residents to take the time to explore the businesses in town.

"It's the great thing about living in a small town that we can go out and meet these new faces one by one."

— Matthew Cunningham, Chamber of Commerce

"When you spend your money in Cohasset, it stays in Cohasset. We have everything they could ever want right here," Cunningham said.

He expects the welcome initiative to evolve and change over time, but thinks the baskets go hand in hand with Cohasset's small town feel.

"It's the great thing about living in a small town that we can go out and meet these new faces one by one," Cunningham said.

"If this is what the town is like, we're going to really like it here," Morin said.

The Chamber is also working on several other initiatives. They are working on a directory of all the Chamber businesses. They are gearing up to begin to plan the annual Summer Stroll in August and Cohasset Day in September. The Chamber also holds regular networking nights at different businesses around town.

Future of Community Preservation Act on table

by a vote of Town Meeting.

The question on the future of CPC is coming forward in part to it being named as one of Selectman Lee Jenkins priorities at a recent meeting of the Board of Selectmen.

"I want to discuss the future usefulness of CPC. Have we done every project we could do?" Jenkins said in a phone interview this week. "People are having financial hard times throughout town and maybe there is a need for a respite."

Jenkins said if the CPA was needed, or wanted, in another couple of years Town Meeting could consider it again.

Town Meeting approved the Community Preservation Act and the associated 1.5 percent real estate tax surcharge in 2001. For the majority of the town's involvement a dollar for dollar match has been received from the state. Beginning two years ago the town began receiving a less than 100 percent match. In 2008, the match was 65 percent and in 2009 it was 35 percent. This year's match is expected to hover around 30 percent.

"(The CPC) has merit and you can argue both ways. It's done some very good things in town," Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley said. "And a 32 percent match is still a great return on investment."

However, she said with more communities joining in each town's piece of the pie is getting smaller and with the state's budget struggles any match might not be sustainable. Also, some have raised concerns to her that in recent years the projects have been more maintenance in nature.

"We're in the investigatory state of it," Quigley said. "It has to be a community discussion and a community decision."

The discussion will also likely include whether to reduce the tax levy by 1.5 percent or to use that 1.5 percent for another specified purpose.

CPC chairman Stuart Ivimey said he "sees both sides of the issue."

With the reduced state match, "it's not as attractive as it once was…(but) a 32 percent return on investment is still fantastic (in the financial world)," Ivimey said.

For him, he believes in the importance of each project that ultimately got support from the CPC and town meeting.

"We need to all be honest with each other and understand in the absence of the town having CPC none of these projects would be funded," Ivimey said.

As far as future projects that might fall under the CPC's guidelines, Ivimey said he rarely knows of potential projects in advance of the town meeting season.

"Let's have a dialogue, go to the town, present both sides of the argument and see if (the townspeople) want to continue doing this," Ivimey said.

Other towns have considered repealing and/or reducing the CPC surcharge and all have failed, Ivimey said. Hingham had the discussion at three town meetings in recent years and Duxbury entertained the motion at their town meeting last year.

The date of the discussion on the future of CPC is yet to be determined. The Mariner will update readers when the date is finalized.

The following building permits were issued last month at Town Hall:

School choice

The School Committee opted not to participate in the state's "school choice" program last Wednesday night. School choice allows students who live in other districts to attend Cohasset schools. The school district can limit participation to the number of seats and grade level.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said one of the positives was it brought additional revenue into the district, at about $5000 per student.

"It fills the seats in low enrollment classes," Walsh said, adding it provided the opportunity for a student in a less successful district the opportunity to attend a better school district.

However, Walsh told the committee it cost the town much more than $5000 to educate a student in a given year. Once a student transfers to Cohasset Schools he/she is in that school district until graduation and could require special services.

The School Committee voted 4-0 against joining the school choice program. Member Linda Snowdale abstained from voting because said she didn't feel well informed enough to do so.

Open process

Superintendent's evaluation will be May 19

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"I will make sure the process goes as legally and smoothly as possible."
— Helene Lieb, School Committee

On Wednesday, May 19 the members of the School Committee will evaluate the Superintendent of Schools. For the first time the discussion and deliberation of that evaluation will be done in an open public session.

Due to a recent Supreme Court decision all School Committees, at least until July 1 when the Open Meeting Law is undergoing significant changes, have to hold the discussion of the superintendent's professional competence in open session.

The School Committee discussed how the evaluation process would take place at their meeting on Wednesday night.

The issue is significant because the Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh is the highest paid town official. In the current fiscal year, which began in July 2009, her annual salary is $163,416.

Previous to the meeting Supt. Walsh would provide the committee with her written self-evaluation document, as well as a blank evaluation document for each of the School Committee members to use in preparation for the meeting. Any notes taken and brought to the meeting become public record.

At the meeting, the committee will discuss the professional competence of Walsh. After all the committee members have had a chance to deliberate and discuss, the committee will go into executive session for the purpose of drafting a written evaluation. The written evaluation is not a public record.

"It's going to be a long meeting," said Helene Lieb, chair of School Committee.

School Committee member Alfred Slanetz said he would like to have school counsel there to ensure the committee does not make a legal misstep.

"This is not our normal course of business," Slanetz said, and in his experience with contracted employees in the private sector one has be very cautious. Member Paul Schubert agreed from a business perspective there is some legal liability during the evaluation process.

Lieb said she did not feel it was necessary to have legal counsel at the meeting during the discussion and wanted the school committee to be more frugal in how they use legal counsel because the cost adds up.

"It's my job (as chair) to ensure we do everything correctly," Lieb said.

From the audience former School Committee member Adrienne MacCarthy said she agreed with Slanetz on the legal counsel issue.

"(The committee) is on the edge of new territory, only one school committee has done this," MacCarthy said, adding the $225 hourly cost for counsel could save the district $50,000 to $100,000 "if you do this wrong."

Lieb said she would get in touch with counsel to find out if he would be available to counsel the School Committee before the meeting in a workshop environment. She would also get clear advice on what can be discussed in open session and what is allowed for executive session.

"I will make sure the process goes as legally and smoothly as possible," Lieb said.

The committee is dealing with a tight timetable because, according to the superintendent's contract, the evaluation must be given to the superintendent 30 days before the contract is renewed on July 1.

The contract also stipulates that the contract automatically rolls over for an additional year, unless the School Committee notifies the superintendent in writing before July 1 each year. Further, the contract stipulates the Superintendent Walsh is entitled to at least one year's notice if the committee decides not to renew her contract.

This year the committee is highly sensitive to the dates and deadlines. Last year, and in previous years, the evaluation process did not follow the timetable as outlined in the contract. In 2009, the committee voted to renew Walsh's contract in June, but did not complete her evaluation until August. The committee addressed this mistake at a meeting in March.

On Wednesday, May 19 the School Committee will first review the Middle-High School's School Improvement Plan, then discuss the superintendent's evaluation.

The evaluation: what has changed and why?

In the past Cohasset School Committee's annual evaluation of the Superintendent of Schools began with a self-evaluation by the superintendent. That self-evaluation was then distributed to all members of the committee to aid in the development of their own evaluation of the superintendent's job performance. The self-evaluation covered key areas such as instructional leadership, organizational leadership, administration and management, promotion of equity and appreciation of diversity, and community and professional responsibility.

The committee members as individuals wrote evaluations and submitted them to the School Committee chair. From those written evaluations, the chairman then wrote a "composite" evaluation from the key points and read and presented it in open session at a School Committee meeting. This was a common practice throughout towns.

The Supreme Judicial Court recently ruled that the exchange of written materials, like the evaluation documents, was a form of "deliberation" and violated the Open Meeting Law. The process was under scrutiny for the School Committee in Wayland, Mass.

The Court ruled in December the correct procedure would be for the School Committee to discuss the superintendent's professional competence in open session, and then it should have voted to adjourn to executive session for the purpose of drafting the written evaluation. An executive session would be allowed under the Open Meeting Law because the written evaluation is exempt under the public records law. The evaluation is not a public record unless the superintendent chooses to release it.

CHS Hall of Fame established

First class to be inducted in November

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Hall of Fame will recognize various members of the school community who made significant contributions to the athletic program.

Do you know a Cohasset High alum that made a valued contribution to the school in athletic program?

If so, get your pen ready. This year the first class of athletes will be inducted into the Cohasset High Athletic Hall of Fame.

The School Committee approved the formation of the Athletic Hall of Fame at its meeting last Wednesday, April 28.

The Hall of Fame will recognize various members of the school community who made significant contributions to the athletic program. Players, administrator/teachers, coaches, teams and special category for support outside of those categories will be honored.

Athletic Director Ron Ford began working on developing a foundation for the Hall of Fame last fall. He had named establishing a Hall of Fame program as one of his professional goals last year.

"This is my 10th years as athletic director and 19th year in Cohasset so I think I have the institutional history to bring this forward," Ford said.

Ford and his committee used about seven different schools examples to help in the development of their own Hall of Fame bylaws.

An application must be submitted to nominate someone for the Hall of Fame. An application will be available and should accompanied by support material for the candidate such as letters of reference, newspaper articles, video clips, statistics and awards.

A donation from the Clark Chatterton Fund is helping get the Hall of Fame off the ground, Ford said.

"This would cost nothing to the school," Ford said, adding generally Hall of Fame are a zero cost operations that rely on donations and support from alumni.

The mission statement of the Cohasset Athletic Hall of Fame is "to recognize and honor former student-athletes, coaches, teams, administrators/teachers and significant contributors for their outstanding accomplishments and contributions to the Cohasset High School Athletic Program."

The Hall of Fame Committee, who will choose the inductees, will have seven to nine members including the Middle-High School principal, director of athletics, coaching staff, alumni and at-large community representative.

This year's committee will include Ron Ford (CHS athletic director), Torin Sweeney (coach and CHS alum), Phil Mahoney (coach and CHS alum), Kevin Dooley (CHS alum), Matt Salerno (CHS alum) and Ellen Maher (CHS alum). Others will join the committee during the upcoming selection process.

A Hall of Fame class will be chosen and inducted every two years.

"It's a way to involve alums in the community," Ford said.

With the bylaws of the Hall of Fame approved, the committee will begin soliciting nomination and the first Hall of Fame class will be inducted on Nov. 26, 2010.

To find out more about nominating someone for the Hall of Fame contact Athletic Director Ron Ford at 781-383-6103 or send an e-mail to rford@cohassetk12.org.

Teen, his passenger face charges following crash

On Wednesday, May 5, at about 4:20pm, Cohasset Police Officers responded to a report of a single-car crash in the area of 358 North Main St. On arrival, officers found a 1998 Lincoln Continental off the road with heavy front-end damage.

Investigation on scene revealed that the driver of the car, Andrew C. Smith, 19, of Cohasset, was under the influence of liquor, and "texting while driving." As a result, he drove off the road and hit several fixed objects, causing severe damage to his car. Also located on scene were several full and empty beer cans, a quantity of marijuana, a digital scale, and cash, all of which were seized as evidence.

Smith will be charged with the following: OUI-Liquor, negligent operation of a motor vehicle, possession of class D substance with the intent to distribute, minor in possession of alcohol, and failing to drive in marked lanes.

A passenger in the Smith's motor vehicle, Paul O'Leary, 20, also of Cohasset, was also arrested and charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Lieutenant William Quigley of the Cohasset Police said, "It's troubling when people so young make such bad decisions. I'm glad that nobody was injured."

The Cohasset Police Department's Criminal Investigation Division will be conducting a follow-up investigation with regard to the marijuana charges.

Democratic Town Committee to host yard sale

Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will host its annual yard sale from 8 a.m. to noon, on Saturday, May 15, at 23 Hill St., Cohasset. Rain date will be May 16. The committee has found this to be the best way to raise money for a scholarship fund that it has given every year since 1978.

All proceeds go toward the Joseph F. Walsh III Memorial Scholarship. This scholarship goes each year to a Cohasset graduating student who has demonstrated an interest in government, public service or an otherwise civic-minded endeavor.

Donations of items in good condition are welcome and appreciated. Sale items of furniture, tools, household items, plants, game and toys, sports equipment, garden equipment, videos and books, and more are welcome, donations of clothes excluded. To make a donation or for more information, call Donna McGee at 781-383-9114 or Agnes McCann at 781-383-0222.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

ENJOY

Hello Cohasset. I hope this weeks column finds everyone well and enjoying this beautiful stretch of weather we have been having. It is so nice to see people walking and running, children riding bikes and playing in yards, the Common and my favorite, seeing Sandy Beach filled with cars, families and friends! Enjoy each day and evening and try to get outside for some "free-time" at least once a day. Life can get crazy and hectic but taking the time to enjoy what is here in our own back yards helps to bring a bit of calm to each day.

A story from the other day that some of you already know but I want to share with all helped me again remember that life sometimes gets too complicated and involved. If we just take the time to enjoy the small moments, the big moments and events are more manageable. I was enjoying a beautiful morning exploring Cohasset Harbor with the little boys I nanny for. William who is 5 years old gave me a huge hug and looked at me with his big, blue eyes and said, "Miss Jen, how did the world get so pretty?" Looking back at him and then out across the harbor, for that moment the world was perfect! Out of the mouths of babes and a reminder again that we should maybe take the time to listen and view what we have in life "through the eyes of a child!"

LEMONADE

Here is a story about a very generous young man from here in town. This past Saturday (not knowing that there was a walk for MS) Oliver Inman set up his lemonade stand and got ready to sell lemonade since it was going to be a hot summer-like day. The first walkers came by and told him about the walk for MS and that there would be a lot more people walking by. Oliver immediately ripped up his sign and told all the walkers coming by that he was giving lemonade away for free. He received $61.81 for his effort. He gave all of it to the team of Diana's Dreamers who gratefully accepted it and added it to their donations. Oliver, this was so special to write about and I know that your family and friends are so proud of you as you should be of yourself! What a generous and caring boy you are.

MOTHER'S DAY

I want to send a special message out there to all Mothers, Grandmothers, Aunts and anyone else who has had the pleasure of being a Mom. HAPPY MOTHERS DAY on Sunday. Children and husbands, family and friends, make sure to take the time to thank and love the Moms in your lives as well as remembering the Moms who are no longer with us. Enjoy the day.

VOICE STUDENT

South Shore Conservatory congratulates Meghan Burke of Cohasset who was the 2010 recipient of the Frances Kimball Westerbeke Memorial Scholarship. She was awarded the scholarship at the recent William P. Soderberg Voice Competition, where she received honorable mention for her performance.

Meghan, a student of Voice Department chairwoman Lorna Jane Norris, was the third voice student to have received the scholarship. Applicants submit an essay describing their musical experience, interests and aspirations and the winner is selected on the basis of merit and need. The scholarship is for a year of weekly voice lessons at the Conservatory.

Other competition winners include Emma Owens, Aoife Kingsbury, Julianna Fenton, Natalia Mirabito, Sasha Dhameja, Nicholas Cox, Alexander Carroll, Allyson Lynch, Theresa Quinn and Julie College. Overall competition winner was Abby Arenstam.

MASTER'S

Congratulations go out to Laura Marks, daughter of David and Kathy Marks of Cohasset. Laura just received her Masters of Elementary Education Degree from Bridgewater State College with a 4.0 GPA. Your family and friends all want to congratulate you Laura, Cohasset High graduate for all your accomplishments!

ACADEMIC HONORS

Congratulations to Jeff Brown, a junior at University of Denver, for making the recent Dean's List. Dean's List students maintain an overall GPA average of 3.75 or better. Jeff joins his sister Sarah, a sophomore at Yale University, who has also been recognized for maintaining a 3.5 or better GPA average over her first two years.

Nice Job Sarah and Jeff!

PLANT SALE

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will hold its annual Spring plant sale on the grounds of the Historical Society, 106 South Main Street, on Saturday May 22 from 9 am to 1 pm.

Many varieties of perennials that have proven their hardiness in garden club member gardens will be offered for sale. In addition, there will be ceramic and clay pots, some vases and a variety of other garden related items.

Experienced gardeners will be on hand to answer your questions. Come early for the best selection.

YARD SALE

Hey everyone, donations are needed and you may have some items that are ready to be resold for a worthy cause. The Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will hold its ninth annual yard sale on May 15, from 8 a.m. to noon. The proceeds from this annual yard sale go towards the Joseph F. Walsh III Memorial Scholarship Fund. This scholarship, which has been awarded every year since 1978, goes to honor a civic-minded, Cohasset graduating senior. The yard sale will be held at 23 Hill St. Cohasset. Call Agnes, 383-0222 or Donna McGee, 383-9114 or Gail Collins, 383-9789 to donate your items.

PRE-PROM DVDS

The Cohasset High School Senior Prom will take place on Friday May 28th. For the 5th straight year Shaun Galvin will be videotaping the Prom Pre Prom Red Carpet Gala on Cohasset Common. He will be taking requests for Pre Prom Red Carpet DVD's from Senior Parents, families, and friends. DVD's of the 2010 are $20 each and make great Graduation Gifts. Here are several ways that you can purchase your 2010 CHS Senior Prom Pre Prom DVD's: 1. By mail: Send your request with your name, address, telephone number, email address and the number of DVD's you wish to purchase with a check for $20 per DVD payable to Shaun Galvin and mail to Shaun Galvin P.O. In Person: Requests can be made in person by seeing me on Prom Day at the Pre Prom Red Carpet Gala on Cohasset Common.

CEF AUCTION

Four talented Cohasset High School artists have painted three fabulous pieces of furniture to be sold at the CEF auction on May 22nd. A table was donated by the McCann Family and painted by Sarah Naughton. An Adirondack chair was donated by the Smith Family and painted by Kayla Orner and Amber Silvia and a bench was donated by the Glavin Family and painted by Elizabeth Hagearty and Sarah Naughton. All of the girls are students of Mrs. Lisa Sugrue of the CHS Fine Arts Department. A large number of items are available for bid at the auction and these three pieces are just some of the examples of the work and items available. The Cohasset Education Foundation supports all of the Cohasset Schools and recently it has donated a language lab to the Cohasset High School.

HOCKEY

Cohasset residents Tom Digan, Chris DeMurias, John Grayken, Mike O'Connell and Bill Ketchum, all whom are members of the Hingham Hawks Senior League Hockey Team, won the South Shore Executive League Championship held at Pilgrim Rink on April 27th with a thrilling win of 3-1 over the South Shore Habs. Great job to all of you on this impressive win and honor.

GOLF BENEFIT

The Scituate Animal Shelter will hold its 7th Annual Golf Tournament on May 21 at Widow's Walk Golf Course in Scituate. The afternoon tournament will feature prizes, raffles, and Par 3 Poker. 18 holes of golf with cart and dinner at the historic Barker Tavern for only $125. The Shelter is also seeking corporate sponsorships and items for raffle donations. Tournament registration is on a first-come, first-served basis; reserve your place soon by sending in your registration with payment. OUR WORLD

The Our World Children's Museum is getting ready to kick off their Summertime Bonanza 2010 beginning the first week of June. These programs are designed for children ages 18 months-age 5 and in the month of August, there will be additional programs for children ages 5 and up which will include Mr. Dykas Days, French programs, Dance Force programs for children, teens and adults and of course, Creative Kids programs and parties. For more information or to register for any of these programs or, to book a party of any kind, send an email to jen@ourworldcgdm.org or call Miss Jen at 781-923-1473.

SUPPORT ASP

The Cohasset Appalachia Service Project Kinnealey Meats Fundraiser kicked off on Sunday, May 2nd. CASP volunteers are offering Kinnealey Meat products available for purchase for two weeks only. All pricing and product details are outlined on order forms available from any CASP volunteer or at the offices of Second Congregational, First Parish, St. Anthony's or St. Stephen's Churches. Items come frozen and vacuum packaged. They keep nicely in the freezer for up to 6 months. If you are a Kinnealey Meats fan, please use this opportunity to purchase your favorite, high-quality meat products just in time for the spring and summer grilling season, and support an ASP volunteer at the same time. If you don't happen to know an ASP volunteer, but would like to support this very worthy cause, please contact the Second Congregational Church office at 383-0345 to place an order. The fundraiser runs through Sunday, May 16th. Please make checks payable to Cohasset ASP.

That is all the news for this week Cohasset. Please send in everything to me no later than Tuesdays by 5:00 pm.

Fifty Year Old Has Wake Up Call About Her Health

Before

Turning 50 was a wake up call for me. I knew I had to do something about my weight before it was too late. Joining GISFW turned out to be the best thing I could have done. Not only did I lose weight and inches, but I gained increased energy and mental alertness. I'm sleeping better and feeling stronger. The program and the support fits my needs very well. I really enjoy my sessions and look forward to them. Having an appointment to work out three times a week and having to weigh in keep me focused. I would recommend GISFW to any woman who want to make a change for the better.

SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Elder law is May 12 topic

Control elder law attorney over your Future-Schedule a Legal Check – May 12, 11 a.m. to noon at the Senior Center. Presenter: Judy Flynn. Attendees can learn about the following: how to protect hard-earned assets; the consequences of gifting in one's senior years: tax regulations vs. MassHealth regulations.

Mother's Day Tea – May 14, noon to 1 p.m. From 1 to 2 p.m. Love Letters presented by actor Richard Clark. 781-383-9112.

SAVE THE DATE

Sign up for senior or TAP CharlieCard – Monday, June 14, 1 to 4 p.m., at Cohasset Elder Affairs. New senior CharlieCard ID's will be processed for customers exchanging their old senior IDs, issued before May 2005, and to first-time senior customers, 65 and older with proof of age. The new senior CharlieCard will arrive by mail. Also, applications for the MBTA Transportation Access Pass (TAP) CharlieCard, issued to people with a qualifying disability, will be available.

Men Wanted – The Chanticleers, a retired men's breakfast club is soliciting new members. Now in its 22nd year, the Chanticleers consist of more than 40 members from 10 South Shore communities. They meet at the Red Parrot in Hull, from 8:15 to 10 a.m., every Wednesday, rain or shine. There are no dues. A breakfast brunch, at just $13, will offer more than one can eat including juice, fresh fruit, sausage, eggs Benedict, Belgian waffles and more. Interesting speakers and spirited banter always make meetings memorable. If transportation is needed accommodations will be made if possible. For more information, call Lloyd Prescott at 781-544-3626.

Legal Services – Greater Boston Legal Services has a program that provides free legal advice and representation, education and information services to elderly residents in the South Shore area, with particular focus on elders having the greatest social and economical need. A program lawyer will visit residents in nursing homes, homebound elders and residents of assisted living facilities. For more information, call 617-603-1776, the Elder intake line.

Derek has been waiting much too long for his "forever home."

Derek likes cats, kids and grownups

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Derek, a jet-black four-year-old male cat. He was abandoned and was found roaming the streets. A concerned citizen brought him to the shelter. We took him to the vet, had his abscessed teeth attended to and he is happy to at last be free from pain. He has adjusted quite well and has become a favorite at the shelter. He gets along well with other cats, likes humans, is good with children and would make an excellent companion. He's been waiting much too long for his "forever home." People tend to choose the younger, cuter, lap cats. Hopefully, someone out there is looking for a somewhat ordinary, friendly, housemate and a loving pet to keep them company.

He was abandoned and was found roaming the streets.

The shelter hours are from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays, and 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays. If these hours aren't convenient, call Shirl at 781-925-3380 for an appointment.

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is at 50 L Street, Hull, and the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045. Telephone numbers are 877-378-1195 and 781-925-3121. Email address is hsar@hsar.org. To volunteer, inquire about low-cost spay neuter, or support the shelter by becoming a member, call Mary at 781-925-3121.

Kids Fishing Derby

A Kids Fishing Derby will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, May 15, at Scituate Rod and Gun Club, off Route 3A, near the Cohasset/Scituate town line. The derby is for kids younger than 12, who must be accompanied by an adult. The event is free.

Rods and reels will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis. If possible bring rods and reels from home. Hooks and bobbers will be provided. The pond has been stocked with trout, and prizes will be awarded for the largest fish and tagged fish. Also included will be lunch consisting of hot dogs and sodas.

Rain barrels for sale at NSRWA office

North and South Rivers Watershed Association will sell New England rain barrels again this year to area residents at the discounted price of $82.95, almost 30 percent off the retail price of $119.95.

Considering that the average homeowner uses approximately 40 percent of their total water consumption for outdoor purposes such as watering their lawns, rain barrels are an effective way for capturing and re-using roof runoff. A 1-inch rainfall on a 1,200 square foot roof will yield more than 700 gallons of water.

The rain barrels are made from 55-gallon blue plastic recycled containers, which can be painted any color the homeowner wants. The top does not come off, so they are safe for children and pets. The brass spigots can be attached to any garden hose, but soaker hoses can provide maximum efficiency.

Orders may be placed through May 18, and the rain barrel may be picked up at the NSRWA office, 214 South St., Norwell, from 4 to 7 p.m., on Thursday, May 20. Those who can't make the pick-up time can have the rain barrel stored for pickup at a later date. To order a rain barrel, call New England Rain Barrel Co. at 877-977-3135 or order online at www.nerainbarrel.com. For more information, call NSRWA at 781-659-8168.

Let's meet Susan and Courtney

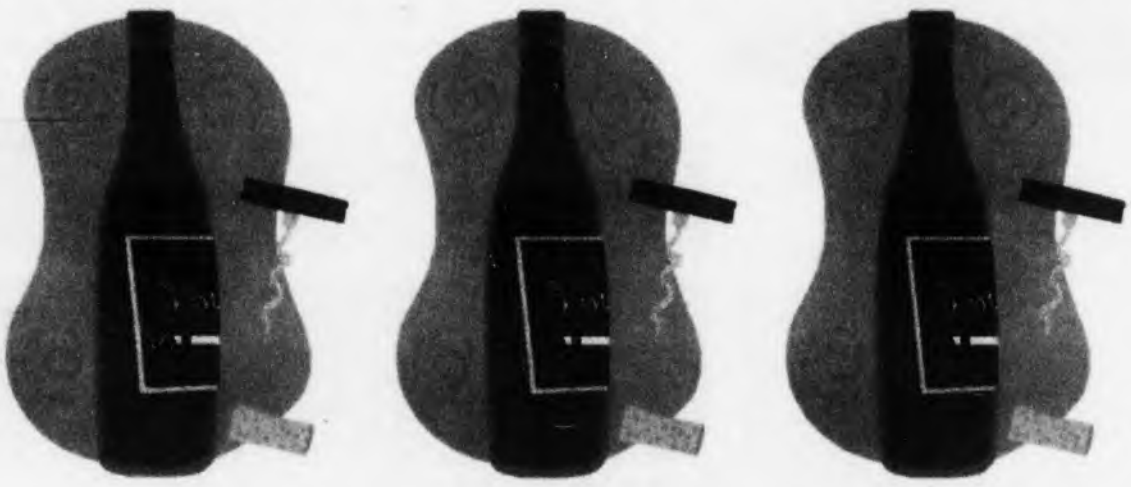
Susan Gilmore will oversee the Junior Program's 20 staff instructors.

For years vice commodore Anne Rowland has ably served as the Junior Program Director for the Cohasset Sailing Club (CSC), but we have a changing of the guard for the 2010 sailing season. Susan Gilmore, a Cohasset resident, will oversee the Junior Program's 20 staff instructors and will serve as the parents' main liaison and contact person. Last year the program had 225 Cohasset children enrolled in sailing lessons, so that is potentially twice the amount of parents to deal with — a daunting proposition, indeed.

But Susan is well equipped to handle the task. A Milton native, she spent her childhood summers sailing Beetle Cats on Buzzards Bay, where Susan had "many adventures" and developed her lifelong love of the ocean. She taught high school English for three years in Scituate and 29 years in Norwell before retiring in last June, so Susan has vast experience in working with young people, administering instructional programs, and also dealing with parents. Plus assorted aquatic mishaps, as for three summers in the mid-2000s she served as Cohasset's assistant harbormaster. Susan cites John Masefield's "Sea Fever," which she memorized as a young student, as capturing her lifelong love of the ocean. You've probably heard the poem even if you don't recognize the title and author — the middle stanza should ring a bell:



I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide,
Is a wild call and a clear call that must not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown spume, and the seagulls crying.

Courtney Curran is taking the helm as the 2010 racing coach. She has been a sailor since she was 11 years old, and has been coaching since she was 16 — five summers at the Scituate Yacht Club, three years as the assistant coach for Notre Dame Academy in Hingham, and one summer in Edgartown. Courtney gave adult and private sailing lessons in Hull last summer. Her day job is teaching sixth-grade English in Weymouth, where she grew up. Courtney graduated from Notre Dame Academy, where she was a member of the sailing team, earned an undergraduate degree in English from Bridgewater State, and an M.A. in education from Fitchburg State. She enjoys the similarities and differences between teaching and coaching —in the first role she is Ms. Curran, but as a coach she is on a respectful first-name mentoring basis with her team. Courtney has an especial affinity for New England writers, and likes Henry David Thoreau's idea that "Men [and women] go back to the mountains, as they go back to sailing ships at sea, because in the mountains and on the sea they must face up."

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Progress and planning

Strategic plan for next five years kicks off

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

How far have the schools come in the last five years?

Five years ago the School Committee set forth a strategic plan: a set of goals and objectives to guide the schools in all aspects of operation. Now, the School Committee is gearing up to plan again and set a roadmap for the next five years.

On Wednesday night the committee began the first step in the process when they heard from Curriculum coordinator Nancy Mrzyglod on the strides made in quantifiable goals outlined in the strategic plan. Mrzyglod has been keeping track of the progress the school system has made in a variety of different measures across all levels from MCAS to college acceptance.

"This is the evening for us to show you a progress report," said Superintendent Denise Walsh.

In nearly all the measures, some of which Mrzyglod said "shot really high," Cohasset students were meeting or on the cusp of achieving.

The Cohasset Public Schools continues to make the Annual Yearly Progress (AYP) goals set forth in the No Child Left Behind Act and evidenced with the state standards assessment test, MCAS. In both English and math the schools were above the goal set in the strategic plan.

MCAS scores were on a positive trajectory, but did not meet the established goals the strategic plan. Mrzyglod said the faculty has invested a lot of professional development and focus on improving the math curriculum and scores over the past few years, and now needed a renewed focus on the language arts.

"Everybody involved teachers, staff and administration needs to be thanked and commended for what's been accomplished."

— Alfred Slanetz, vice chair of the School Committee

Mrzyglod also noted that as the schools get closer and closer to 100 percent of students scoring proficient or advanced, the harder it is to show progress, "every year it get more difficult."

Results from elementary level testing, such as DIBELS and Stanford, were reviewed as well. High school tests, like PSAT, SAT and SAT II subject tests, were covered.

Involvement in AP (advanced placement) courses has seen a significant jump over the past five years. In 2006, 68 students enrolled in at least one AP course, which is a college level course taken in high school. In 2009, 125 students were enrolled in an AP class. AP course offerings jumped from seven in 2006 to 12 in 2009, Mrzyglod said. In 2009, 81 percent of the students enrolled in AP courses scored a 3 or higher (AP tests are scored 1 through 5, 5 being a perfect score).

"These results show we're capable of being there, or we are there in many cases. It really shows how far we've come," Alfred Slanetz, vice chair of the School Committee, said. "Everybody involved teachers, staff and administration needs to be thanked and commended for what's been accomplished."

Once the committee understood the progress made over the past five years, they discussed how to move forward with the development of a new five-year strategic plan.

When the strategic plan was constructed five years ago a representative committee was brought together to set the agenda. A professional facilitator helped lead the discussion and process over three longer blocks of time, Walsh said. However, she said it was up to the current school committee to determine how they would like to tackle the next strategic plan.

A strategic planning sub-committee was established, on which members Alfred Slanetz and Jeanne Astino will serve, to begin to hammer out the details of the process. They will talk with several facilitators and think about how many and who should be involved. The sub-committee will meet over the summer and it is expected the strategic planning process will begin in earnest in the early fall.

"These goals inform every decision we make and frame our philosophy for the next five years," Slanetz said.

A copy of the evidence of goals accomplished from the strategic plan is posted on the Cohasset Public School website, www.cohassetk12.org.

Keeping School Committee business in the public eye

Email prompts Open Meeting Law discussion

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

At least one member of the School Committee suggested there might have been a violation of the Open Meeting Law in an e-mail correspondence last week.

School Committee member Paul Schubert said he believed an e-mail exchange between members Alfred Slanetz and Jeanne Astino, both e-mails were copied to the entire board and Superintendent Denise Walsh, "might be a violation of the Open Meeting Law."

During the communications portion of the April 28 meeting of the School Committee the e-mail was discussed in brief. School Committee chair Helene Lieb said she would look into the possible violation and report the violation, if deemed necessary.

The Open Meeting Law is designed to ensure public business remains public. According to the law, with very few exceptions, the discussions, deliberations and decisions of elected and appointed municipal government officials must take place in posted, public meetings.

In a phone interview this week Lieb said she did not report a possible violation and understood that Astino had contacted the District Attorney's office to discuss the email.

Astino said her discussion with the District Attorney ended in her understanding she did nothing wrong in her reply to Slanetz's e-mail.

During the communications portion of the April 28 meeting of the School Committee the e-mail was discussed in brief.

"I don't think I acted inappropriately," Astino said, adding the contents of her e-mail were an administrative point and a statement that she would not participated in any conversation outside the Open Meeting Law.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz sent out an e-mail to his fellow board members as well as Superintendent Denise Walsh with attachments largely concerning the past strategic planning process and district goals.

In his e-mail sent last Tuesday, Slanetz stated that "2010 will be a year of Strategic Planning" and "as the only member of the committee who was involved in the last strategic planning exercise, I have attached the district goals which your predecessors and I voted in for the last five years."

The e-mail included four attachments, which were all discussed, voted on several years ago and are a matter of public record.

He notes in the first paragraph, "it is important for everyone to remember that, due to Open Meeting Law, this e-mail can only be an FYI and not to reply."

In response, Astino told the members of the committee of a separate e-mail address that she had set up for School Committee business. She asked the committee to use that "official" address for school business.

In a second paragraph, Astino goes on record to say she is not in favor of exchanges outside the Open Meeting Law parameters.

"While I realize you were attempting to keep all well informed as to what has happened in the past, I do need to respond to your first paragraph. I would like to go on the record with all by stating that 'don't ask, don't tell' does not work for me. All School Committee business must be conducted/discussed within the confines of the Open Meeting Law," Astino wrote.

In a phone interview, Astino said it was her intention as a School Committee member to keep all business above board.

"I am not about having secret meeting and I'm not going to do that. I'm not playing games when it come to this (school committee business)," Astino said.

In October, the School Committee self-reported what ended up being a violation of the Open Meeting Law. The violation stemmed from e-mail and phone exchanges between several members of the board over a commentary Slanetz had drafted for the Mariner (and ultimately ran signed by four out of five members of the committee). The Norfolk County District Attorney ruled the deliberation and ultimate expression of the views and position of a quorum of the Committee violated the Open Meeting Law statute.

BRIEFLY

Poppy Drive

Cohasset Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9146 will conduct the annual Poppy Drive from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., May 27 through 29, at various locations. Volunteers are what makes the Poppy Drive an annual success and the post is in the process of seeking members to man the various locations.

Those who can assist are asked to call Joe Laugelle at 781-383-0079 to sign up.

Brush to be accepted at DPW

Residential brush will be accepted at the DPW parking area from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., on Saturday, May 8.

No trees more than 5 inches in diameter; no stumps, firewood, briars or weeds will be accepted. Contractors not allowed.

Service dog eye exams offered

During the month of May the ACVO/Merial National Service Dog Eye Exams Event will take place. Dr. William Greentree, DVM, Diplomate, American College of Veterinary Ophthalmologists will be providing free eye exams to service dogs on Saturday, May 22, at 10:30 a.m. at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road.

To qualify, dogs must be active "working dogs" that were certified by a formal training program or organization or currently enrolled in a program. Owners/agents for the dog must first register the animal via an online registration form by May 16, www.ACVOeyeexam.org. For more information about the program go to www.ACVO.org. After they register online, they can then e-mail smoody@ocln.org to schedule an appointment. The dogs need to arrive 15 minutes prior to their appointment in order to administer eye drops. The exam only takes 5 to 10 minutes.

Author, columnist James Carroll's to speak May 11

Scituate and Weymouth Affiliates of Voice of the Faithful will present best selling author and Boston Globe columnist, James Carroll at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, May 11. Carroll will present and sign his latest book, "Practicing Catholic," at St. Albert the Great Parish Hall, 1130 Washington St., Weymouth.

Carroll is the author of 10 novels and six works of non-fiction, including the National Book Award winning "An American Requiem," the New York Times bestselling "Constantine's Sword," now a documentary, and "House of War," which won the first PEN-Galbraith Award. Carroll's column appears weekly in The Boston Globe. His writing and his work toward Jewish-Christian-Muslim reconciliation make him a leading voice on the problem of religion and violence – the subject of his current work-in-progress. Carroll is Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence at Suffolk University in Boston. In "Practicing Catholic," Carroll, a former priest, finds meaning in his personal story and delivers a loving critique of the Church while offering an incisive vision for renewal.

The event is free, but donations would be appreciated. "Practicing Catholic" will be available for sale at the event and refreshments will be served. All are welcome.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Two great ideas

Two great ideas are being reported this week: welcome baskets for newcomers to town, courtesy of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, and a Hall of Fame at Cohasset High for noted athlete alums and those who have made a significant contribution to the athletic program.

Many may remember the days of the Welcome Wagon Lady, a national program, who would pay a visit to new people in towns with a basket of "goodies," samples and coupons. In those days most Moms were at home so scheduling was never a problem. In many places, Welcome Wagon Clubs – like Newcomers Clubs — were offshoots of the program.

We are not sure what happened to Welcome Wagon, if it still exists or has morphed into something else. Nevertheless, it was a great idea.

We congratulate the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce for coming up with a similar plan of offering welcome baskets to newcomers with items that introduce new residents to local businesses.

As Chamber Vice President Matthew Cunningham says: "When you spend your money in Cohasset, it stays in Cohasset. We have everything they could ever want right here."

We continue to be impressed, encouraged and energized by the creativity of our local business community. Cohasset is a small town and if we want it to be a vibrant one, we all need to support our local businesses and shops.

Another super idea is establishing an Athletic Hall of Fame at Cohasset High School. Other schools have done so successfully and with great fanfare. We know Hingham has an event honoring new inductees which is always well attended and a great way to recognize alums for their athletic achievements.

Some bemoan the fact that sports and athletes tend to get the most attention and recognition. We agree, but other Halls of Fame can also be established for music, arts, citizenship, etc., or for alums, who go on to do great things.

But there is no getting around sports as part of our culture and world culture, for that matter. It does not matter if you are from the U.S., U.K., Russia, China or Brazil – sports can bring us together. Athletes – no matter how gifted – work hard and put themselves on the line. Some go on to well paid careers in the pros, but most do not. They just go on with their lives.

High School athletes can often look back with pride – as does their entire class – on great teams and/or individual athletic accomplishments. Sports add a lot to school and community spirit.

Honoring them with a Hall of Fame gives us all a chance

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'No delusion'

TO THE EDITOR:

In the commentary article last week, the author stated that "the Little Harbor expansion was not compelled by the state or its original lawsuit, I have no problem that it was joined, but let's not delude ourselves that there was a gun to anyone's head over Little Harbor itself."

I have a newspaper article titled "400 Atlantic Avenue, Little Harbor Homes spewing waste into ocean." It concerns a conference between state and local officials, the DEP and the Attorney General's office. "The Environmental officials want the town to provide the houses with sewer hookups." "State environmental agents say they are tired of waiting for the town to act, and have said in a letter to Selectmen Chairman Michael Sullivan that they are willing to consider disciplinary action against the town."

I would say that was having a gun over our head – it was no delusion.

Barbara Dillon

Questions discussion

TO THE EDITOR:

Prior to the selectmen's meeting on April 26 there was an initial public discussion period in which a request was made for the selectmen to revote the issue of the town sharing the cost of the Little Harbor sewer construction. After a few people spoke the chairwoman ended the discussion and began the selectmen's meeting. The attendees supporting the request, including myself, left the meeting.

Watching the meeting on TV when I returned home, I was surprised to hear a lengthy discussion of the request for revote. Only items on the agenda may be discussed during a selectmen's meeting. This item was not on the agenda. Did the chairwoman's actions reflect her lack of experience or was it an expression of her personal bias?

Refining the turbine bylaw

TO THE EDITOR:

To the Alternative Energy Committee:

Thank you for opening discussion on the Cohasset Wind Turbine Bylaw (CWTB) and I was glad that I was able to attend the public review session held on April 27.

I have lived in our beautiful New England town going on 13 years now and have followed the evolution of wind turbines in our town only through reading the Mariner. It appears to me that our townspeople have vastly increased both their self-awareness and education of wind turbines and now have the opportunity to use this knowledge to enhance the CWTB to meet the needs and desires for our town.

Capitalizing on this knowledge and from our recent "Lessons Learned," it is my understanding that the AEC desires to foster open discussion and input with our town by reviewing our existing CWTB and to possibly lead the town on a path of further refinement of the bylaws.

In this session, Andrew Willard led us on a discussion of heights and setbacks and included comparison charts/tables of other existing town wind turbine bylaws along with state guidelines. I was very impressed with the format, discussion and comment session conducted and thought the meeting was run professionally and fairly.

I was also impressed with the turnout and by each person's individual perspective and insight on the subject matter.

Based upon my review of comparing our existing CWTB to others including the state guidelines, as well as the listening to the feedback from those in attendance, it appears that our CWTB could use further refinement in multiple areas.

Thank you again for leading such open discussions and I encourage everyone in town to take part in the process.

Think about choices you're making

COMMENTARY

ROBERT SIMONS

Passions in town are running high after selectmen declined to allow a town vote to reconsider cost sharing of the Little Harbor sewer project. The reasons for not allowing another vote are understandable. The economy is weak and the cost of living in Cohasset keeps going up. But think carefully. Your personal view on this decision (and potential vote) will determine the kind of town you live in.

At Harvard Business School, where I teach, our students learn that organizations can be built on one of two foundations: self-interest or a commitment to help each other. Each approach has pluses and minuses, but if you want to build an organization (or community) that emphasizes shared goals and long-term relationships, creating a commitment to help others is the way to go.

One of the essential ingredients for building such commitment is fairness. If people believe that rewards are not being distributed fairly, or that some are benefiting at the expense of others, resentment will kill any willingness to help others when asked.

What kind of town do you want to live in? You can argue, with justification, that self-interest should carry the day. If you live in a home that was part of the earlier Central or North Cohasset sewer upgrades, you already enjoy a 50/50 cost share. So why support an increase in taxes to help those in the Little Harbor district? Similarly, if you now have a septic system that is not being upgraded, why should you pay to help others in town who are being forced to upgrade?

But if you elect to go down this path, think carefully about the choice you're making. The next time an override vote is needed to fund Cohasset schools, you should expect that people without school-age children will vote against it. The next time that any improvement to town services is put on the ballot, or a decision must be made about projects to protect the harbor or alleviate local flooding, you should expect that voters will use only one calculation to decide how to cast their ballots: What's in it for me?

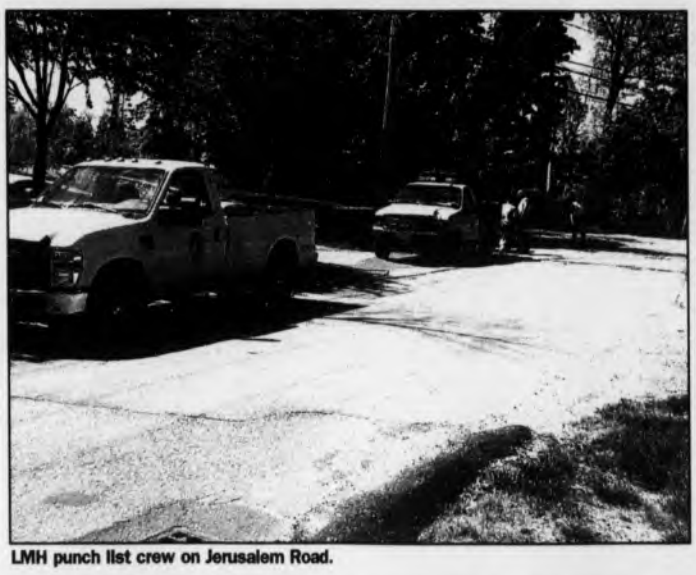
'Cold planing' project being re-bid

MAKING TRACKS

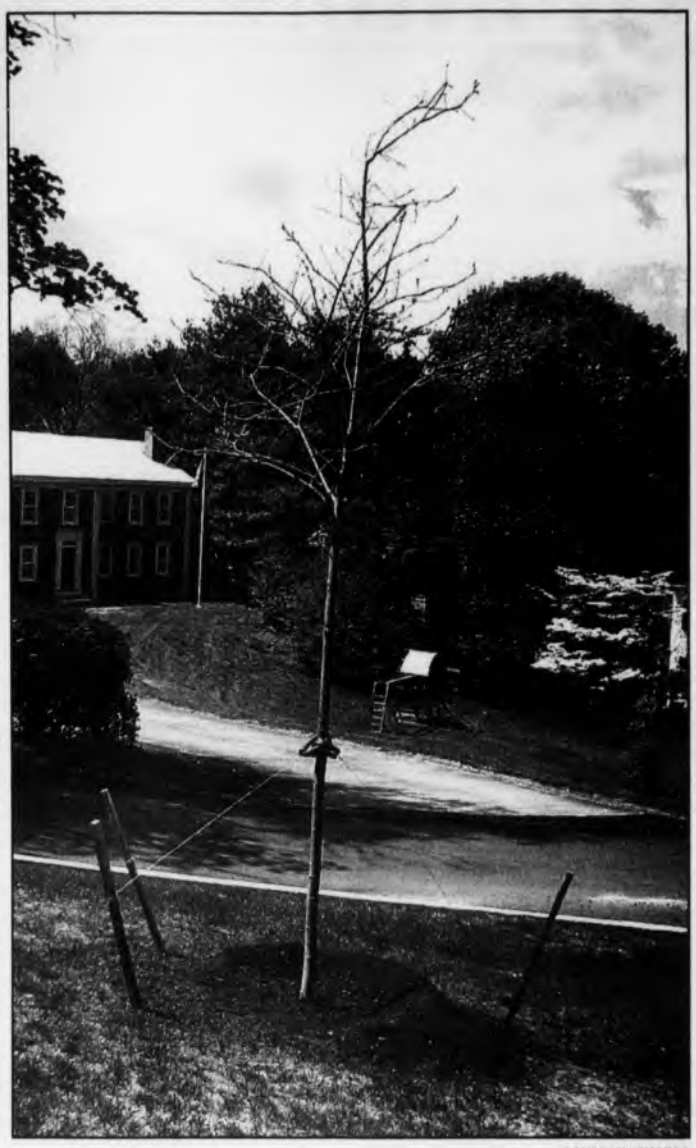


TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

The Little Harbor Paving Saga Continues – We do our best to keep you, our residents and readers, up to date regarding the status of the paving to put the roads involved of the Little Harbor Project back into serviceable order. We mentioned that the paving preparation functions of cold planing and reclaiming were being rebid by the South Shore Consortium. We also need to know who the winning bidder is so we can get them scheduled to do our work. Well, the road to paving has just taken another twist and turn.

The upshot is that this rebid will cause another two to three weeks delay before we know the successful bidder.

The lowest and second lowest bidders for cold planing were only $0.002 apart in their pricing. You'd probably look at that and say, "So what?" Low is low and that should determine the contractor we should use. But, it turns out there is a big hitch. Along with the cold planing, the contractors also had to bid the price for adjusting structures. (Structures are all of the various infrastructure pieces that have been placed in the roadway over the years. Examples are various manholes, water, gas and sewer shut off valves, and so on. When a road is cold planed our experience tells us that about 30 percent of the structures in the road will need some form of adjustment to raise, lower or replace them.)



It turns out that between the first and second low bidder for cold planing, the cost difference for structure adjustment was quite significant. In fact, it was so significant that one structure adjustment would wipe out the low bidder cold planing savings for a typical road like Beach Street. Consequently, to be fair, the South Shore Consortium decided to rebid the cold planing and will analyze the bids base on a total cost basis.

The upshot is that this rebid will cause another two to three weeks delay before we know the successful bidder. Only then will we be able to schedule our work. Such is life in the fast lane!

Last week we wrote about the tree that was about to be planted in John Paul Lyon Square at the intersection of North Main Street and Joy Place. The accompanying photo shows the red oak tree after it was planted last week. This is a fitting memorial to Captain Lyon who gave his life for our freedom.

Little Harbor Project Punch List – This week LM Holdings has returned to Town to work on their "punch list" items. If you have ever had your own construction project, you are no doubt familiar with the concept of a punch list. It is a list of all the small things the contractor puts off to the end of the project, but is needed to complete the project. You may notice that there are strange marks on roads such as Beach St. These strange marks are now turning into work sites as LM Holdings excavates and patches places where their patches over their construction have not held up. The goal is to fix low spots in the road so that when we do actually pave the roads they will be more robust.

The Mustard Maneuver

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

MARY KENNEDY

As a tour director on land programs in Europe and South America, I gave the following account to all my passengers.

Tourist alert: While browsing for bargains beware the bandits!

The following is a firsthand account of how my husband Don and I were bested by brigands in Buenos Aires several years ago. The Argentina capital is only one tourist destination where this clever scam/scheme is perpetrated regularly on unsuspecting/trusting tourists. Major cities in Western Europe and South American are especially popular areas for variations on the mustard maneuver.

It's a sunny afternoon and we're strolling down the busy Avenida 9 de Julio, and I'm practicing Spanish with pleasant portenos along the way. Alongside strides a slim young lady in jeans with cloth bag on shoulder. She smiles and asks in Spanish if I'm looking for some place special. (Diversion.)

We chat about cafes and shoe sales while Don, always alert, follows behind us. He notices some brown streaks on the back of my cotton jacket. Bird poop? Oh, no! (Distraction.)

Nice lady in jeans, instantly sympathetic, reaches into her bag for tissue to wipe off the mess. Don, ever suspicious, sniffs closer and announces, "Smells like mustard!" Mustard? Nice lady apologizes for the local locos, crazy kids playing tricks on tourists, and steers me toward a nearby movie theater to ask if we can use the lavatory. Alas, closed. We need some water, she decides, and deftly encourages us across the street to a water fountain. Alas, dry. Now she thrusts her bag at me to hold while she's wiping away with a tiny tissue. Meanwhile, a pleasant-faced young man ambling by pauses to ask curiously "What's the matter?" Nice lady explains about unfortunate tourists and crazy kids and the nice man notices mustard also on the back of Don's slacks. Visualize the scene now: Four of us are discussing mustard and the lack of water and I'm holding my bag and her bag and she's wiping my back and we're just next to the corner of a brick building and it's been only about 90 seconds since we first "met." "Take off your jacket," she urges. "Here, put our bags against the wall." I think quickly: "It's just for an instant – they're both so helpful." (Deception.)

And the rest, as they say, is history. In a flash both bags are gone, a third thief is racing up the street with two bags, and these two nice people melt quickly away. Even if they're both caught, they were only trying to "help." And besides, her bag has been "stolen" too.

The next few hours spent floundering in the local police station were an exercise in farce and futility. The official response to thievery perpetrated upon tourists? Shrugs. Indifference. A sympathetic cab driver advised us to forget making a report. The police "lose" reports. The revolving door is dizzying in the speed with which it spits out pickpocketers, bag-snatchers and Mustard Maneuverers. After all, in a few days, tourists go home.

As for angry me and philosophical him – finally – a sense of relief. Along with listing our losses (travel journal, prescription sunglasses, $60 in pesos), we count our blessings (passports, visas, valuables are in the hotel safe).

As for satisfaction: I still get an occasional call from a former passenger who announces with great glee how he/she/thwarted the would-be Mustard Maneuverer by yelling "Police!" as soon as the "friendly" local pointed out the "spot" on his/her back.

HEALTH NOTES

Deus ex machina - Part 2

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Sometimes, it's necessary for all levels of our society to understand some terms, which may be used in an emergency.

Last week we talked about how gadgets were limiting exercise and contributing to obesity. This week we'll take up other changes that the combination of new gadgets, such as cell phones and personal software like Facebook, have made unexpected interruptions of community life, like widespread loss of drinking water.

Society has become layered, with little penetration from one layer to another because each age level, habitually, uses a different vocabulary. Teens, etc., have their own vernacular. The difference now is that there is less parental imposition of rules of conduct; possibly because we don't know what rules to impose. Facial expressions and body language are now transmitted along with voice, instantly over great distances by cell phones, which provide images moving as we speak. Seemingly, the ability to see someone with whom one is speaking may not be such a big deal but generations since the beginnings of telephony have had the luxury of not appearing before the recipient of the communication. Sometimes, it's necessary for all levels of our society to understand some terms, which may be used in an emergency.

And we know how quickly an enormous mess can now be created. We only have to look to eastern Massachusetts. Sorting out the reasons for so many communities to boil water involves a lexicon of new terms for the impurities nominally found in water. Boiling is the basic option to kill all living things in our water supply. Obviously such a process will consume more energy than is normally available for such a chore. Water treatment plants therefore use chemicals known as disinfectants to kill most bacteria. Below are some things it might be useful to know if you're drinking someone else's water:

Disinfection byproducts are formed when water from treatment plants react with disinfectants or natural organic matter (i.e., decaying vegetation) often present in some source water. Different disinfectants produce different types or amounts of disinfection byproducts. Below are a few of the words you might see when someone is describing the need for everyone in several dozen towns to boil all their drinking water. The products for which regulations have been established have been identified in drinking water, include trihalomethanes, haloacetic acids, bromate and chlorite.

Trihalomethanes (THM) are a group of four chemicals that are formed along with other disinfection byproducts when chlorine or other disinfectants used to control microbial contaminants in drinking water react with naturally occurring organic and inorganic matter in water. The trihalomethanes are chloroform, bromodichloromethane, dibromochloromethane and bromoform. EPA has published the Stage 1 Disinfectants/Disinfection Byproducts Rule to regulate total trihalomethanes (TTHM) at a maximum allowable annual average level of 80 parts per billion. This new standard became effective in 2003 for small surface water and all ground water systems.

Haloacetic Acids (HAA5) are a group of chemicals that are formed along with other disinfection byproducts when chlorine or other disinfectants used to control microbial contaminants in drinking water react with naturally occurring organic and inorganic matter in water. The regulated haloacetic acids, known as HAA5, are monochloroacetic acid, dichloroacetic acid, trichloroacetic acid, monobromoacetic acid and dibromoacetic acid. EPA has published the Stage 1 Disinfectants/Disinfection Byproducts Rule to regulate HAA5 at 60 parts per billion annual average.

Bromate is a chemical that is formed when ozone used to disinfect drinking water reacts with naturally occurring bromide found in source water. EPA has established the Stage 1 Disinfectants/Disinfection Byproducts Rule to regulate bromate at annual average of 10 parts per billion in drinking water. This standard became effective for large public water systems in 2001 and for small surface water and all ground public water systems in 2003.

Chlorite is a byproduct formed when chlorine dioxide is used to disinfect water. EPA has published the Stage 1 Disinfectants/Disinfection Byproducts Rule to regulate chlorite at a monthly average level of 1 part per million in drinking water.

LIBRARY CORNER

Book group discussing Peter Godwin novel

The following programs and events will take place at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset. For more information or to register, call 781-383-1348 or visit the website at www.cohassetlibrary.org.

Library Book Group – Join others for coffee and discussion of "When a Crocodile Eats the Sun" by Peter Godwin at 10 a.m., on Wednesday, May 26. All are welcome.

Great Decisions Discussion Group – For those who have registered, the Great Decisions Discussion Group will meet at 10:30 a.m., every Tuesday, through June 15, in the Meeting Room. Call reference librarian Gayle Walsh at 383-1348 for chapter assignments.

Independent Film Night – The library will show the independent film "Storm" at 6 p.m., on Thursday, May 20. Free admission and light refreshments courtesy of Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Art Reception – Meet Duxbury artist Jane Flavell Collins from 3 to 5 p.m., on Saturday May 15, at a free opening reception for her exhibit appearing in the Meeting Room at the library through June 30. Gallery hours are Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesdays and Fridays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ongoing at the Library – Brain Fitness, a computer program designed to exercise auditory and memory skills;

Knitting Group, on Wednesdays, at 10 a.m., Edna Finnegan from the Senior Center will be on hand to help people learn how to knit or help them with a knitting project.

FOR CHILDREN

Story Time – In the Children's Story Room at 10:30 a.m., on Tuesday, May 11. All ages and communities welcome. Drop in and enjoy the fun.

MamaSteph – Music, movement and more for young children in the Meeting Room at 10:30 a.m., on Mondays, May 10 and 17. Sponsored by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Be creative everyday

Artist in Residence program concludes sixth year

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For Katherine Morrison, art should be part of one's life everyday.

The Hingham collage artist has been a part of juried shows, won awards for her work, and sold her pieces as a professional artist.

But, when she speaks to elementary students each week as part of the South Shore Art Center's Artist in Residence program, this is not what she stresses.

"I know being creative is an important thing for a person to be," Morrison said, who incorporates some form of art into her life everyday. "I try to show them what fun I have with art and how simple it can be."

Each week, a group of elementary students from as far away as East Bridgewater or as close as Deer Hill School, make their way to the South Shore Art Center for the Artist in Residence program, now concluding its sixth year.

The program is offered free of charge to area elementary schools thanks to volunteer hours and the sponsorship of HSBC Bank USA, North America. The financial support enabled the Art Center to reach over 1,500 third-, fourth- and fifth-grade students in the Greater Boston area over the course of the school year.

"This is the biggest year we've had so far," said Heather Collins, the Art Center's director of community programs who oversees the program. The program began in 2004 in conjunction with the Art Center's 50th anniversary celebration and as part of a renewed goal to reach out to the greater South Shore community.

"It is our best effort in keeping the art curriculum alive in schools, which are all struggling with budget constraints," Collins said. "We want to reach those kids that thrive in the arts and maybe don't get enough of it."

STAFF PHOTOS BY ROBIN CHAN

Fifth grader Griffin Gildea watches as Mathias Loft applies ink on the stamp that he made during class on Wednesday. On Wednesday Deer Hill fifth graders took part in the final day of the South Shore Art Center's yearlong Artist in Residence program.

A fifth-grade group from the Deer Hill School took in this week's Artist in Residence program Wednesday morning; it was the last week of this year's program.

The program combines an artist demonstration and presentation with a hands-on art project. Downstairs they learn directly from the working artist about her creative process and products, and upstairs they are offered the change to create their own work of art.

Morrison shows them the many different ways to work with paper. Her art starts with the material. She typically begins with a blank piece of white paper and prints, designs and paints it to wildly different outcomes. In the Artist in Residence program, she shows the students how to make a beautiful design on a blank piece of paper using nothing more than bubbles and liquid acrylic paint.

"It makes beautiful designs and I want them to see how easy it is to have fun with art. I want them to really know they can do art at home," Morrison said.

Then, she shows them how to hand sew a book, something she tells them has been done since Biblical times.

"It cheers my spirit that the children still love to see something hand sewn," Morrison said.

She shows them her imaginative creations she calls "explosion books" – and even creates one for them right in front of their eyes – and speaks to them about the wonders of the glue stick.

The students nearly always ask how Morrison comes up with her ideas. She shows them her scrapbook and some books from the library she draws inspiration from. She tells them to draw everyday; it doesn't have to be something large or elaborate.

"One of the biggest stumbling blocks is the fear of a blank page," Morrison said. "I always try to have something on the page."

After getting their creative juices flowing with Morrison the children go upstairs to put their artistry to work. With the help of three volunteers, Libby Allard and Sharon Daly of Cohasset and Susan Walker of Scituate, who have been with the program for years, the kids create their masterpiece.

This year, the kids make their own stamp and use it to create a peek-a-boo book. The theme of the project is the ocean and the students have come up with all sorts of creations to put on their stamp from a shark to lighthouse to octopus.

A public art display featuring the work of the 1500 young and budding artists that participated in the Artist in Residence program this year will be on display at the South Shore Art Center's Art Festival in June. Each student used the stamp they designed and incorporated into their art project and stamped a separate baseball card sized card with their name and school. Morrison is putting them all together in a 25-sided poster board display.

As much as the students take away from the program and from Morrison, she said she's learned just as much.

"They've come up with ideas I've never even thought of – and then I go home and try it. I've learned so much from the children this year," Morrison said. "I tell them, 'they changed my art that day.'"

Morrison was so popular with the Art Center and the students, she will return as the Artist in Residence next year.

Water budget problems explained

UPDATE

WATER PLANNING GROUP

When the budgetary problems of the Water Department emerged, the Board of Selectmen created a special task force, the Water Planning Group (WPG), to study the issues and prepare recommendations for meeting the revenue shortfall. The Board agreed to populate this group with two from each of the Board of Selectmen, Water Commission, Advisory Board and the Capital Budget Committee as well as two citizens at large. This article represents a progress report. Since our work is not yet complete, we are not ready to submit our final recommendations. Nevertheless, the WPG decided to provide this progress report to the community now.

A number of factors have led to the current crisis. The past two summers have been wet and cool, reducing demand for watering lawns and gardens. The Water Commission was also expecting to sell more water to the Linden Ponds, Avalon and Cook Estate developments, but the weak housing market and economy have caused construction delays.

On the cost side, when the operating contract went out for a new competitive bid, the resulting low bid from American Water Works was considerably higher than the former contract. Furthermore, the Water Department's debt service has been growing due to its land acquisition program and the rehabilitation of what was a poorly functioning distribution system starting in 1994. The most recent aspect of that rehabilitation has been its share of the Little Harbor project whose debt service begins in fiscal 2011.

All of this borrowing was approved by voters at various town meetings and the debts are in the name of the town. The Water Department pays the debt service from water rate revenues. In the event of a shortfall, the town as a whole remains liable.

If Water Department revenues do not cover expenses, the shortfall becomes the responsibility of the town.

We are facing a perfect storm of declining revenues and higher costs.

Before the WPG began working, the Water Commission forecasted a deficit for fiscal 2010 of $760,000 and more than $1,100,000 for fiscal 2011. With 2400 residential and business customers and no change in operations, the hypothetical 2011 deficit is $458 per customer.

The WPG has been meeting weekly since March 24 exploring a wide range of solutions including non-water rate revenue enhancements, cost reductions and asset sales. For 2010 we have identified some non-rate revenue sources that we currently believe will cover the deficit, but these are not yet firm. For fiscal 2011, will are finding some offsets to reduce the $1,100,000 shortfall. Nevertheless, we probably will be recommending significant rate increases.

One fact that has clearly emerged is that debt service accounts for over two-thirds of the water department budget and most of the other costs are fixed. We have endeavored to reduce operating costs, but the opportunities are limited.

After we get past 2011, the water department is facing another round of capital expenditures resulting from looming federal mandates.

Beyond 2013, the current outlook is for a return to stability and slowly declining debt service costs.

A new Water Department budget and water rate schedule will require approval by a Special Town Meeting now posted for June 14. Depending on the nature of our recommendations, a special election may also be required for an override. The budget and related warrant articles must be complete and ready for the printing of the town meeting warrant by May 21.

If Water Department revenues do not cover expenses, the shortfall becomes the responsibility of the town. In that case, our options will be to pass an override raising taxes and to make major reductions in town services including education, public safety, public works and administration.

We are all very aware that the current business environment presents real hardships for many in our community. One of our major goals has been to find non-rate solutions. We have found some such solutions and we are continuing to search for more. We sincerely welcome all suggestions.

The members of the Water Planning Group include:

- Paul Carlson, Chairman, Water Planning Group. Member, Board of Selectmen
- Glenn Pratt, Chairman, Water Commission
- Christopher Seebeck, Member, Water Commission
- Edward Lappen, Member, Advisory Committee
- Patrick Waters, Member, Advisory Committee
- Peter DeCaprio, Member, Capital Budget Committee
- Steven Gaumer, Chairman, Capital Budget Committee
- John Beck, Member at Large
- Patrick Gallagher, Member At Large

PSO has had a busy year

COMMENTARY

PARENT SCHOOL ORGANIZATION

As the school year draws to a close, the Cohasset Parent School Organization (the "PSO") wishes to thank parents, guardians, students, the school administration and the Cohasset community for their support over the past year. Your support, whether financial or through the donation of time, has enabled the PSO to be successful in its role of supporting our school system to achieve its goal of excellence.

Among its many endeavors, the PSO coordinated and funded the Curriculum Enrichment programs at both the Osgood and Deer Hill schools. Through the Curriculum Enrichment program, students in each grade were treated to dozens of performances by a myriad of education-oriented performers, including, for example, the Tanglewood Marionettes and the Museum of Science. The PSO and its dedicated corps of volunteers coordinated and staffed the Osgood Science and Math Night, Snapper Sneaker Day, May Arts Night, the Osgood and Deer Hill book fairs, and Make a Difference Day. PSO volunteers honored Osgood, Deer Hill, and Middle and High School teachers with numerous appreciation events over the school year and coordinated the Box Tops for Education and Give-a-Book programs.

In addition, following up on last year's major gift of a new lighting system to the Middle and High School auditorium, this year the PSO provided major gifts of (1) a Science, Technology, Engineering and Math Lab ("STEM Lab") to the Osgood School to benefit all Osgood students, and (2) a highly-desired projector system to the Deer Hill School to benefit all Deer Hill students. The PSO attempted to fill gaps in funding by giving direct teacher grants to teachers who may lack specific items for their classroom. During the past year, for example, the PSO purchased books for English and Environmental Science teachers at the Middle and High School. The PSO funded special programs including Character Education, Internet Safety and Peer Leadership and Anti-Bullying programs at the Middle and High School, and donated to the Post Prom party. The PSO also funded professional speakers for each of the monthly Parent Advisory Council ("PAC") meetings. These speakers discussed such important topics as improving executive functioning skills and new services covered by Mass Health. Finally, the PSO provided occasional grants to allow our teachers and administrators to attend special out-of-district programs that would not otherwise be funded.

We are able to provide all these programs through our year round fundraising efforts including the sale of Innisbrook papers, Original Art Works, the February Read-a-Thon, our annual Telethon, and holiday pies from Meadow Farms. To further stretch our fundraising efforts, the PSO tried to identify other funding sources and applied for grants from generous agencies including the Cohasset Cultural Council, the local division of the Massachusetts Cultural Council and the South Shore Playhouse Associates.

Finally, and significantly, the PSO provides an important communication role. We bring parent opinions and concerns to the administration. We hold monthly meetings to facilitate dialogue between parents and school administration at each school. The topics of these meetings have included, among others, how to access the School Fusion network, the schools' policies on bullying and how to improve your child's reading skills. These meetings provide a wonderful opportunity for parents to learn more about important policies and new developments in the schools. Please join us!

We truly thank you for your support.

D'Anne Avotins, Mary Jo Blackington, Diane Herth, Marie Dunkelberger, Diane Dutton, Andrea Hillier, Jenni Milanoski, Nancy Farren, and Brian Murphy

EXCITED ABOUT SUMMER CAMP? BEGIN PREPARING NOW!

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

Once final camp decisions have been made and registration logistics are well underway, parents/guardians of first-time campers may be unsure of how to prepare themselves and their children for upcoming summer camp experiences. The American Camp Association, New England offers the following pointers:

1. Pack efficiently— What gear will you need? Your camp offers the best advice—what campers really do need. If a packing list is provided by the camp, carefully follow it. Whether you're filling a daypack for day camp or a duffle, backpack or trunk for resident/overnight camp, remember that more is not necessarily better. Overpacking is the most common camp prep error families make. It creates difficulty in finding essential items quickly, increases the chances that possessions may get lost and burdens the camper.

2. Pack in partnership with the camper— If campers are to manage their belongings while at camp (for the day or for weeks at a time), they need to pack them! Camp experiences teach children valuable life lessons in how to keep track of and to take care of their belongings. If adults do the packing for and not with campers, children don't know what they have or where to find it.

3. Revel in independence— Camp provides an opportunity for each child to benefit as an individual and as a member of a group, from time spent in a world designed exclusively for children. It also offers parents and children a chance to practice normal, healthy separation, for the day or for several days or weeks at a time. At camp, children develop autonomy and a stronger sense of self. They make new friends, build skills, and experience teamwork. And at the end of camp, parents often report their children's increased confidence and sense of independence.

4. Talk, talk, talk — It is only natural that as the first day of camp approaches, some children may experience uneasiness. Encourage your child to talk about these feelings. Let children know that you are confident in their ability to handle the independence that being a camper brings. Remind the child of other times they have been independent — sleepovers with friends or family, etc.

5. Get real — It's important for children and parents to maintain realistic expectations. Camp is a microcosm of the real world, so just like life, there will be highs and lows. Parents should encourage realistic views of what camp will be like, discussing both the high points and the low points children may experience. Remind children that the most important thing is to relax and have fun at camp.

NASA astronauts Steve Bowen (left) and Garrett Reisman, both STS-132 mission specialists, participate in an EVA tile repair training session in the Space Vehicle Mockup Facility at NASA's Johnson Space Center.

Bowen heads back to space

Go for Launch

On Monday, a representative of the Cohasset Mariner attended the STS-132 pre-flight crew news conference in Houston. Afterward, Bowen and his crewmates sat down for interviews.

When introducing Bowen during the press briefing, STS-132 Commander Ken Ham said: "He has a unique perspective on what's it like to live in a steel tube. Space station is not that far removed from that."

Bowen will perform two of the mission's three scheduled EVAs (extravehicular activities, or spacewalks). During EVA 1, Garrett Reisman and Bowen will attach a Ku-band antenna to the ISS.

Ham explained that Bowen will lead EVA 2, the bulk of the solar array battery removal-and-replacement task on the space station's P6 truss.

"To be quite honest," said Ham, "a lot of the success of all of our EVAs in general are going to lie on his shoulders in getting that task as accomplished as possible to make room on EVA 3 so we can finish EVA 3 tasks as well as go back and clean up anything that didn't get done on EVA 1.

"So we're asking a lot of Steve."

What does Bowen consider his biggest challenge outside the hatch of the space station?

He replied: "On EVA 1, the hardest part is actually just going to be running the EVA as written, because we've never been able to practice it, as written, in the NBL (Neutral Buoyancy Lab) or even in the VR (Virtual Reality) Lab.

"The way we've had to practice and train all this stuff has simulated out of sequence, and it's very difficult. On EVA 2, and the batteries in general, we've not been able to practice them either, as written. We end up reversing it because of the constraints of the (robotic) arm in the NBL."

"You actually stand on the arm in the NBL to go to the battery pallet, whereas in reality we'll be standing on the truss of the space station, and Piers (Sellers) will be bringing the pallet to us.

"Getting past that mental image and understanding that that difference exists is probably going to be the hardest thing about the EVAs."

End of an Era

Since current NASA plans call for the space shuttle fleet's retirement this year, Bowen's upcoming mission is scheduled to be the last flight of the space-faring Atlantis.

During the press conference, Ham stated: "We — the six of us — are officially calling this the 'first last flight' of Atlantis. I think that's appropriate, because we really don't know what she's going to do next."

Explained British astronaut Piers Sellers: "These three surviving shuttles — they're pieces of history. These three ships will go down in history too. It's a real honor to ride one of them."

According to information provided by NASA, space shuttle Atlantis was named after the two-masted ship that served as the primary research vessel for the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution from 1930 to 1966.

By coincidence, Bowen attended the MIT/WHOI joint program in ocean engineering, earning his degree in 1993, after he graduated from Cohasset High School in 1982 and from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1986.

Family Matters

Bowen and his wife Deborah have three children: a 18-year-old son, a 17-year-old daughter and a 14-year-old son.

Except for one brother living in Belfast, Northern Ireland, the astronaut's extended family is still based on the South Shore. One sister, two brothers and their parents live in Hanover. Bowen's other sister, Patricia "Trish" Fontaine, lives in Cohasset.

"We have a little more knowledge for what's going to happen this time," said Fontaine regarding the process of attending a shuttle launch. "It's still very scary and exciting.

"We're looking forward to it," she added.

Fontaine said that at least 100 friends and family viewed Bowen's first ride uphill.

"But we were disappointed that he landed in California."

Personal Message for Cohasset

After the press conference, Bowen composed a personal message for the young residents of Cohasset: "Growing up there, and living there, there is no limit to your opportunities. You can do or become anything."

Bowen said he has noticed there seem to be two groups of children in Cohasset.

"Kids seem to fall out into a couple of very interesting areas, and one of them is 'I want to grow up and make money. I want to do something that will allow me to keep this lifestyle as it is.' And the other group, probably the large group, is 'I want to grow up and do something for society. I want to dedicate my life to helping others.'

"The part that I don't hear talked about is that an engineer or scientist or doctor does both those things. They contribute to society and the well-being of people throughout the world.

"If you want to do something for the world at large, to make it a better place, build a better mousetrap. I don't think a lot of people look at engineering and science and the medical professions as what they really are: you can be the one person that makes a difference."

Also launching aboard Atlantis is the Cohasset Town Flag. The astronaut said he plans to get to town again, see everybody and return the flag after his space flight.

Just a minor bump

Boys laxers rebound from Duxbury setback

By Sean MacCarthy
SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

After a heartbreaking loss to Duxbury, Cohasset looked to bounce back against a Martha's Vineyard team with a 6-3 record.

Needless to say, they got their confidence back and then some by trouncing Martha's Vineyard 15-3. The Skippers overpowered, outran, and straight up outplayed the Martha's Vineyard team from the start in the lopsided victory.

The Skipper's usual suspects, Will Wise, Dean Driscoll, Alex Kinnealey, and Thomas Flibotte led the offense to the 15 goals. It is the second time this year the offense has put up 15 goals in a game, tying their third highest amount of goals in a game this year.

Lacrosse

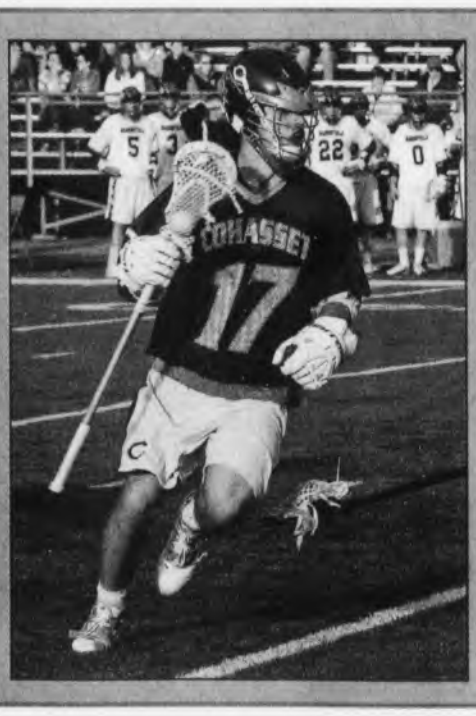
Outstanding defensemen, Dana Valentine, Sam Leahy, and Jake Kissick in addition to goalie Jack Murphy kept Martha's Vineyard to only three goals, the lowest amount of goals scored against the Skippers this season.

The big win improved the Skippers to 9-1 ten games into the season.

Currently, Cohasset is ranked sixth in the state overall and first in Division 3 Massachusetts lacrosse.

"We are looking great so far," said senior Captain Ian Quinlan. "We just got to keep practicing hard to ensure future success this season."

With ten games under their belt, the Skippers are ranked seventh in goals per game netting an unbelievable 13.10 goals per game.



The defense and Jack Murphy

Cohasset's No. 1 doubles player Caitlin De'Angelis uses her quick reflexes at the net to make the return in a recent match against Norwell. Norwell won the match 3-2. De'Angelis lost her match 6-2, 7-5.

ATHLETE OF THE MONTH

Name: Thomas Flibotte
Sport: Lacrosse
Stats: Thomas was the leading scorer and a spark for the Skippers as they rolled to a 9-1 start to the season. Along the way, Flibotte won a skill competition at a Boston Blazers game and showed some impressive sportsmanship by donating the sticks he won as a prize to local youth programs.

Othe athletes in the running included goalie Jack Murphy, baseball player Drew Cobin and girls lacrosse player Izzy Franklin.

Uplifting performances

Doonan, Cobin come up big on hill

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

It was a good week for the Cohasset baseball team.

"Monday we beat East Bridgewater 10-5 at East Bridgewater," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "Brendan Doonan made his first start on the mound and went six strong innings giving up three runs on eight hits. He struck out eight and more importantly did not walk a single batter. Considering we have three league games this week, Brendan's performance was huge."

After Doonan was injured during hockey season, Afanasiw planned on using Doonan carefully to make sure he doesn't reinjure himself.

Baseball

"Going into the game, he and I were on the same page that he will go as long as he feels comfortable and strong," Afanasiw said. "I don't think either one of us thought he'd go six innings. It was a very uplifting performance, not to mention with the win, we pulled to .500 again overall 5-5 (4-3 in the league)."

Offensively, sophomore Jamie Timothy was 2-for-3 from the plate and smacked his first career varsity homerun, a two run shot in the seventh inning, to give a little more breathing room for Jeff Cavanaro who came in to pick up the save by pitching the seventh inning.

Senior co-captain Andy McKenna was 2-for-4 from the plate with 2 RBI, to go along with some very solid defense, especially with his blocking of

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse Girls Roundup

U15 Blue

The Blue team borrowed a few of the Grey team players to fill out their squad and the combination proved to be a great one, as the girls displayed strong passing skills that ran circles around an aggressive Norwell team. Morgen Montgomery had her best game of the season and teamed with Annie McElgunn, Mikayla McGrath, Mackenzie Axelson and Isabel McCarthy to work the ball around the offensive zone and convert excellent scoring chances.

The defense stood tall in front of goalie Hanna Cooper as Norwell kept charging into the 8 meter area looking for shooting opportunities. Caroline Evans, Molly Fitzgerald, Caroline Prescott and Megan Fitzgerald displayed strong form and created multiple turnovers by double and triple teaming the attacking Norwell players. The Blue squad built up a large lead and then focused on using their off hand and letting some defensive players try their hand on offense as the final score was 13-9 Cohasset.

U15 White

The heat was on in Norwell for a combination team of the U15 White and Grey teams. With a number of players out for a school trip, our girls took the field with just a few subs and with many filling in at new positions. It was a neck and neck race with Cohasset leading at the half and tied at the end of the third, until Norwell managed to pull away in the fourth quarter with four goals to break the tie and take it 15-11. Cohasset led 9-7 at the half and was tied 11-11 at the end of the third quarter.

The game showcased some excellent passing and playmaking on Cohasset's part and excellent middie and defensive play. Cohasset was also able to control many draws and set up scoring drives. It also effectively defended through most of the game against Norwell's run and gun offense by doubling the ball and forcing passes. Isabelle Seal gamely filled in at goalie for the start before moving back to middie and notched a terrific save off a hard charging Norwell shooter. She also managed some strong clears despite never having been in the goal before the start of the game. Allie O'Callaghan filled in for the rest of the game in goal and notched 6 saves. She hung tough and made two saves on free shots and also generated some strong clears.

The scoring came with three goals from Charlotte Allard, two each from Isabelle Dunne, Shannon McGowan, and Dagmar Seppala, and one each from Katie McKenna and Elizabeth Baker. Assists included two from McKenna, and one each from Dunne, Baker, and Allard. The play was fast and furious in an exciting game and Cohasset players showed tremendous grit and determination.

U13 Grey

The girls U13 Grey team remains undefeated by beating Norwell on their home field 9 - 8. With a large crowd of spectators on a hot day, Cohasset controlled the movement of the ball, out-ran, out-hustled, and outshot Norwell. A handful of our shots were called back or deflected off the goal pipe, making the result appear closer than the game really was. Norwell turned on the heat in the second half but for most of the game the ball was with our offense.

We'd like to recognize Sophie and Jenny Wolfe for their tremendous efforts in goal.

Caelin McDonald scored our first goal unassisted. Paige Carrabes potted our next also unassisted followed by Kaitlin McGovern who scored off a loose ball. Caelin came in for another one assisted by Julia Herzfelder. Abby McGrath nailed two for us, the second assisted by Nadiya Roy. Abby Thomas found the net twice, one off a free position shot and one off a pass from Abby McGrath. Cali Guiggio was assisted by Caelin on our last goal. Once we scored our first, we never gave up the lead and took that to the final. Madi and Calli O'Niell, Meagan McElgunn, Erin McElhinney, Danielle Picot, Maggie Queenan, and Kara Nelson were all integral with their individual victories: winning a ground ball, deflecting a pass, stopping a midfield break, winning the draw, and more. You put that all together and it equals a team effort. Great job everybody.

U13 White

The U13 White team beat Norwell 13-9. The team played a great game, despite the grueling heat...(thanks, Mrs. Glavin, for the Gatorade!). The white team has a strong offense as demonstrated by the number of girls that scored. Clearly, Gatorade is a family secret in the Glavin household as Clare Glavin scored two goals during the game. Bebe Davis and Bennett Tierney also each scored a goal. Maya Placek, a first year 'lacrosser', showed her talent by adding to the score with a goal. Alexandra 'whirling dervish' Leahy continued to confound the competition by scoring three goals. And Colleen McGowan 'disappointed' herself by 'only' scoring 5 goals. Throughout the game, Margot Robbins assisted on the attack front, despite the 'human wall' defending the goal. Strong support was provided in the midfield by players Brigid Driscoll, Charlotte Morrison and Nikki Federle. Molly Cunning and Olivia Arnold were especially crucial time and time again in moving the ball down the field into the attack zone. On the defensive side, Karlee Koswick tended goal and kept out many goals during the first half, but delighted her teammates by helping at midfield and keeping out more goals in the defensive end in the second half. Katie McKeon, our second half goalie, had an exciting moment outside the crease with the ball and the competition, and then raced back to the crease to block the shot in the end. Finally, our defensive players, Bridgett Condon, Grace Lucier, and fill-in Blue teamer Ellie Jackish showed equal strength in not only defending against a frontal attack, but more importantly in picking off a ball from an opponent to move it into our attack zone. Get excited for next week's game against Hingham where more players score and beat our last week's score of 9-8.

U11 Blue

U11 Girls Blue travelled to Norwell on Sunday afternoon and faced their strongest opponent thus far. Caleigh Durkin answered the call to guard the pipes in the first half and was tested from the get-go with a rip from a Norwell attack woman who tried to go stick side high on the hockey star...popcorn! And the crowd went wild. The momentum carried over to the offense moments later when Madison Ahern stepped up and got Cohasset on the board with her first goal of the season.

Annie Pyne, Maeve Humphrey and Tilley Mclean forced key turnovers in the second half to slow the relentless Norwell transition attack. However, tied at 3 with 5 minutes left, Norwell finally broke free and went in on seasoned goalie Maggie O'Donnell uncontested. Again Norwell came with the high cheese but O'Donnell stood her ground and made a truly memorable save (Norwell coaches requested O'Donnell remove her helmet to confirm it was not Jack Murphy under there). The game remained knotted through the waning minutes until Zoe Doherty took it to the house twice off of feeds from Elle Hansen to seal a Cohasset victory 5-3. The formidable Norwell squad played the entire game with only 2 subs and should be commended for a fine performance.

U11 White

Cohasset White played their first full field 12 vs 12 game of the season in a near ninety degree scorcher at Norwell. The game was a tale of two halves with Norwell keeping the ball down in Cohasset's end most of the first half and Cohasset having possession most of the second. Cohasset's defense and first time goalie, Kate Nee, got a workout first half. Norwell scored a couple of quick ones before Cohasset had a chance to figure out what was what on the big field. A few girls deserve mention who played hard until the bitter end in the heat. They are Isabel Buckley (goal), Margaret Michalowski (goal), Leanne Hayden, Elizabeth Bernstein, Margaret Norton, Madeline Kerr, Julia Placek (first career goal), Maggie Lucier, Kate Quigley, Meredith Julian and goalie, Nee. Quigley and Lauren Cunning played for both teams because Norwell was short-handed.

Quigley should be crowned "Interception Queen" for the number of interceptions she made for both teams! We wish she hadn't played so well for the opponent. Cohasset shooters bounced a few off the pipes and Norwell's "experienced" goalie made a couple of key saves to stop Cohasset's second half surge. The game ended with Norwell 6-Cohasset 3. Great job on your first game on the big field!

balls in the dirt.

"He is outstanding at that very difficult task, which is often overlooked," Afanasiw said of McKenna's blocking skills. "But he does a great job keeping opponent's baserunners from advancing into scoring position."

On Tuesday Cohasset beat Mashpee 10-5 at home.

"Drew Cobin pitched his second complete game and second win in a row," Afanasiw said. "He struck out nine Falcons while giving up only three earned runs. After two complete innings, he endured a 30-minute break in the action while we sat out a lightning sighting. When he returned to the hill, Mashpee took advantage of a few walks and timely hits to score four runs. From that point on Drew was completely in command he got stronger as the game went on and picked up five of his nine strikeouts in the last four innings, and didn't walk a single batter in the last four frames."

Offensively, junior shortstop Anders Goetz was 4-for-4 from the plate with a two-run home run in the bottom of the fourth inning that proved to be the game winning RBIs. He also scored three runs and stole a base.

Sophomore outfielder Jamie Timothy hit a solo home run in the fifth inning.

Doonan was 2-for-3 from the plate drove in two RBI and stole a base, and junior outfielder Jeff Cavanaro was 2-for-4 from the plate with a triple and two RBI.

"It was great to have five batters in our lineup collect multiple hits," Afanasiw said. "It really speaks to how patient and disciplined the team is at the plate. With each game, they seem to be feeling more and more confident and relaxed. Obviously when we score a bunch of runs, it takes the pressure off of our defense and pitching, and everyone just has fun."

Cohasset improved to 6-5 overall (5-3 SSL).

They were at Abington yesterday.

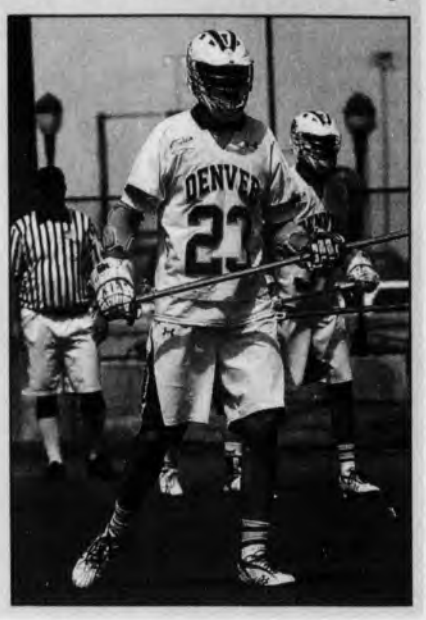
Cohasset's Brown headed to NCAA Div. 1 lacrosse tournament with Denver University

Congratulations to Jeff Brown, a starting long-pole defenseman for the Denver University Pioneers, for qualifying for the Division 1 NCAA tournament for his second time in three years.



The Pioneers (11-4), ranked 11th in the nation, defeated Loyola in the ECAC championship game last Sunday to clinch an automatic bid to this year's tournament.

Denver is currently undefeated (5-0) in ECAC play. After a losing season last year, Denver hired legendary six- time national championship coach Bill Tierney from Princeton.

After a slow start, Denver has won nine of their last ten games, including the last eight in a row.

They finish their regular season at Air Force Academy this Saturday.

Good luck in the D1 tournament Jeff.

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Wolves had a rough fall season in the Master Div. of the South Coastal Hockey League.

They finished out of the playoffs and had one of the worse defenses in the division. However, they turned things around in the spring as they finished first in the league and had the top defense and they added the Masters Div. title after their 4-2 win over the defending champion Grizzlies.

Keith Smith of Marshfield scored two goals, John Dougenik and Ryan Murphy of Pembroke added a goal each, Jonathan Hilldebrandt of Hanover had two assists and goalie Rich Hoefer also of Pembroke stopped 21 shots for the champion Wolves.

Joe McCafferty and Chuck Laubenstein scored the goals for the Girzzlies.

It will be the Canadiens and the undefeated Maple Leafs to decide the Classics Div. title on Sunday at the Hobomock Arena at 8:50 p.m.

Kirk Souza scored five goals including an empty-net goal to give the Canadiens a 7-4 win over the defending champion Rangers. Marshfield's Tim McCrystal and Mike Fahie added a goal each for the Canadiens.

Rockland's Jim O'Toole scored two goals, Jay Parker of Hanover and Jeff Uva scored for the Rangers, who closed a 5-1 deficit to 5-4 with 3:45 left in the game.

Jeff Gauthier scored a goal and assisted on another, Mike Bartlett of Pembroke, Shawn Malloy and Dave Salvaggio scored a goal each as the Maple Leafs rolled to a 4-1 win over the Black Hawks.

Pembroke's Paul Lyons scored for the Black Hawks.

Scituate's Steve Concannon and Richard Spence scored two goals each as the Legends defending champion Whalers defeated the Toros, 5-1 to advance to the finals at the Hobomock Arena at 7:30 P.M. Mike Verrochi had two assists in the game for the Whalers, who will meet the Crusaders for the championship and Paul Brinkman scored the goal for the Toros.

Mike Simon scored two goals, Ed Culhane of Cohasset, Ed Burke of Marshfield and Mike Hankes added a goal each as the Crusaders defeated the Sharks, 5-1 in the other Legends Div. semi-final.

Jay Faherty scored the goal for the Sharks.

are also doing a tremendous job only allowing 5.90 goals per game. The Skippers have the seventh best net difference in the state averaging 7.20 more goals than their opponents.

With eight games left in the 2010 season, Cohasset is looking to maintain their offensive and defensive success.

"If we play like we did against teams like Duxbury then its going to be a real good season for us," added Quinlan. "If we go into every game with a strong attitude and a need to win, then it is going to be really hard for any team to beat us."

Cohasset was scheduled to face their rival, Scituate, this past Tuesday but the game was postponed until Friday because of thunderstorms.

Thursday the Boys Lacrosse team headed to Pembroke to try to continue their domination of Division 3 teams.

Next Tuesday, Cohasset has a huge game against the Hingham Harbormen who are ranked ninth in Massachusetts lacrosse.

Hingham, Hull and Cohasset Sr. Babe Ruth tryouts

To All Hingham, Hull and Cohasset baseball age 15 -19 year olds: We will be holding Senior Babe Ruth and Legion Tryouts on May 15 and May 16 at 5 p.m. at Cronin Field in Hingham.

Anyone interested in trying out should contact Mark Igo at mark.igo@gmail.com or 617-823-2492.

If anyone has any questions regarding the Legion Tryouts, you should contact Vincent Murray at 617-835-5500 or 781-749-4455 or by email at vinamur@aol.com.

There is no fee for trying out and final registration fees for both Senior babe Ruth and Legion will be determined by the number of players carried on each roster so it is very important that we have a proper headcount heading into tryouts.

WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

After 22 years in a Florida swamp, our window is as good as new.

For those who don't want to replace their replacement windows.

To ensure the durability of our patented Fibrex® material window, we've kept the same window frame submerged in a Florida swamp since 1988. To this day, our testing engineers inspect it every year, and there has been absolutely no change. Our other weather-testing sites in sub-zero Minnesota and the Arizona desert have yielded the same result: after 22 years in the worst conditions, the very same Fibrex® material has remained unchanged.

Why do we perform this crazy weather-testing? To build the best replacement window, that's why. Our practically indestructible Fibrex® frame keeps our glass from shifting and our insulating seals intact, even during drastic temperature changes. This is how we maximize your home's energy-efficiency, season after season, year after year.

- With the $1,500 Federal Energy Tax Credit ending this year, don't get the tax credit "run-around" from another company whose windows don't qualify.
- Our windows have glass that's up to 70% more energy efficient, saving you substantial money on energy costs.†
- 96.2% of our installations have begun and ended on time.
- Every installation finishes with a thorough cleaning with a EPA-compliant HEPA vacuum cleaner, removing debris as small as one micron from your home.
- Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish window replacement subsidiary of Andersen—the most recognized name in windows.

Fibrex® material is 2X as rigid and stable as vinyl

AP exam week – ugh!

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

I have been in the shoes of all the kids taking these exams on Friday (you know, the day that precedes the weekend).

Hello. Normally I start this articles off all cheery and stuff. Sorry. Not this week. Not when me and about 50 percent of the upperclassmen and a handful of sophomores are struggling to cram our heads with an absurd amount of information so we don't bomb our AP exams. All throughout the week, people were asking themselves "Why did I even take this class?" in fear that they will fail when the exam begins. Don't worry if you are in that boat because I am in there with you. Only difference is that I have been in that boat for the past 3 years.

Monday was the day where all the Frenchies started freaking out. "Zut! Ca va mal!" is what they were saying. If I remember correctly, which I doubt, that means "Darn, I'm mad." Just a thought (a horribly corrupt thought), wouldn't it be cool if all the French kids started exchanging answers in French to each other. The test proctor wouldn't even know what was happening so he couldn't even stop it, right? Add that to the Sean MacCarthy bin of dumb/unusual ideas.

Tuesday was judgment day for the AP Stats class. Fun story: I was going to take AP Stats but they told me not to because I hadn't taken an honors level math since middle school. Was I happy about that decision back then? Nope. Am I happy about that decision now? Yes times 20 (there's some math for ya)

Wednesday was a totally sick half day…that is of course if you were not taking an AP Calculus exam. Those kids ended up regretting taking that class more than any other class because they ended up getting out later than everyone else that day. To say the least, that is really unfortunate, especially since I spent my day getting a ridiculous sunburn and catching a bunch of fish. Lose? For the AP Calculus kids. Win? For me and everyone not in AP Calculus.

Thursday was English Literature and Composition day for about 40-plus seniors. Remember when I said I got a really bad sunburn on Wednesday? Needless to say, I was really uncomfortable during that exam. At least the wincing kept me occupied for a good portion of the free response essay.

Friday was history day. The AP United States class had their exam at 8 a.m. Immediately following them was the AP European History class who began their lovely FRIDAY afternoon exam at noon. I have been in the shoes of all the kids taking these exams on Friday (you know, the day that precedes the weekend). Two words: Not (word 1) fun (word 2). (period)

That's all I got for you this week. Sorry if you got all depressed by the stories of suffering, sadness, and sunburns. I embellish like 99 perecent of everything anyways (another embellishment).

The sad news doesn't end there though. In fact, this is the worst of the news in this article. Brace yourselves…

I, Seanathan Michael MacCarthy IV, will not be attending Cohasset High School next year. Instead, I will be attending Providence College. Thus, I will not be writing the "Life at CHS" articles every week.

I know it will be tough for some of you to open up the paper, turn to some page in the twenties, and not see my goofy little face accompanied by a nearly incoherent and incredibly odd article. Trust me, you will get through it.

I have found a more than worthy replacement that is currently going through my 10-week boot camp apprenticeship to prepare to amuse/inform you. I will be dropping hints until I relinquish my title as "Life At CHS Columnist".

Hint #1: My replacement is different from me as I am a "he" and she is a "she". I know you are excited, so go ahead and act like you're a doctor that just helped a woman through giving birth. Act like you are the one that just caught the baby in your arms, saw and identified it as female. Then exclaim at the top of your that "IT'S A GIRL!"

Wow…what a weird way to end an article about AP Exams. My goodness, you guys are gonna miss me a lot...

Sean MacCarthy is supposed to be studying. Senioritis prevails again.

Save the date

Art Forum showcases work of middle school students

South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, is showcasing the artwork of middle school students in its biennial exhibition Art Forum.

Art Forum will feature the work of sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade students at 13 middle schools: Cohasset Middle School, East Middle School in Braintree, Frolio Middle School in Abington, Furnace Brook Middle School in Marshfield, Galvin Middle School in Canton, Hanover Middle School, Hingham Middle School, Inly School in Scituate, Norwell Middle School, Sacred Heart in Kingston, South Middle School in Braintree and South Shore Charter School in Norwell.

"Art Forum gives the Art Center – and our gallery visitors – an exceptional opportunity to peek inside the art classrooms around the South Shore and see the exciting work being done by so many creative students. This is always a highlight of our exhibition calendar and we are very pleased to be working with the many art teachers who help young artists create at a very high level," said Heather Collins, director of community programs at the Art Center.

Art Forum will be on view through May 16. South Shore Art Center galleries are open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and noon to 4 p.m., on Sundays. For more information on the Art Center's exhibitions and education programs, visit www.ssac.org.

Cohasset students star in Derby's production of 'Oklahoma!'

More than 50 Upper School students at Derby Academy gathered together to perform Rodger's and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" Among those students were nine Cohasset residents. The production took place in March in Derby Academy's Larson Hall.

Mark McKenna, an eighth-grader, played the lead role of Curly McLain, a cowboy.

Jacob Osmanski, an eighth-grader, played the role of Slim, a farmer.

Loch Roberts, grade eight, and Tristan Roy, grade seven, both played cowboys in the production.

Elanor West, grade eight, and Freya Roberts, grade seven, both played cowgirls in the production.

Eighth-grader Katie McKenna, and seventh-graders Morgan Montgomery and Gabby Weissman, all played cowgirls in the production.

Bravo to these Derby students for their hard work!

Woman POWER

Simmons MBA offers talented women a leg up in the world of business

By Kristine Lundblad
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

BOSTON – In these days of heightened global awareness, a rich variety of perspectives and multimedia everything everywhere, it might seem quaint for a student to choose an all-women's college to study for her MBA.

But Simmons College's popular program is brimming with enthusiastic and talented women ready to make their marks on the business world.

Simmons School of Management has offered its MBA program specifically for women since 1975. But how does it differ from other business schools and why is a master's of business administration degree relevant today?

Assistant professor Fiona Wilson got her MBA at Simmons and has taught there for eight years.

"There's a lot of misconceptions – Mars vs. Venus – but what we do around gender is not that," said Wilson. "What and how we teach is grounded in 20 years of research. We put an overlay over that about gender in leadership. Yes, there's been amazing progress for women, but still, there's less than 10 percent in the 'C-suite' (CEOs, etc.)

"We help our grads to really understand how gender plays out (in organizations), help them harness that knowledge strategically. It's not just about having the knowledge but using the knowledge."

And research by groups such at the National Center for Education Statistics and the Catalyst Group points out gender inequality in the workplace despite women graduating with advanced degrees in record numbers.

"Women are still being passed over for promotion, are paid less," said Wilson. "There is still this opportunity to get more women (into the top echelon)."

Wilson has made her mark on the Simmons program as well. She was a media strategist for 10 years prior to her teaching career, and now teaches strategy to Simmons MBA candidates.

"I noticed they really weren't talking about business models, saving strategy for the end (of a student's MBA program)," she said. "It's really important to do that at the end but, I thought, let's also do it in their very first semester."

Now Simmons offers an introductory class in strategy at the beginning of the course of study, as well a capstone program near the end. This new innovation began in September, and Wilson said students are "connecting the dots more."

The average age of a Simmons MBA student is 30 or 31, which is a little older than some programs, Wilson said, and about one-third are full-time students.

"Our age range is from 23, 24 to women in their 40s," she said. "This makes Simmons somewhat unique." Applicants are required to have at least two years of work experience as well.

"There's a rich variety of perspectives (with the age range of students). You do have people bring in their experiences and memories – like Watergate – and the younger students can talk about how social media affects (the way they work)."

Wilson said an MBA is needed today more than ever.

"The world needs people with holistic, strategic, innovative perspectives," she said. "We have big thorny issues (in all sectors of business) and also opportunities. The value of an MBA is people can lead on a strategic level."

Jenna Toplin realized she wanted to pursue an MBA after working in the nonprofit sector for more than three years.

"It really gave me an eye into the diverse skill sets that are needed in organizations," said Toplin, a Philadelphia native. "I had a good foundation, but (I knew) I had a lot to learn.

"I was (doing these tasks, like preparing budgets and managing people) but not with that much confidence. I see myself somewhat as a natural leader but there's more to it than just intuition. I thought the MBA would give me ... the formal knowledge and business know-how."

GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE PHOTO BY MELISSA OSTROW

Assistant Professor Fiona Wilson talks about the Simmons MBA program at the Simmons School of Management in Boston recently.

But Toplin did not initially want to attend an all-women's school. After all, there are men everywhere – she'll be working with them when she graduates – and what good would there be to learning with just women?

But after attending an information session at the school, and hearing from the graduates and professors, she was eager to enroll.

"I think what happens (is) there is an understanding, an awareness (between the female students)," she said. "There are different experiences we all come in with. What stood out to me in my first few weeks was the types and level of conversations that took place. It wouldn't happen elsewhere.

"It's an opportunity to build confidence, to prepare and build (together)."

According to Wilson, the "parts" of business are not rocket science unto themselves – accounting, labor relations, ethics, marketing, and so on. "The real challenge is to put it all together," she said. "An MBA helps the student figure (that) out. That's the hard part, putting it all together."

An MBA Online Information Session takes place Tuesday, May 11, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. For more information or to register, call 617-521-3840 or visit somevents.simmons.edu.

According to Simmons' website, the MBA program requires satisfactory completion of 48 credit hours of coursework. The current tuition is $1,155per credit hour.

More information about the Simmons program can be found at www.simmons.edu/som/mba.

The fifth grade volunteers for Favorites 2010 hold up signs for the annual show in front of a bulletin board full of the creative expression of Deer Hill students. Every student at the Deer Hill School picked their favorite piece of art that they worked on during the school year.

The fifth grade volunteers peek underneath the paper to see how the mural turned out for Favorites 2010. "Favorites 2010," represents the artwork of all Deer Hill students and will be on exhibit until May 12. Each student has chosen his/her favorite artwork of the year to be included in this exhibit.

The official helpers of "Favorites 2010," point to the newest mural, which has been added to the Deer Hill Wall. The theme of the mural is music, and its impact on the students' lives. The mural will be dedicated in memory of Michelle Claassen who died tragically last year at the age of 34. She was a beloved music teacher at both the Deer Hill School and Osgood.

Italian restaurant to open in Cohasset

In former Bernard's space

The menu will include Italian favorites such as chicken Parmesan and pizza.

The brown-papered windows of the restaurant where Bernard's was for more than a decade will soon be removed to reveal — Ava Cucina — an Italian name that translates into "Grandmother's Kitchen." The space is currently being renovated and updated by new owners Annette and Vincent Agostino, both of whom have ties to local South Shore restaurants.

The menu will include Italian favorites such as chicken Parmesan and pizza. Meals will also start and finish in traditional fashion with everything from calamari to cannolis. Only one item on the menu is priced more than $20.

"We want it to feel like patrons are sitting in their grandmother's kitchen," says co-owner Annette Agostino. "We're hoping that Ava Cucina will also translate into "affordable comfort food" for the foodies in Cohasset."

More details and the much anticipated opening date will appear in new week's Mariner.

IT Security course offered June 14

John McNabb, President of South Shore PC Services in Cohasset, is teaching a course in IT security on June 14 at the Boston Center for Adult Education (BCAE).

In this course, "Computer Security: Protecting your PC, Your Data and Your Identity," McNabb will discuss computer viruses and other malware which infect hundreds of thousands of computers each year, causing loss of data, stolen funds, and identity theft, and will describe how you can surf the internet and use your computer safely.

This course will review the potential risks of infection of your computer, the history and emerging trends in malware, the different types of malware, and what measures you can take to protect yourself. Every attendee will get a DVD containing many freeware programs to help protect their computer, video tutorials, and other informational materials.

The course will be provided in one session, 6 to 9 p.m. on Monday, June 14, at the Boston Center for Adult Education at 122 Arlington St., Boston. Registration for the course is through the BCAE website, www.bcae.org or by calling BCAE at 617-267-4430.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE
WEEK OF MAY 17, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be a bit shaken by a friend's request. But before the Lamb leaps to conclusions, insist on a full explanation. You still might say no, but at least you'll know what you're saying no to.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seeing red over those nasty remarks by someone with an ax to grind? Of course you are. So get out there and give your supporters the facts they need to get the truth out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A changing situation should get you to reassess your vacation plans and make any adjustments as soon as possible. And don't fret — the change most likely will turn out for the better.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't put off dealing with any negative feelings that might be left over from a recent confrontation. The sooner all is resolved, the sooner you can move forward with fewer complications.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas might feel the urge to redecorate their dens, and that can turn into a good opportunity to strengthen family ties by putting the whole pride to work to make it happen.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Look for the most efficient way to get a job done quickly and well. Taking more time than you need to make it look more challenging is a short-sighted move you might regret later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Travel remains strong in your aspect. And this time, it could involve someone traveling a great distance to come to see you. Meanwhile, an important matter suddenly could need your attention.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A workplace situation becomes a lot more bothersome than you'd expected. Be careful not to be pulled into all that anger. Look for support among others who also want to avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Cheer up, lonely lovers, wherever you are. Just when you thought you'd been deleted from Cupid's database, the chubby cherub proves that's just not so. Congratulations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A casual relationship could take a more serious turn. Are you ready for it? Your stars say you are. Paired Sea Goats also will find a renewed richness in their relationships.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Meeting a collaborator with new ideas seems to be a dream come true. But for both your sakes, be sure all your legal i's are dotted and t's are crossed before you start working together.

PISCES (February 19 to March 21) A romantic overture flatters the usually unflappable Fish. But since it's a sincere from-the-heart gesture, go ahead an enjoy it. A minor health problem responds well to treatment.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

WORSHIP NOTES

Spiritual retreat

An interfaith spiritual retreat for people living with Parkinson's disease, dystonia, tremor and similar conditions will take place at Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., on Saturday, May 22. "Moving in the Spirit, will feature adaptive yoga, chair massage, discussion, guided meditation and prayer. Cost is $4, and lunch will be included. The program is offered by the Spirited Movement Foundation, a Cohasset-based nonprofit dedicated to serving people with movement disorders.

"My team and I are thrilled to offer this retreat at Glastonbury Abbey. It is the perfect place to offer a day focused on healing and wholeness," said Lindsay McGrath, the Cohasset resident who heads up the group. McGrath is a trained hospital chaplain who holds a master of divinity degree from Boston University School of Theology. She lives with a movement disorder called cervical dystonia that effects her neck and shoulder muscles. The day will feature chair-supported yoga with Renee Le Verrier author of "Yoga for Movement Disorders" (Merit Books). Jennifer Greenwood and her staff from Healing Touch Therapies in Scituate will provide gentle chair massage.

The Spirited Movement Foundation has received support from the American Parkinson Disease Association, Allergan Inc. and Gentiva Home Health.

COHASSET – Mary Louise Bertoni, passed away peacefully, with her family by her side, on April 24th , at the age of 71. She was a caring and compassionate woman known for her generosity and for her dedication to her family and to her faith. She will be missed.

Mary was born in Boston on January 13, 1939. She and John A. Bertoni were married on May 28, 1960. They were to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary this month. Mary had the opportunity and experience of living abroad and traveling to many parts of the world, but was happiest when she was traveling to be with her 5 grandchildren.

Mary was preceded in death by her father, Romeo Tolini. She is survived by her husband John A. Bertoni; her mother Eva Tolini; daughters, Joanne Tsai (Daniel) of Atkinson, N.H. and Judith Epstein (David) of Tiburon, CA.; and son John S. Bertoni (Jamie) of Bernardsville, N.J.; grandchildren Sebastian Tsai, Benjamin and Nicolas Epstein and Mary and Ava Bertoni; brothers, Charles Tolini (Anna) of Harwichport, MA, Edward Tolini (Susanna) of Watertown, MA and Richard Tolini (Fran) of Stratham, NH.

Friends and family celebrated her life at a Mass of Christian Burial to be held on May 6, 2010 at 10 a.m. at Blessed Mother Teresa at St. Margaret's Church, 800 Columbia Rd., Dorchester.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent, in Mary's name, to MGH Cancer Center, 165 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02114.

Ted Neeley in the title role in "Jesus Christ Superstar,"

Ted Neeley bids farewell to 'Jesus Christ Superstar'

Boston audiences have a chance to witness theater history this weekend when Ted Neeley makes his farewell appearance in the title role in "Jesus Christ Superstar," Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber's landmark musical, at Boston's Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre.

Neeley's Golden Globe nominated performance as Jesus in the 1973 Norman Jewison film of "Jesus Christ Superstar" made him an international star. Neeley has toured, on and off, with the stage version of the show ever since. Now 66, the Texas-born Neeley has decided that he will give his final performance, in his most famous role, in Boston.

With a rock opera score that includes "I Don't Know How To Love Him," "Could We Start Again Please" and of course, "Superstar," the musical – which opened on Broadway on October 12, 1971 - is credited with making rock music acceptable in church. Nearly 40 years after its New York premiere, the musical continues to touch audiences with the emotional intensity of its epic retelling of the St. John's Gospel account of the last seven days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth.

Ted Neeley will star in "Jesus Christ Superstar" at the Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., Boston, for five performances only, May 7 through 9. Tickets are available at the box office, online at www.citicenter.org or by calling 866-348-9738. Discounted tickets are available for groups of 12 or more by calling Citi Performing Arts Center Group Sales at 617-532-1116.

Doing double duty

First 'Trailer Park Musical', then 'Sophie Tucker' for local performer

The journey from suburban Weymouth to a Florida trailer park and then on to the burlesque and vaudeville stages of the 1920s would be more than most people, or their GPS devices, could handle. For performer Mary Callanan, however, it is all in a day's work. Or at least it will be for the next few months as she stars in "The Great American Trailer Park Musical" at Boston's SpeakEasy Stage through May 30, and then the New Repertory Theatre's "Sophie Tucker: The Last of the Red Hot Mamas," June 26–July 11, in Watertown.

Callanan's upcoming gigs mark two firsts in her long career. The SpeakEasy show will have her sharing the stage for the first time ever with both Leigh Barrett and Kerry A. Dowling, her longtime friends and fellow fixtures on the Boston theater scene. In addition, her summer stint will mark not only Callanan's New Rep debut, but also the first time the cabaret favorite has done a one-woman musical. But before she dons the gowns and wigs that go along with playing the legendary Tucker, Callanan will be dressing decidedly more casually.

"This is the very first time that Leigh, Kerry, and I have ever been in a show together. We're all confident, strong performers with big voices so we've always joked that we'd never find a stage big enough for all three of us. Then SpeakEasy Producing Artistic Director Paul Daigneault called each of us and said, 'I have a dream to put the three of you together in one show where you can all sing your hearts out.' As it turned out, that show was 'The Great American Trailer Park Musical' and we're now all very excited to finally be working together," explained Callanan by telephone from her South Weymouth home recently.

Mary Callanan

"My very first show in Boston was called 'Front Row Center' at the old Theatre Lobby in the North End. Leigh was in it, too. That was about 20 years ago and Leigh was also very much a newcomer. Leigh and I also did 'Follies in Concert' with Len Cariou for Overture Productions in 2003, and before that we did 'Sunday in the Park with George' and 'Nuncrackers' at Lyric Stage. And Kerry was in 'Violet' and 'Bat Boy,' the two earlier shows I did for SpeakEasy. Kerry and I have also done several benefit appearances together over the years. Working together in this show, however, has been more fun than any of us ever thought it would be. I don't think any of us has ever laughed so much in a rehearsal. Leigh, Kerry, and I are good friends, of course, but everyone in this cast knows each other from somewhere. There's been no foolishness of the 'watch me, and I'll show you how it's done' variety. It has just been a very fun rehearsal process."

Fun, and probably funny, too, if the themes explored by the long-running off-Broadway musical – including agoraphobia, adultery, kleptomania and hysterical pregnancy – are any indication. Daigneault directs a seven-member cast, which includes Broadway performer and Fall River native David Benoit ("Avenue Q"). With music and lyrics by David Nehls, and book by Betsy Kelso, the musical is the story of a North Florida couple, played by Barrett and Benoit, whose 20-year marriage is threatened when the wife won't leave the trailer and the husband won't takes his eyes off a stripper named Pippi.

"Kerry, a terrific Boston Conservatory student by the name of Santina Umbach, and I play a kind of Greek chorus telling Leigh and David's story," says Callanan, who is quick to point out that the low-income storyline hasn't diminished the cast's respect for their characters. "We're not making fun of anyone. These are real people living real lives. And you can't help but identify with the themes of friends helping friends, and friends as family."

For Callanan – whose cabaret act with accompanist Brian Patton of Hanson has been presented everywhere from Provincetown, Norwell, and North Quincy to Boston – a good musical is all about the songs.

"The score is all in-your-face belting in a musical theater-meets-rockabilly style which I am loving getting the chance to sing."

Callanan is also enjoying the preparation for her summer show.

"I had met with New Rep Artistic Director Kate Warner about another show and when she decided to pass on that one she asked me about doing Sophie Tucker for them. Sophie Tucker did what I do – she sang and she was funny – so this project was immediately appealing to me."

Tucker passed away in 1966 at age 82, however, so Callanan knew the Russian-born singer was probably only remembered by people of a certain age.

"Sophie Tucker came along before television and even movies. In this show, I am playing her when she was in her 40s which would have been the 1920s. This was her real heyday as a singer and entertainer," says Callanan, who gained access to Tucker's papers at Brandeis University with help from director Scott Edmiston, who heads the Office of the Arts at the Waltham school.

"Sophie was first and foremost a singer who could sell great songs like 'I'm the Last of the Red Hot Mamas' and her signature song, 'Some of These Days.' She was never a beauty, however, and that held her back for a long time. Theater owners made her perform in black face, because they believed that she was 'too fat and too ugly' to be accepted by audiences any other. She never gave up, instead choosing to fight for the career she always wanted. Eventually, she proved the world wrong and became the star she was meant to be."

Mary Callanan will be seen in the SpeakEasy Stage Company production of "The Great American Trailer Park Musical" at the Roberts Studio Theatre in the Calderwood Pavilion at the Boston Center for the Arts, 527 Tremont St., Boston, April 30-May 30. For tickets and information, call 617-933-8600 or go online at SpeakEasyStage.com. Callanan will star in the New Repertory Theatre's "Sophie Tucker: The Last of the Red Hot Mamas," June 26-July 11, at the Charles Mosesian Theatre in the Arsenal Center for the Arts, 321 Arsenal St., Watertown. For tickets and information, call 617-923-8487 or go online at newrep.org

Ball in the House

Ball in the House and art show in Hingham

Ball in the House, a contemporary vocal group that takes a cappella to the highest level, will be performing at Second Parish Church, 685 Main St. Hingham on Saturday, May 8, at 3 p.m. The all-male, Boston-based quintet has astounded audiences of all ages on its national tours, creating distinctive pop and R&B harmonies with its unique use of vocal drums/beatbox and vocal bass. Tickets to hear the group – winner of the 2009 Best of Boston Award for musical entertainers – are available online now at brownpapertickets.com and at the Second Parish Art Show, 685 Main Street, Route 228, Hingham, starting May 5. Advance sale tickets, $15; at the door, $20. A wine-and-cheese reception will follow the performance in conjunction with the church art show. All are welcome.

The work of scores of talented artists from Boston, the South Shore, Cape Cod and other New England areas will be on exhibit and for sale from May 6 through May 16 at Hingham's 54th Annual Second Parish Art Show. The popular spring event features artwork in many mediums — including oil, watercolor, pastels and photography — and fine crafts ranging from full size and miniature decoys, pottery, and jewelry to wood carvings, quilts and lots more. The show, with its distinctive and wide array of wonderful gifts and decorative accents for the home, will be held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and from noon to 4 p.m. Sundays at Second Parish Church, 685 Main St., Route 228, Hingham.

Artwork by Dianne Panarelli Miller

A junior exhibit will be held in conjunction with the art show featuring student work from both individuals and local schools. All entries from preschool through high school are welcome. The Junior Show is partially funded by the Hingham Cultural Council.

In August 1989, Cohasset resident Peter Roy bought The Oaks for nearly $3 million. At the time it was the largest residential real estate transaction ever made in Cohasset. The Oaks and several other Roy harbor-front properties are on the market for $55 million.

Roy seeks to sell harbor properties

"We don't know if the buyer will be a local person or from Europe. We're assuming we don't know where the buyer will come from and we're going world-wide with this offer."
— Jonathan Radford, Coldwell Banker

A handful of Cohasset's most iconic and well-known properties are up for sale.

For $55 million the majority of Cohasset Harbor's waterfront property — the vine-covered brick estate and its sprawling grounds dubbed "The Oaks," Atlantica and the Olde Salt House, the Mill River Marina and the Cohasset Harbor Inn — could be yours.

Announced on Wednesday morning, the impressive real estate portfolio Cohasset resident and businessman Peter Roy has acquired over the last 20 years is on the market and seeking a deep-pocketed buyer.

The residential and business opportunity could draw interest from around the world, but it most definitely will pique the interest of local residents who know the importance of the properties to the harbor and the town as a whole.

"Obviously it is an extremely important area for Cohasset; our community is identified by the Common and the harbor. It is important for the town to maintain its image, but we certainly welcome new people and new business," said Selectmen Chairman Karen Quigley. "The Roys have been good neighbors and we'll be sorry to see them go."

Roy and his Canadian-born wife, Leah, and three children intend to move to Canada.

"The Roys have never made a secret of the fact they were going to move to Canada when the time was right," said Jonathan Radford of Coldwell Banker, the properties' listing agent and agency. Roy is from a wealthy South Shore

A 'drenched' Special Town Meeting

Water Planning Group wades through recommendations

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The combination of solutions is not cheap and would potentially affect water rates and property taxes.

Ready or not the water department financial issues are headed for the primetime.

On Monday, June 14, a Special Town Meeting will put the Water Department front and center.

And get ready, because there will be a lot to consider — and it's not pretty from anyone's point of view.

Voters will need to decide on a town operational budget override, a water rate increase, capital projects and the means to cover a current year budget deficit.

The combination of solutions is not cheap and would potentially affect water rates and property taxes.

On Tuesday night the Water Planning Group, the special task force assigned to water department's fiscal crisis, drafted its recommendations for the Board of Selectmen and the town. The group has been meeting weekly since late March to review the water department's budget, operation and pricing.

Earlier this year it came to light that the water department, which operated on what is designed to be a self-sufficient enterprise fund, was facing more than a $600,000 deficit in the current fiscal year (ending June 30), and a $1 million deficit in the next fiscal year (beginning July 1).

The reasons for the shortfall are complicated and are still being analyzed (see sidebar), but the water planning group, in the near-term, is focused on how to address this year and next year's budget.

"This is not the end of it; it's the beginning," said Ed Lappen, representative from the Advisory Committee.

The financial issues are urgent because the current fiscal year's books (closing on June 30) have to end up balanced. The water department's budget was not considered with the rest of town's operational budget at Annual Town Meeting, but needs to be adopted before June 30.

The recommendations from the special task force will be reviewed in a joint meeting with the committee, Board of Selectmen and Advisory Committee Monday (May 17) night at 7p.m. The South Shore Athletic Club opened at the brand new Old Colony Square on Route 3A three weeks ago. The Mariner caught up with owner Jill Murmes and executive director Kelsey Michaels at the athletic club this week. Four hundred people have already become members and the business has entered a partnership with the Cohasset Triathlon to serve as its official training center.

Names: Jill Murmes and Kelsey Michaels.

Occupation: Exercise physiologist and owner and operator of South Shore Athletic Club (Jill). Executive Director of the South Shore Athletic Club (Kelsey).

Best day of your life: The days I gave birth to my two children, Danielle and Andrew (Jill). When I, as a small town girl from Scituate, took on and achieved success in New York City (Kelsey).

Best vacation: Having ice hockey players, our holidays are spent in hotels all over New England, but Lake Placid was definitely the most fun (Jill). Key West, Florida (Kelsey).

Favorite season: Spring (Jill). Spring, it's not too cold and not too hot! (Kelsey).

Favorite junk food: Nutrageous candy bars (Jill). Starburst candy (Kelsey).

Best book: A good romance novel (Jill). "The Kite Runner" (Kelsey).

Best movie: "Pretty Woman" (Jill). "Mystic River" (Kelsey).

Best TV show: HGTV's House Hunters International (Jill). Criminal Minds (Kelsey).

Favorite music or artist: Earth, Wind, and Fire (Jill). Sade (Kelsey).

Fun fact about yourself: I have been a fitness trainer for the last 30 years and now am excited to have the opportunity to own South Shore Athletic Club (Jill). I enjoy white water rafting with my puppy, "Tootsie" (Kelsey).

Pet peeve: People who are late (Jill). Where do I begin? Non-punctual people, wasting time, entitlement…(Kelsey).

Goal: To keep my husband and children happy and healthy (Jill). To live a healthy lifestyle and to encourage and support others in doing so (Kelsey).

Person you'd most like to meet: Barbara Walters (Jill). Lance Armstrong (Kelsey).

Biggest worry: I try not to; I leave that to my husband…why should both of us stress? (Jill). Not spending enough time with my 10-pound shih-poo, "Tootsie" (Kelsey).

Best part of Cohasset: The people are laid back, warm, friendly and welcoming. The architecture of the homes and the ocean are the gem of the South Shore (Jill). No traffic and having a backyard (in comparison to NYC) (Kelsey).

GATEHOUSE MEDIA/GREG DERR

Officers honored for outstanding service

The following is the narrative from the Cohasset Police Department on why the officers received the 2010 Dana Award:

Police Officer Francis Yannizzi

On March 13, 2010, at about 2 p.m., the Cohasset Police 9-1-1 center received a frantic call from a female reporting that her (16) year-old son was fighting with his father and the boy had a knife in his hand.

When officer Yannizzi arrived he observed the fight to be in progress, with the boy on top of his father. The boy was choking his father with his left hand and holding the knife above the male with his right hand. The father was holding the boy's right hand with both of his hands, in an effort to keep from being stabbed. Yannizzi immediately jumped on the boy and disarmed him.

Yannizzi's immediate response to the scene and his quick actions diffused a potentially explosive situation, probably saving the man's life. Despite being faced with a life-threatening situation, Yannizzi showed great courage and restraint in disarming the suspect without the use of deadly force. Yannizzi's actions, in the face of a critical situation, represent the highest standards of police conduct and training and reflect distinct credit upon himself and the Cohasset Police Department.

Police Officer Patrick Reardon

On March 21, 2010, at about 4:50 p.m., Police Officer Patrick Reardon observed a male that was the subject of a daylong manhunt in Cohasset. The male burglarized a house, assaulted a Cohasset Police Officer, and was wanted on warrants out of Virginia. To elude capture earlier, the male ran from officers and K-9's, swam almost one-half mile in 40-degree ocean water, and burglarized a second Cohasset home, where he hid in a vehicle trunk for hours.

This male, when spotted by Reardon, was ordered out of a car at gunpoint. He refused to obey the officer's commands and a lengthy foot pursuit followed. Reardon, without the benefit of back up, and at great risk to himself, relentlessly pursued the male over fences, through yards, and down streets. Reardon caught-up with the suspect and had to use OC pepper spray to disable the man.

Reardon's quick and professional actions took a dangerous person off the streets in the highest regards of the Cohasset Police Department.

POLICE BEAT

Monitoring traffic at 3A/Pond Street light

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

In response to complaints about vehicles running the red light on a consistent basis on Route 3A at Pond Street, as well as feedback from Chief Mark DeLuca's 2010 Community Survey — where traffic violations were flagged as a "serious problem" amongst respondents — Cohasset police have had an increased presence in the area.

This week Cohasset police received a complaint about the police presence. The woman told police she did not like the officer sitting on the corner "pulling over high school kids" and said she would write a letter to the Mariner.

Lt. William Quigley said high visibility "saturation patrols" are one of the many community policing tools that police use to send a message to change behavior along Route 3A. He said most of the problems at that light do not involve high school students but do involve rushed parents and commuters.

"There have been serious accidents along Route 3A lately where people have sustained life changing injuries," he said. "We are trying to change behaviors, that is why we are out there. In most cases, officers check the offenders driving record on their mobile computer and if there is no pattern of dangerous driving, the violator is sent on their way with a written warning. Subsequent offenders may not fare so well depending on the circumstances — the fine for running a red light is $100." Lt. Quigley is the town's traffic safety officer.

Expired licenses

• A 45-year-old Cohasset man is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation and having an expired inspection sticker. A police officer, who was behind the car, stopped the Toyota Corolla the man was driving on Route 3A by lower King Street at about 12:20 p.m. on Monday (May 3) after seeing the expired sticker on the plate. The officer ran a registry check that revealed the registered owner was unlicensed as well. The man's license expired on his birthday last month. The car was moved to Robbins Garage, police said.

• A 48-year-old Cohasset woman driving a 2000 Volvo station wagon was stopped on Sohier Street by the Music Circus for defective equipment (headlight out) at about 9:12 p.m. on Tuesday (May 4). A computer check revealed her licensed had expired and she is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation.

Police urge motorists to check the expiration date of their driver's license because the Registry no longer sends out renewal reminders.

Shoplifting

• A 61-year-old Hull woman, who was shopping with her 85-year-old mother, is being summonsed to court for shoplifting after being ca:ght on video surveillance at Shaw's scanning $5 worthof items in the self-checkout and not paying for $80 in other groceries. The incident occurred at about 2:34 p.m. on Wednesday (May 5). The woman was also issued a no-trespass order to stay out of Shaw's, police said.

Going fishing

Police investigated a report of suspicious activity involving six "kids" in a maroon 1998 Toyota Corolla that had pulled up into a driveway by Jerusalem Road and Atlantic Avenue at about 4:20 p.m. on Monday (May 3) and then drove off when the resident came out. The resident provided the plate number and police stopped the car about 10 minutes later on Jerusalem Road. Police said the teens, who were from Hull, were looking for a place to fish and there was fishing equipment inside the car.

Garage

A resident on Highland Avenue called police at about 8:40 p.m. on Monday (May 3) that someone may have entered his garage. An officer walked through the garage with the caller and nothing had been disturbed. Police also checked the area.

Cell phone stolen

The parent of a girl at Cohasset High notified police after the girl's cell phone was stolen following a lacrosse game with Scituate at CHS last Tuesday (May 4). The call to police was made about 5:40 p.m. Police said the game was rained out and therefore, players from both schools went inside. The 14-year-old victim put her gym bag under a table and when she returned to retrieve it found that someone had picked up her bag and rummaged through it. Her iPhone was missing, police said. The theft was reported to the Athletic Director and a review of surveillance tapes showed a boy stealing the phone. Police said the boy was identified as a 17-year-old Scituate High student. The 14-year-old's parents decided to let the Scituate schools han-

Red Lion hearing is off

On Chief Mark DeLuca's recommendation the Board of Selectmen withdrew its request for a public hearing on the Red Lion Inn's liquor license. In March, DeLuca requested the Selectmen hold a public hearing in response to three incidents at the Red Lion involving alcohol.

At the public hearing the Board of Selectmen would have heard from the police and the establishment then determine if the Red Lion Inn violated the terms of its liquor license in any of the instances.

Town Manager Bill Griffin said DeLuca reviewed the incident reports and believed it was more effective for him and his staff to address the matters directly with the ownership and management rather than a public hearing. Griffin also said town counsel was consulted in the review.

"I'm uncomfortable with this, but I bow to the chief," Selectman Paul Carlson said.

Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr asked Griffin to have the Chief follow up with the board.

Old Colony Square

The Board of Selectmen signed the regulatory agreement that will bring two affordable housing units to Cohasset. The Old Colony Square mixed-use, transit-oriented district off Route 3A by the train station, has 16 apartments, two of which will be considered affordable by state standards.

The agreement is critical to ensuring the two affordable units "count" toward the town's affordable unit inventory under Chapter 40-B, the state's affordable housing law.

The developer, Connell Cohasset Greenbush LLC, is looking to have occupancy in the apartment units early this summer. A lottery will be held for the affordable units, one of which will have a local preference stipulation.

Keno to go

Marylou's News is coming to Cohasset. The pink sign has gone up at the former Cohasset Food Mart space on Route 3A in the Jonathan Livingstone Plaza. The business is seeking a Keno-To-Go license from the state lottery division.

On Monday night, Town Manager Bill Griffin confirmed with the board that they had no objections to the license. If they did object there is an appeal process. There is one other Keno-To-Go license in Cohasset at Tedeschi's in the village.

Selectmen wish astronaut well

Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr noted that Cohasset's own astronaut, 1982 CHS grad Steve Bowen, would be blasting off to space today, Friday, May 14.

Navy Capt. Bowen is scheduled for launch aboard STS-132 Atlantis. It is one of the final space shuttle flights for NASA. Bowen and his five astronaut crewmates will deliver a Russian-built Mini Research Module to the International Space Station (ISS) during their 12-day orbital flight. Bowen is set to take two space walks on the flight.

NASA selected Bowen as an astronaut in 2000. He flew in space aboard STS-126 Endeavour in November 2008.

"We want to wish him well," Carr said.

The Cohasset flag is being taken up with Bowen and the shuttle. The Board of Selectmen chose the flag, which is being sold by the Cohasset Historical Society, to represent Bowen's hometown on the flight.

dle the matter. The phone was returned, police said.

Tailgating

Police spoke to the driver of a large Dodge Ram pickup truck after a motorist reported the truck had been tailgating her along Route 3A at about 11:15 a.m. on Wednesday (May 5). Police said the truck driver said he did not realize he had been tailgating.

Junior operator

Police spoke to the parents of a girl, who recently got her license, after a concerned citizen told police they saw a young looking driver pass by with young passengers. Police said investigation revealed that it appeared the girl did have some passengers and her parents told police they would intervene. A Junior Operator is a licensed driver between the ages of 16-1/2 and 18 years of age. The purpose of the Junior Operator Law is to provide junior operators with an opportunity to develop good driving skills, while being free of possible distractions caused by having friends in the car their own age while behind the wheel.

Pedestrian accident

A 17-year-old boy from Whitman operating a 1999 Ford Explorer was trying to pull into a parking space in Tedeschi Plaza in front of CVS at about 7 p.m. on Friday (May 7) when he was blinded by solar glare and did not see a 72-year-old pedestrian walking across. The SUV tapped the man and he fell, cutting his elbow. The man refused medical treatment. The boy, who was not cited based on witness statements and officer investigation, was going slowly, police said. The solar glare was particularly bad that day.

TOWN MEETING

Water Planning Group wades through recommendations

Town Meeting warrant goes to press at the end of next week (May 21).

The Water Planning Group is making four broad recommendations as to how the town should address the most immediate financial problems facing the water department:

• Fiscal 2010 budget deficit

To cover what is looking like a water department budget deficit in the $600,000 to $700,000 range the Water Planning Group is looking to multiple sources. All are one-time revenue sources/savings.

First, the town is expecting a $100,000 payment from the Cook Estate development as they tie in to the water system. Second, the town would receive a $335,000 settlement payment from Avalon Bay development once a building permit is issued, which could be in time for June 30. Third, the Water Commission is seeking a two-month payment deferral of the American Water Company contract contingent on an extension of the contract. The current contract expires in 2012. The deferred payment would be paid sometime in the future with interest, but a current savings of $208,000 is possible. These items total $643,000.

The remaining deficit, number to be determined, would be covered by a transfer from the stabilization fund to the water department; an action that needs Town Meeting approval.

• Override for Fiscal 2011

A $300,000 operational budget override for fiscal 2011 will be sought to cover the fire protection and hydrant maintenance throughout the town. This cost historically was in the town side of the budget, but over the years the water department began to see less and less of the amount as the town's budget got tighter. In 2007, the hydrant fee was moved over to the water users and became a line item on the water bills.

In addition, cost savings have been and will continue to be sought, the group said.

If the override fails to pass, the town is liable for the shortfall. Town departments (and possibly the school department) will need to be cut their budgets and/or reserved utilized.

• Rate increase

The proposal on the table is for the majority of residential customers to see a $75 per quarter increase in the "fixed cost" portion of the water bill, which will be re-named "capital recovery charge." For most customers it will be jump from $112 to $187.

The usage rate tied directly to water consumption will rise 10 percent for tier 1 and tier 2.

For 87 percent of customers the new rate structure means a 50 percent or less increase in water bills. About half of the water department's customers will be in the 20 to 40 percent increase range. The amount of bill increase will differ depending on water usage.

A third rate tier will be created for customers that consume over 5000 cubic feet of water. A 20 increase in the usage fee percent surcharge will be added for the water used over and above 5000 cubic feet.

• Capital requests

A total of $300,000 in capital projects will be requested of Town Meeting for three projects. First, a new scheme for the sludge lagoons, which hold the waste products of the treatment process, is requested for $100,000. Water Commissioner Glenn Pratt said the new scheme would pay for itself in a year's time. Second, $50,000 is needed to implement a "phosphate program" at the water plant to improve the issues of discolored water. And last, $150,000 is proposed to wrap up the remaining items of the Little Harbor project.

The committee proposing paying for these capital improvements through an estimated $4 increase in the fixed rate for the next year (fiscal 2012).

Issue in a nutshell

The Water Department operates with an enterprise fund, which means it is designed to be a self-sufficient operation relying on revenue from water users and other sources to meet its expenses. This year and next the actual and projected revenues are not meeting the expenses.

The issue is important for both water users and taxpayers (about 285 homes are on the Aquarion water) because with the projected shortfall for the coming fiscal year, water users will be asked to pay higher water bills to cover it a significant it (it would be the third rate increase in four years) and/or the town operating budget would be need to use its reserves and budget cuts to cover the shortfall.

A perfect storm of unrealized revenue sources has put the water department in this financial predicament. The current year's fiscal budget relied on more revenue coming from its sole wholesale customer, Linden Ponds, which stopped construction last year (loss of $165,000); it assumed receipt of the first of two parts in a legal settlement with Avalon Bay development company expected to come in when the project breaks ground (loss of $335,000); and the rainiest summer in five years left many not using their sprinkler system (expected water user revenue is off $500,000).

To compound the water department's financial issues is the vast amount of debt the department has taken on over the past 15 years. Each allocation was approved by Town Meeting and now the biggest years for repayment are upon the town.

In fiscal 2010, debt service made up 54 percent ($2.695 million) of the budget. In fiscal 2011, debt service is expected to consume 63.5 percent, approximately ($2.97 million) of the total water department budget.

Forum on phosphate program Wednesday

This coming Wednesday (May 19) the Water Commission is holding a forum to discuss plans to add phosphate to the water leaving the plant in early June. According to the water department, the chemical will help to eliminate the leaching of lead from household plumbing fixtures, and will help reduce the occurrence of discolored water from manganese.

During the initial conditioning period, the use of phosphate may result in an accelerated cleaning of scale and tuberculation from the pipe surface, resulting in discolored (orange color) water, turbidity or suspended solids.

The meeting will take place at 7p.m. at the Deer Hill School cafeteria.

Avalon is coming

Selectmen discuss adding 20 units and friendly 40-B

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Avalon developers are seeking to convert their traditional comprehensive permit to a local initiative program project: in short, an affordable housing project supported by the town

The Avalon apartment complex to be sited on over 60 acres off Route 3A is on the brink of breaking ground.

Scott Dale, Avalon vice president and project manager for the Avalon Cohasset, said the company is preparing documents and will begin to review the final plans with the building inspector in the coming month.

The 200-unit apartment complex received a comprehensive permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals over six years ago. Issues over wastewater treatment held up the project for several years.

Avalon is ready to move ahead, but approval from the Board of Selectmen is needed to do so on two different levels. The Avalon developers are seeking to convert their traditional comprehensive permit to a local initiative program project: in short, an affordable housing project supported by the town. They are also seeking support for a small expansion of the long-approved project.

The developers are seeking to re-classify the project as a "local initiative project," or LIP. As a LIP application, Avalon can self-fund the project with its own capital. Under the comprehensive permit scenario, funding sources from the state, which have dried up due to the economy, are needed.

Avalon is looking to add 20 additional units to the project. The units will be a severable project from the already approved units just in case there are issues with wastewater permitting, Dale said. The Board of Selectmen and the Zoning Board of Appeals will have to sign off on the additional unites.

For 40 years, Cohasset has had the Chapter 40-B mandate of 10 percent affordable housing stock hanging over its head. With just the 76 units of senior housing at 60 Elm St. deemed affordable by state standards out of its 2800 residential units (about 2.7 percent), Cohasset is way below the state's threshold.

Under Chapter 40B, a town's zoning board can approve affordable housing developments under flexible rules if at least 20-25 percent of the units have long-term affordability restrictions. Towns that are under the 10 percent threshold of their housing stock deemed as affordable by state standards are vulnerable to 40-B projects. Because Avalon is all rental units, all the units will "count" toward Cohasset's 10 percent.

With the 20 additional units, Cohasset will be very close, or meet, the 40-B affordable housing threshold for the next 10 years.

Selectman Lee Jenkins asked Dale how many children he thought the additional units could bring into the Cohasset school system.

Dale said the answer relied on a number of factors in the development: location, town reputation, bedroom count, apartment style. The project contains no three-bedroom apartments, which typically draw more families. There will be several townhouse style two-bedroom apartments, which may be more conducive to families with children. In total, (if the 20 additional units go forward) there will be 120 two-bedrooms units and 100 one-bedroom units.

Dale reviewed the suggested LIP application and the Regulatory Agreement that would govern the project and ensure that the units are included in the town's affordable housing inventory.

If everything goes as planned, Dale said they hoped to have a building permit by the end of June and be breaking ground on the project in the late summer. The tentative schedule has occupancy by summer 2011 and 95 percent occupied by the date of completion in early 2012.

"We'd like to get started as soon as possible," Dale said.

Latest on Treat's Pond and the Army Corps

"We would also be amenable to the Town securing the services of an outside engineering firm to conduct a review at the Town's expense."
— John Kennelly, Army Corps Chief of Planning

The Army Corps of Engineers is willing to discuss the Treat's Pond aquatic restoration project with Selectmen to assist them in its decision on whether to continue with the project. But, the Army Corps cannot have a peer review, as the Selectmen had hoped, unless the town is willing to pay for it.

In an e-mail to Town Manager Bill Griffin, John Kennelly, Army Corps Chief of Planning, said the peer review primarily is for larger, more complex projects over $45 million.

"We would also be amenable to the Town securing the services of an outside engineering firm to conduct a review at the Town's expense," Kennelly wrote.

Selectman Ted Carr had hoped funding for a peer review — to get a clear answer on what impact the project would have on the harbor — could come from the project's earmark.

Kennelly said the Treat's Pond area does not qualify as a flood mitigation project under the Corps.

The project, as currently designed, could have some impact on flooding in the area although that was not the primary focus or outcome of the project.

"We were asked to look at how these alternatives would affect the storm water problem. We explained that while this was not the intent of the project, expanding the conveyance capacity between the pond and the outlet point would improve the discharge of storm water under minor to moderate rainfall events," Kennelly wrote.

Cohasset recently was given more time to consider the Army Corps Treat's Pond aquatic restoration project. A recent letter extended the decision deadline from April 15 to Sept. 1, 2010. A letter of support for the project is required by Sept. 1 or the project would be terminated and the funds used for other restoration efforts, the letter stated.

BRIEFLY

Democrats to host yard sale

Cohasset Democratic Town Committee will host its annual yard sale from 8 a.m. to noon, on Saturday, May 15, at 23 Hill St., Cohasset. Rain date will be May 16. The committee has found this to be the best way to raise money for a scholarship fund that it has given every year since 1978.

All proceeds go toward the Joseph F. Walsh III Memorial Scholarship. This scholarship goes each year to a Cohasset graduating student who has demonstrated an interest in government, public service or an otherwise civic-minded endeavor.

Donations of items in good condition are welcome and appreciated. Sale items of furniture, tools, household items, plants, game and toys, sports equipment, garden equipment, videos and books, and more are welcome, donations of clothes excluded. To make a donation or for more information, call Donna McGee at 781-383-9114 or Agnes McCann at 781-383-0222.

Republican spring dinner

State Sen. Robert Hedlund will be master of ceremonies at the Cohasset Republican Town Committee annual Spring Dinner, which will take place at Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., at the Cohasset Common, at 6 p.m., on Wednesday, May 26. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Call chairman Kevin O'Donnell at 781-383-0193 or Terese D'Urso at 781-383-1143 for reservations. Tickets are $20, and should be made payable to the Cohasset Republican Town Committee c/o Judy Volungis, Treasurer, 234 Forest Ave., Cohasset 02025.

The public is welcome to come and enjoy the company of fellow Republicans and learn about the candidates and issues. Special invited guests include candidates Charlie Baker, Richard Tisei, Karyn Polito, Mary Connaughton, Bill Campbell, Geoffrey Diehl, District Attorney Timothy Cruz, Sheriff Joseph McDonald and state Rep. Daniel Webster.

May Arts Night

Osgood School will host its annual May Arts Night from 6 to 8 p.m., on Thursday, May 20. This year's theme, "Art Around the World," is sure to inspire the creativity of students and parents alike. Children will have the chance to experience various art and craft media from around the world in a hands-on, fun-filled evening.

In addition, May Arts Night will host many demonstrations including two dance companies: South Shore Ballet Company and Dunleavy Shaffer School of Irish Dance, plus line dance styling by Mr. Dykas. A variety of music events, including student demonstrations, will also be featured.

Hot dogs and refreshments, including Del's Lemonade, will be for sale. Also, in support of the PSO, raffle tickets offering the chance to win prizes will also be available. To host a table or lend a helping hand, call either Sarina Fusco at 383-2612 or Catherine Harvey at 383-6310.

AFTERMARKET RIM ADVICE

When trading in your wheels on newer, larger rims, be sure to match the "offset" of your new wheels with those of the originals. Otherwise, you may find that your tires will rub the inside of the wheel wells. The wheel offset is the distance from the front wheel hub mounting surface to the exact center of the wheel (in millimeters). This offset, which can be either positive (+) or negative (-), can be measured by looking at the wheel in cross section, with the tire removed. Positive offset occurs when the hub's inner mounting surface is closer to the face of the wheel; a negative offset has the mounting surface closer to the back of the wheel.

Of course, the offset isn't the only thing you need to consider when considering new wheels. There are a whole host of factors that can impact your driving experience. If you have any questions, about wheels or anything else to do with your car, then please call ATLANTIC TIRE AND ALIGNMENT. Our ASE Master-certified technicians will be happy to answer your questions and offer some expert insight. In addition, we can provide the preventative maintenance that will keep your car running smoothly. Call 781-925-3200 today. We are located at 25 Atlantic House Rd. If you've gotten in an accident, be sure to check out our sister store, Cohasset Collision Center, 179 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Cohasset, 781-383-3001.

Hint: If you are upsizing your vehicle's wheels, you must purchase new tires with a profile that retains the size of the original wheel/tire combination.

CONSERVATORY NOTES

EMILY ARSENAULT

COURTESY PHOTO

Drama Director Emily Arsenault teaches a group of young Summer Theatre Workshop students at South Shore Conservatory

At the Conservatory, learning never has to stop, and it is never too late to begin.

In my role as Drama Department Chair at South Shore Conservatory, I have frequent experiences of déjà vu. Whether I am stepping into the amphitheatre to direct students during Summer Theatre Workshop, or walking up a few flights of stairs to a closet filled with costumes and scripts, I am reminded that my work at the Conservatory began long before I ever developed a program or taught a class: my journey here began as a student.

When I was 10 years old, I enrolled in my first drama workshop at the Conservatory. I vividly remember the hot August day, driving with my mother into the parking lot and staring at the amphitheatre stage, wondering what possibilities were waiting there. I was painfully shy and did not know what to expect, but my workshop experience infused me with creative energy and inspiration. After three weeks, I not only began to emerge from my "shell" as a confident and imaginative performer, but, most importantly, realized I had discovered a home at the Conservatory.

For me, the Conservatory was and has always remained a supportive, vibrant, and unique community in the arts — a safe place for taking risks, sharing in the joy of collaboration, and unearthing individual potential. It is a space in which people across generations can learn from each other through their creative explorations. It is a habitat for innovation, artistry, and wonder.

At the Conservatory, learning never has to stop, and it is never too late to begin. Starting in infancy with our Music Together program, our continuum of offerings enables students to engage their artistic curiosities throughout childhood, adolescence, and adulthood. From my own history, I am very aware of the Conservatory's capacity for shaping the whole person through its rich array of programs. Following my first summer theatre experience at SSC, I went on to study drama on a weekly basis in group classes. In the process, I learned more about the wonderful musical faculty, inspiring me to take private lessons in flute and bassoon. Beyond my lessons, I had many wonderful ensemble opportunities at the Conservatory, participating in Summer Wind Ensemble and Flute Symphony for many years, as well as the Honors Bassoon Quartet.

As I reached my late teens and was given the opportunity to work with young children as a drama counselor in Summer Theatre Workshop, I discovered my passion for teaching in the arts. This experience motivated me to study theatre as an undergraduate at Boston College and community arts in graduate school at Lesley University. Now in the position of director, I look forward to Summer Theatre Workshop 2010, which starts on Aug. 2. I am truly committed to sharing with my students the sense of magic and possibility the Conservatory has nurtured for the past 40 years.

For more information about Summer Theatre Workshop and other Conservatory summer programs for children, visit www.sscmusic.org.

Emily Arsenault is the Conservatory's Drama Department Chair and also works part time in the Conservatory's arts-integrated kindergarten.

TOUCHED LIVES

Hello Cohasset. I am writing this week's column with a lot of mixed emotions and sadness as Cohasset lost a wonderful lady and someone, who was a past neighbor and a mentor, as she was the 'Around Town' writer for the Cohasset Mariner for many years. Sally Ann Chatterton passed away Sunday and so many people were saddened by this news. Our thoughts and prayers go out to her children, Kim and Troy, her grandchildren, family and friends. She is someone who will be missed by so many, remembered for her love for her family and friends and well, for being someone who just loved life. Rest in peace Sally Ann and you will be remembered by all whose lives you touched in so many ways.

SUMMER DRAMA

If you are looking for a fun-filled and learning summer program for your 8-19 year olds, here is something that may be of interest to the actor or actress in your family. Registration for the Cohasset Dramatic Club/Recreation Department's 2010 Summer Drama Workshop Program is this Saturday, May 15 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Town Hall. There are two programs offered this year. For 8 - 13 year olds, the workshop program will culminate in a production of "Seussical, Jr.," the fantastical, magical musical extravaganza.

13-19 year olds will participate in the new musical, "13." With an unforgettable rock score, "13" is a hilarious, high-energy musical for all ages about discovering that cool is where you find it, and sometimes where you least expect it.

Cost for participation in either program is $350 per participant ($300 each for two or more from the same family).

PROM GALA DVDS

The Cohasset High School Senior Prom will take place on Friday May 28th. Shaun Galvin will be videotaping the Prom Pre Prom Red Carpet Gala on the Common and will requests for Pre Prom Red Carpet DVD's from parents, families, and friends. DVD's of the 2010 are $20 each. Here are several ways that you can purchase your 2010 CHS Senior Prom Pre Prom DVD's: 1. By mail: Send your request with your name, address, telephone number, email address and the number of DVD's you wish to purchase with a check for $20 per DVD payable to Shaun Galvin and mail to Shaun Galvin P.O. Box 526 Hingham, MA 02043. 2. By Phone: Requests can be called in to 781-424-2197(cell). 3. By Email: Requests can be emailed to shaun_galvin@yahoo.com. 4. In Person: Requests can be made in person by seeing me on Prom Day at the Pre Prom Red Carpet Gala.

SUPPORT ASP

The Cohasset Appalachia Service Project Kinnealey Meats Fundraiser kicked off on Sunday, May 2nd. CASP volunteers are offering Kinnealey Meat products available for purchase for two weeks only. All pricing and product details are outlined on order forms available from any CASP volunteer or at the offices of Second Congregational, First Parish, St. Anthony's or St. Stephen's Churches. Items come frozen and vacuum packaged. They keep nicely in the freezer for up to 6 months. If you are a Kinnealey Meats fan, please use this opportunity to purchase your favorite, high-quality meat products just in time for the spring and summer grilling season, and support an ASP volunteer at the same time. If you don't happen to know an ASP volunteer, but would like to support this very worthy cause, please contact the Second Congregational Church office at 383-0345 to place an order. The fundraiser runs through Sunday, May 16th. Please make checks payable to Cohasset ASP.

Six weeks to Triathlon

Organization of event in final stages

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Cohasset Triathlon is gearing up for its fourth swim, bike and run.

Race Director Bill Burnett was before the Board of Selectmen to review and provide an update on the organization of the event.

With the race just six weeks away Burnett said the pressure is on to make sure all the pieces are in place.

The Cohasset Triathlon will have its fourth running on Sunday, June 27. In its three years of existence, the triathlon has become the country's number-one, third-party volunteer fundraiser for the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF), Burnett said. In that time, the triathlon has raised close to $500,000.

In the beginning of December when the triathlon opened for athlete registration it sold out in record time — beating its own record and selling out faster than any other sprint triathlon nationally, Burnett said. In 72 hours, 875 individuals, 30 relay teams were registered for the race.

In an initial meeting in December, Burnett floated starting the triathlon an hour later at 9a.m. The Selectmen were in agreement, but were concerned about possible impacts on village business owners. Burnett said he would meet with merchants to see if he could address any issues.

With the help of Cohasset Chamber of Commerce president Darilynn Evans, Burnett set up a time to speak with the South Main Street merchants about their concerns with the triathlon, particularly because of a later start time (9a.m.) this year. On race day the diagonal parking on South Main is prohibited to allow the bike portion of the race to come through. The parking restriction primarily affects French Memories and Tedeschi's, both of which have steady Sunday morning traffic.

"We had a really great conversation," said Burnett. Out of the conversation Burnett said there would be a quicker opening of the parking after the last biker goes through. Greater communication about no parking on the street the night before would also be done. Burnett said he offered both businesses the opportunity to have their logos on the Cohasset Tri website and was willing to put coupons or something similar in the triathletes' informational packets.

"Anything that could drive more business to them," Burnett said. Packet people will be at Town Hall and they will be encouraging athletes to spend some time in the village, "we want people to be downtown."

Burnett said he is working with the town's public safety officials (police, fire and harbormaster) to iron out the details.

The triathlon will make greater efforts to ensure residents know about morning road closures and the delayed opening of the RTF.

Burnett also expressed concern at the continued lack of paving on Jerusalem Road and Atlantic Avenue, both key roads for the triathlon.

"It's a safety issue for the town…something has to happen to get the road in better condition," Burnett said, adding he was not saying it primarily for the triathlon purposes, but for the greater good of the town.

"(The triathlon) bring all these people to town and (the way the roads are now) is not how Cohasset should look," Burnett said.

The roads have been torn up for about two years during the Little Harbor sewer expansion project. Selectmen chair Karen Quigley defended the town's efforts to complete the project and the paving, "a number of issues have come up (that have delayed the paving.)"

She also said the push to have the roads completed would not be for the triathlon, rather the property tax paying residents of the town. "What can be done is being done."

Selectman Paul Carlson said he would rather see the 8a.m. start because of the interference with local church services and the difficulty in getting around town in the morning.

Volunteer for the Tri!

The fourth annual Cohasset Triathlon needs help to get the race off without a hitch. The race is set for Sunday, June 27. Volunteers are needed to help with water stations along the route, registration check-in, kayakers for water safety, road closings, post-race party set-up and clean-up. A volunteer application is available on the Cohasset Triathlon website, www.cohassettri.com.

Library and local vet offer free eye exams to service dogs

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Back in the fall children's librarian Sharon Moody invited several canine friends to come sit and read with Cohasset's youngest readers.

Now, she's inviting those dogs back to get their eyes examined to ensure they are in top shape for the important jobs they do.

Cohasset resident, veterinary ophthalmologist and library regular Bill Greentree approached Moody with the idea of having eye exams for the service dogs. Moody jumped at the chance to give back to the dogs and their owners that had come to the library last fall.

"It's a great way for us at the library to thank them," Moody said.

Thousands of service dogs nationwide will receive free sight-saving eye exams during the month of May as a part of the American College of Veterinary Ophthalmologists. This is the third annual National Service Dog Eye Exam event.

"Initially it was just one week, but it's grown now to a month," said Greentree, who has been working with animal's eyes for more than a decade. He is performing eye exams all month on all sorts of working dogs: police dogs, service dogs, and search and rescue dogs. "It's a really nice project."

The exam itself takes about 10 or 15 minutes, but the dogs have to get their eyes dilated, which takes about 10 minutes, before the exam. Then Greentree will exam the front of the dog's eyes, the lens and the retina looking for any signs of disease or cataracts.

An eye exam in a vet office would typically be about $200, Greentree said. Greentree is the eye specialist at the VCA South Shore Animal Hospital.

The canine eye exams will take place at the library from 10a.m. to 2p.m. on Saturday, May 22. All the slots, which were scheduled every 15 minutes, have been booked, Moody said. A total of 16 dogs will have their eyes examined.

The notice went out to all the dog owners involved in Dog B.O.N.E.S (Building Opportunities for Nurturing and Emotional Support), the Scituate-based non-profit group that is dedicated to providing well-trained, affectionate, obedient, registered and insured therapy dog teams to local organizations. The dogs that came to be read to at the library in the fall were from Dog B.O.N.E.S.

"I heard from so many people so fast," Moody said.

Greentree will receive assistance from his son, Henry, a nine-year-old student at Deer Hill, who will help him dim the lights and talk to the dogs to keep them occupied.

"These type of dogs are typically very well behaved," Greentree said. "Support dogs are really great to work with."

The clean bill of health in the eye exam ensure the dogs can continue to perform their jobs, whether it is visiting with the elderly, being the eyes for the blind or sitting with a child to read a book.

Moody plans on running the same program again with the reading dogs and the eye exam will guarantee they'll be ready for the opportunity.

"If they can't see they can't read!" Greentree joked.

Adult sailing lessons at Hull Yacht Club

Have you always wanted to learn to sail? The Hull Yacht Club is offering evening adult sailing lessons beginning the week of June 28. You will learn everything you need to know to handle a small boat, including principles of sailing, rules of the road, safety on the water, knots and how to read the weather. The classes run for six weeks on either Monday or Wednesday evenings, 5:30 to approximately 7:30 p.m. Each class has a maximum of six members. Cost is $275. Lifejackets required. The Hull Yacht Club is located at 5 Fitzpatrick Way, Hull. For more information, contact Debbie Cook 781-383-6313.

Coffee with the Authors

Buttonwood Books & Toys will present its Coffee with the Authors from 9:45 to 11:30 a.m., on Tuesday, June 8 at the Atlantica. Coffee will be served at 9:45 a.m., and the program will begin at 10 a.m. Attendees can enjoy a continental breakfast while three contemporary authors discuss their latest work. Featured authors will be: Randy Susan Meyers, "The Murderer's Daughters"; Sy Montgomery, "Birdology: Adventures with a Pack of Hens, a Peck of Pigeons, Cantankerous Crows, Fierce Felons, Hip Hop Parrots, Baby Hummingbirds and One Murderously Big Living Dinosaur"; Dr. Gail Steketee, "Stuff: Compulsive Hoarding and the Meaning of Things" by Drs. Randy O. Frost and Gail Steketee.

Reservations, and tickets at $16 per person, are required. Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 to reserve a seat or order a signed copy of the book if unable to attend.

Progressive garden tour

Second Congregational Church of Cohasset will sponsor a garden tour, open to the public, from 4:30 to 8 p.m., on Saturday, May 22. The event is a progressive garden tour that will feature three different gardening concepts while offering appetizers and beverages at each stop on the tour. The gardens will feature a spiritual/memorial garden, green house gardening and a fruit and vegetable garden that is so bountiful that its owners do not need to buy produce during the growing season. There will be a plant swap – bring one take one, at the last garden.

This is a rain or shine event and tickets are $20. per person. Tickets may be obtained by calling the church office at 781-383-0345, Monday through Friday, between 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. The church is at 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset.

'Roman Britain' subject of Wednesday talk

In the last of the Wednesday Night Lecture Series, Cohasset Historical Society will welcome Andrew Muir and his presentation on "Roman Britain – A Personal Prospective." The program will begin at 7:30 p.m., on Wednesday, May 19, at the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. There is no charge for this presentation and light refreshment will be served. The Historical Society extends an invitation to all members of the community to attend.

Although a Cohasset resident for almost two decades, Muir was born and raised in England where he became fascinated by the wealth of history and archeology in which he was immersed. Long before America was settled, the Roman Empire was on the move in Europe. Julius Caesar was the first to attempt to conquer Britain in about 55 BC, but it wasn't until 43 AD that his ambitions were realized when Emperor Claudius defeated the Britons and the Roman occupation began. In the ensuing 400 years of Roman rule, the Romans expanded their frontiers, building military forts, numerous cities, and thousands of miles of properly engineered roads. The remains of this fascinating period in British and European history can be found in today's cities and countryside. To find the vestiges of the Roman conquest and occupation of Briton, one must know where to look and what to look for. With his intimate knowledge of the period and the terrain, Muir will take attendees on an armchair adventure into the Roman occupation, sharing what has survived, what to look for and where to find it.

Rain barrels for sale at NSRWA office

North and South Rivers Watershed Association will sell New England rain barrels again this year to area residents at the discounted price of $82.95, almost 30 percent off the retail price of $119.95.

Considering that the average homeowner uses approximately 40 percent of their total water consumption for outdoor purposes such as watering their lawns, rain barrels are an effective way for capturing and re-using roof runoff. A 1-inch rainfall on a 1,200 square foot roof will yield more than 700 gallons of water.

The rain barrels are made from 55 gallon blue plastic recycled containers, which can be painted any color the homeowner wants. The top does not come off, so they are safe for children and pets. The brass spigots can be attached to any garden hose, but soaker hoses can provide maximum efficiency.

Orders may be placed through May 18, and the rain barrel may be picked up at the NSRWA office, 214 South St., Norwell, from 4 to 7 p.m., on Thursday, May 20. Those who can't make the pickup time can have the rain barrel stored for pickup at a later date. To order a rain barrel, call New England Rain Barrel Co. at 877-977-3135 or order online at www.nerainbarrel.com. For more information, call NSRWA at 781-659-8168.

Kids Fishing Derby

A Kids Fishing Derby will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, May 15, at Scituate Rod and Gun Club, off Route 3A, near the Cohasset/Scituate town line. The derby is for kids younger than 12, who must be accompanied by an adult. The event is free.

Rods and reels will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis. If possible bring rods and reels from home. Hooks and bobbers will be provided. The pond has been stocked with trout, and prizes will be awarded for the largest fish and tagged fish. Also included will be lunch consisting of hot dogs and sodas.

Marine Electric survivor to speak

The Cohasset Historical Society will host speaker Captain Eugene F. Kelly Jr., a survivor of the Marine Electric disaster at sea on Sunday, May 16 at 3p.m. at the Society's headquarters.

The Marine Electric, a "reconditioned" World War II vessel, sank off the coast of Norfolk, Va. in February 1983. This tragedy prompted an intense investigation by authorities and a book titled "Until the Sea Shall Free Them" written by Robert Frump.

The story has been featured on the History Channel and pictures may be viewed on the Internet.

Captain Kelly was born in Charlestown, Mass. and graduated from high school in Abington, then went on to graduated in 1975 from the Massachusetts Maritime Academy. He is one of three survivors of the Marine Electric disaster along with Chief Mate Bob Cusic of Scituate, and seaman Paul Dewey. Captain Kelly was sailing as Relief Third Officer on this trip.

He is one of three survivors of the Marine Electric disaster along with Chief Mate Bob Cusic of Scituate, and seaman Paul Dewey.

Tickets are $10 and light refreshments will be served.

Space is limited. Reservations, information and tickets are available at the Cohasset Historical Society's headquarters, the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St.

CEF gearing up for spring celebration

If it's May it must be time for the annual Cohasset Education Foundation Spring Event — this year to be held once again under a tent adjacent to the South Shore Music Circus on Saturday, May 22, from 6 – 11:30pm.

This year's guests will be treated to Mexican fare, margaritas and music by DJ Rich DiMare, from KISS 108. There will also be a selection of silent auction items, including; vacation weeks at The Golden Bear Lodge & Spa, Cap Cana, Dominican Republic and Lake Winnipesauke, a box at either a Celtics or Bruins game at the Garden, balls signed by Jonathan Papelbon, Kevin Faulk and Rajon Rondo, plus parties, lessons and special times with teachers, as well as furniture artfully decorated by CHS students, just to name a few!

Over the past three and a half years the generous support of the community has enabled the CEF to make significant contributions to the educational experience of students in the Cohasset Public Schools including the new Foreign Language Lab, Virtual High School, Smart Boards, the Middle School Engineering Lab (with the PSO), the Deer Hill STEM Lab, the Osgood Computer Lab and the Center for Student Coastal Research. The Cohasset Education Foundation is a non-profit local education foundation that invests in programs like these that enrich and maintain excellence in our schools in ways not supported by the regular budget.

Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things that you didn't do than by the ones you did do. So throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore. Dream. Discover..
— Mark Twain

This weekend, the Cohasset Sailing Club is conducting its registration for the 2010 season. If you are a Cohasset resident who wants to join the club in order to use one of the boats during free sailing periods, sign up for the children's or adult's instructional program, have your teen be part of the CSC's racing team, and/or participate in the Porter (adult) or Stanton (family adult/child) racing programs. This is the weekend to do it.

Particulars on all aspects of the CSC, as well as membership applications and registration forms, are available on our website: www.cohassetsailingclub.org. The CSC's chandlery will be open and selling its jackets, sweatshirts, totes, and other accessories with the club's logo – much more exclusive than that ubiquitous clothing embellished with the polo player. This year marks our 50th anniversary, so stay tuned for more announcements about how we plan to commemorate this milestone and chart the course for the next half-century.

We ask that you print out and fill out these forms, and personally turn them in at the clubhouse on Government Island. We look forward to meeting you and answering any questions you may have! Hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, May 15, and noon to 2 p.m., on Sunday, May 16.

GIMME SHELTER

Taffy is a 'foxy' lady

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Taffy, a one-year-old orange female. She looks so much like a little red fox that we've nicknamed her "Foxy." She gets along well with people, but would prefer to be an "only" cat. She craves attention and would be fine with children.

The shelter hours are from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays, and 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays. If these hours aren't convenient, call Shirl at 781-925-3380 for an appointment.

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is at 50 L Street, Hull, and the mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045. Telephone numbers are 877-378-1195 and 781-925-3121. Email address is hsar@hsar.org. To volunteer, inquire about low-cost spay neuter, or support the shelter by becoming a member, call Mary at 781-925-3121.

HSAR will be having Open House/Adoption Day on Saturday, June 26 from 2-4 p.m. There will be five adorable kittens on hand that will be ready for adoption around the second week in July.

Please check out our "wish list" at www.hsar.org. Donations of cat food, litter, and monetary donations are always welcome. You can find adoption and volunteer applications on line.

WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

After 22 years in a Florida swamp, our window is as good as new.

For those who don't want to replace their replacement windows.

To ensure the durability of our patented Fibrex® material window, we've kept the same window frame submerged in a Florida swamp since 1988. To this day, our testing engineers inspect it every year, and there has been absolutely no change. Our other weather-testing sites in sub-zero Minnesota and the Arizona desert have yielded the same result: after 22 years in the worst conditions, the very same Fibrex® material has remained unchanged.

Why do we perform this crazy weather-testing? To build the best replacement window, that's why. Our practically indestructible Fibrex® frame keeps our glass from shifting and our insulating seals intact, even during drastic temperature changes. This is how we maximize your home's energy-efficiency, season after season, year after year.

- With the $1,500 Federal Energy Tax Credit ending this year, don't get the tax credit "run-around" from another company whose windows don't qualify.
- Our windows have glass that's up to 70% more energy efficient, saving you substantial money on energy costs.†
- 96.2% of our installations have begun and ended on time.
- Every installation finishes with a thorough cleaning with a EPA-compliant HEPA vacuum cleaner, removing debris as small as one micron from your home.
- Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish window replacement subsidiary of Andersen—the most recognized name in windows.

Fibrex® material is 2X as rigid and stable as vinyl

Bright light

Sallyann Chatterton served as the Around Town columnist for 16 years.

Sallyann Chatterton was not a past town official nor was she involved in myriad activities that would have kept her name on a marquee. She and her late husband, Clark Chatteron – known for his work as a teacher and long-time athletic director at Cohasset Middle High School – were the type of people who did a lot of good behind the scenes.

Clark and Sallyann could well be described as "Mr. and Mrs. Cohasset" – not in a grand, pretentious sense but because the high school sweethearts stayed in the town they loved, adding their own special, personal brand of positive energy.

For nearly a generation of Cohasseters – Sallyann chronicled the "good news" in the Cohasset Mariner Around Town column, which she penned for some 16 years before retiring in late 1999.

She documented everything from new babies and class reunions to dean's list congratulations and birthday wishes. For several years, Sallyann, a terrific cook, also shared her favorite recipes with us in her "May I Present" cooking column in the Mariner.

When Mary Ford took over editorship of the Cohasset Mariner in March 1992 – Sallyann was there for her every step of the way. It was a time before email, when "good news" was often sent by U.S. Mail or dropped off at the Chattertons' house at 9 Red Gate Lane.

In the Mariner's 20th anniversary edition in October 1998, Sallyann had been writing Around Town faithfully for some 15 years.

Sallyann said at the time, "People stop me downtown sometimes. I'm not always prepared so I write on the back of deposit slips or whatever I can find."

Composing the column on the Smith Corona typewriter on her kitchen table, the latest happenings poured out – sometimes at 4 a.m.

"I sit there in my sweats and type away," Sallyann said. "A UPS man came by one day and said, 'You're the first person I've seen with a typewriter in the longest time.'"

"But it's electric – I'm upgraded," Sallyann replied.

One of the high points of her career as a columnist occurred when she met up with her high school English teacher, who complimented her on her writing. In her next column, she credited him with nurturing her writing ability. "I wrote he was wonderful in my column," she said.

Humorously, she also recalled adding 10 years on to a class reunion news item, by mistake. The reunion organizer called her and said "I'm growing old fast enough, thank you!"

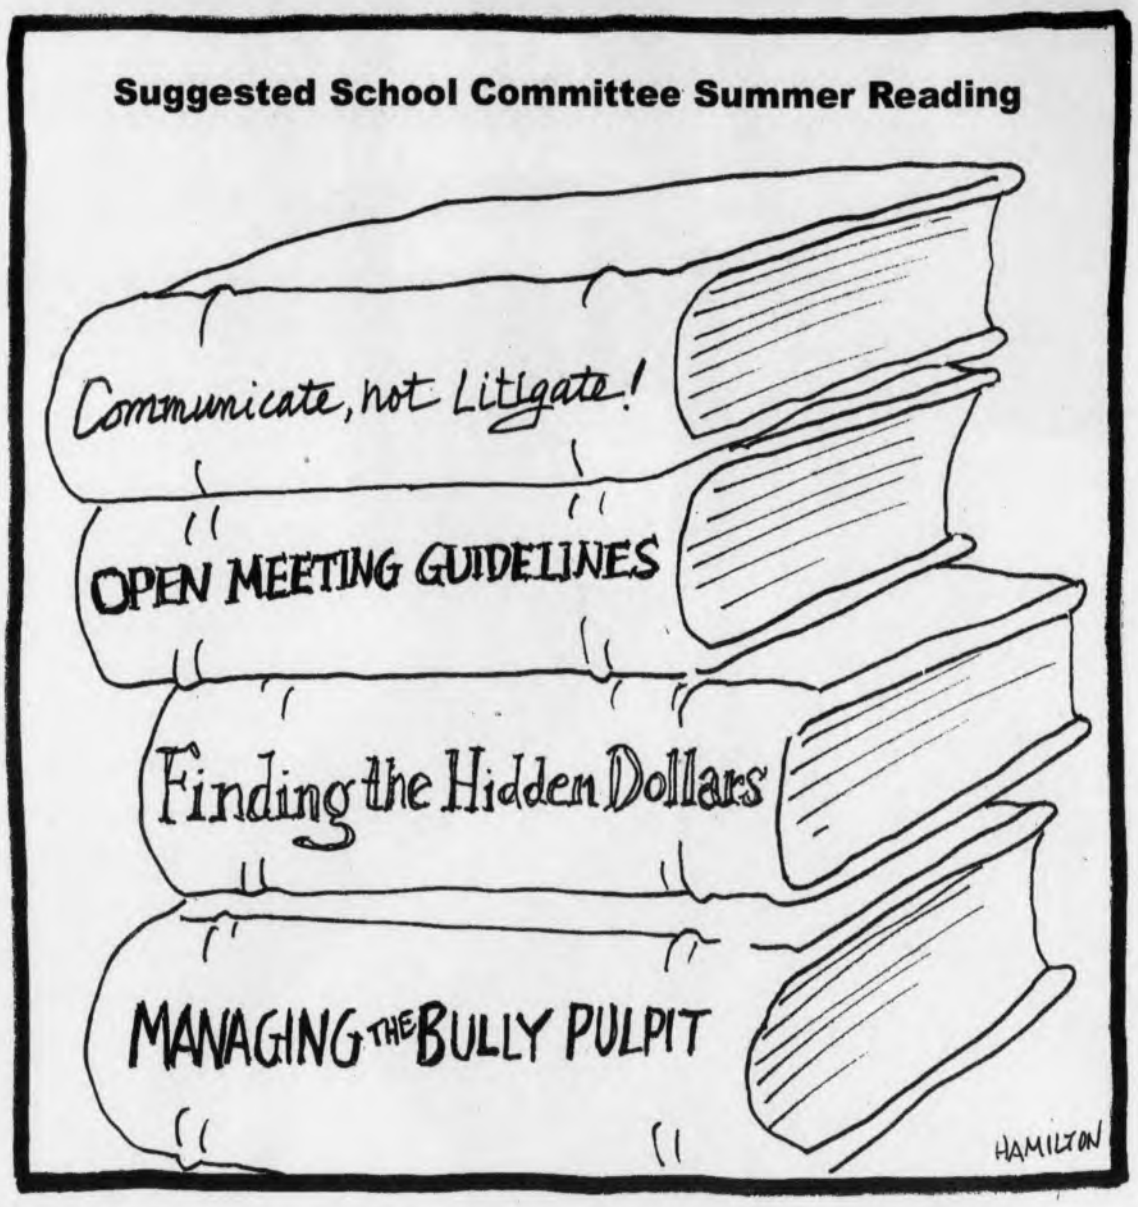
When Sallyann got a call from someone with an ax to grind, she would turn them around. "If you can't say something nice, then don't bother – I won't put that stuff in," she said. "Everyone here has something positive about them and I prefer to focus on that."

Sallyann often wrote about people who were ailing and needed a Get Well card. She often received "thank you" notes from grateful readers who did not realize a neighbor or friend was sick.

Sallyann was busy caring about others, so ironically many of her friends did not know that she had been ill. Sallyann passed away on Mother's Day, May 9, 2010. She leaves two children Kim and Troy and four grandchildren Kelsie, Tori, Will and Michael. In many ways, Sallyann was like a mother, loving aunt, grandmother, or sister to all of us.

Sallyann told us while she was writing her column:

"Not much has changed in the good news I hear," she recalled. "Although the children I once wrote about are now calling me to tell me about their own children, you get to the point where you feel as though they are all your own."



A celebration of her life will be held on Sunday, May 16th at the South Shore Music Circus at 1 p.m. Donations in her memory may be made to the Sandy Beach Association, P.O. Box 285, Cohasset, MA 02025 or to the American Cancer Society.

House budget tough yet balanced

YOUR REP
GARRETT BRADLEY

The House budget does not adopt taxation proposals from the Governor's budget recommendations — including a tax on candy and soda — nor does the House budget implement a limit on the film tax credit as proposed by the Governor.

Last week the Massachusetts House of Representatives passed a balanced fiscal 2011 budget without any increases in taxation or drawing from stabilization fund reserves. The budget was designed to close a projected $3.2 billion budget gap through cuts to state spending totaling over $1.4 billion. It's a document that reflects tough choices made by the House during the budget debate.

The House budget does not adopt taxation proposals from the Governor's budget recommendations — including a tax on candy and soda — nor does the House budget implement a limit on the film tax credit as proposed by the Governor.

The $27.83 billion budget contains major reductions in many areas of state spending, including the total elimination of funding for several line items.

Instead of further depleting the state's rainy day account, the House budget relies instead on approximately $1.55 billion in federal funds, directed to the state as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009. The state's rainy day account, which now contains approximately $658 million, held a balance of over $2.1 billion prior to the onset of the current recession.

The budget also saves the Commonwealth approximately $300 million through debt restructuring in addition to reducing spending for higher education by $132 million and cutting Trial Court spending by $30 million.

The proposed budget, which is approximately $386 million lower than the budget offered by Governor Patrick, will result in close to 1,500 anticipated layoffs of state workers.

Still, the budget fully funds the Workforce Training Fund at $21 million to provide employers with grants aimed at education and training existing members of the workforce and new hires. Through the beginning of this year, more than $175 million in grants have been awarded to train almost a quarter-million workers through the Workforce Training Fund.

The budget also provides nearly $5 million to the One Stop Career Centers, which support the growth of the Commonwealth's workforce.

In an effort to enhance fiscal transparency, the House budget proposal creates a searchable website to increase visibility of how the state spends tax revenue. The database will serve as a one-stop portal to track all areas of state spending.

Grants to Head Start programs and universal pre-kindergarten grants are both level funded in the House budget. Additionally, the budget level funds school-to-work connecting activities to give students job-training and promote workforce development while level funding the MCAS Low-Scoring Student Support line item to provide educational support to students in need of additional help to pass the MCAS.

The budget also fully funds cash benefit programs for veterans in need of temporary financial assistance and outreach programs to engage veterans in need of social services. Additionally, the budget appropriates $838 million for Commonwealth Care to cover 170,000 members through the upcoming fiscal year.

Further, the budget allocates $75.9 million for Substance Abuse Services and restores $3.6 million in funding to the Suicide Prevention and Intervention Program which serves Massachusetts residents, including youth and veterans. The bill also provides $45.8 million for Enhanced Home Care Services which allow elders to remain independent and $6.3 million for the Elderly Nutrition Program which provides 8.8 million meals per year.

The economic downturn impacted all streams of tax revenue used to fund state services; however, tax receipts from capital gains have been particularly constrained. After bottoming out in fiscal 2002, revenues from capital gains continued to increase until reaching a peak of $2.335 billion to begin fiscal 2008. These monies were used to support many functions and expansions of state services over the past several years.

With the economic downturn, however, receipts from capital gains have largely evaporated. In an effort to insulate the Commonwealth from these dramatic swings in tax receipts, the House again proposes sweeping reforms to better manage the use of capital gains receipts. The new plan would cap the amount from capital gains receipts that could be appropriated in the state's operating budget at $1 billion. Over this threshold, 95 percent of receipts would be deposited into the state's Stabilization Fund; the remaining 5 percent would be directed to the State Retirees Benefits Trust Fund.

The State Senate will consider its version of the budget during the week of May 24. A conference committee of 3 House and 3 Senate members will then iron out differences before a final document is approved and sent to the Governor for his signature.

State Rep. Garrett Bradley, D-Hingham, represents the Third Plymouth District that includes Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, and one precinct in Scituate.

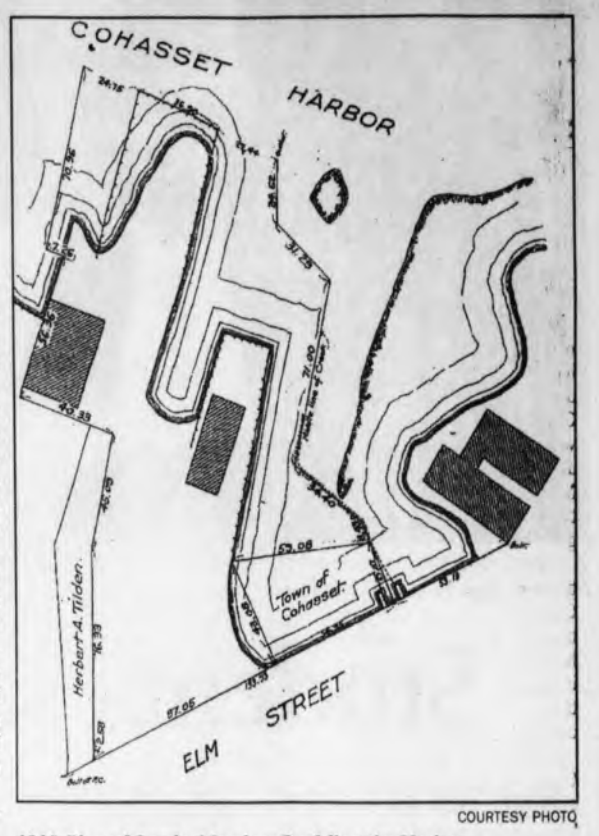
Looking back at the old Harbor outfall

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

More on Paving – We get lots of calls about various paving issues. We can certainly understand that residents are interested in the co- dition of various roads in their neighborhoods. After the roads have been assaulted by various contractors for various purposes, it is very important that the roads be put back into some reasonable semblance of order. Some of the most common questions we receive deal with drainage, water puddling, paving schedules, and the general condition of these roads.

First, let us say that our immediate focus is the roads that have been affected by the Little Harbor Water, Sewer and Drainage Project, as well as the side roads connecting to these roads. We will endeavor to put each road back into a configuration roughly equivalent, or better than, what it was before the project started. However, whenever we can, as directed by the DPW, small changes may be made to improve drainage and road maintenance as well as traffic flow or general road safety. The paving restoration sequence as a result of the little Harbor Project is as follows:



1. Beach Street and side roads
2. Jerusalem Road and side roads (This will be paved in several segments)
3. Atlantic Avenue and unpaved side roads (Will be paved this fall)

An Interesting Bit of History – We've spoken about the pending project to replace the Jacobs Meadow outfall channel at the Legion building and replace the three tide gates at the edge of the harbor with a vertical sluice gate. Since the early 1900s there have been many significant changes to the land in this area and how water flows from Jacobs Meadow to the harbor, and even where the edge of the harbor is. Today, the Jacobs Meadow outfall is in an open channel flowing adjacent to the Legion Building. When the open channel reaches the road, it goes underground via three large pipes (48", 66", and 48" in diameter) under Cohasset Harbor Resort parking lot and passes through the tide gates, into the Cohasset Harbor. The brook is the dividing line between Elm and Summer Streets, with Elm St. to the north of the channel and Summer Street to the south.

In the early 1900s, the outfall channel was open to the harbor, with the road passing over the open channel via a bridge. And, surprise, the Cohasset Harbor extended all the way to the edge of Elm Street.

But, life was not always like that. In the early 1900s, the outfall channel was open to the harbor, with the road passing over the open channel via a bridge. And, surprise, the Cohasset Harbor extended all the way to the edge of Elm Street. We have included a 1910 survey map to give you an idea of what we are talking about. The plan is hard to read, but we'll describe some of the salient features to orient you. The "H" shaped building to the right is the old two-bay fire station on Summer Street that sat about where the Veteran's Memorial is today. To the left of the fire station, the edge of the Cohasset Harbor is right against the edge of the road. There are two small points that stick out from the road along Elm Street. These are the outfall channel walls that drain Jacobs Meadow after it passes under the bridge.

The line that passes into the harbor between these two points defines the center of the outfall channel in the harbor. This line is labeled with the words "middle line of creek," the reference being to the middle of the outfall creek from Jacobs Meadow. You can see how it twists and turns following the harbor floor contours. The two buildings (shaded rectangles) to the left of the channel are buildings that occupied the site in 1910. Note that the smaller of these two buildings (the building to the right) is actually on a wharf and has water on three sides of the building. This reflects the waterfront business locations that traditionally were on our harbor front. The centerline of the channel actually describes, even today, most of the property line between the Town land to the right and Cohasset Harbor Resort to the left. However, over the years, the whole area from the edge of the road to near where the words "Cohasset Harbor" appear on the drawing have been filled in and are now a part of the land. The property demarcation line, originally the creek path, actually zigzags through the parking area behind the Veterans Memorial wall from Elm Street to the harbor near the tide gates. The only exception is the area to the left of the outfall in the harbor, which contains the words, "Town of Cohasset." That is also Town property, even today.

1910 Plan of Jacobs Meadow Outfall at the Harbor – Well, that provides you with an historical perspective of how the channel and property lines evolved over the past 100 years to their current configuration. We look forward to the reconstruction of the current channel at the Legion, its new outfall sluice gate to the harbor and the resulting benefits that will accrue to the Town. Completion of this project this fall is eagerly awaited.

HEALTH NOTES

Allergy sufferers have a lot of company

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Now, finally, hopefully it's spring and along with warm weather and sunshine is sure to come hay fever and other allergies. Well cheer up; you have no idea how many people are worrying about allergies and doing something about it.

Environmental data collection — The National Allergy Bureau is the nation's only pollen and mold counting network and has the responsibility for reporting current pollen and mold spore levels to the public. As such, allergists all over the United States, make up the Aeroallergen Network comprised of pollen and spore counting stations staffed primarily by volunteers who generously donate their time and expertise. The NAB currently provides the most accurate and reliable pollen and mold levels from approximately 78 counting stations throughout the United States, two counting stations in Canada and two counting stations in Argentina. The stations use air sampling equipment to collect airborne pollen and spores that are then examined microscopically. The information is also used for research to aid in the diagnosis, treatment and management of allergic diseases.

Pollen and mold levels are electronically forwarded to local, regional and national media outlets whenever levels are updated by stations as requested by the media outlets.

Hay fever or "seasonal allergic rhinitis" affects more than 35 million Americans. If you suffer from it, you may experience sneezing, stuffiness, a runny nose and itchiness in your nose, the roof of your mouth, throat, eyes or ears. These allergic reactions are most commonly caused by pollen and mold spores in the air, which start a chain reaction in your immune system.

Hay fever or "seasonal allergic rhinitis" affects more than 35 million Americans.

Your immune system controls how your body defends itself. For instance, if you have an allergy to pollen, the immune system identifies pollen as an invader or allergen. Your immune system overreacts by producing antibodies called Immunoglobulin E (IgE). These antibodies travel to cells that release chemicals, causing an allergic reaction.

Pollen is made up of tiny cells needed to fertilize plants. Pollen from plants with colorful flowers, like roses, usually do not cause allergies. These plants rely on insects to transport the pollen for fertilization. On the other hand, many plants have flowers that produce light, dry pollen that is easily spread by wind. These culprits cause allergy symptoms.

Each plant has a period of pollination that does not vary much from year to year. However, the weather can affect the amount of pollen in the air at any time. The pollinating season starts later in the spring the further north one goes. Generally, the entire pollen season lasts from February or March through October. In warmer places, pollination can be year-round.

Seasonal allergic rhinitis is often caused by tree pollen in the early spring. During the late spring and early summer, grasses often cause symptoms. Late summer and fall, hay fever is caused by weeds.

Molds are tiny fungi related to mushrooms but without stems, roots or leaves. Their spores float in the air like pollen. Outdoor mold spores begin to increase as temperatures rise in the spring and reach their peak in July in warmer states and October in the colder states. They can be found year-round in the South and on the West Coast. Molds can be found almost anywhere, including soil, plants and rotting wood.

Effects of Weather and Location — Symptoms are often less prominent on rainy, cloudy or windless days because pollen does not move around during these conditions. Pollen tends to travel more with hot, dry and windy weather, which can increase allergy symptoms.

You yourself can limit exposure to the pollen or molds that cause your symptoms. Keep windows closed at night and if possible, use air conditioning, which cleans, cools and dries the air. Try to stay indoors when the pollen or mold levels are reported to be high. Wear a pollen mask if long periods of exposure are unavoidable. Don't mow lawns or rake leaves because it stirs up pollen and molds. Also avoid hanging sheets or clothes outside to dry. Consider taking a vacation during the height of the pollen season to a more pollen-free area, such as the beach or sea. When traveling by car, keep your windows closed.

If medication is indicated, take it regularly, in the recommended dosage.

The following programs and events will take place at Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset. For more information or to register, call 781-383-1348 or visit the website at www.cohassetlibrary.org.

Great Decisions Discussion Group – For those who have registered, the Great Decisions Discussion Group will meet at 10:30 a.m., every Tuesday, through June 15, in the Meeting Room. Call reference librarian Gayle Walsh at 383-1348 for chapter assignments.

Independent Film Night – The library will show the independent film "Storm" at 6 p.m., on Thursday, May 20. Free admission and light refreshments courtesy of Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Library Book Group – Join others for coffee and discussion of "When a Crocodile Eats the Sun" by Peter Godwin at 10 a.m., on Wednesday, May 26. All are welcome.

Art Reception – Meet Duxbury artist Jane Flavell Collins from 3 to 5 p.m., on Saturday May 15, at a free opening reception for her exhibit appearing in the Meeting Room at the library through June 30. Gallery hours are Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesdays and Fridays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ongoing at the Library – Brain Fitness, a computer program designed to exercise auditory and memory skills; Knitting Group, on Wednesdays, at 10 a.m., Edna Finnegan from the Senior Center will be on hand to help people learn how to knit or help them with a knitting project.

FOR CHILDREN

MamaSteph – Music, movement and more for young children in the Meeting Room at 10:30 a.m., on Mondays, May 17. Sponsored by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

Favorites Night lives up to its name

THE ARTS

KATHRYN HILLMAN

On April 27, the Deer Hill School hosted its 18th annual Favorites Night. Curated by the Deer Hill School's art teacher Ms. Berman, each student picks a piece of artwork they made in the past year and displays it in the main hallway of Deer Hill School. The show is run a professional art show — refreshments are served and piano music is provided by Mr. Williams. Favorites Night has always been a great way for individual students to display their artwork, but it is also a great way for the larger community to get an idea of the types of projects and art techniques the students are using.

The Third Grade class has been working on a wide range of projects, including weaving together strips of hot and cool colored paper, making 3-D "bas reliefs" or pictures, and prints. The Fourth Grade class has been doing dynamic compositions, using their favorite stuffed animals has the subject, and incorporating the idea of giving a picture texture as well. They have also covered observational drawings (by sketching their hands) architectural drawings while simultaneously learning methods of drawing that make shapes appear more 3-D. The Fifth Grade class made masks, using papier-mâché to correctly depict the shape of their faces and then painted the dried masks. They have also been working on self-portraits. The creativity of the projects is a tribute to the hard work and resources put in by the teachers and students.

The major event in the evening has always been the unveiling of the tiles that all of the graduating class makes of their favorite thing at Deer Hill School. However, this year that tradition was sometimes changed. As many Cohasset residents know, over this past year Michelle Claassen, a Deer Hill School music teacher for years and who had just moved to California, passed away. She was passionate about music and music education and really imparted this on her students. When the students heard about her passing away, they wanted to do something to commemorate her and what she had taught them about music. This year, instead of depicting something each student loved about Deer Hill School, each tile was an illustration of how music impacts their life. Some tiles were of students playing music, some of them listening to music. The tiles were circular, not square, representing the shape of musical notes. This was a lovely dedication to Michelle Claassen and the lessons she imparted on the students.

The fifth-grade volunteers peek underneath the paper to see how the mural turned out for Favorites 2010. The mural was later unveiled during Favorites Night.

...it is also a great way for the larger community to get an idea of the types of projects and art techniques the students are using.

Favorites Night is a testament to how invested the students, teachers, and school are in the arts. On the wall with the artwork were some quotes on art by students. One read, "Art is awesome, it lets you draw what you want and there is never a bad piece of art. My favorite thing about art is doodling because you get to see what kind of person you are. Also, doodling lets you express what you like by just drawing on a regular piece of paper just like the one I'm using right now. I wish we could have art every day," by Sam Montgomery. This sums up perfectly the attitude toward the arts that the Cohasset School system instills in its students. The public eagerly awaits the 19th annual Favorites Night next year.

Students say 'hola' to language lab

High School foreign language gets digital thanks to CEF

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In November, the Cohasset Education Foundation announced their biggest project yet: funding two new language labs at the Middle-High School.

Flash forward six months later and foreign language students are now experiencing the seemingly endless digital capabilities of the new language lab. A second language lab for the middle school is in the final stages of fundraising; $40,000 more is needed to reach the $220,000 fundraising goal.

"An extraordinary show of support from the community has gotten us this far," Mary McGoldrick, CEF Vice President, said. The goal is to have the middle school lab installed and operational by September.

The CEF is a non-profit dedicated to raising funds to support the Cohasset Public Schools. This is the first time in CEF history where the organization has agreed to raise money for a specific project and part of the reason is the significant cost.

This week, the students and teachers were still getting a feel for the new lab. In a class on Tuesday morning, students were wearing headsets as they listened to current popular Spanish music and filling in the missing words on an accompanying worksheet.

The introduction of more multi-media components is just one of the many advantages of the new language lab, teachers said this week. In a later class, Spanish teacher Peg Jordan put a video of something that can only be appropriately described through video – La Tomatina in Valencia, Spain. Thousands come to participate in a giant food fight involving thousands of pound of tomatoes.

"We can use the lab for more than just speaking and listening. It can be a window into another culture," said Beth Marat, a Spanish and French teacher at the high school.

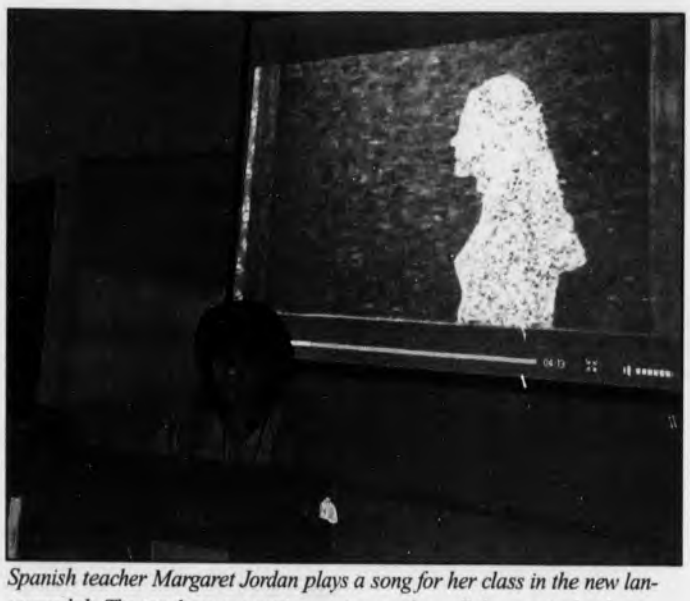
The language lab, which is currently being shared between the high school and the middle school students, is light years ahead of what it replaced. The old lab, which was built with funds from the CEF 16 years ago, still used cassette tapes.

"There are 30 stations now and they all work," Marat said. Right now, the language teacher split up their 90-minute blocks to allow equal opportunity for all the classes. The teachers said the increased time in the language lab should yield a more well-rounded foreign language student.

"It's going to improve listening, speaking and comprehension dramatically. The students are going to have a lot more time in the labs than they ever had before," Marat said.

The lab opens up more opportunity for conversation between students, to interact with native speakers through software programs, or even Skype (video phone conversations) with international friends.

Teachers can place students in small groups to have conversations and then listen in. The conversations can even be recorded and reviewed digitally with teacher comments. Different groups can work on different projects.



Students can also review the material or exercise at their own pace. They can play an audio recording back several times to gain understanding, whereas before that capability was not there.

"It allows for more differentiated instruction," Marat said. "Students can go back over it, break it down and understand it."

McGoldrick said one of the key considerations before the CEF agrees to fund a project is how many students will it impact.

"With this project we are affecting every student at the middle-high school," McGoldrick said.

During the 2008-2009 school year the foreign language program was expanded to the sixth grade. At the high school graduation requirements call for three semesters of foreign language.

CEF Tent Event is May 22

If it's May it must be time for the annual Cohasset Education Foundation Spring Event—this year to be held once again under a tent adjacent to the South Shore Music Circus on Saturday, May 22, from 6:00 to 11:30p.m.

This year's guests will be treated to Mexican fare, margaritas and music by DJ Rich DiMare, from KISS 108. There will also be a fabulous selection of silent auction items, including; vacation weeks at The Golden Bear Lodge & Spa, Cap Cana, Dominican Republic and beautiful Lake Winnipesauke, a box at either a Celtics or Bruins game at the Garden, balls signed by Jonathan Papelbon, Kevin Faulk and Rajon Rondo, plus parties, lessons and special times with teachers, as well as furniture artfully decorated by CHS students, just to name a few!

The Cohasset Education Foundation is a non-profit local education foundation that invests in programs and projects that enrich and maintain excellence in our schools in ways not supported by the regular budget – projects like the new high school language lab and future middle school lab.

Please join us for what is sure to be a fun and memorable evening celebrating and benefiting the Cohasset Public Schools. Tickets start at $75 per person, and increase to $85 per person after Wed, May 19th. For more information and for tickets please visit www.cohasseteducation.org.

My encounter with the Arbeitsdienst

By Rosmarie Engel-Conn
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Rosmarie Engel-Conn holds one of her hand-written memoirs of being a teenager in Germany during World War II.

Series of memoirs

The Cohasset Mariner is publishing a series of memoirs by Cohasset resident Rosmarie Engel-Conn. The 83-year-old German native has penned her most vivid memories and experiences as a teenager during World War II.

She lived under Adolf Hitler's rule, worked in an ammunitions factory as part of mandated service to the country, narrowly survived the bombing of Dresden, and escaped harm when the Russian army marched into her village just outside of Wittenburg.

This year is the 65th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Her memoir "The BBC" is the fourth installment in the series. To read her other essays: visit www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset.

During the 12 years, the German people were ruled by Adolf Hitler, who called himself "Der Fuhrer," the leader, there were many so far unknown and sometimes strange regulations to follow.

One of them was the "Arbeitsdienst," translated: work-service-duty. It was directed to the age-group of 14-18, meaning, all young people, who finished school on the different levels, had to spend one year of service with the low payment of 25 Pfennige (25 cents) for a work day, never knowing what kind of work to expect, or to what location the year of service would take them. There was a strict separation between female and male teenagers. Teens of all social levels, of different higher or lower education were put together in camp-like facilities and had to live in groups, in a very simple way.

I was just matching the demands of the Arbeitsdienst, after I finished school in the early spring of 1944, at the age of 17. I got my call to Wurzen, a small town in Saxony. With mixed feelings I sat in a train, still in kind of a feeling left alone after saying "goodbye" to my family — but on the other hand looking forward with curiosity and interest to a change in my life.

I arrived in Wurzen early in the morning, and when I entered the camp, the first step was to receive the uniform-equipment.

I followed a stern looking girl to the "Kleiderkammer" – wardrobe-supply room. There, another one checked me carefully from head to toe, turning me around and checking again from toe to head, with an unfriendly, serious and critical expression on her face. She gave some orders and, very fast, I was provided with my uniform — hanging it over my left bent arm. There was no try-on, no question, no talk at all — obviously items had to fit as you received them. I felt a kind of mishandled this moment, like an unimportant nobody.

Nervously I followed a girl to a big dark room where some rural wooden beds were stacked above each other. A narrow metal locker stood aside of a bed she showed me. It should take all my new possessions. But how did the uniform look? I was curious, when I spread it out on the grey wool blanket of the bed, to inspect it. Laying in front of me was a cornflower blue linen dress, with a rather wide skirt. Would it fit me? Yes, there were two strings fastened in the waistline. In pulling them together and knotting them in the back, it would fit various sizes. How practical, I thought. A fire red triangle linen headscarf, to cover the hair during work, and horrible thick, grey, strong knitted men-socks! A pair of black leather boots, reaching over the ankles, finished the rough looking outfit. To wear mountain climbing boots every minute of a day — this was a terrible perspective.

I started to feel very uncomfortable, looking at all these parts. Wearing them was like giving up my personal identity and would make me an "equal under equals". I looked around before undressing, but there was no privacy and I learned quickly there was never any privacy at all! What you did, how you moved — all was visible and controlled by your companions and leaders.

I felt strange, when I slipped in the dress, that would be my only outfit for the coming weeks and month — and it didn't look better, when I fastened in front a big, round silver-brooch, engraved with a swastika. Not even a mirror was there, to check my look! There I stood, looking down on myself, in the cornflower-blue dress and the thick hiking boots feeling helpless and lost. I looked over to the bed in which I had to sleep this night for the first time and lifted it cautiously on one side. Horror! I looked at a brown burlap sack filled with straw, blue-white checkered cotton sheets and all was covered by a dark-grey, woolen blanket. This was my bed! I stared at it and was shocked by its rough and uninviting look. A look so bad, that it made me swallow.

The girl returned to take me back to the "Kleiderkammer" where I had to say "goodbye" to my own clothes and where I received now, in a sharp, short way, some directions how to behave in the Arbeitsdienst.

I was told, that I was considered an Arbeitsmaid now and had to follow the rules of the Arbeitsdienst.

When a leader addresses me, or I respond to one, I always have to show a straight, up-right posture — legs pulled together. No questions or complaints. Each task I would be confronted with, I have to accept and to be ready for: I have to do my duty! Even after 65 years, I still hear this sharp uttered sentence: "You always have to do your duty!" and funny enough, shooting through my mind this moment was: London-Piccadilly circus, Admiral Horatio Nelson's statue high above, and the strong words he said to his men, before the sea battle of Trafalgar: "England expects you, to do your duty!"

Here I stood, hearing nearly the same words, uttered with the same urgency! And I felt for sure, there was no way out or rejection possible! My feelings became unpleasant and I felt imprisoned. On the other hand, I wondered, what would be my first "duty" in the Arbeitsdienst?

If I would have known this moment, how terrible it would be, I certainly would have started crying on the spot. But so, interested in what I would have to do – innocent – I followed a uniformed girl to a little house outdoors in the big courtyard, where strong steam and soapy smell emerged out of small open windows.

Inside, in front of big, wooden oval tubs, which were elevated on wooden stools – bent down, with high-red faces, were around six girls wearing the blue linen dress like me, the red scarf covering the hair. We looked all alike!

They scrubbed heavily big pieces of blue-white checkered cotton on metal washboards – not paying attention to me, entering the washhouse. I was shown to one of the steaming tubs, loaded with dirty clothes, waiting to be cleaned, piece-by-piece. I also bent down over the tub, grasped one of the hot steamy cloth, and started scrubbing it, up and down, as I had noticed, looking to the other girls. Up and down – some soap adding – and down and up again on the metal washboard. Between, I spied around – it was so strange, that we all looked alike! Nobody spoke, nobody laughed, and nobody paid attention to the newcomer. Everybody took the job seriously – scrubbing and working and scrubbing.

Never in my life, had I ever washed an item before! There was always a maid available in the households of my parents and grandparents. In addition, all 3-4 weeks at 5 o'clock in the morning, three women showed up for the so called "Waschtag," washing day!

And here I stood, bent, with thick man-socks in rough leather boots, in a cold, steamy surrounding and had to do this monotonous procedure.

Hour by hour passed by. My hands started to become red and swollen, by reaching in the hot water and handling the steaming pieces of cotton. When – suddenly – rolling over my face, salty tears started dripping, falling in the steaming soap water. They fell in a kind of rhythm with the scrubbing of the clothes. I didn't even try to hold them back – not caring for the look of the other girls at all – or to dry them, now and then! I let the tears running down my cheeks. I didn't care. So shocked I was about the horrible, uncomfortable, humiliating situation, people had put me in. And I was not allowed to refuse, or to complain – but had to cope with it, doing in a kind of mechanical concentration duty.

The next morning, a shrill sound of a whistle-blow tore me out of deep sleep.

After a fast shower in a primitive bathroom, I quickly had to make my bed. I watched and followed the girls around my, how they reached in the side opening of the brown burlap-sack, to move the breaking straw inside. Dust and bad smell started to fill the air and caused me to cough. But not stirred up every morning, this natural mattress would have been hard like a wooden board.

I wondered why all this was done so hastily, but got an explanation at once, when there was the shrill whistle-blow again. Everybody quickly stood guard, legs pulled together, aside of her bed, with motionless face. A leader, in a brown skirt/jacket uniform, a short wooden stick in her hand, entered the room and started to inspect the results of our effort. I learned fast, if she didn't like the way a bed was made or didn't like you, she lifted all up with her stick, without uttering one word. No emotion on her face.

And no one was allowed to complain during this unpleasant daily procedure.

A third shrill whistle blow called now for the breakfast. Behind simple, hard wooden benches I stood in line with the other girls – all clad in cornflower-blue, looking alike, no differences.

In front of us, on big blank, wooden tables was our breakfast. Displayed on huge oval plates, towered up and sticking together were big slices of brown bread. Covered thinly with red marmalade.

This was it? I was shocked. Some girls provided hot beverages, like milk or herb-teas. But why didn't we sit down, I wondered? And noticed, everybody had to stand in upright posture to follow first the pre-breakfast announcement of punishments or other harsh news.

So, I learned, that life in the camp was regulated to the minute! Early to bed, early up, standing guard in line – hissing the flag – marching behind each other – never asking – never complaining!

This was daily routine. And how fast I adapted amidst my companions in our cornflower-blue linen dress with the red scarf around our heads.

There was not much laughter or speaking during my first days and weeks in the Arbeitsdienst in Wurzen.

The hours and days passed in a kind of monotonous, unfriendly way, always being carefully aware of avoiding mistakes or of showing any misbehavior, which could lead to unexpected bad results.

Time and thinking were directed only on the work you had to do. "Do your duty!" This was marked on me during the one year of service. I had to put aside my wishes, my thinking, my individuality. Doing my duty for the Volk after the motto:

One for all.

All for one.

So, after a short time, the strong will of Adolf Hitler, the "Fuhrer," had formed a young German girls lifestyle, behavior and attitude after his ideas during her first weeks in the Arbeitsdienst.

family, headed by his late father John Reime Roy who died in 1999. Peter Roy and his brother Stephen founded Hingham-based Intercontinental Energy Corp., in 1985.

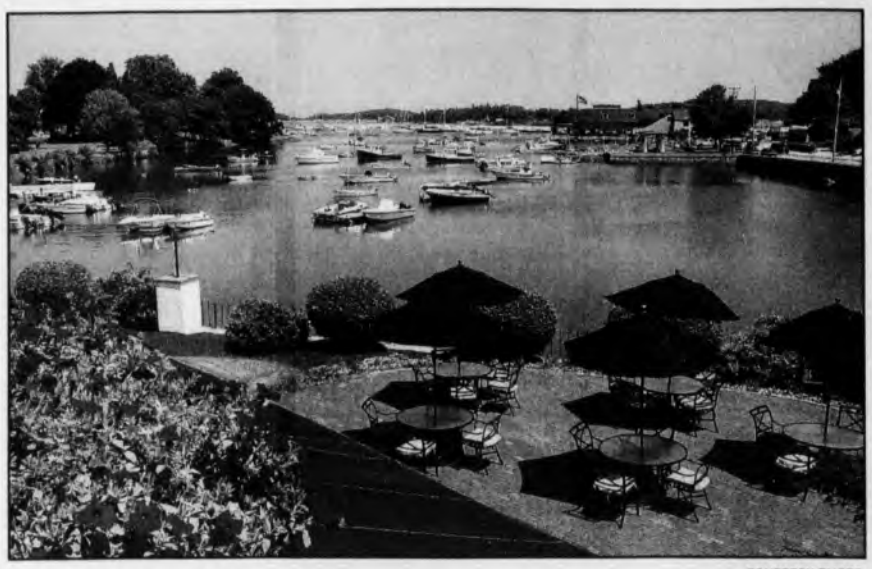
And now the search is on to find the next steward of the prominent properties. The fact the four waterfront properties are being offered as a package for one price sets the real estate opportunity apart from other high-end real estate.

"The decision (to sell the properties as a package) was driven by one factor: the Roys have spent 20 years building this real estate portfolio and while they were in control they made sure it was beautifully maintained," Radford said. A buyer, who is invested and integrated in the community, like someone would have to be to purchase all four properties, would be ideal, Radford said.

However, the option of selling the properties one by one is in the realm of possibility, he said.

"As it is, it is a unique offering. We'll see whether the (package) selling of the properties to one person can be achieved. My instructions right now is to find one buyer," Radford said.

And to find that buyer Coldwell Banker is launching an international marketing campaign for the properties.



"We don't know if the buyer will be a local person or from Europe. We're assuming we don't know where the buyer will come from and we're going world-wide with this offer," Radford said.

Radford said with many historic properties the owners aim to restore the property to its former glory. He said in this case The Oaks is "above and beyond what the former glory was."

The location of the Georgian Revival style home and impeccable landscaping is a selling point with no explanation necessary to those familiar with Cohasset. The 20,000 square foot, 45-room mansion is accompanied by 4,000 square feet of outbuildings, tennis court, pool, private sandy beach and a protected 112-foot deep-water dock.

But, Radford said one of the distinctive features is it is a family home that combines the formality of old with the casual living of the present. An addition built in 2006 boasts an open state-of-the-art kitchen and family/media room.

Radford said the property will attract a buyer with a love of the sea and boating — or yachting, perhaps, is more apt — for its deep-water dock.

Local realtors weigh in

In interviews with local real estate agents the words, "unique," "fabulous," and "great opportunity" came up again and again. But, there is also trepidation over finding the "right buyer," someone who will take care of the property in the same vein as the Roy Family.

Coldwell Banker listing agent Jonathan Radford said the Roys are thinking the same thing. They are not only looking for a buyer for the property, but "feel very strongly" it should be someone who will keep them in the same manner.

Tom Hamilton, owner of Dean and Hamilton Realtors, was unsure if the packaging of the properties would be successful, "it might be an easier sell for him to break them into different parcels."

"It is going to take somebody with a commitment to Cohasset – it's a great spot, and I hope someone is out there," Hamilton said.

Some realtors commented on the possibilities inherent when any real estate changes hands – change.

"There is a lot of acreage and is the highest and best use a single-family home?" asked David Drinkwater, owner and realtor of Grand Gables Realty in North Scituate.

Ideas for a potential future of The Oaks besides what it is already included splitting the large nine-acre waterfront property into different parcels, transforming the large single-family home into condominiums, or making the property into a function center for weddings or other events.

"The four properties being marketed represent a part of history and influence the whole feeling someone gets in coming to the harbor," Frank Neer of Coldwell Banker said.

"Leah and Peter Roy have been great community people and who have created such a great environment around the harbor," Neer said. "Under their care (the properties) and the way they have been maintained really add so much to the harbor. It's sad to have it on the market."

The businesses, especially Atlantica and the former restaurant on the property, Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant, elicit nostalgia for many. Hundreds have celebrated weddings and other major milestones in the rooms that overlook the harbor.

"They certainly are landmark properties…and this is a very provocative offering for someone to create some diversified investment," Drinkwater said. "How often does an opportunity like this come along?"

Cohasset is no stranger to high-end real estate sales, but this offering makes everything else pale in comparison. The next highest real estate property on the Cohasset market is the Cary Point estate on Atlantic Avenue. The house made a big splash when it went up for sale in January 2008 for $19.5 million. The home is still for sale and has come down in price. It is currently offered on the Dean and Hamilton Realtors website for $12.9 million.

Steeped in history

The waterfront location at the head of the inner harbor is steeped in history. Well before it was a mansion with manicured gardens it was home to the largest shipyard in Cohasset. Some of the largest sailing vessels ever built by Cohasset's 19th century shipwrights were constructed right there, according to Jackie Dormitzer's "Narrative History of Cohasset: Volume III."

In the 1850s a house was built on the property, and later it was sold to actor Lawrence Barrett who turned the house into a Victorian-style estate. Then, Clarence W. Barron, a well-known financier, purchased the property.

Barron's granddaughter, Jessie Cox, built the current Georgian Revival style mansion in the 1930s. The famous Cohasset Barron/Bancroft/Cox family were the founders of the Dow Jones Company, The Wall Street Journal and Barron's Weekly.

Long-time residents may recall the last time The Oaks was on the market — and the controversy that came with it.

According to Dormitzer's book, when Jessie Cox died in 1982 the family decided to sell the mansion and its 9-acres of waterfront land with manicured landscaping. A business, Yankee Oil and Gas Company bought the home for just under $900,000 in 1983. The property was used as the company's corporate office until the company went bankrupt in 1987.

Shortly after a consortium of developers, Oaks Realty Trust, bought the estate for $2.6 million in cash. The master plan was to build a "dockominium" on the harbor of private boat slips. At a special town meeting in 1988 voters passed a resolution against the proposal. Two months later The Oaks was back on the market.

In August 1989, Cohasset resident Peter Roy bought the property for nearly $3 million. At the time it was the largest residential real estate transaction ever made in Cohasset. Roy's parents, who also lived in Cohasset, owned Kimball's-by-the-Sea (now the Cohasset Harbor Inn), which they purchased in 1981.

Atlantica and its predecessors have made the location a destination restaurant for decades for both the food and picturesque harbor view. Visitors would flock to Hugo's Lighthouse Restaurant in the summer months.

"Hugo's was a very famous shore restaurant," local historian Jackie Dormitzer said.

The Mill River Marine, which has been completely transformed in recent years, appeared in the 1986 movie "The Witches of Eastwick" as the home of the character played by Cher. The site was once a gristmill, but has served as some sort of boatyard for the last century.

The Cohasset Harbor Inn, which was re-named from Kimball's-by-the-Sea in 2002, has 55-rooms, a function space, and an indoor pool.

"(The Roys) have really done a lot for the harbor area — preserved it and beautified it," Dormitzer said. "I certainly hope whoever buys it appreciates what they are getting.

"You're always nervous about what happens to that area. It really is the crown jewel of Cohasset," Dormitzer said.

READERS ADVISORY NETWORK

Readers weigh in:

(Editor's note: The Mariner asked for reaction to the proposed sale from members of the Readers Advisory Network).

"It will be many a year before those properties are all sold and certainly not to one buyer."

— John Hartshorne

"The economy being what it is, I don't expect any of these properties to move any time soon. However, this is now the time to prepare. When the village rezoning was being worked on, there was talk of looking at the harbor's zoning. Roy proposed something, and given the self-serving bent, it was properly rejected.

"However, that does not mean we should leave the status quo. I had drafted and proposed a more comprehensive, harbor-wide rezoning, that reached beyond just Roy's properties, and intend to re-submit the idea to the Planning Board. While many feared Roy's plans, they fail to appreciate that due to our standard 35-ft. height limit, he or any successor owner could tear down the restaurant and build a three-story anything. How would that be for the views?

"Before the expected knee-jerk "no" that will undoubtedly come from harbor area residents to any thought of rezoning, we had better think about what is now allowable under our 1955 one-size-fits-all zoning that still applies in the harbor. The Town can't control the harbor by buying all this up — but it can exercise some control over the future by designing what can and cannot be there."

— Tom Callahan

"I believe it is unfortunate that Peter Roy needs to liquidate his Cohasset Harbor land holdings. He has spent countless dollars purchasing, upgrading, and beautifully maintaining, not only his property, but the surrounding Town and private property to the betterment of everyone.

"A private entity could purchase the property in its entirety, put a fence around it, and create a private enclave, and exclude the townspeople of the freedom of use we have enjoyed for years, and there isn't much we could do.

"However, the property will probably be broken up in pieces and return to individual owners, with their own ideas on how they would like to operate and maintain their new property. We'll have to see what happens."

— Wayne Sawchuk

"All those nitwits who gave Peter Roy a hard time a few years ago when he and other local businessmen tried to improve the town via the Cohasset Revitalization Corporation may reap their just desserts when the buyer turns out to be less of a town booster and improver, and shows less taste in how the properties are maintained."

— R. Murray Campbell

"What came to mind for me was the zoning regulations in the area. Will the new owner be able to commercialize the area even more?

"I hope the new owners will maintain and present the property as well as the Roys have. It's always been one of the focal points of our town and for the most part I have liked how the Roys preserved it. It's a remarkable home and a real landmark.

"Also, it's interesting that the properties are being sold as a single unit. It's limits the pool of potential buyers. But it could be beneficial to Cohasset because the buyer will be that much more vested in the area."

— Barb Wipf

"Peter Roy has been an outstanding custodian of every piece of property he has owned in Cohasset It will be a grim future for the entire Harbor area without his generosity in both time and money being present. Peter has spent great sums to not only maintain and improve his property but added great landscaping and beauty to everything he is involved in. I doubt we will ever again see such concern from any new business owners.

"The Town of Cohasset has been very fortunate in having such a caring citizen as a homeowner and business property owner. Our treasured Harbor Area would not be as inviting and lovely without him. It is my hope that the town shows genuine gratitude for all his efforts by helping Peter if he should want to sell any or all his property. We owe that to him. The Oaks would never be the same without him."

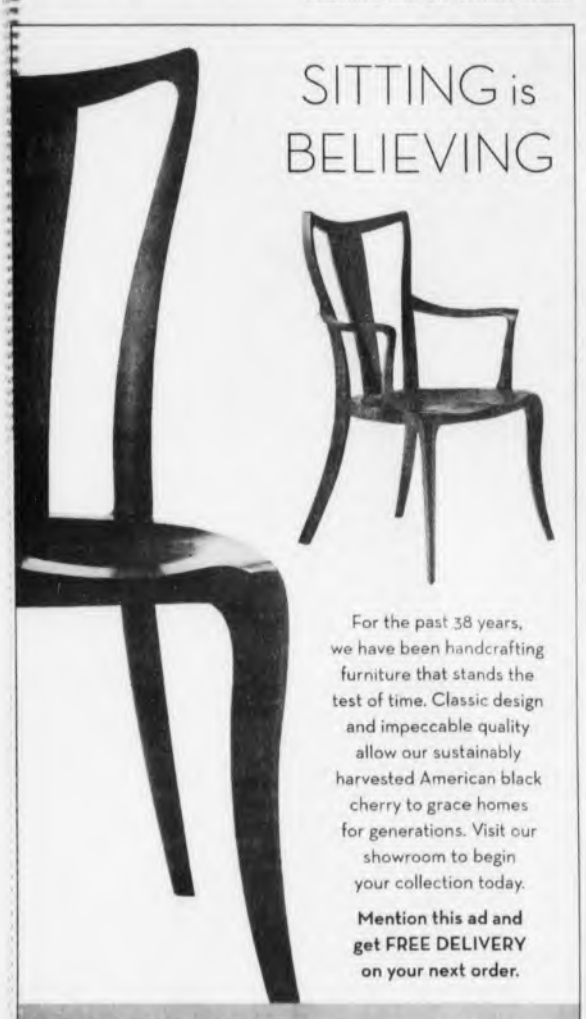
— Phil Smith

"It is so big and has so many ramifications I cannot get my mind around it."

— Patience Towle

"The harbor epitomizes Cohasset's raison d'être, that is, it is central to its identity — socially, economically, and environmentally. A balance of conservation, preservation and recreation is a good place to start."

— Susan Bell



"The last decade has seen local speculators emerge with millionaire aspirations, occasionally achieving such even if short lived, thanks an aiding and abetting town. While the prior decade brought millionaires with local aspirations, only to be henpecked and chased away by a fickle town impossible to satisfy.

"I am surprised the latter group stuck it out as long as they have, but Peter Roy won't be the last to leave. It will be a sad day nonetheless when the Kimball Towers 40B project breaks ground. At least it will be a 'green' building powered by the Mill River Hyrdo-Plant."

— Nathaniel Palmer

"My one thought is that I'll wait for the price to drop to $50 million before I make my move."

— John Lengyel

Big changes for ferry boat commuters

Intermodal Transportation Center slated for Hingham Shipyard

By Martha Bewick
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Ferry commuters, Boston Harbor Island visitors, and visitors from Boston to The Launch at the Hingham Shipyard, will find comfortable new waiting, restroom and ticketing facilities, as well as a covered concourse providing a sheltered walkway between the commuter boat parking area, the buses, taxis and drop-off at the commuter boat terminal once the New Intermodal Center is complete in the Spring of 2012.

Those attending the first information meeting learned about the 12,767 sq. ft, two-story Center on a recent Tuesday at the Hingham Town Hall. Plans to move the LST Memorial, as well as the proposed improvements to Building 45, which houses the Department of Conservation and Recreation Environmental Police were also described.

Moderated by Pablo Calderon, the MBTA's Public Meeting Communication and Coordination Specialist, the information session introduced the MBTA and consultant design and construction management team, the project outline at the 60 percent stage, various elements of the project, and offered an opportunity for questions from the public.

State Rep. Garrett Bradley told the gathering that he had been working the MBTA, making sure the Hingham Harbormaster is accommodated in the building, and said that he had been looking forward to this important phase of the project. The Harbormaster will join state agencies with a Boston Harbor role in the new building.

The Center will be a state-of-the art green building, including geothermal heating, and a vegetated roof, and is being designed to meet the highest criteria in this regard by the MBTA and its consultants, STV Inc. Some $6 million in Federal transportation funds will be invested in the Center, the remainder of the SAFETEA-LU federal funds gained for the Shipyard by U.S. Rep. William Delahunt.

Reta Butmi, the MBTA Project Manager, set forth the objectives of the New Intermodal Center, and said she hoped the final building will "provide a pleasant experience to its users and will add to the aesthetics of the area."

Kristine Gorman, STV Project Manager, outlined the many elements of the green building sustainable design strategies, permitting requirements, the agencies to be housed in the designated public and private space, as well as the relationship with the rest of the site. There are issues of space planning, since it will be "a very small site with a very big building," she said.

Locating bicycle racks, providing wider pedestrian walkways, obtaining easements for parking and drop-off of passengers at the terminal, and preventing pedestrian wandering around buildings where there are unsafe situations are among the actions underway. A Charlie Card machine, vending machine and variable message signs as well as wayfinding and information signs are part of the program.

Designed to meet the functional requirements of all the state and local entities scheduled to operate there, the Intermodal Center will house the ferry operators, the Hingham Harbormaster, MBTA Security, the Department of Conservation and Recreation supervisors, Environmental Police and island rangers.

Questions about safety of existing facilities, about the need to improve intermodal links in MBTA fare policies and physical connections, about accessibility for disabled, the opportunity for private vendors on site, and the importance of commuter boat parking for emergency or traffic mitigation uses were among those raised at the conclusion of the presentation. One commuter observed that the dock where the ferries land and the ramps are a hazard, and said "I don't know how no-one is falling into the water." Repairs are planned for the leaking ferry dock, in a separate project which needs money. The T representatives agreed to look into all issues raised.

Policing

Concerns about who polices the MBTA parking lot at night, as well as the areas around the marinas brought the response from Lauren Coughlin of the T that this is shared by the Hingham Police and the MBTA police. The MBTA patrols the parking lot from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. She added "there is a security presence at all times." She also noted that the Hingham Harbormaster will be present on the site, and have the use of cameras for security.

Several questions were raised about the need for true intermodalism if this center is to work. Ben Wilcox of the Industrial Commission noted that this project offers an opportunity long sought by the business community of Hingham to better link the services provided by the MBTA 220 bus, the Greenbush train, the Hull bus and the ferries. At the moment, there is no way to coordinate shoppers from Boston who would like to come by ferry with Hingham's downtown by bus. This led to discussion about the discrepancy in MBTA fares, raised by Vic Bass, a Hingham commuter. A ferry rider in the morning is not able to use his or her monthly transit pass to return to the West Hingham or Nantasket Junction by train. They are not interchangeable. Sam Manian of Hingham, a transportation expert, suggested that until these links were accomplished and discrepancies resolved, the center would be better called a multi-modal center, rather than an intermodal center: "It is not truly intermodal. There is not true connectivity so that people can move through in a more timely manner."

The Center will be a state-of-the art green building, including geothermal heating, and a vegetated roof, and is being designed to meet the highest criteria in this regard...

The MBTA consultants and staff said they would bring these issues to the agency. MBTA Real Estate Division Director Mark Boyle pointed out that there is a surplus of 500 parking spaces at the Hingham Shipyard. When asked whether the reconstruction of the Fore River Bridge would require alternative transportation opportunities such as the ferries and trains, and parking, he said that the MBTA is working with the highway department to ensure that the transit alternatives are in place during this construction period on Rte. 3A, and that the surplus parking, the trains and the ferries would be well used then. Others observed that the ferries were used in times of crisis, such as the Blizzard of '78, or Tall Ships parades, and that parking shouldn't be curtailed.

Ticket window space in the new building will accommodate two ticket sellers, and there is a third space for either another private ticket seller or for a vendor of some kind.

The MBTA will return for a public presentation at the 100 percent design stage, probably in May. Meanwhile, the DCR Project Manager Rick Corsi is working on improvements and plans for Building 45, which will remain in a reconfigured design. The boat ramp adjacent to Building 44, South Shore Lobster, will continue to provide water access for DCR Environmental Police and emergency purposes, but will not be available to the public.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Linda Steverman and Steve Deschenes of Boston Harbor Cruises said that they had been consulted during the design process of the New Intermodal Center, and that they were looking forward to adequate and comfortable new facilities for the commuters, and for their staff. They pointed out that the doorways from the new building will be much closer to the covered walkways, and provide better shelter during bad weather.

Commuter boat and transit riders who have suggestions or questions for the New Intermodal Center designers can send them to the STV Project Manager Kristine Gorman at Kristine.Gorman@STVInc.com, or to the MBTA Project Manager Reta Butmi at rbutmidecatman@mbta.com.

New green roof seeks school gardeners

The green New Intermodal Center offers an opportunity for a unique youth project. Pablo Calderon, the MBTA moderator for the information meeting on Tuesday, announced that they hope to open up the larger project to community input.

In particular, he issued an invitation to a local school group to adopt the vegetated roof of the new Intermodal Center. "I am looking for a school to do a project on our green roof," he said. Calderon is hoping to find a group to help work with the T to maintain the vegetation, and asked those attending the meeting for ideas of those who might like to participate.

Vegetated roof surfaces are can last 75 years. The Rockefeller Center in New York has long used such a surface.

If your school or group would like more information, contact Pablo J. Calderon, MBTA Design and Construction Department, 500 Arborway, Jamaica Plain, MA 02130, Phone 617-222-4167, and email pcalderon@mbta.com.

Week of mixed emotions

Laxers beat Scituate, fall to Hingham

By Sean MacCarthy
CORRESPONDENT

Boys' Lacrosse

This past week for the CHS Lacrosse team was filled with mixed emotions. There were some pretty high highs and some lows.

They started off with a high against a Pembroke team who had a record of 6-8. Cohasset controlled the game from start to finish, even when they started letting up. They scored the second highest amount of goals they've had this season winning 22-4. The dominant win gave Cohasset their tenth win of the season.

There were no standout stars for Cohasset in this game as everyone contributed. All of the offensive players controlled the ball and kept the pressure on Pembroke.

They were of course backed up by great defense and goaltending.

When the difference in the scores got further and further away, Cohasset's play became quite unusual. This even allowed goalie Jack Murphy to score a goal of his own after he subbed in to play defense.

"I thought we came out and did what we needed to early on," said captain Will Wise. "We were up by a bunch of goals which got a lot of kids in the game that don't normally get a ton of playing time."

Cohasset's next game was against the Scituate Sailors, a long time rival of the Skippers. The Sailors and the Skippers have had heated, very competitive battles every year. This year, things were different as this rivalry game was not well contested.

The tremendous trio, Dean Driscoll, Thomas Flibotte, and Will Wise opened up the game, respectively, with one goal each, jumping out to a 3-0 lead. Scituate found the back of the net only to be answered by Dean Driscoll who completed his hat trick in the first quarter giving Cohasset the 5-1 lead. After Ian Quinlan assisted Flibotte, Scituate scored another as the first quarter ended with Cohasset winning 6-2.

Kyle Livingstone assisted Dean "Doomsday" Driscoll to kick off the second quarter. Quinlan knocked one in shortly after. The game progressed

Boys tennis march toward title tiff

Boys' Tennis

The 2010 Skipper Boys Tennis Team is poised for claiming back to back league championships entering the final two weeks of league play but it won't' be easy.

The team is 7-3 overall and 6-1 tied with Norwell and Harwich in league play.

After a tough setback in Harwich falling 3-2 with a depleted squad, the Skippers rebounded with a huge upset victory over Norwell at home winning 3-2 with the final two matches both going to 4-4 in the third set playing side by side.

Junior Robbie Hill played first singles against top ranked USTA 18U Keeghan Allahyarian in a terrific match featuring big forehands and serves.

Junior Will Choi and Senior Conor Queenan won the first set and were ahead in the second against Norwell 1st doubles Clay Ferguson and Tom Koch before splitting sets.

Keegan's error free A level tennis play for the last 15 minutes proved the difference against Robbie's booming forehand and Norwell won first singles 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Choi and Queenan overcame their nerves and held serve to win at first doubles 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

Also winning for Cohasset was junior Travers Craven (undefeated 8-0 at second singles) over James Vafiades 7-5, 7-5, and senior captain Mike Filbey and Junior Garrett Canney at second doubles over George Robbie and Mike Logue 6-4, 6-4.

Freshman Jack Thomae played well at third singles losing to Kyle Freeman 6-4, 6-4.

Cohasset followed with a 4-1 victory at the Weymouth Club over Abington with solid play from Senior Sebastian Braga, Freshman Evan Ackley, and Freshman Andrew Barrett.

On Tuesday Cohasset defeated Carver 4-1 with Robbie Hill and Travers Craven winning at singles and Mike

The heat of the battle

Baseball team fighting for playoffs, league crown

Baseball

The Cohasset baseball team has been playing well lately, helping a run to the MIAA South Sectional Tournament and a shot at a South Shore League title.

The Skippers put themselves back in contention with an 11-9 win over Abington last Thursday and followed with a 5-0 win over Carver on Tuesday.

It was not exactly a pitchers duel," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said.

Cohasset pitchers gave the host Green wave 13 walks and also hit three other batters for a total of 16 free passes.

Otherwise Abington collected their nine runs on only five hits.

The story really belongs to the offense and defense through. Three skippers had multiple hits.

Freshman outfielder Shane Haggerty reached base in all five at bats, he was 3-for-3 with two walks, scored three runs had two RBI.

Junior Shortstop Anders Goetz was 3-for-5 with a triple, two runs scored and three RBI. Senior third baseman and pitcher Brendan Doonan was 2-for-5 with a triple and two RBI. Doonan also pitched the final

Nantasket Nor'easters enter new season

Sailing

The Nantasket Nor'easters have gotten off to an amazing start. Who knew that half way through the season, they would have gained as much knowledge as they have and improved dramatically. The team began as students from three different schools uniting to create the first sailing team in more than 20 years. They have become a close-knit team, excelling together to the point of a winning season. As we enter regatta season, the team polished their skills and boat handling that allowed them to take their first team race win against Dover-Sherborn (3-2).

They also took home four gold medals at the Lincoln Regatta in Hingham.

The regional sailing team, the "Nor'easters", includes 13 Cohasset HS sailors, three Hull HS sailors, and one South Shore Charter School sailor. The team is coached by former collegiate coach, Kevin Broome.

COHASSET YOUTH LACROSSE RECAPS

U13 Team 1

Team 1 was in front of their home crowd to take on another Marshfield team and the game was a hard fought, defensive battle. Goalie Brian Counihan was strong in the cage again and had excellent support from his defensive mates; Jack Osten, Griffin Gildea, and Aidan McHugh.

Marshfield had a very big, tough team but the Cohasset boys were up to the challenge and made the Rams work for every goal.

The midfielders did the dirty work of scooping ground balls and hustling from end to end with Chris Norton, Max Fitzgerald, Liam McHugh, Jack Speer, Liam McDonald, Ray Tolosko and Alex Norton all giving maximum effort. Team 1 had a tough time finding the back of the cage but still managed to draw to a 3-3 tie at the half. The boys did their best in the second half but could not pull this one off and ended up losing 5-3. Attacker Jack Curran showed his toughness once again by taking on the big Marshfield players and never quitting.

U11 Team 1

The Abominable Snowmen had a slow start to their game against Marshfield but would come roaring back in the second half in a very exciting contest.

Goalie Thomas Marsden and the defensive crew of Brendan Cooper, Charlie Pyne and Jackson Roberts held the fort for the first half but the Marshfield boys found the twine several times with strong shots from up top. Will Greer, Henry Snyder and Mason Fitzgerald scored to keep the game within reach but the Snowmen were down by 4 at the half.

After some position changes and a pep talk at halftime, the boys came out on fire and were ignited by the strong face off work of Zander Arnold and the all out intensity of middies Chris Longo, Cole Speer, Danny Durkin and David Burke.

Greer switched to defense and Fitzgerald jumped in the cage which helped slow down the Marshfield attack and created fast breaks with quick clears into the offensive zone. Greer, Pyne and Roberts combined with attacker Cal Osten to score 7 goals in the second half and finish an amazing come back with Osten scoring the winning goal with under a minute left for an 11-10 win!

U11 Team 3

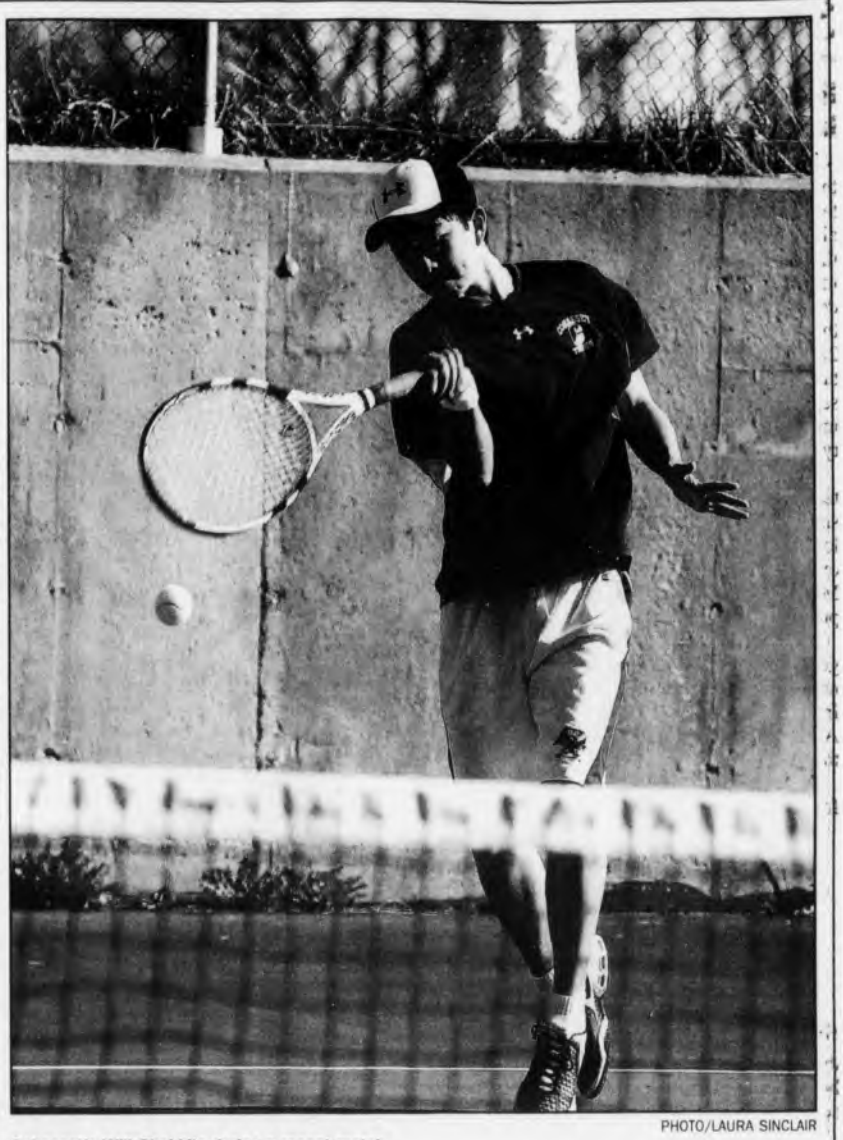
Cohasset U11 Team 3 defeated Lakeville by a score of 11-2 on May 2nd. The team was led by a monster game from Kyle McFetridge with 3 goals and 3 assists.

Jack Mahoney also had a hat trick and chipped in an assist to boot. Rounding out the scoring was Will Thomas (1g, 1a), Patrick Haggearty (1g), Tommy Carrabes (1g), Trevor Glavin (1g), Amby Tierney (1g), Sam Albino (1a), Luke Donovan (1a), Luca Curatola (1a), and Terence Faherty (1a). Once again, 9 of 11 goals were assisted, which portends to the high-level of passing this team has made its hallmark.

The goal was ably manned by Declan Havlicek & Nate Thomas who both made some point blank saves (perhaps Team 3 has finally found its permanent goalie!)

Excellent defense was displayed by Cliff Ward, James Krumsiek, and Henry Thomas, while Max Farber, Ryan Donovan, Jackson Fitzgerald, and Jay Frederick ably manned the attack.

Cohasset U11 Team 3 defeated Marshfield 10-2 on May 9.



Will Thomas (2g, 1a) and Ryan Donovan (1g, 2 a) led the scoring with 3 points while Tommy Carrabes (2g), Kyle McFetridge (2g), and James Krumsiek (2a) all added 2 points to the cause. Henry Thomas (1g), Jay Frederick (1g), Hank Waters (1g) and Trevor Glavin (1a) each chipped in with a point.

Patrick Haggearty and Will Thomas took the goalie reigns and stymied Marshfield throughout the day. Sam Albino, Luke Donovan, and Max Farber all controlled the midfield, while Amby Tierney, Luca Curatola, and Cliff Ward shut them down on defense. The attack was skillfully manned by Jackson Fitzgerald, Nate Thomas, Jared Seebeck, and Declan Havlicek.

CYL U13 Team Three
Summary of the current season

The CYL U13 Team Three is off to an exciting start this season with wins over Hanson, Hull, and Kingston. The season started out with a dominating performance over Hanson in which the Cohasset offense literally scored at will over their opponent led by an attack of Sean Mavilia, Charles Devrie, Cal Robbins, Charlie Krumsiek, Kyle Ferriera and AJ Kucinski with Krumsiek, Mavilia, and Kucinski combing for 11 goals between them. The defense stood tall with Evan Canney leading a band of brothers in Tagart Eymer, Levente Haber, Will Lucier, and Noel Hart who held Hanson to a mere two goals for the afternoon. In net for Cohasset were Conor Naughton and William Englander who directed the defense and kept anything that got by them from reaching the back of the cage. Jack Donohue, Jimmy Farren, Robert Raymond, George Bryan, and Jack Nee repeatedly got the ball down field and to the attack while picking up a few goals themselves. Jack Donohue was key on face-offs. The following week Cohasset went up against a stronger than expected team from Hull and took home a 7 to 4 "W" after a very good showing by our visitors.

The highlight of the season so far however was this past Sunday's game against Kingston. Being down 5 to 1 at half and playing poorly, Cohasset pulled itself up from the bottom of defeat and rose to victory by a 7 to 6 margin with the final score coming with two minutes remaining in the game. A great shot by Davis Cronin, a takeaway, clear, and long stick goal by Evan Canney, some excellent defensive middie play by Jackson Dutton, and 6 out of 7 face-offs by A.J. Kucinski in the second half earned the team a thrilling come from behind victory.

The Skippers played Harwich at home on Thursday and are at Norwell on May 20.

These matches could determine the fate of the 2010 squad in League play.

After a tough setback in Harwich falling 3-2 with a depleted squad, the Skippers rebounded with a huge upset victory over Norwell at home winning 3-2 with the final two matches both going to 4-4 in the third set playing side by side.

Register now for field hockey clinic

This summer, the captains of the high school field hockey team will be running a clinic for all students going into sixth through ninth grade who are interested in learning the sport or developing new skills. During the clinic, which runs from June 22 to June 25, participants will be taught basic techniques, play in scrimmages, and get hands-on instruction by experienced varsity players.

The players will be on hand to teach basic skills techniques, run small games and drills along with lots of cardio work. Bring your own stick and shin guards. Mouth guards are required. Eye protection is recommended.

The team has extra sticks and goggles for you to use if you need. Have fun, meeting new friends and learning new skills. All new and current players to the sport should attend this clinic.

It will be held at Milliken Field from 4 to 6 p.m.

The cost is $64 per player to benefit the Cohasset High School Field Hockey Team. All skill levels are welcome.

Register now at www.cohassetrec.com, and for more information, email Emily Toomey at emilytoomey33@yahoo.com.

three innings giving up only one hit, and one run, picking up his second win of the week.

"Against the defending state champions the boys never showed any kind of fear or intimidation and really played one of their best games of the year," Afanasiw said. "We had some very timely hitting with good, aggressive at bats by everyone in the line up, and we made the routine plays that we are expected to make."

Prior to the game, freshman catcher Connor Goetz got the call to move up to the varsity level, to replace injured senior co-captain Andy McKenna.

Goetz did a great job behind the plate, not allowing a single passed ball, and throwing out his first baserunner on Abington's second attempt. Goetz also collected his first varsity hit an RBI single in the fourth inning.

"Overall the boys really elevated their game at the critical moments of this game," Afanasiw said. "Every time it seemed Abington was making a move to pull away, we responded soundly and kept competing. It was a great win, to round out a great week in which we earned three wins."

On Tuesday, it was the exact opposite scenario of the Abington game- pitching dominated this outing.

Junior Jeff Cavanaro pitched a complete game shutout, giving up two hits and two walks while striking out five.

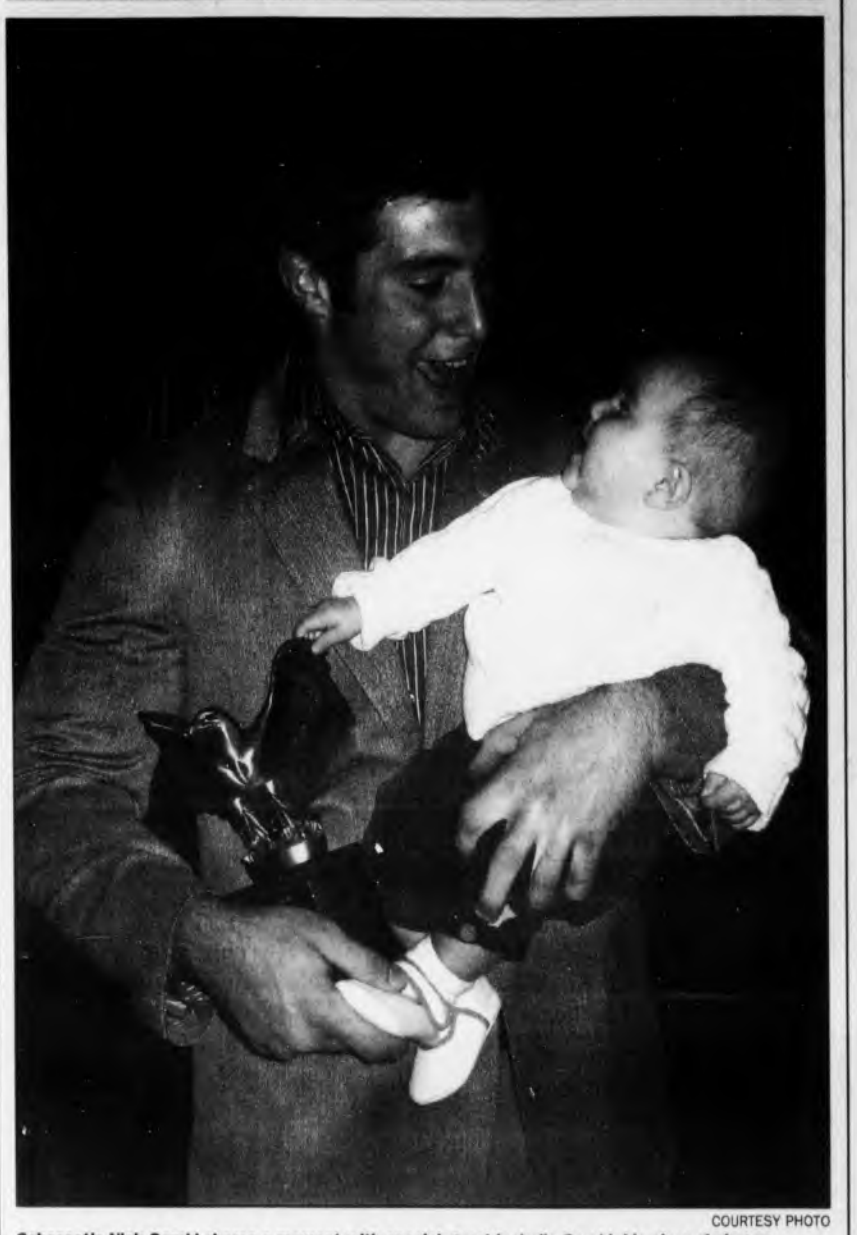
Cavanaro was also 2-for-4 from the plate with a run scored, an RBI and three stolen bases.

"Jeff's command and velocity were excellent," Afanasiw said. "He kept the Carver hitters off balance all day, and benefitted from excellent defense."

Freshman Shane Haggerty had a highlight reel catch in centerfield on a dying fly ball, and both senior third baseman Brendan Doonan and junior shortstop Anders Goetz made several phenomenal plays at their respective positions to quell any kind of a Carver threat.

Offensively, Goetz remained hot, by going 2-for-4 with a double and two RBI, and sophomore outfielder Jamie Timothy continued his excellent performance at the plate by going 2-for-3 with a double and an RBI. Freshman catcher Connor Goetz, didn't want to be outdone by his older brother Anders, and he collected his first extra base hit, a triple in the fifth inning.

Cohasset played Harwich at home on Thursday.



Both teams came into the contest with identical records 8-5 overall 7-3 SSL, and Cohasset was hoping for a little payback as they dropped a very emotional extra inning game down in Harwich last month.

Cohasset's Cambi named RWU Male Athlete of the Year

At an Athletic Awards Banquet this week at Roger Williams University, Cohasset's Nick Cambi was named RWU Male Athlete of the Year for his efforts this year on the wrestling mat.

Nick earned the award after taking All-New England honors this season with a second-place finish at 197 lbs in the New England Championships.

The two-time Academic All-American is also a Pilgrim League First Team All-Star.

He led the team in wins and team points, finishing with an overall record of 33-6, good for a .846 winning percentage which ranks sixth all-time in RWU history.

Nick is a 2007 CHS graduate and wrestled under Coaches Torin Sweeney and Pete Buckley. He is the son of Michele and Michael Hubley and grandson of Mike and Anna Abbruzzese.

Family members including his parents, grandmother, brother Cosimo and sister-in-law Ali surprised Nick at the Awards evening in Bristol, Rhode Island, along with special guest, Isabella Cambi, who was quite proud of her Uncle.

with solid defense by both teams accompanied by some chippy play. As the first half was winding down, "Doomsday" turned into Superman scoring on a full extension shot as he was parallel to the ground.

Driscoll and Flibotte both notched five goals for the Skippers.

With the score 9-2 at the halfway mark, Cohasset never looked back. Scituate was drained of all energy as they couldn't overcome Cohasset's stronger and more aggressive play. The final score was 16-5.

The Cohasset laxers and the fans were quite happy with the decisive win.

"I thought that we played well together as a team," said Driscoll about the game against Scituate. "I'm glad that we were all pumped for the game because last year, Scituate ruined our season. It was nice to get a little revenge."

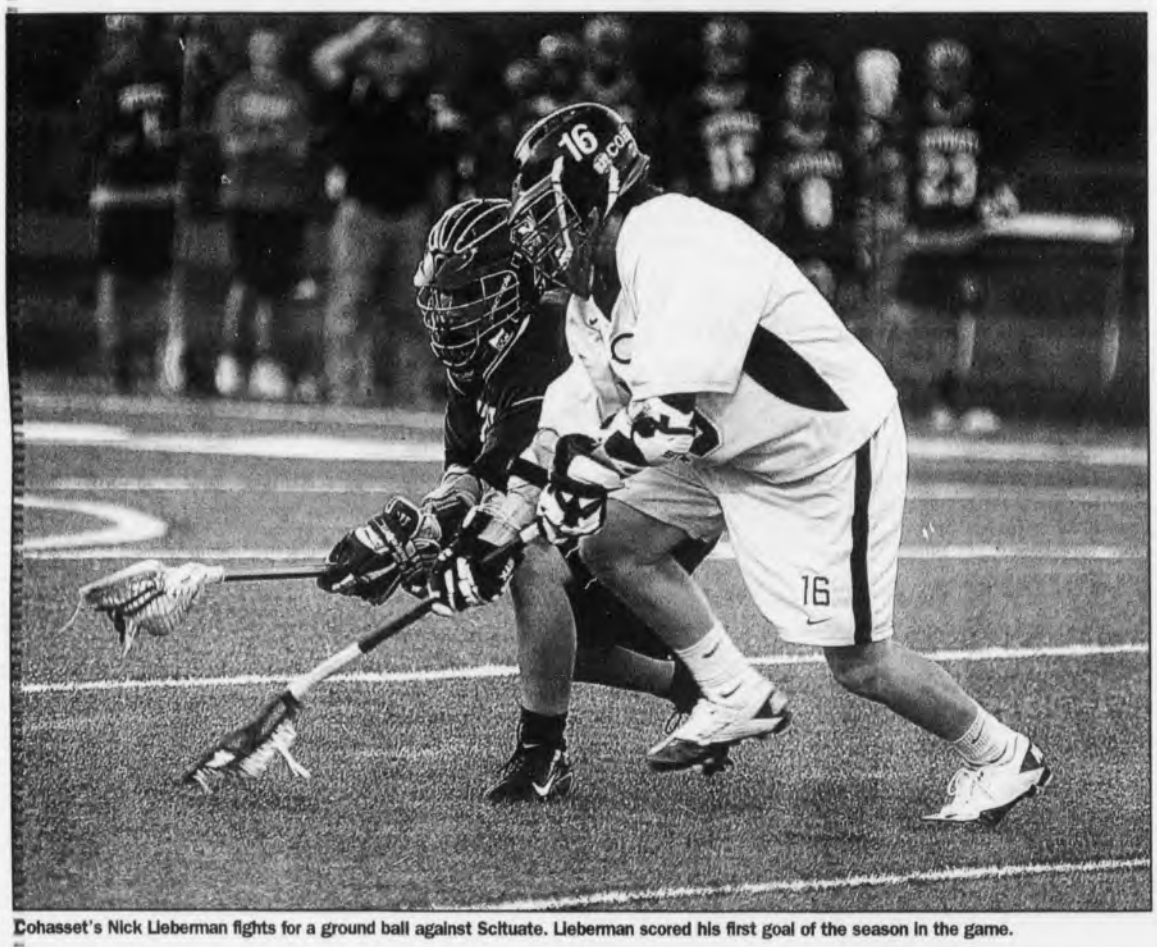
This past Tuesday, the 11-1 Skippers met their low point as they dropped to 11-2. The sixth-ranked Skippers touched gloves with the tenth-ranked Hingham Harbormen in a tough game where they came out on the losing end.

Cohasset's Will Wise looks for some offense on Friday night.

Cohasset was actually winning the game at the end of the first quarter after Justin Yeager scored, putting Cohasset up 3-2. In the second quarter, Hingham held Cohasset scoreless as they rang off three goals of their own making the score 5-3 Hingham at halftime.

Once they grabbed a hold of that lead, Hingham never let go. Their offense was highly equipped with Syracuse recruit John Fitzgerald, who had a Cohasset player shadowing him at all times. The Hingham offense was also very disciplined as they picked their shots carefully and having a great return rate.

Hingham's defense had great speed for their size which in turn shut down the flat Cohasset offense. Normally high powered with plenty of goals to go around, Cohasset's offense struggled to get the shots with a high success rate.



Another key to Hingham's success was their efficiency when they were man-up on Cohasset who played a good portion of the game a man down.

Overall, the game ended with Hingham winning 12-7 improving their record to 11-3.

"We did not play our best out there," said Jack Murphy. "This is a game that we can learn from and I think it kind of told us what we have to do to beat the best. I'd say the loss was a good wakeup call for out team."

Taking the loss in stride, Cohasset still has one thing to be very proud of: they are still the No. 1 ranked team in Division 3 Massachusetts Lacrosse.

With some rigorous practices ahead, Cohasset prepares for games against Abington, Nantucket, and a big Xaverian team.

Cohasset's Nick Lieberman fights for a ground ball against Scituate. Lieberman scored his first goal of the season in the game.

RESIDENT / OVERNIGHT / SLEEPAWAY CAMP: THE CAMPER BENEFITS

By Bette Bussel, Executive Director, American Camp Association, New England

Choosing to send your child to a residential camp for the first time can be difficult for many families, but the benefits can be immense and long-lasting. While each family has unique reasons for choosing an overnight camp, we hope you might also consider these benefits:

• Group Living: Campers sleep in a bunk (cabin, tent, yurt, lean-to, etc…) with others their own age. Kids quickly learn to share not only their possessions, but their talents and experiences. Camp tends to erase a lot of the barriers that might otherwise keep children from interacting.

• Trying New Things: Overnight camp can be a great place for first attempts. Nearly all camps – even those with a particular focus – encourage their charges to try activities that will stretch them and broaden their interests. A change of scenery can do a lot for one's gumption. Camps in New England also offer greater access to outdoor opportunities – lots are situated on lakes or near mountains.

• Structure: The people who run our ACA-accredited camps are educators and professionals, and they know that structure, balanced with time for free play, is essential for kids. Knowing what to expect throughout the day provides some of the comfort and security necessary for campers to try new things and to meet new friends with minimal anxiety about 'what's next.'

• A Fresh Start: Even for kids who are successful in school and happy at home, resident camp can provide a welcome, new perspective. Many children who might lag in the classroom find themselves capable of leadership at camp, where learning challenges are muted and kids can be more willing to accept each other at face value.

Cherishing the last days of high school

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Wow…I cannot even express my feeling on that issue. Prom is like wicked soon. So is graduation.

Hello to you all. Again. For like the 35th time or something. I'm too lazy to count but if I had my own personal secretary I would totally be able to give you an accurate number. Then again, if I had my own personal secretary, I would get really lazy and tell them to write this article every week so then you wouldn't get to read all of my "great humor."

Monday…Monday…Monday…I seem to have forgotten what happened on Monday. Oh, wait, that's a lie. I remember now. Nothing happened on Monday. T'was a shame to see nothing going down in my halls of my CHS.

Tuesday was a continuation of MORE AP Exams. I was all done, but those bold, daring, and wicked smaht (Boston smaht) kids that took AP Chemistry had to take the exam. I was all like, "Dude that stinks. I am done with APs for life." Then they were like "Duuuuude this does stink. This is my last AP Exam ever though." Then we high-fived. Party.

Do you remember last week when I told you about my English Literature and Composition AP Exam? Well on Wednesday all the juniors taking AP English had to take the English Language and Composition AP Exam. If you missed it like me the first time, the difference is "Literature" and "Language". Is your mind blown too?

Thursday was a day that I came in late to school. That was some good fun. I also believe it was the day that put the Seniors at ONLY 10 DAYS LEFT OF SCHOOL! Wow…I cannot even express my feeling on that issue. Prom is like wicked soon. So is graduation. If you don't mind me, I'm gonna go ahead and cherish these last days I got…a lot. Unintentional rhyme.

I couldn't tell you what happened on Friday. Why? I wasn't there. Why? Because I went on the Chorus and Band trip to Philadelphia. Why? Stop interrupting. That's so rude. Anyways, Mr. Marks and a Mr. DeWall took about 100 kids of theirs down to Philadelphia to sing and play instruments competitively. At this point you are wondering if we will sound good. HAH! We are gonna sound so good that we will bring home a Superior rating which is almost sorta kinda like bringing home a Superbowl Trophy…well not really…

HINT TIME! Remember, I am giving you hints about my replacement. This girl is an offensive threat on the Field Hockey field and a super quick track star. Tune in next week for another clue because that didn't exactly narrow that pack a whole lot. If you already think you got it though, then congrats to you for being a detective. Sherlock would be proud.

That's all I have for you at this point in time. Oh wait I forgot. HUGE NEWS! Like the biggest news I am ever revealing to you guys so LOOK HERE: I, Sean Michael MacCarthy, am currently searching for a job. This is your opportunity to get a very hard and dedicated worker like me a job. This is one of those few times in these articles where I am dead serious. If you could get me a job or know of any place that is hiring, please shoot me an email at chickenparmeSEANO@yahoo.com. I'm heading off to college next year and I need some money so I will literally do anything. Thank you in advance for all your help. I know it's kinda cheap to advertise yourself in your own column but these are hard times for a 17-year-old boy.

I hope you all have a swell day/weekend. Ciao!

Sean MacCarthy is such a hard worker. You or one of your acquaintances should totally hire him.

Artwork on display at State House

Two Cohasset Middle High School art students have been selected as regional winners in the Secretary of the Commonwealth's United States 2010 Census Poster Contest.

Students, families and teachers are invited to have a private tour of the State House, followed by a luncheon with awards ceremony hosted by William Francis Galvin, Secretary of the Commonwealth and Mitchell D. Chester, Ed. D., Massachusetts Commissioner of Elementary and Secondary Education, on May 21st, from 10:45am-2 pm.

The students' artwork will be displayed in the Great Hall of the State House.

House Tour to celebrate 375th anniversary

Hingham Historical Society's 86th annual tour of historic Hingham homes will take place June 11 and 12, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., both Friday and Saturday. This year's pilgrimage will celebrate Hingham's 375th anniversary with some notable homes, including the Matthew Cushing homestead built in 1678, the 1664 Tower Homestead and five other antique Hingham homes. Thoughtfully preserved and cared for over the centuries, the houses in this year's tour are examples of the spirit of adaptability that makes living in and preserving an antique home a unique and enlightening adventure for those who seek to understand the past in a very personal way.

COURTESY PHOTO

Cushing Homestead is one of the oldest residences in Hingham still owned by the same family. It still retains much of its original interior fittings, including some 17th century decorative painting.

Hingham is uniquely positioned to offer South Shore residents a rich variety of buildings to explore. The town boasts more than 200 documented historic structures dating as far back as the 1640s. For more than 80 years, the Historical Society, which was founded in 1914, has worked with homeowners to open a selection of them every year for the benefit of the town. The 2010 House Tour coordinator Jennifer Schwartz emphasizes that the tour is an educational event as well as the Society's biggest annual fundraiser. "What people learn from just looking at these houses is amazing," said Schwartz. "Many homeowners discover that the features in their own house that they thought were unusual, such as beehive ovens and gunstock support posts, were actually fairly common in this part of New England, but each family adopted the form to their own needs. Visiting these houses together also gives us a sense of how our ancestors lived in them day to day." Unlike house tours that feature dwellings of the rich and famous, Hingham's house tour organizers stress that many of the town's charming colonial era homes were not built by wealthy merchants or industrialists. "Hingham has pretty much always been a working town," said Schwartz. "They may be large today, having been added on to over the centuries, but most of these homes started out as modest capes, built by farmers or blacksmiths, or coopers."

To that end, Schwartz appointed two researchers this year to ferret out the histories of the houses. Using a genealogy compiled by town historian George Lincoln in 1893, and the building histories records compiled by the late Julian Loring, researchers Gail Litchfield and Lisa Reis are compiling individual histories of each house on this year's tour. The histories will then be donated to the homeowners. Said Reis, "The house histories are our gift to the homeowners for letting hundreds of people traipse through their home for a weekend."

"Of course, it's hard to measure the educational impact of the tour," admits executive director Suzanne Buchanan, "but we believe that at least it has helped contribute to the spirit of preservation that helps keep Hingham so uniquely attractive. It comes up so often in my conversations with owners of historic homes: they see themselves as stewards rather than owners of these sometimes quirky old buildings. They're preserving their historic charms for the next generation of homeowners."

Houses aren't the only thing featured on Hingham's annual House Tour. Several semi-public buildings will be open as well, including Old Derby Academy, where visitors can get last minute tickets and grab a bite to eat at the House Tour Café on the ballroom. The tour also marks the seasonal opening of the Old Ordinary House Museum, which currently features a display of samplers made by Hingham girls at the turn of the 18th century. First Parish Meeting House, known more commonly as "Old Ship Church," will also be open for public tours during the weekend, and The Bare Cove Fire Museum will also participate in this year's tour with a fire truck and other exhibits on display at the old Central Fire Station on Short Street.

In another departure from previous years, the 86th annual House Tour will also feature a sampling of the artistry of some of the South Shore's most talented florists. Each historic house will be decorated with a floral centerpiece created to play off the home's interior light and colors.

Tickets for the tour are $25 in advance, $30 the day of the tour. Tickets may be purchased at locations around the Shore or online at historichometours.com. For more information, visit the Hingham Historical Society's website at hinghamhistorical.com or call 781-749-1288.

Register Saturday for summer drama!

Registration for the Cohasset Dramatic Club/Cohasset Recreation Department's 2010 Summer Drama Workshop Program is this Saturday, May 15, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Town Hall Auditorium. There are two programs offered this year.

For 8 to 13 year olds, the workshop program will culminate in a production of "Seussical, Jr." the fantastical, magical musical extravaganza. This show brings to life all of the favorite Dr. Seuss characters including Horton the Elephant, The Cat in the Hat, Gertrude McFuzz, lazy Mayzie and a child with a big imagination - Jojo. Based loosely around Dr. Seuss's "Horton Hears a Who," this is a story that transports it's audience from the Jungle of Nool to the invisible world of the Whos. It will make you laugh and cry as you follow these characters along their journey. Ultimately the powers of friendship, loyalty, family and community are challenged and emerge triumphant.

This summer's production of "Seussical Jr." will accept a total of 50 participants. Registration is on a first come, first served basis.

The 8 to 13-year-olds will participate in the new musical, "13." It's a grown-up story about growing up. When his parents get divorced, and he's forced to move from New York to a small town in Indiana, Evan Goldman just wants to make friends and survive the school year. Easier said than done. With an unforgettable rock score, "13" is a hilarious, high-energy musical for all ages about discovering that cool is where you find it, and sometimes where you least expect it.

Cost for participation in either program is $350 per participant ($300 each for two or more from the same family). That includes personal script, two tickets to one performance, special acting, theater make-up, voice and technical workshops, show costuming, show t-shirt and cast party. Everyone who signs up for either program is cast in that show and fully participates in all aspects of their particular program. Roles will be assigned based on auditions. Contact Lisa Pratt, Program Director with questions or for more information at lisa.pratt@comcast.net.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE
WEEK OF MAY 10, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might not like some people's idea of a surprise. But you could be in for a pleasant shock when someone finally sends a reply to a request you made so long ago that you almost forgot about it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a time to expect the unexpected. So don't be surprised if a decision that just recently seemed final suddenly opens up and leaves you with another chance to make an important choice.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Taking a different tack on a work project might rankle some colleagues. But the positive results of your innovative course soon speak for themselves. Celebrate with a fun-filled weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Meeting new associates can be awkward, even if you're in a high positive phase right now. Best advice: Make them feel comfortable, and you'll soon forget your own discomfort.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good time for you social Lions to blow-dry your manes, polish your claws and look like the Fabulous Felines you are as you make new friends and influence the influential.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Expectations run especially high this week, and you should feel confident in your abilities to take advantage of what might be offered. A colleague has some advice you might find helpful.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent flurry of activity leaves you in need of a little breathing space, and you'd be wise to take it. Close family members should have an explanation about an emergency situation that just passed.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An insensitive act makes a difficult situation more so. But try not to waste either your physical or emotional energies in anger. Move on and let others fill the clod in on the facts of life.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a good time to look into that training program or college course you've been considering. You might have a good place to use those sharpened skills sooner rather than later.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Education dominates much of your aspect during this week. You might want to start checking out those summer session courses that could help advance your career plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Progress often comes in fits and starts. But at least you're moving straight ahead with no backsliding. You should soon be able to pick up the pace and reach your goals in due time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be wary of a deal that gives confusing answers to your questions. Remember: It's always risky swimming in unknown waters, so you need all the help you can get to stay on course.

BORN THIS WEEK:
You have a way of bringing people together and creating close friendships wherever you go.

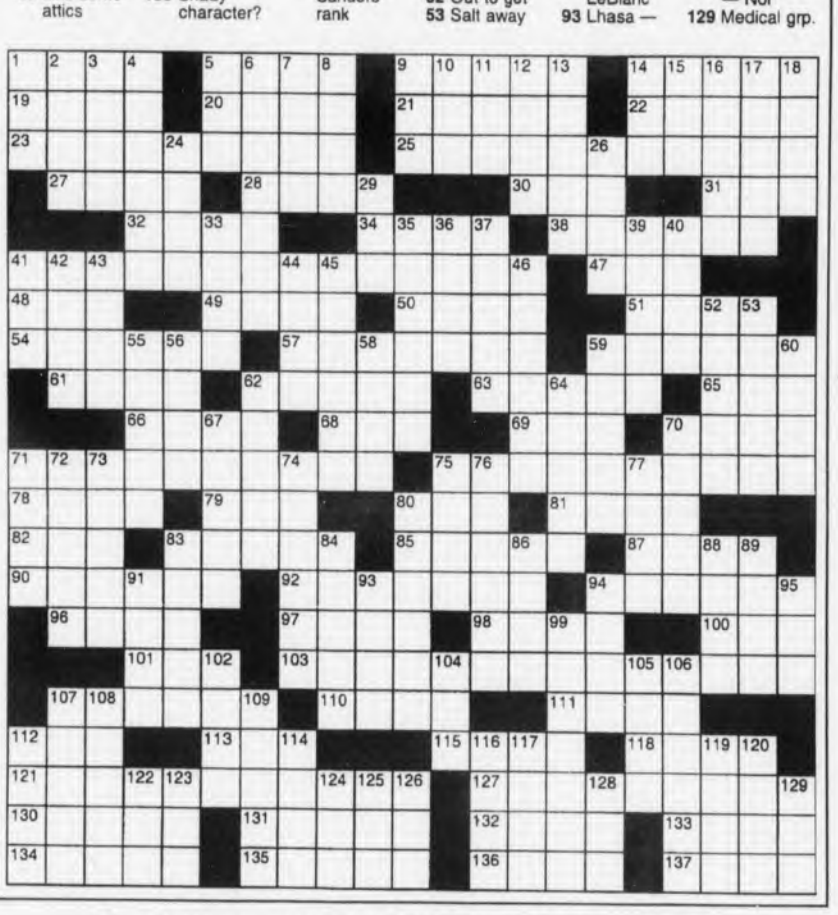
Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!



Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Retreat for people with movement disorders

The program is offered by the Spirited Movement Foundation, a Cohasset-based nonprofit dedicated to serving people with movement disorders.

An interfaith spiritual retreat for people living with Parkinson's disease, dystonia, tremor and similar conditions will take place at Glastonbury Abbey, 16 Hull St., Hingham, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., on Saturday, May 22. "Moving in the Spirit, will feature adaptive yoga, chair massage, discussion, guided meditation and prayer. Cost is $4, and lunch will be included. The program is offered by the Spirited Movement Foundation, a Cohasset-based nonprofit dedicated to serving people with movement disorders.

"My team and I are thrilled to offer this retreat at Glastonbury Abbey. It is the perfect place to offer a day focused on healing and wholeness," said Lindsay McGrath, the Cohasset resident who heads up the group. McGrath is a trained hospital chaplain who holds a master of divinity degree from Boston University School of Theology. She lives with a movement disorder called cervical dystonia that effects her neck and shoulder muscles. The day will feature chair-supported yoga with Renee Le Verrier author of "Yoga for Movement Disorders" (Merit Books). Jennifer Greenwood and her staff from Healing Touch Therapies in Scituate will provide gentle chair massage.

The Spirited Movement Foundation has received support from the American Parkinson Disease Association, Allergan Inc. and Gentiva Home Health.

Puppeteer meets playwright

'Romeo & Juliet' – with a twist

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

William Shakespeare's star-crossed lovers Romeo and Juliet have inspired all manner of modern-day adaptations, from Leonard Bernstein's landmark 1957 musical "West Side Story" and Baz Lurhmann's 1996 feature film "Romeo + Juliet," starring Leonardo DiCaprio, to Disney's 2006 TV movie "High School Musical." This Friday and Saturday in Norwell, the young characters will have some young actors pulling their strings when the Academy of the Company Theatre tells its tragic tale using Bunraku puppets.

"We did a 30-minute cutting of 'Romeo & Juliet' using Bunraku puppets last summer in Norwell and from the initial workshop came this year's full 90-minute version. It represents the culmination of a nine-week program with 16 young actors from the Academy," explained director Peter A. Carey by telephone last week. "I've always had a very strong interest in Kabuki theatre so this is kind of an extension of that."

Like the dance drama of Kabuki, Bunraku is a classical Japanese theatrical art form – this one using puppets and most commonly associated with lovers' suicide plays.

Dan Richardson (Pembroke), Meghan Rafferty (Scituate), Victoria Pratt (Rockland) and Director Peter Carey of Randolph during rehearsal for the The Teen Conservatory of the Academy of the Company Theatre's performance of "Romeo & Juliet."

"Each Bunraku puppet, which is 42 inches in height, takes three operators, so one actor for the feet, a second actor for support and to operate the left arm, and a third, or lead, to run the face and right arm, and to deliver the dialogue. We're using one for Romeo and one for Juliet. We're also using a shadow puppet in the show and two stick puppets in our opening scene."

Carey, a longtime Randolph resident and frequent guest director at the Company Theatre and with the Academy of the Company Theatre, says he had a particular reason for wanting his latest project's main characters to be played by puppets.

"The whole idea for this comes from wanting to get across the innocence of 'Romeo & Juliet.' I just thought it might work well if they were Bunraku puppets. It would allow the characters to be really detailed and still really innocent, too. Once I discovered this idea, it just expanded from there and incorporated the other puppets. It took a little while for the young people in this production to buy into the concept, but they love it now. This 'Romeo & Juliet' is a celebration of so many art forms and how the characters respond," says Carey, who is quick to acknowledge the design expertise of artist Sherry Malone of Plymouth, who constructed the puppets, and Michelle Finston, who served as the production's "puppetering consultant."

In addition to his work with the Company Theatre, Carey – last seen as an actor in this season's "Honk!" at Boston's Wheelock Family Theatre – is also Director of Lyric First Stage, a summer program for 14 to 20-year-olds operated by Boston's Lyric Stage Company, which does a musical and a Shakespeare production in repertory annually.

The mix of musicals and Shakespeare is perfectly natural, according to Carey, who believes that Shakespeare should be introduced early in the public school curriculum.

"You could do 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' in fifth grade. Doing Shakespeare really expands a young person's vocabulary. The stories are great, too, because they reflect today as well as the period when they were written. And musicals and Shakespeare take the same energy. If you can perform a song in a musical, you can do a Shakespeare soliloquy."

The Teen Conservatory of the Academy of the Company Theatre will perform "Romeo & Julie," at the Company Theatre, 30 Accord Park Drive, Norwell, May 14 and 15. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 781-871-2787, or go online at companytheatre.com. TRIBUTES AND TRADITION

Boston Pops opens 125th season

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

The Boston Pops opened its 125th season last week with a concert that included tributes to Arthur Fiedler and John Williams, a birthday cake, and the ubiquitous balloon drop, all presided over by conductor Keith Lockhart, who is celebrating his own 15th anniversary with the orchestra.

"The 125th anniversary is a good excuse to celebrate and remind people of the incredible tradition that is the Boston Pops, although I am not a big fan of birthday programming," explained Lockhart, 50, recently by telephone. "I think every season is important."

While most Pops fans would undoubtedly agree, this season – which includes a world premiere of a new multimedia piece bringing to life the words of John, Robert, and Edward Kennedy, commissioned by Lockhart and the Boston Pops, as well as appearances by guest artists like Dave Brubeck, Arlo Guthrie, and Maureen McGovern – may be especially significant.

"I've been thinking for a good decade or so of doing a piece of new music using the words of President John F. Kennedy in line with Aaron Copland's 'Lincoln Portrait' from 1942. In our generation, I thought if anyone were to do for JFK what Copland did for Abraham Lincoln, it should be the Boston Pops. I had always imagined that Senator Edward M. Kennedy would narrate the piece on his brother. And when I mentioned the project to Governor Deval Patrick some time ago, he suggested that we do a piece on all three brothers."

Keith Lockhart conducts the Boston Pops.

With Senator Kennedy's brain cancer diagnosis in May 2008, Lockhart never got the opportunity to discuss his plans directly with the youngest of Joseph P. and Rose Kennedy's sons. Just months after the Senator's passing in August 2009, however, Lockhart visited his widow, Victoria Reggie Kennedy, on the Cape.

"I met with Vicki in Hyannis Port right before Thanksgiving and told her what we wanted to do. After speaking with Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and Jean Kennedy Smith and others, Vicki gave me the family's blessing and arranged for us to have full access to the archives at the John F. Kennedy Library and Museum. It was then that we began looking seriously at composers before settling on Peter Boyer, whose 'Ellis Island: The Dream of America' is one of the most-performed large-scale orchestral works of the last decade. We then engaged lyricist Lynn Ahrens, a Tony Award winner for 'Ragtime,' to write the text. We told Peter and Lynn that we wanted the piece to pay tribute to the amazing achievements and spirit of the Kennedy brothers, from the call to public service and drive for social change, to their legacy of optimism for America's future."

At the world premiere of "The Dream Lives On: A Portrait of the Kennedy Brothers" next Tuesday at Boston's Symphony Hall, actors Robert DeNiro, Ed Harris, and Morgan Freeman will give life to the words of John, Robert, and Edward Kennedy, respectively, in a performance with the Boston Pops and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus. With DeNiro, Harris, and Freeman, the piece will be repeated at Symphony Hall on May 19. It will also be performed, at Symphony Hall, on May 20, 21 and 22, and on July 3 and 4, at the Charles River Esplanade with different narrators still to be announced. The new work will also be performed by the Boston Pops, and narrated by Alec Baldwin, at Tanglewood in Lenox on July 18, and on Aug. 1, with Chris Cooper of Kingston as narrator, as part of the annual Pops by the Sea event on Hyannis Village Green.

As the high-profile centerpiece of the new season, Lockhart knows all eyes will be on the Kennedy piece.

"Commissions are about the scariest things you can do. You want the piece to suit the special occasion and then to live well beyond it. I'm cautiously optimistic that we are on to something great with this piece. I want it to be one that is still being performed 75 years from now, by all kinds of orchestras, and the Boston Pops to be remembered as being responsible for making it happen," says Lockhart. "I'm pleased, too, that it all finally came together as we mark the 50th anniversary of JFK's election as president and as we continue to mourn the passing of EMK."

Tickets for the 125th Boston Pops season are on sale now at Symphony Hall, 301 Massachusetts Avenue, Boston, by calling 888-266-1200 or going on-line at BostonPops.org.

School chief gives her notice

Opts not to extend contract

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On June 30, Superintendent Denise Walsh will begin her last year as head of the Cohasset Public Schools. Walsh informed the School Committee before her job performance evaluation that she did not wish to extend her contract beyond its completion date of June 30, 2011.

"After giving this decision much thought, I have concluded that it is time to move on. I am excited about the opportunities that are ahead. I am fortunate to be working in a field that I love," Walsh wrote in a letter to the school committee.

The School Committee would have had to make the determination of whether to renew the superintendent's contract for another year on Wednesday night.

"We have come a long way in the areas of curriculum, instruction, and assessment, as well as fiscal management. I will leave you with a balanced budget, four settled contracts, and a reputation as one of the top school districts in the state," Walsh stated.

A packed meeting room sat in on the two-hour evaluation process, which covered many of the areas Walsh highlighted in her statement. The evaluation was special because it was the first time in Cohasset a superintendent's evaluation has been held in public meeting. School Committee chair Helene Lieb even took some comments on the superintendent's performance from the audience (see sidebar).

Walsh received many high marks and positive comments in terms of the efficiencies in the budget, providing professional development, promoting assessment and academic achievement for all students.

What kept coming up as a "needs improvement" category was communication and getting input from the community, including parents, teachers and students.

The School Committee used an evaluation document based on the principles of effective administrative leadership set by the state Board of Education. The evaluation hast six categories for assessment: instructional leadership, organizational leadership, administration and management, promotion of equality and appreciation of diversity, relationships with community and fulfillment of professional responsibilities.

School Committee members pointed to some of the issues that have caused controversy and discussion in the community in the last year (the paraprofes-

Elementary schools visit Holly Hill

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

We are your neighborhood farm.

This is what Jon Belber, education director of the non-profit arm of Holly Hill Farm, told the first-grade students of Osgood School as they congregated in the midst of the lush green of Cohasset's own certified organic farm earlier this week.

Holly Hill, located off Jerusalem Road, has five acres of working farmland surrounded by 140-acres of conservation land with trails. The farm doubles as a hands-on teaching classroom.

Belber and volunteer farm teachers have been leading groups of local elementary students around the farm since late April. The school programs provide young students a glimpse into the life on a farm, its animals, its plants, and its business.

The farm and Belber are in the midst of a busy spring season and with lots of growing going on it is the ideal time to have students come to the farm.

In small groups of 10, each led by a farm teacher, the Osgood first graders got up close and personal with life on the farm. In the fields, the kids enthusiastically dug their hands into the crusty earth dried up by the sun and came out with handfuls of the rich, moist dirt, perfect for growing.

The kids met the animals that live on the farm. They fed grass to the chick-

Summit meeting delves into recommendations

By Nancy White

Given that it is the water department — it is fitting that the solutions to its financial crisis are still "fluid" at this time.

But, there are a few things that are set in stone.

There will be a Special Town Meeting held on Monday, June 14 and voters will determine the financial fate of the water department at least for this fiscal year and next.

There will be a proposed water rate increase that, if approved, would increase the majority of quarterly bills 20 to 40 percent. There will be a proposed override of $300,000 to the town's operating budget to cover the fire protection and fire hydrant cost. There will be a proposal to use a substantial portion of the town's stabilization fund. There will be a proposed fiscal 2011 water department budget. And there will be a $300,000 capital request for water-related improvements.

...a summit meeting was held with the Board of Selectmen, the Advisory Committee and the Water Planning Group to bring the pieces of the puzzle into place.

Together, these items are the "stopgap" measures developed out of the Water Planning Group's discussions over the last six weeks.

While it's certain these items will be discussed — and meet their fate — at next month's Town Meeting the ins and outs of the proposal are still being worked out.

"People really need to understand it's still being worked on," said Sam Wakeman, Advisory Committee chairman.

On Monday night, a summit meeting was held with the Board of Selectmen, the Advisory Committee and the Water Planning Group to bring the pieces of the puzzle into place.

The Town Meeting warrant went to press on Thursday and will be mailed to all residences next week.

The appendixes will include information about the changing rate structure, the water department's fiscal 2011 budget, and the capital improvement projects.

This week the Mariner caught up with Gayle Walsh, Reference/Adult Services Librarian, at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. For this week's Library Corner, see page 27.

Name: Gayle Walsh.

Occupation: Reference/ Adult Services Librarian at the Paul Pratt Library.

Best day of your life: When my daughter was born.

Best vacation: Hawaii.

Favorite season: Spring.

Favorite holiday: "Make up your own holiday" Day, March 26th.

Favorite junk food: Potato chips.

Best book: There are too many to list! Right now I'm enjoying "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese.

Best actor: Cary Grant.

Best TV show: "Modern Family."

Best music, group, or artist: Anything Motown.

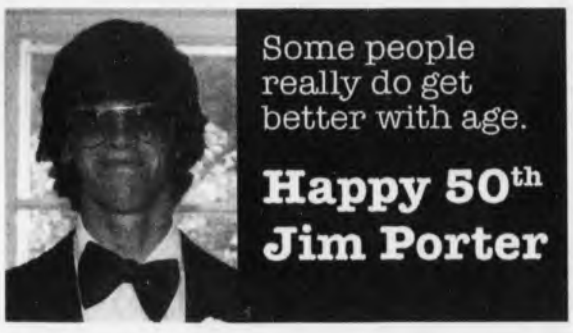
Pet peeve: Getting my hands dirty.

Fun fact: Coolest thing I've done: skydive from 13,500 ft!

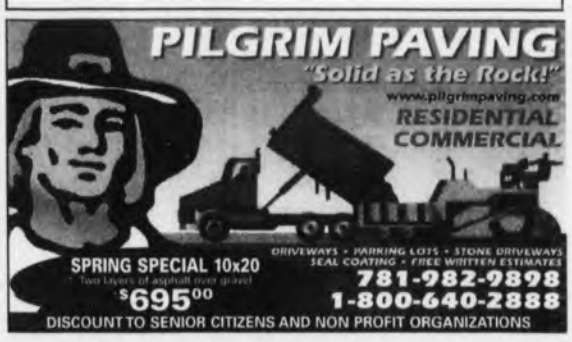
Goal: To learn something new every day.

Person you'd most like to meet: Pilgrim John Howland

Biggest worry: That Reference librarians will be replaced by Google.



Best part of Cohasset: The library, of course!



CHS sailing team to hold Sox raffle

The Nor'easters, the Cohasset High School Sailing Team, is holding a fundraiser for a chance to win four tickets to the Boston Red Sox vs Tampa Bay Blue Rays at 7 p.m. on June 29. Tickets are $1 each. Purchase raffles from CHS sailors or contact Sarah at 781-383-3487.

Sailing is a varsity sport at Cohasset High School. It is funded entirely by user fees and funds raised through Sail Nantasket and not supported by the school's athletic budget. Drawing is on June 20, at Sail Nantasket's Father's Day Pancake Breakfast at Hull Yacht Club checks may be payable to Sail Nantasket.
